New Taxes Sought Replace AAA Fund

Court Ruling Necessitates New Funds To Carry New Deal Program

Washington, March 16.—The House tax sub-committee today began consideration of the second phase of its budget-balancing tax problem—that of raising $517,000,000 to recompense the Treasury for losses incurred when the Supreme Court invalidated the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

House leaders hoped to have President Roosevelt's $792,000,000 tax proposal before the House ways and means committee late this week for start of public hearings.

The sub-committee tentatively disposed of the President's $620,000,000 surplus corporation tax proposal to finance the bonus and farm relief with an agreement for revision to provide so-called 'cushion' allowances through which businesses might build up reserves.

Congressmen of both parties have indicated their reluctance to impose new taxes in an election year, but leaders were confident of passage of a program in substantially the form recommended by Mr. Roosevelt. They hoped for adjournment of Congress by early May.

At least one of the two proposals for raising the $517,000,000 to replace lost processing taxes is expected to incite controversy in Congress. Taxes to raise this amount are expected to be spread over three years.

The two proposals are:

1. A levy of 90 per cent on all unpaid or refunded processing taxes.

2. A series of moderately low excise taxes on 25 to 35 farm commodities to be collected from processors.

The first proposal is estimated to raise $175,000,000 to $200,000,000. The President called it a "windfall tax."

It is the second, or excise taxes, that is expected to touch off fireworks both in the committee and on the floor of the House, if it gets that far.

THE HOMEMAKERS S. S. CLASS

The Homemakers Sunday School class will meet Friday afternoon, March 20, at 3 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Bill Fiquette, for their regular class meeting. Each member is urged to be present.

INTERESTED IN CLANTON

Mayor C. Fenn Jones reports that he has had inquiry from a man in Indiana, relative to the installation of a first class bakery in Clanton.

He stated in his letter to Mr. Jones that he wants to settle somewhere in Alabama, in a city with a population of not less than 3,000. Mr. Jones replied, enclosing a copy of his radio talk which he gave some time ago, which set out in detail the advantages to be enjoyed in Clanton.

We have always believed that a first class bakery could be made to pay in Clanton, although many have been installed here without success. Here's hoping this one comes here and is able to make a go of it.

FOUR CASES IN CITY COURT

The city court had four cases on the docket Monday morning. They are as follows:

One for public drunkenness. Released on payment of $5.00 fine and $7.25 costs.

Two for possession of liquor. In both these cases the prisoners were under 16 years of age, and Mayor Jones passed sentence of 30 days on the city streets, which he suspended, pending good behavior.

One for violating the prohibition law. Released on payment of $5.00 fine and $5.00 costs.

PRESIDENT ASKING BIG AID FUND IN MESSAGE

Roosevelt Tells Leaders He Intends To Continue Relief For Another Year

Washington, March 17.—Congressional leaders were told by President Roosevelt Tuesday night that he would request more than a billion dollars to continue the work relief plan for a full year beyond next July.

In a White House conference lasting an hour and a half, Mr. Roosevelt discussed the message he hopes to send to Congress tomorrow.

It was indicated he would ask for a lump sum appropriation with few strings attached as to how it should be spent.

As the conferees emerged, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the majority leader, said:

"We discussed the President's prospective relief mesage to Congress. It probably will be sent to the Senate and House tomorow. The program covers a full year."

While none would say definitely what the exact sum would be, it was learned that it would be more than a billion, but considerably less than two billions.

JAMES EMMETT GENTRY

James Emmett Gentry, 19, died on Wednesday, March 11th, at the home of his father, P. E. Gentry, in Beat 2, near Jemison.

Funeral services were held at Providence, Beat 13, at 11:00 o'clock Thursday, with Rev. Maurice Hodgens officiating. Burial was in the Providence cemetery, with Martin in charge.

HOUSE GROUPS FAVORS 2 PER CENT GROSS TAX ON BUSINESS

Group of 500 Prohibitionists To March On Capitol Opposing Liquor

Montgomery, Ala.—Approval of 2 per cent gross receipts excise tax on all Alabama business will be given by the special House committee of seven members appointed to draft a revenue plan.

Such a bill was being typed Tuseday and as soon as it is ready the committee will go back into session to report it out. The bill is expected to be handed to the House without recommendations, the same procedure that was followed by the special committee appointed to write a prohibition repeal bill.

It was possible that this would be done late Tuesday, but if the typing is not completed in time, it will be done Wednesday.

Repealists and members of the economy group in the House have appointed one of their number to seek an agreement with Representative Harrison, the governor's leader in the House, to let the House go ahead and act on the repeal bill and send it to the Senate, so that body can work on it, while the House is busy with the gross revenue tax.

This, it was pointed out, would result in a considerable saving of time and would clear the atmosphere in the House.

April 14 has been fixed by the House as the date for a prohibition referendum, and May 5 is being talked as the date of the referendum on the gross receipts tax.

POPWELL INFANT DIED

Murray-Bell Is Now Celeb'ting 1st Year

Mgr. J. D. Bell Likes Clanton; Highly Pleased With Outlook

The Murray-Bell Hardware Company is at this time celebrating its first anniversary, by almost doubling the space provided in their store building.

This concern opened its doors for the first time on March 1st, 1935, under the management of Mr. J. D. Bell, who is still the manager and is expected to remain as such. Mr. Bell likes Clanton, and evidently the people of Clanton like him and his concern, hence its rapid growth.

Mr. Bell is a native of Atlanta, but went to work in the hardware game with the Simmons Hardware Co., of St. Louis, at the age of 16. He later travelled for this concern. He also travelled in the state of Texas for the Winchester Repeating Arms Co. If it is true that: "Bring them up in the way they should go, and when they are old they will not depart from it," then Mr. Bell has his life work picked out for him, as he has spent exactly half of his 32 years in the Hardware business.

Mr. Bell stated that he is highly pleased with his volume of business. He has offered good prices, good merchandise, courteous service, and a cash and carry service to hold down overhead and bad debts, thereby enabling him to pass on another saving to his customers.

He states that he, himself, is really surprised at the fast growth of his business. He carries a full line of shelf hardware, and farmers supplies, catering especially to the needs of farmers. He employs two local men, Earl Wilson and Tom Wells, which adds another "home" touch to his institution.

His Company is helped in its effort to offer lower prices by its connection with the Murray Hardware Company, of Bessemer, who buy in large lots, and thereby secure low prices. Mr. Bell was connected with this firm for four years immediately before coming here.

Mr. Bell added that in connection with the above, he attributes a great part of his success here to his newspaper advertising in the newspapers of the county. He has kept close tab on his advertising, and is convinced that his newspaper advertising has brought greater returns than all other methods of advertising.

To state that the growth of Murray-Bell Hardware Company in Clanton has been phenominal is putting it mild. Mr. Bell has proved himself a "good mixer," knows his business, and advertises liberally. This mixture has brought success to his firm, and The Union-Banner wishes to congratulate him and his Company on this success.

Call by Murray-Bell Hardware Company's store on Seventh Street when in need of anything in their line. You will find a full line, good prices, and courteous salespeople to supply your wants. Again we congratulate Murray-Bell on their success at the time of this, their first anniversary, and may there be many more of them.

Look over their page adv. in this issue of The Union-Banner, and see the fany bargains they are offering, in celebration of their No. 1 birthday.

EXCELLENT CHANCES

[AN EDITORIAL]

The Roosevelt Administration enters the campaign:

With about 10,000,000 (some say 15,000,000) persons unemployed. With nobody knowing the value of the dollar and everybody afraid to invest a dollar in new productive concerns. With the N.R.A. and the A.A.A. and divers other principal parts of the New Deal program busted by the Supreme Court. With the country's national debt increased by nine or ten billions of dollars and increasing at a greater rate than ever. With nobody able to say that there will or will not be inflation. With Federal taxes immensely increased. With nobody able to offer a "farm program" with reasonable assurance that it will be constitutional. With a larger army of salaried office-holders to assist in its re-election, 190,000 of them of its own creation.

And excellent chances have the Democratic seekers for office in Alabama and Chilton county. They have lots of accomplishments to which to point with pride in soliciting the votes of our citizens.

When the Democratic candidates in Chilton county approach the voters here and ask for their support, no doubt the first thing they will refer to is the "economic" administration of Governor Graves and his administration at the State's capital. They will also point out that our State government is now costing us only $97,000 more per month than it was two years ago, and that the indebtedness of the State of Alabama is only $42,000,000. Also these Democratic candidates, of course, will tell those whose support they are seeking why it is that the little freckled-faced boys and girls of our fair commonwealth are having to pass off their surplus time at this and the other errand and sometimes are into unwholesome mischief, instead of being in school and making the year's grades which they so sorely need to prepare for life's battles.

Then, lastly, these Democratic candidates will certainly point out the outstanding accomplishments of our Democratic Representative and Senator, who have succeeded in getting enacted into law certain local bills for Chilton county, among which is the appointment by the Governor of a road supervisor for Chilton county. And too, these Democratic candidates will not forget to explain to the voters everything about the farm demonstration and home agent work, the annual cost thereof to the taxpayers of the county, and the relief work in its different phases, costs, etc.

But in case these Democratic seekers for office in Chilton county do overlook referring to any of these accomplishments of their fellow brothers in Democracy, when they appeal to you taxpayers for your votes, The Union-Banner would suggest that you voters refresh their minds on these salient points and ask them for full explanations. We know these Democratic candidates will be glad to explain if it is only called to their attention.

MEAT AND CHICKENS STOLEN

McCORD FACTION DENIED WRIT IN CANDIDATE ROW

Tuscaloosa, Ala. March 16.—Judge Henry B. Foster denied Monday a petition for writ of mandamus to force John McQueen, Alabama Democratic Executive committee chairman, to certify candidates in the May primary opposing the national convention delegates named by the state committee.

Foster said the principal ground for his action "is that the court has no jurisdiction to control a political party's fight," he added:

"This authority is in the discretion of the State Democratic Executive Committee."

Horace L. Flurry, attorney for the opposing candidates, sponsored by Judge Leon McCord, Alabama's Democratic national committeeman, immediately gave notice of appeal to the Alabama Supreme Court and posted appeal bond with a Circuit Court clerk.

ORLEANS GROUP FLAYS NEW DEAL

Southerners Called Upon To Flood Washington With Letters Of Protest

New Orleans.—In the lengthening shadow of a presidential year "every true patriot of the South" Saturday was called upon to flood Washington with "millions of letters" flatly demanding that the government give business a "square deal."

This protest calling for mass action came from the New Orleans foreign and domestic commerce committee after a report painted a dismal picture of economic distress for 20,000,000 Southerners as a result of the federal government's recovery program.

The call, addressed to "every true patriot in the South," militantly set forth:

"A million personal letters from Southern men and women, addressed to the men in Washington who spend upon them for votes and demanding a square deal for business would do a lot of good at this time."

Striking fiercely at the farm policies of the government, the committee report declared:

"The result has been a disasterous loss of essential markets with consequent great economic harm to every phase of Southern enterprise."

"The farmers have sold to the government while the competitors abroad have sold to consumers."

"Crop curtailment has forced cotton oil mills to import raw materials.

"Grain has had to be purchased from foreign countries for use in the United States.

"Southern railroads, boats, ship lines, merchants, bankers, insurance men, all have had less business and less income.

"Tax collections have fallen short."

Urging that the South weld itself into a solid mass front, the report said:

"If the South is to have reopened markets and its necessary trade reestablished on a satisfactory basis, the people of the South must think in common, and jointly demand . . . soundly conceived action which will reopen the markets and which will restore its economic opportunities and clear the way for the restoration of confidence of workers, men of enterprise, and investors."

City Water Mains Will Be Extended

To Be Exended To City Limits During The Coming Summer Months

During the summer of 1935, the city officials made application to PWA for grants for paving the streets of Clanton, and for extension of the water mains to the new limits of the city.

On March 10th, Mayor Jones wrote to Mr. H. S. Geismer, asking for information regarding the outcome of these applications. He was advised by Mr. Geismer that these had not been passed on, neither had he received Alabama's allotment figure.

It is Mr. Geismer's belief that the allotment will be large enough to allow Clanton's projects, but he cannot give assurance until the figures are given him.

Mayor Jones states that if the PWA grants do not go through, there will be no paving, but that the water mains will be extended to the city limits, whether the grant goes through or not. In this case, the cost would, of course, be born by the city. Mayor Jones also advises that if the city puts in the water mains, this work will be done during the coming summer months, so that residents of the newly acquired city territory may have fire protection and an adequate water supply during the coming winter.

Mayor Jones is not yet certain whether the increased water supply will be piped here from the Coosa River, or if a new well will be provided. However, it is his opinion that a new well will be the answer.

FORMER CHILTON TAX COL. DIED IN TEXAS LAST MONTH

We are informed by Mr. J. E. Gentry, of Beat 2 in Chilton County, of the death of his oldest brother, Monroe Gentry, which occurred at Chillicothe, Texas, on February 14th.

Monroe Gentry was tax collector of Chilton County some 40 years ago, according to Mr. Gentry. He was followed in this position by Mr. Tom Hubbard.

He went to Texas about 30 years ago, and has come back to Chilton County only one time, and that was about a year after he first went there.

Chilton County Will Have A Supervisor

Governor Graves Signed Bill Last Week; Two Others Signed

Governor Graves Wednesday had signed into law three local bills applying to Chilton county, and a general bill giving authority to officials of cities and towns of over 2,500 population, where there is no city board of education, to sell school property not used for school purposes.

The Chilton county bills fixed the salaries of county commissioners at $75 per month; created the office of county road supervisor, fixed his qualifications and salary at not less than $2,400 nor more than $3,000 per year; and required the advertising of all county purchases, the low bidder to get the business.

The first bill signed by the governor this session was the Goodwyn school bill applying to Montgomery county. The bill was taken to the chief executive's gulf share cottage last week for his signature so that the local school debt could be refinanced.

TRAYWICK-ARMSTRONG

At the home of Rev. F. A. Ellison, near Clanton, Miss Roberta Traywick and Mr. Stewart E. Armstrong were quietly married last Thursday morning at 10:00 oclock.

The bride is the daughter of the late Ben C. Traywick. Mr. Armstrong is the oldest son of Mrs. Annie Armstrong, of Clanton. Mr. Armstrong is an empolyee of The Union-Banner.

Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong will live in the Reynolds Addition, northeast of Clanton.

TRUCK PLUNGED OFF FILL

A Ford V-8 truck belonging to Horace Popwell, and driven by Euell Martin, took a dive off a fill a short distance east of Mulberry church Monday afternoon.

At the west end of the bridge over the creek at that point, the road makes a sharp turn to cross the bridge. For some reason, the truck, lightly loaded with fertilizer, was unable to make this turn and plunged down a fill to the edge of the creek.

No one was hurt in the accident. The driver was accompanied by a negro helper. Reports state that the truck was damaged only slightly.

LAW TAKES 14 DURING WEEK

The office of Sheriff Hardy has had another busy week, making 14 arrests. They are as follows:

One for assault and battery. Bond for $300.

One for assault and battery and trespass after warning. Bond for $300.

Two for assault with intent to murder. One is in jail; the other has been released under $200 bond.

One for petit larceny. In jail.

One for abusive, indecent and obscene language and public drunkenness. In jail.

One for bastardy. In jail.

Three for violating prohibition law. Two of these are in jail; the other was released on $200 bond.

One for public drunkennes. In jail.

Two for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated. Both are in jail.

In the last case, officers were called to the southern end of the county to take charge of a strange man, who was creating quite an uproar. It was found that the man was from Rhode Island, that he had received a hard stroke of some kind, possibly when he attempted to board a moving train, and was addled at the time he was taken into custody. Officers state that the man seems to be quite rational, since he has had time to recover, and will be released without any charge being placed against him, unless there are further developments.

They have the new Chrysler and Plymouth cars on display in several different body types. They also have a full line of McCormack-Deering farming equipment on display and a large stock of implement repairs very attractively displayed in neat, clean parts bins, all in plain view of customers.

We understand a representative of the International Harvester Co., upon inspecting the repair parts display of the Polk Bros. Motor Co., recently, complimented the arrangements and cleanliness very highly.

We are sure all the farmers will enjoy inspecting the farming implements on display and discussing their needs with them.

They also have on display Norge Refrigerators and ranges and Atwater Kent radios.

Everyone is invited to visit their show rooms and inspect the complete line of electrical appliances, Plymouth cars and McCormack-Deering implements on display.

Lesson for March 22

JESUS TEACHING TRUE VALUES

LESSON TEXT—Luke 12:13-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you.—Matthew 6:33.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Good Gifts.
JUNIOR TOPIC — When Is a Man Rich?
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Is Most Worth Living For?

The common tendency of men is to be engrossed with the gifts of God instead of knowing him as the heavenly Father and enjoying his blessed fellowship. Man's supreme need is to know and enjoy God himself.

I. A Warning Against Covetousness (vv. 13-21).

1. The occasion (vv. 13-15). One of the company requested Jesus to be umpire in a disputed estate. Two brothers were in trouble over an inheritance. Christ refused to enter the sphere of the civil law and warned against the spirit of avarice. His mission was pre-eminently spiritual.

2. The warning enforced (vv. 16-22). This was done by the parable of the rich man. He showed most clearly that to be concerned with earthly riches while neglecting God is the highest folly. Concerning this man, note:

a. His increased goods (v. 16). His riches were rightly obtained, for the ground brought forth plentifully. A man may be rich because the Lord's blessing is upon him.

b. His perplexity (v. 17). His lands were producing more than his barns would hold. He did not want it to go to waste. No frugal man wants to see the fruits of his toil perish. If he had possessed right views of life and a sense of stewardship before God, he would have seen that his barns had enough for his personal needs, and would have distributed the surplus to the needy.

c. His fatal choice (vv. 18, 19). He chose to enlarge his barns, and give up his life to ease and luxury. It ought to be a delightful task for men whom God has made rich to devote their time and energy to the distribution of their possessions to benevolent objects.

d. The awful indictment (vv. 20, 21). God calls him a fool and this is no arbitrary judgment. Riches furnish neither contentment in life nor guarantee of the continuance of life. It is not only foolishness but madness to forget God while engaged in heaping up riches. Soon the man must die and his riches may get into the hands of unworthy men or even curse the lives of the children who inherit them.

II. The Certain Cure for Anxiety (vv. 22-34).

Having shown the folly of the rich man who gained gold and lost God, he now urged the disciples to trust God and dismiss all anxious care.

1. The argument (vv. 22, 23). This is summed up in one brief sentence: "The life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment."

2. The illustrations (vv. 24-28).

a. God's care for the fowls (vv. 24-26). The ravens do not sow nor reap, they have neither storehouses nor barns, yet they live, for God feels them. If God does not forget the fowl, certainly he will do more for his children who have been created in his likeness and image and redeemed by the precious blood of his Son.

b. God's care for the flowers of the field (vv. 27, 28). If God is so careful of those flowers which appear but for a day, how much more will he clothe his children?

3. The exhortations (vv. 29-34).

a. The getting of food and clothes should not be man's chief concern.

b. Seek the kingdom of God (v. 31). Those who make God's kingdom first shall have all of their needs supplied (Phil. 4:19).

c. Be not afraid (v. 32). God's good pleasure is upon his own and all good things he will give them.

d. Practice self-denial in order to give gifts to those in need (vv. 33, 34).

III. Be Ready for the Coming of the Lord (vv. 35-40).

Having warned the disciples against the acquisition of worldly goods, while forgetting God, and shown them the needlessness of anxiety for food and clothes, he shows them the blessedness of being in a state of readiness when the Lord shall come. Conviction as to the certainty of the Lord's coming is a sure cure for worldliness and anxious care.

This attitude of heart he made clear by two parables; that of the return of the Lord, and that of the thief. The Lord will be so pleased with those who are waiting for him that he will take delight in sitting at the banquet with them, and he will even serve them.

Goodness Before Wealth

You are much in the wrong if you do not prefer the good qualities of the mind, before the advantages of fortune; a good man before a wealthy one; a man capable of being a faithful friend, before a rich unfaithful pretender to friendship.

Littleness of Soul

Envy is a littleness of soul, which cannot see beyond a certain point, and if it does not occupy the whole space, feels itself excluded.—Hazlitt.

Mr. Joe Moore has resumed his studies at the University of Alabama after a serious attack of pneumonia.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

"Why do I have so much trouble? I am a Christian. I try to live right." That question has been asked the writer many times in the midst of his evangelistic campaigns. Why did Job have trouble? He was a good man. He feared God and hated sin. He lost all he had. His children were taken. He was sorely afflicted physically. His friends did not know how to comfort him, and his wife urged him "to give up the game". "Curse God and die", she said to him. God's people have always suffered. It is not a sign that God is not with a man because he has trouble. Sometimes it is a sign God is with a man. Jesus said, "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you and persecute you and say all manner of evil against you falsely for My sake". He taught that we should rejoice and be exceedingly glad that we have trouble.

There are two reasons why a Christian should rejoice when he has persecution. First, he is in good company. "So persecuted they the prophets that were before you". It is a wonderful thing to belong to the company of prophets. Elijah, Elisha, John the Baptist, and Paul were all members of this fraternity. In the modern world all soul winners like Moody, Finny, Whitfield, Martin Luther Knox, Sam Jones, Billy Sunday, and hundreds of others, great and small, were initiated into this fraternity of the persecuted. It is a wonderful brotherhood. It is nice to belong to it. Second, "For great is your reward in heaven". For all the persecution and opposition and trouble a Christian has in this world he will have an offset in heaven. A Christian loses his money. His fortune is wrecked. Why should he worry? What he loses here he will gain over there. A saint is lied about, hounded, misrepresented, cursed, and hated by wicked men simply because he as a saint is doing the will of God. Why have the blues? The more cursing we get in this world the more praises we will get in heaven. A preacher who has no cursing here should not expect much approval over these. "If ye live godly ye must suffer persecution". Remember those who reign with Him have to suffer with Him. God does not promise that anybody except suffering saints will have the privilege of reigning with Jesus Christ. Thedefore, "rejoice and be exceeding glad" when you have trouble and persecution and opposition and suffering. The crowning day will come by and by.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER GIVEN

A miscellaneous shower was given Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. L. A. Calloway and Mrs. H. J. Taylor at the home of the latter. It was given in honor of a bride of recent date, Mrs. Thomas B. Courtney, formerly Lucille Calloway. The pretty home was decorated to suit the taste of the spring season.

The guests were received at the door by Miss Lettie Pearl Crew, who was gowned in a black crepe. Mrs. L. A. Calloway presided over the bride's book, and was dressed in a blue crepe. The bride was attractively dressed in blue crepe also.

Cake, sandwiches and coffee were served to about thirty guests.

STATE GAME NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., March 18.—Citing statistics to bear out his warning, Conservation Commissioner I. T. Quinn said today that the future preservation of Alabama's wildlife resources depends on a consolidation of conservation interests.

"Frankly," he said, "it can never be accomplished in any other way." Pointing to the inadequacy of the game supply to meet the demands of a growing shooting population, he stated:

"For every hunter in Alabama, the 10,000,000 acres of open lands in this state would yield 45 birds, including quail, doves snipe and woodcock. If all the birds were quail, there would be an average of hree days, bag limit for each hunter; if they were doves there would be 2.25 days' bag limit; if they were snipe, there would be three days' bag limit; if they were woodcock, there would be 11.25 days' bag limit for each hunter.

COOPERATIVE AGREEMENT TO PROTECT WILDLIFE

The first cooperative agreement for the protection of wildlife to be reached between a Southern State and the U. S. Forest Service was signed n Atlanta on March 9 by Zack D. Cravey, Fish and Game Commissioner, and Joseph C. Kircher, Regional Forester in charge of the Southern Region of the Federal Forest Service.

The area affected by the agreement is a tract of nearly half million acres in North Georgia that constitutes portions of the Nantahala and Cherokee National Forests. Heretofore, the management of game on this area has been governed solely by the laws of the state except in areas set aside as Federal game refuges.

COTTON TO BE USED IN HIGHWAY TESTS

Auburn, Ala.—The United States Department of Agriculture has made available $1,300,000 to be used in stimulating field tests of new uses of cotton in highway construction.

Cotton materials will be furnished upon request to state highway departments so that they may be tested in widespread use under all climatic conditions. If the results of these tests are as favorable as certain preliminary trials along these lines have indicated, these new fields of use would require large quantities of cotton in the future, says the official announcement.

The extra Nitrogen in every ton of ARCADIAN, THE AMERICAN NITRATE OF SODA is just like extra cash. Bulletin No. 326 of the Department of Agriculture and Immigration of the State of Virginia reports the cash value of this extra Nitrogen over the guaranteed 16% as high as 88¢ per ton

There can be no question about this. It is official. No wonder thrifty farmers insist on "ARCADIAN" Of course they want that extra value.

FARMERS SHOULD REMOVE GRUBS FROM THEIR COWS

Auburn, Ala.—Cattle owners should remove the grubs (warblets or wolves) from the skin or back of their cattle before the fly menace gets bad this spring, advises Dr. I. S. McAdory, acting dean of the school of veterinary medicine and state veterinarian.

"Have a helper catch and hold the animal by the nose while the operator, with a razor-sharp knife, makes an inch long cut over each grub, squeezes the larva out and destroys it," he advises. "The wound should then be washed well with a disinfectant solution, dried and anointed thoroughly with a suitable healing ointment. A good mixture for this and other similar purposes about the stable may be made as follows: 1 teaspoonful of carbolic acid, 2 tablespoonsful of spirits turpentine, 2 table spoonfuls of tallow, and 2 tablespoonsful of lard. Mix well, preferably without heating the tallow.

HOG PRODUCTION IS INCREASING

Auburn, Ala.—After two years of decline, hog production is increasing in the United States and Denmark, according to the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Increased production is also in prospect in Germany and the Netherlands, but in most other continental European countries the number of hogs is unlikely to increase during the first half if this year.

The Bureau predicts that there will be a "material increase" in the exports of United States pork and lard during the next two years.

ALABAMA GROWERS IMPROVING COTTON

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama farmers are making an effort to improve the staple length of their cotton this year. This work is being done through the one-variety communities, farm organizations, and by individual growers,

The importance of this work is indicated by the fact that the United States Department of Agriculture shows that last year 34.6 per cent of the cotton produced in Alabama was shorter than ⅞ inch staple. This meant a financial loss to Alabama farmers, stated J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, who reports that in 1934 the percentage of short cotton was 21.1; in 1933 the percentage was only 8.7; in 1932 it was 14.7; and in 1931 only 9.9.

BRIEF FARM NEWS

Livestock improvement associations have been organized in Sumter and Cleburne Counties to improve the cows, hogs, horses and mules in the two counties, reports W. B. Story and Earl Solomon, county agents.

Fertilizer dealers in Talladega county are cooperating with farmers in fertilizing their cotton with 6-8-4 fertilizer, the grade recommended by the State Experiment Station, says O. V. Hill, county agent.

Over 90 per cent of the farmers in DeKalb County are ready to cooperate in the new soil conservation program, advises John W. Pate, county agent.

Dale county farmers received an average of more than $2,000 per day for hogs they sold during January and February, announces W. D. Thomason, county agent. Actual records show that 2,117 farmers of the county sold 8,565 hogs for $126,411.90.

The extremely cold weather during the past winter kinned most of the peach crop in Shelby county and did considerable damage to the oat crop, says A. A. Lauderdale, county agent.

BEST SWEET POTATO, BEAN AND CABBAGE FERTILIZERS NAMED

Auburn, Ala.—Experiments show that Alabama farmers will profit by properly fertilizing their sweet potatoes, snap beans, and cabbage.

The proper fertilizer for these truck crops is given by Prof. L. M. Ware, head of the department of horticulture and forestry, as follows:

Sweet potato Fertilizer—For the early truck crop of South Alabama 600 to 800 pounds per acre of a 4-10-7 is recommended. For the late crop produced for storage or home use 300 to 400 pounds per acre will be sufficient for most soils. On good, fertile soils sweet potatoes will produce very satisfactory yields without any fertilizer.

Bean Fertilizer—Snap beans for good economical yields should be supplied not less than 800 pounds of a 6-10-4 fertilizer. Since this grade of fertilizer is not registered in Alabama, then 800 pounds per acre of a 4-10-4 fertilizer may be applied at planting time and about 80 pounds per acre of nitrate added and when the beans are 2 to 3 inches high. If the grower is using the Auburn standard cotton fertilizer (6-8-4) he may apply 900 pounds of this fertilizer per acre.

Cabbage Fertilizer—The proper fertilizer ingredients for cabbage may be approximately supplied by using, at planting time, 2,000 pounds per acre of a 4-8-4 fertilizer with a side dressing of 500-600 pounds per acre of nitrate. The proper ingredients may also be supplied by 2,000 pounds per acre of a 6-8-4 fertilizer applied at planting time and 400 pounds per acre of nitrate added as a side dressing. Cabbage fertilizers should not be acid-forming.

FROM J. H. THOMAS

The Union-Banner has been given a letter from Rev. J. H. Thomas, of LaFayette, Ga., a former Chilton County man. The letter was written to Mr. J. D. Collins, who gave notice last week about the old folks day at Friendship. The letter follows:

"Dear Bro. Collins:

"I see in The Union-Banner that you are to have old folks day at your church on the fifth Sunday in this month. I sure would enjoy being there that day to meet all of the old people who will be there. But as I have no chance to be there, I am writing you this letter.

"I often think of the days of many years ago and the people of Chilton County of those days. When I think of Dudley Collins, I think of him as a man of 35 years of age. Of course, I know you are quite different now. Bro. Collins, I am in my 67th year, but am in the best of health. I work hard every day, and preach on Sunday and Sunday night. I have a pretty good country church work in Worth, Georgia.

"Paul said: 'Let us think on these things'. We have to watch and pray, but we must also stop and think. I think of the many good old people of Chilton county. I think of their work, faith, and love. I think of the many churches of that county. But above everything else, I think of Jesus. How He loved you and me, as sinful as we were, and as little as we were. He loved us! I think of Him as the son of God, and as my Savior. I think of Him as the great light of the world. Oh, let us just think. Think before we speak. Think as we look.

"David said: 'In the morning will I direct my prayer to the Lord, and I will look up'. Look up over the things of this world. I see Jesus by faith. Don't look around you, or you might see something wrong. Look up, and see our God and think of Him.

"Hoping for you a great day on the fifth Sunday. Yours in Christ.—J. H. Thomas, R 1, LaFayette, Ga."

Chevrolet's high-compression valve-in-head engine gives economy without equal!

FOR ECONOMICAL CHEVROLET TRANSPORTATION

Every test proves it's more economical . . . Every Chevrolet owner knows it's more economical . . . And every person will readily understand these simple A-B-C reasons why it is more economical

The Chevrolet engine is the most economical automobile engine produced today, because (1) it is a six-cylinder engine, and (2) it is a valve-in-head six-cylinder engine. . . . Its six cylinders use less gas and oil—in fact, use the least gas and oil—because six cylinders are the most economical combination used in modern automobiles. . . . Its valve-in-head design cuts gasoline consumption still lower because there is less loss of heat through the walls of the combustion chamber in valve-in-head engines, and the advanced construction of the Chevrolet engine gives maximum heat (or power) saving. . . . Most important of all, Chevrolet's more efficient cooling system, pressure stream oiling and the greater accessibility of all working parts result in more dependable operation, over a longer period of time, with the lowest maintenance costs.

PLYMOUTH GOES ON THE AIR STARRING ED WYNN

Every Thursday evening at 8:30 central standard time, Ed Wynn, nationally known comedian of the stage, screen and radio fame, is appearing on the Plymouth program over the Columbia Network.

Its a big time show. Many say they always tune in to hear the unusual new Plymouth vocal ensemble—twelve voices blending into rich harmonies. The "King's Men" have long been established favorites and the eight new feminine voices contribute a striking novelty.

At every performance Ed Wynn (Gulliver, the Traveler") asks a question and to the one who submits the best answer on an official entry blank a New Plymouth DeLuxe 4-door sedan is given.

Listen in on your radio at 8:30 p.m. Thursday for this week's question and then go to Polk Bros. Motor Co., local Plymouth dealers, for your official entry blank.

Mr. Polk is very anxious for some one in this territory to win one of the new Plymouths and he states you have just as good chance as any one. So don't fail to listen to the Ed Wynn program every Thursday evening at 8:30, Columbia Network, get the question and then apply to him for official entry blank.

AUTAUGA COUNTY CONVENTION AT BILLINGSLEY 5th SUNDAY

Mr. Henry G. Carter, of Prattville, asks The Union-Banner to carry the announcement that the Autauga County Singing Convention will meet in regular Spring session at the high school building in Billingsley the fifth Sunday in March, 29th. It is handy to the Chilton county singers, since it is at Billingsley, and Mr. Carter is betting heavy on having a full representation of singers from here. He is expecting singers from all the adjoining counties. This is the second session of the Autauga organization, and the officials are reporting prospects for a very fine all day singing.

'Roosevelt' Is The Only Safe Answer Southern Youngster Finds

Washington, March 11.—A Works Progress Administration field man brought in this story from a Southern state:

At a school in a relief district the teacher launched a depression-style question and answer game somewhat as follows:

Q.—Jimmy, who clothes you? A.—President Roosevelt.

Q.—Who furnishes you a home? A.—President Roosevelt.

Q.—Who feeds you? A.—Secretary Wallace.

The teacher turned to Johnny and began again:

Q.—Who feeds you? A.—The Lord.

Whereupon Jimmy shouted:

"Sit down, you darn Republican!"

KILLING UNDESIRALE HARDWOODS IN SOUTHERN FORESTS

Based on extensive research in killing trees by felling, girdling, and poisoning, the Southern Forest Experiment station makes the following recommendations with reference to killing hardwood trees in the South.

"Poisoning is usually unnecessarily expensive and unjustified by any outstanding or consistent advantages."

Girdling is the best method for killing larger hardwoods. A double hack or chip girdle, exposing about a four inch bank of hardwood, offers the best combination of effectiveness and cheapness, with ordinary labor, and for all species. If, however, the the workmen are unusually experienced and conscientious, single-hacking or frilling, with the edges of the cuts separated by twisting the ax, is likely to be satisfactory and is cheaper.

With regard to killing undesirables for stand improvement, the following recommendations are made.

"Felling by cuting close to the ground, and partial felling and bending over, are the best methods for killing or removing the crown competition of small hardwoods, up to 3 to 5 inches in diameter at breast height. Because of the sprouting that will usually occur, neither method is advisable if there are no pines or more valuable hardwoods to be released, or if these more valuable trees are less than about 5 feet high.

An important exception to the last statement must often be made in the case of longleaf pine less than about 4 to 5 feet high and overtopped by relatively small scrub oaks. Omission of treatment in such stands may result in the death of a large proportion of the longleaf seedlings. In view of the relatviely long interval between good longleaf seed years, the usual delay that precedes any untreated stands is usually considered a sufficient reason for stand improvement. However, the only method likely to be successful in permanently releasing small longleaf pines from scrub oaks involves at least one and usually several followup treatments — cutting the oaks close to the ground and returning often enough to cut back the oak sprouts as often as they reach the height of the pines".

In the absence of recommendations by this station on the killing of hardwood bushes and saplings in open lands it might be stated that, acording to observation, the best method seems to be to "grub" them out. This destroys the stumps from which the sprouts usually come to make further work necessary.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

4-H ACCOUNTING USHERS IN BETTER BUSINESS ON THOUSANDS OF FARMS

Better business is being ushered in on farms all over the nation as 4-H boys and girls upon them are opening up their books for the third national Farm Accounting Contest.

Parents, rural and vocational teachers, agricultural leaders and bankers and the business men are cooperating actively with 4-H club leaders and extension agents in carying on the contest which is sponsored by the International Harvester Company and open to every one of the million boys and girls enrolled in 4-H this year.

Reports of state club leaders show that many of the first year contestants and their parents were so pleased with their initial efforts in keeping accounts that they have continued the practice according to surveys of the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work, which is conducting the contest again this year.

Contestants are required to show a complete opening and closing inventory, all money received and expended and for what purposes, and a balance sheet of profit and loss for 12 consecutive months ending not later than Feb. 28, 1937. Any record book providing such information approved by the state extension office may be used. Judges are required to keep the records confidential.

Prizes aggregating at least $7,500.00 are provided by the Harvester Company for winners to be designated by the cooperating club leaders. County winners receive $10.00 IHC merchandise certificate, state winners the choice of a cream separator or $100 merchandise certificate, and four sectional winners each a double unit milker or $225 certificate. The national champion has the choice of a Farmall tractor, half-ton motor truck or $500 certificate. No winner may receive more than one prize.

NO CRIME TO BE AN AMERICAN

Tremendous pressure is being exerted in this country today to silence the voice of Americanism.

To speak out in defense of the American system, to oppose undermining of the Supreme Court or the Constitution, even to become critical of hair-brained legislative fantasies is to be labeled "a Tory." Or a part of those "forces of privilege and greed."

Perhaps you can remember when it was a high crime to attack the foundation of America. But!

Today radicalism goes unchallenged. It is only those who speak against radicalism who are denounced. Who face inquisition and prying into their private affairs.

Who inquires officially what the United Mine Workers of America does with its $1,500,00 "war chest" which the New York Times says it possesses? Who knows, or inquires what amounts are being spent by the Communist party in this country, similar radical organizations?

The business men of America want reemployment and recovery above all else. With it they want the maintenance of the liberties of every citizen—rich and poor.

Americans today confront their severest challenge to speak forth boldly. Not to be intimidated by those who make it popular to sneer with reactionary centralized government.—Nogales, N. Mex., Herald.

Maybe the birds will become so accustomed to being fed that they will demand the right to remain on relief.—Indianapolis News.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

One of the most impirtant and significant announcements to come out of Europe in a long time is the one which tells us of the purpose of Great Britain to spend something like two billion dollars in the next few years in order to make the Island Empire one of the strongest powers, from a military standpoint, in the world. It is reported that a billion and a quarter will be spent in the next three years. The money will be used not only to strengthen the Navy, which is now the most powerful in the world, but also to create an air force second to none, with something like 4,500 fighting and bombing planes. The size of the army will be increased and the equipment brought down to date, and defense against gas attacks will be taught to the citizens of the empire. Gas as a defensive and offensive weapon will not be overlooked, either.

For some years, we are told by foreign correspondents, Great Britain centered the efforts of her statesmen to assure her position as leader in the politics of the world, by the use of diplomatic weapons. Clever as her diplomacy may be, and it is by all odds the cleverest in the world, the time has apparently arrived when John Bull has found it well to increase the British navy and build the national air force to the point where it will be the strongest in Europe, rather than to depend on "horse-trading."

All of which contains a lesson or two for the people of the United States. Some of the internationalists are inclined to blame the refusal of Uncle Sam to enter European politics for the plan to increase armament in Great Britain. They say that if the United States had joined the League and the League Court, John Bull would have trusted those agencies and would not have found it necessary to plan for such a monumental military force. This assertion can only mean one thing. In short, instead of depending on airplanes and new regiments which she now proposes to build for herself. she would have placed her reliance in American soldiers and American equipment placed at the disposal of the League. It would have been up to us to furnish the man power and munitions to pacify Europe in accordance with the wishes of John Bull. Few Americans would have appreciated such an opportunity and privilege of "saving the world for democracy".

Rearmament is not to be practiced in Great Britain alone. Hitler is feverishly adding to his military power in Germany and Russia has the most powerful army in numbers in the whole world. The land of the former Czar is organized in a military way down to the last unit. Italy is now a military machine under the capable Mussolini and the smaller nations of Europe are aping the big ones in the matter of increasing their military armament.

The reason is that the League of Nations is no longer regarded as an effective instrument for peace. It is realized that the application of its oil sanctions against Italy might easily lead to a general European war. Correspondents tell us that nowadays the convening of the League at Geneva causes as much fear and misgiving among Europeans as the convening of Congress does in some business circles in the United States. And with loss of confidence in the League as a fair and effective method for peace, Europe is going back to its old armed camp idea again.

Now it is not Uncle Sam's fault that European nations cannot get along with their neighbors, and it is, therefore, not up to him to make sacrifices to settle European quarrels. And above all, it is not to be forgotten that John Bull is preparing to expend billions for new airplanes and new regiments because he has come to realize that he cannot cajole Uncle Sam into the League of Nations and so induce our generous Uncle Sam to furnish these things for him.

SOAKING THE THRIFTY

While we have heard a great deal about the relief of agriculture and of the unemployed and hungry at the expense of the rich and the "plutocratic," there is one considerable class of citizens in modern circumstances who can be qualified as the forgotten men and women. These citizens are not of the wealthy class, either. They are of modest circumstances, and may be termed the army of savings bank depositors throughout the United States. The number of these depositors is said to be more than 41,000,000 and certainly they are entitled to some consideration in the modern "more abundant life" planning.

Although these citizens have their savings deposited for a rainy day, their circumstances have been made worse rather than better by ultra-modern financial policies. The amount of interest they have been able to receive has steadily declined and the cost of living has steadily mounted. While the price of meats, flour, clothing and rents has increased under the new order of "abundance," the interest on which these savings banks depositors have depended in part for a living has dropped 2 per cent in the past two years, with an estimated annual loss of revenue of nearly $400,000,000.

This has meant tighter living conditions, greater sacrifices and less purchasing power for a class of people who have time and again been called by economists the very backbone of the Nation. The New Deal has certainly offered no encouragement for the exercise of thrift on the part of our people.

Speaking of this lowered economic status of many American people, W. J. Wollman & Co., economic experts, recently said, in part:

"The reason, of course, for this difficult situation of our largest and most thrifty class of people lies in the government's policy of occupying the credit market through most extraordinary spending, creating a vast reserve of bank credit through its money-credit exchange policy. The devaluation of the dollar, the delusions which prompted the silver purchases; the failure to balance the budget; spending through borrowing; spending for non-productive projects; spending to reduce or limit the commodities whereby we live; burdening our people with taxation for 'reform' purposes and far-distant objectives in point of time; the certainty of tremendous taxation to come to meet the payments made by government for inefficiency and incompetency as well as necessary relief; the competition of government with business; the constant threat of printing-press money arising from these conditions—all these and other uneconomic doctrines have cumulatively prevented money from seeking employment in permanent jobs from which it cannot let go."

When we are doing some national economic planning for the future, let us take into consideration the men and women who have saved a little for the rainy day, as well as those who have adopted an entirely different policy under the assumption that Uncle Sam will take care of anything. It may sound good to "make the rich pay for relief," but if the millions of Americans in comparatively modest circumstances are to be pulled down, too, because of inclinations they may have had toward thrift, then there is a rude awakening coming for a yreat many economic experts in the United States.

NEW TAX PROPOSALS

The Nation has not yet had sufficient time, as this is being written, thoroughly to digest the meaning and the probable results of President Roosevelt's tax proposals, if these are finally enacted into law. The first comments indicate that the recommendations will be strongly opposed by most of the Republicans in the House and Senate and that there is a serious division of opinion among the Democratic leaders.

The proposals, if enacted into law, would tax the undistributed earnings of corporations. The estimates of the amount of revenue which would be raised by the taxation are matters of opinion only. A great many believe, however, that the revenue yield would be disappointing, owing to the fact that so much of the surplus accounted for in corporation reports is a matter of bookkeeping.

Although Democratic leaders like Senator Harrison of Mississippi and of Senator Robinson of Arkansas endorsed the principles of the new proposals, according to the newspapers, and many Republican leaders condemned it, the criticism was not all partisan, by any means. For example, Congressman Huddleston of Alabama, Democrat, is quoted as saying:

"I can't see the logic of this proposal. It means undivided profits will be distributed and most of the tax paid by the average individual. If United States Steel had not had a big surplus it would have gone out of existence.'

Senator Clark. Democrat, of Missouri said: "My first reaction is to question the propriety of this. Treasury experts may be able to convince me it is all right. But corporations must be able to maintain substantial reserves, or many will go to the poorhouse during any depression."

Most of the criticism was based on the question of sound business management, which it is claimed would be made difficult by the new tax plan. It was pointed out that corporations in times of prosperity do not distribute their earnings. but save up some of their money for a rainy day. Like individuals following the same practice, they fare better in hard times than those who have squandered all their earnings; so that the new proposed tax might be called another attack on thrift, one more discouragement to the old-fashioned practice of saving money in the belief that it may be necessary for existence in the future. In summing up this argument, Representative Walcott, Republican, of Michigan is quoted as saying:

"This bill strikes at the foundations of American business. What would have happened to American labor during the depression if corporation surpluses had been wiped out?

"General Motors had a reserve and used part of it for employment. This nation owes a deep debt of gratitude to the business acumen with which the automobile industry pulled the country out of the depression.

"This surplus belongs to the stockholders Every concern must build up a reasonable reserve."

In the welter of conflicting opinions one point must not be forgotten. Some weeks ago the President announced that business was to have a "breathing spell." The currently proposed tax plans indicate that the breathing spell is now over.

One of the stock queries of the Brain Trusters is "Do you want to go back to the cheap farm prices of 1932?" Of course we don't, but neither do the people of Canada, Argentine and Australia whose agricultural commodity prices have advanced during the past three years just as ours have.

MAN IN THE MOON

"FATHER DIVINE"

Perhaps you have heard of Father Divine, and if so you know all the stories that are told of him and his "great work" in the city of Brooklyn. If not, then the following may be interesting.

Father Divine is a Brooklyn negro who calls himself God, his followers are called angels, and the halls where he speaks and holds his services are called heavens. When one of his services begins, his angels gather around him and chant: "God Is With Us". It is said that he then proceeds to perform all kinds of miracles as did the Savior of old, such as turning barrells of water into wine, and the like. He holds testimony meetings, when his "angels" tell of wondedful miracles performed for them, such as providing means of livlihood, bodily healings, and raising from the dead.

On occasions when "God" cannot be with his "angels" in person, a life size picture of him, elaborately retouched and framed, has been provided, and this is let down in the place where he would sit if present. and his followers worship that just as if it were God.

There are reports that his following numbers anywhere from 30,000 to 50,000 in the city of Brooklyn alone, and that this following is growing rapidly, including people of all races and colors.

Personally, the whole affair is one big hoax being perpetrated upon people with fanatical minds. What do you think of "Father Divine" and his work?

GLASS HOUSES

"People who live in glass houses should not throw stones". That is an old saying, but it may not be long before you will see houses made of glass throughout. Scientists have been busy for the last several years trying to work out a formula for making glass which would be tough enough for building purposes, and at last they have succeeded.

These "bricks" of glass are made about six inches square, and about three-eighths of an inch thick. In some types of buildings these are fastened together with elastic strips which allow the glass to contract and expand without breaking and without pulling apart. In other types the blocks are put together in a "tongue and groove" manner. The glass itself is very tough, and it is said that model houses which have been built for test purposes could not be broken into with anything less than a sledge hammer.

The men who have perfected this glass predict that the time is not far distant when most homes will be built of it, and at least one big high school building recently constructed with PWA funds in a large northern city is built of it; reports are that the officials are highly pleased, too.

These buildings will need no windows, as plenty of diffused light will pass through the walls, themselves, and the indirect air passages will be "built in", thereby taking care of the problem of ventilation, as well as that of drafts.

Lighting for these buildings will cost less, too, as the walls will reflect all light, which will allow smaller bulbs,and therefore lower current bills. Yet with all these advantages, it is stated that the walls will be as tough and strong as brick ones, and will be just as impossible to see through from the outside.

Just the same, it will be interesting for us to watch the first glass house that is built in our neighborhood, and see what happens when hubby and his spouse get up some blue Monday morning and start trading the family pottery and chinaware by the air route.

WHAT THE NATION WANTS

Various agencies in this country have been at work for the past several months, sounding out public opinion on many top questions. Everything from the 18th Amendment to neutrality has been touched upon, and now the two main parties can very well draw a picture of the desires of the people, when they come to their convention halls later in the year, at which time they will nominate their respective presidential candidates and set out their platforms for the coming campaign. Never before has there been division in both parties. At one time or another each of the parties has been "split", and on each occasion this split has meant a loss. But this time both are split wide open—nationally—and it will be interesting to watch the result. There is no use beating about the bush—we might as well face the plain facts as they are, and try to remedy them by election day this fall, if possible.

Republican candidates we have for the president's chair range all the way from wild-eyed radicals to super-conservative old-liners. At least one Republican who is repeatedly mentioned for nomination says: "America has seen nothing beside what they will see in the way of subsidization of industry if I am nominated and elected to the presidency". Still another, an old-liner, says: "We must stop short in this fly-by-night method of government. We must check up, find just where we are, start on the long climb of rebuilding the stone foundation of our governmental credit. And if I am elected, that will be my policy". Between these two extremes there are all kinds of platforms offered, and many winds of panaceas put forward for the cure of the nation's ills.

On the Democratic side, with President Roosevelt the most logical choice to carry the banner. Democratic leaders and the nation's people know what to expect if he is elected—a continuation of his policies during the past term. In case he is nominated, the election will, in short, be a referendum on whether the nation as a whole favors his policies or are against them. But there are strong anti-Roosevelt groups—leaders who have sensed an abomination in this type of government, and who believe the country's voters will not support it. They belong to the conservative element of the Democratic party, and will put up a strong fight at the convention to keep Roosevelt from receiving the nomination of their party. They have read an adverse opinion on Rooseveltian policies in these public soundings, and are not willing to risk their party's chances on Roosevelt's shoulders. Many of these have been read out of their party when they have voiced their honest convictions, and while the majority of them would very probably line up again in case Mr. Roosevelt is nominated, yet there are quite a number who will "walk out" of the party in such case.

When party platforms come to be drawn, leaders of both parties will know just about what people want. Democrats, under Roosevelt, cannot take up the 1932 platform again, as they have about-faced on that from the beginning. They must draw a new platform, whether he is renominated or not, and supporters of this party will not know whether to go for their platform or not, in view of the record of repudiation of the last one. Likewise, Republicans will have to draw up something different from what has always been incorporated in their platforms. They will attempt to draw up one which will lean a bit toward liberal ideas—but not too far, lest they lose the support of the conservative element.

The nation's people have plainly shown that they want policies effected which will build trade with foreign nations, that our farms and factories may hum again. They have shown unmistakably that they desire more sound business methods in government, that their money may go further, and thus their taxes be lessened. They have shown that they resent the hand of government in business, and the regimentation of industry—"more business in government and less government in business". These are the fundamental things the nation's people want. They feel that if sound basic principles can be effected, that the smaller items will take care of themselves. They are in favor of a "sound" government. They want to "build", not to be built. In short, America's people are in favor of stopping up the red ink bottles in administrative offices, and operate on a cash basis again. Platform writers this year will take notice of this and be governed accordingly.—Man in the Moon.

TOO BIG FOR WASHINGTON

If Secretary Ickes is right, the Federal bureaucracy is fast outgrowing the national capital. The Govermnent now rents 2,500,000 square feet of floor space in 103 District of Columbia buildings, in addition to occupying 12,000,000 square feet in 101 of its own structures. The different bureaus are not only crowded but badly scattered, while for living acommodations their army of employees are forced to pay rents which their salaries do not justify. The Secretary foresees an overflow into Baltimore or some other nearby city as new agencies created by the last Congress set up their establishments.

The situation is interesting chiefly for its symbolism. The country has known all along that the bureaucracy in Washington was bursting the bounds of the national income and the Constitution. Here we find it pressing physically on the limits of the spacious town which the fathers laid out with no notion that the Government would outgrow it. Just as they could not envisage a time when the elastic Constitution would cease to serve the needs of the nation, so it seemed to them that their generous plans for Washington would prove adequate for all future demands of a central authority confined to purely Federal activities.

How their eyes would pop out at sight of the present anthill on the Potomac! For that matter, we imagine that the average citizen of today will pause with a fresh feeling of anxiety on reading of Mr. Ickes's forebodings. It is all very well to warn that citizen of the unwieldly and wasteful nature of the New Deal monster, to cite samples of its arrogance and quote figures of its expenditures. But now he has a very concrete illustration of its size. If not even the District of Columbia can hold it then, we can hear him say, it is high time to reduce it to manageable proportions. Mr. Ickes may have started something he didn't intend.—New York Herald-Tribune.

WORLD FARM PRICES

Those Americans who are led to believe that the protective tariff has been conceived altogether in the interest of the manufacturer and worker, and to the disadvantage of the farmer, ought to be interested to know that statistics for 1931, 7932, 1933 and 1934 show the average advalorem rate of protection for farm products was 64 per cent, while for non-agricultural goods the same rate was 42 per cent. This means that so far as the purposes of the tariff makers were concerned, the farmer had a 22 per cent advantage in advalorem duties.

In addition to this, the aim of the protectionists to favor the former so far as possible is indicated by the fact that there is no tariff on the import of articles used exclusively by the farmer. For example: barbed wire, wagons, fertilizer and many other products which the farmer must buy, have been coming in duty free. One might also add that protection stimulates competition at home, and competition always results in lower prices, whether it be between domestic producers or American and foreign interests.

One of the principal cries of the low tariff man is, however, that protection does the farmer no good because his selling prices are fixed in the world markets.

Yet some of the self-same economists who talk about "world fixing of prices" in one breath, in the next are giving credit to the New Deal for the increase in farm prices which has come during the past four years.

When one expresses dissatisfaction with the New Deal, the question they propound is whether we want to go back to the 32-cent wheat, 15-cent corn and 2½-cent hogs of 1932, with the inference we would still be in the same price range were it not for Mr. Wallace and his left-handed agricultural experts.

Yet the low farm prices of 1932 existed not only in the United States, but all over the world. And the increased price level today is world-wide, although the New Deal has been confined to the United States.

Canada, Argentine and Australia are benefitting by higher farm prices, too. They only differ from us in that they have not been going in the red to the tune of three billions a year for experimentation.

Slowly the trees in the courthouse square are going the way of the relief man's axe. A big swamp maple left the "cutting" blasts last week. But the two coffee bean trees seem to be as flourishing as ever. That's the way with this life. The fine, big elms gave it up. But the coffee bean trees—not pretty in shape, no shade in the summer dirtying the ground with their beans which squirrels do not seem to care for—continue as healthy as ever. However, let them stand. Possibly they represent the Kansas spirit.—Clay Center, Kan., Times.

Baldwin of England made a mistake several weeks ago in matters pertaining to Italy and Ethiopia. Because he finally admitted error, "a mistake in judgment," we admire him a great deal. No American statesman ever admits a mistake—he keeps on explaining and explaining and explaining, but admits no error.—Atchison Globe.

According to news dispatches, the construction of two pigeon houses in New Orleans by the W.P.A. was halted by the claim of city authorities that they conflicted with the sanitary code. The Government ought not to build pigeon houses unless they are equipped with the latest sanitary improvements.

SENTIMENT OF THE CLERGY

There has been a great deal of discussion of late concerning the recent poll of the Literary Digest of more than 21,000 clergymen of America to ascertain their sentiments on the New Deal. The totals showed that 70.2 per cent of th eministers polled opposed the New Deal, while a little less than 30 per cent of them favored it. A poll of clergymen taken in 1934 showed that 13,513 clergymen approved the New Deal, while 11,346 opposed it. In the general poll taken of voters by the magazine some time ago it was found that 62.66 per cent of those questioned opposed the present theories of government, while about 38 per cent approved them.

The poll of the clergymen proved a surprise to most editors in that more ministers were opposed to the New Deal than the voters generally, while the turnover of sentiment in less than two years was considerable. The result was all the more surprising because a great many political students felt that the principles of the New Deal were better calculated to appeal to the clergy than to citizens of others walks of life, especially in view of the fact that their authors hailed them as forwarding "social justice."

Many reasons have been advanced for the apparent lack of sympathy of the clergy toward the New Deal. Some seeking to explain the results have attributed the unfavorable New Deal showing to the fact that when the President sent out his "How I am doing" letters to clergymen some time ago, the incident received unfortunate publicity, owing to the discovery of the fact that Senator LaFollette had sent out an almost identical letter months before, and of the additional assumption that the letter was "stereotyped." This however, seems a little far-fetched.

Others have blamed the unfavorable showing on to the fact that the clergy generally were opposed to the repeal of prohibition either in the interests of "social justice" or otherwise. But this would not account for the favorable showing which the New Deal got among clergymen in the 1934 poll and the slump since that time, for prohibition has been repealed in 1934.

Perhaps if the real truth could be ascertained it would be found that much of the lack of support from the clergy for the New Deal is due to some of the policies of the A.A.A. The burning of pigs and the plowing under of corn and wheat were generally disapproved by the clergy at the time this curtailment of supply was carried out, and the disapproval was all the more pronounced when plenty was followed by drouth. Of course, much of this may have occurred before the Digest took its 1934 poll. but if present returns are accurate, then the criticism has been cumulative. This seems to be true, however, among citizens as well as clergymen, if we are to take the polls as an indication of public sentiment.

MR. TRIMBLE'S THREAT

"Anarchy is rife in the great cities and Communism is spreading like a prairie wildfire," stated South Trimble, clerk of the House of Representatives, in letters addressed, respectively, to the president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and to the president of the American Bankers' Association.

The letters were intended as reprimands to these men, who, in addresses, have pleaded for a return to "the old order," whatever that may mean, in preference to continuation along the course marked by the "New Deal" may actually denote.

The essence of Mr. Trimble's idea is the same as that embodied in the now forgotten "Roosevelt or ruin" catch-phrase of Father Coughlin.

As Father Coughlin once did, Mr. Trimble and Postmaster General Farley are now saying that unless those who believe in sound principles of government shift to unsound governmental principles, they will witness the undesirable spectacle of the American people going mad and pulling their own house down just to hear the deafening clatter of falling bricks and timbers.

The "New Deal's" recourse to fear psychology is not a novel event of the last fortnight. It has been used unsparingly since March 4, 1933.

Its argument seems to be that to avoid anarchism and communism in toto we must take these things in part. It is a ludicrous argument. The best way to avoid having anarchism and communism is to have no part of them, even the tiniest whit.—Fort Wayne, Ind., News-Sentinel.

The Governmnet has forbidden the manufacture of a newly-discovered drug that is twenty times as powerful as morphine. But they still don't do anything about those political speeches, which are, as nearly as we can discover, twenty-three times as powerful.—Boston Transcript.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS ORGANIZED IN EASTERN HALF OF BEAT 4

As per the call issued through The Union-Banner last week, the young Republicans of Beat 4, east of the railroad, met at Concord schoolhouse last Friday night, and perfected a local organization, in compliance with the State and national young Republican Federation.

The meeting was called to order by the county chairman, T. E. Wyatt, and prayer was offered by G. F. M. Easterling. The county secretary, Mrs. Gertrude P. Calloway, being unable to attend, a temporary secretary was selected. Reese Baker was elected to serve in this capacity.

After a few remarks by the chairman in explanation of the purposes and intentions of the Young Republican movement, and the general manner in which the county will be organized and will work, nominations for a local chairman was declared in order. Paul C. Mims was elected as chairman. In the election for secretary, H. Dalton Bice was chosen for that place.

A few remarks were addressed to the meeting by Paul C. Mims, and after a general round-table discussion, by those present, of the work which the club hoped to do, the club adjourned to meet again Friday night, March 27th, at 7:30 o'clock.—H. Dalton Bice, secretary.

EXPERIMENTING WITH FARM PRODUCTS AT INSTITUTE

An ever-increasing market in industry for farm crops is forecast by successful experiments with plastics and vegetable oils at Edison Technological Institute, R. H. McCarroll of the Ford Motor Company recently told members of the Farmers National Grain Association at a meeting in Chicago.

Experiments at Edison Institute have been directed not only toward developing uses for soy bean derivatives but also toward perfecting a simple processing plant which can be economically set up on the farm, and toward developing suitable industrial materials from other farms crops, the speaker indicated.

Progress in the experiments in recent months has included the production of usable benzyl cellulose which may be made from cotton, wood, plant stalks, or even the stalks of weeds, the Ford representative said. The plastic obtained from this source, he said, may sometime be used to replace thin sheet metal parts, such as automobile instrument panels.

MAPLE SPRINGS

The people have all been enjoying the pretty sunshine these days. It seems as if spring might be just around the corner.

Mr. Will Gray, near Cordroy old mill, had the misfortune of getting his house burned last Wednesday morning about 10:30. Only a few pieces of his furniture was saved. The fire caught from the stove flue. At the time of the fire neither Mr. Gray nor his wife were at home. Mr. Gray was in Clanton and Mrs. Gray was visiting in Sylacauga.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rollan, from Highland, spent the past week end with Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Glenn.

Mrs. R. J. Downs visited Mrs. W. F. Glenn Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Harrison Driver, wife and children, spent the past week end with Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Thomas, near Cordroy old mill.

Mr. W. F. Glenn spent a while Sunday afternoon with Mrs. T. J. Thornton.

Mr. J. S. Ogletree and wife and J. R. Mitchell and family motored to Mitchell Dam Sunday,

Mr. Ottis Glenn spent a while Sunday night with his brother, Mr. Oliver Glenn.

The many friends of Mr. Wallace Watkins are sorry to learn of the misfortune that came to him Saturday afternoon when coming from Clanton. Just about a mile and a half south of Clanton a freight train passed him and three negro men and one white man jumped from the train and jumped on him with the intention of taking his money. When Mr. Watkins made fight at them he received several knife wounds, though none were serious. A negro man cut him several times on the right arm and on the left arm, and several times on the neck. They then took about $7.00 from him and caught the train again.

Mr. Melvin Lansford was home Sunday p.m.

Mr. W. F. Glenn visited his brothers, Messrs. Calvin and Jasper Glenn, both of Coopers Sunday.

URGE CAMPAIGN AGAINST CONSUMERS SALES TAX

Greenville, Ala.—Serving notice that no concession will be made in their fight against governmental waste and increased taxation, officials of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama, through Jeff P. Beeland, Vice-chairman, today called upon all county chairmen to intensify their campaign and strengthen their county organizations.

"It would be disastrous to give an inch at this time," Beeland declared, "and we do not propose to let the Legislature hoodwink the people of Alabama into feeling of false security by confusing the sales tax with liquor or any other extraneous issue."

"We have tried as hard as humanly possible to make our position, and the position of the people of Alabama, clear on this subject, and we do not believe it will be an easy matter to divert the public mind from the question of the day."

"The newspapers are full of accounts of padded payrolls and increased governmental costs, all in direct violation of sacred campaign pledges. The state's increased payroll, over that of the Miller administration, according to published reports is equal to the entire relief burden, and yet we are faced with the paradoxial refusal of the men who make our laws to institute a single item of economy in the face of starvation and bankruptcy."

From the Montgomery headquarters of the anti-sales tax group came word from B. C. Apperson, executive secretary, that all sorts of pressure is being exerted in favor of forcing over the sales tax program, regardless of the proposed liquor taxation program.

"This is the most crucial time of the campaign," Apperson declared, "and it is imperative that we hit and hit hard, never relaxing our vigilance, lest we lose some of our hard gained ground."

"In the name of the people of Alabama we call upon county organizatinos to strengthen their forces, and we again ask the people of the state to fight the sales tax through their own legislators and senators to the end that public confidence in Alabama can be restored, and sensible economical government again become the order of the day."

Petitions against the sales tax, together with letters and telegrams condemning the levy will pour in on Montgomery as the county organizations set their machinery in motion for a new offensive against the sales tax measure.

County units and citizens generally were urged not only to see and write their legislators, but to visit the capitol personally at every opportunity to lend their active support and cooperation to the statewide fight against increased taxation and for economy in government.

POPLAR SPRINGS CLUB

The ladies home demonstration club met with Mrs. R. L. Traywick last Friday afternoon, March 6. This was the first meeting we've had since December, due to bad weather. We were very sorry Miss Pardue was sick and could not be with us. There were 10 members and one visitor present. We also enrolled one new member of which we are very proud.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. A. D. Minor. We first discussed the money is the treasury. We also voted on rendering a play and piecing a quilt to raise some money for building a club house.

We had two demonstrations. Miss Lena Downs, our project leader, demonstrated on cleaning rugs and Mrs. A. D. Minor on storage places.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Walter Moore on April third. Be sure to come and bring some one with you.—Reporter.

CARD OF THANKS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper thanking the people in our community for their kindness toward our dear grandmother in her long spell of illness. She was the companion of Mr. C. R. Green. Her age was 77.

She leaves a husband; seven children; three step-children; fifty-five grand children; thirty-seven great grand children; three sisters and two brothers to mourn her loss.

Her body was laid to rest at Providence cemetery last Monday at 11:00 o'clock. Rev. Honeycutt and Rev. Green conducting the services.

Sleep on dear grandmother, and take your rest, for God calleth you, and he knoweth best, and it was His will. It leaves a vacant place in our home that never can be filled, for we know they are sleeping in the arms of Jesus, where there will be no more pain nor sorrow, for Jesus said "Come unto Me all the weary and I will give you rest."—Odis Day.

All Repsblicans who vote in Boxes 1 and 4 of Beat 4 are urged to attend the scheduled meeting of Young Republicans at the Concord schoolhouse on Friday night, March 27th.

Hon. J. Osmond Middleton has consented to be present and speak, and we are very anxious that a large crowd be present. Mr. Middleton is one of the outstanding speakers of the state, and a staunch Republican. Don't fail to be present and hear him.

In addition to Mr. Middleton's speech, further organization of this unit of Young Republicans is scheduled, and all between the agse of 18 and 36 who wish to become members of the organization will have a chance to do so. We would be glad to have older members of the Republican party to meet with us, also.

After the Middleton speech, and organization is finished, our first major objective will be explained in detail, and committees appointed in every community in these two boxes of Beat 4 to lead in this work.

We urge Republicans from the following communities to be present, and help in this work: Poplar Springs, Temple, Concord, Refuge, Walnut Creek, Jacksons Chapel, Pinedale, and Clanton (east of railroad). We will be glad to have Republicans from other communities with us, but especially those from the above-named communities to be present.

The meetings will be called to order promptly at 7:30. If you have ever heard Hon. J. Osmond Middleton speak, you know a treat is in store for us. If you have not heard him, by all means do so on this occasion. Don't forget the date, hour, and place—Friday night, March 27, at 7:30, at Concord schoolhouse, three miles east of Clanton on the Higgins Ferry Road.—Paul C. Mims, chairman; Dalton Bice, secretary.

POULTRY CAR HELPED FARMERS

Five hundred and twenty-nine Chilton County farmers sold 22,291 pounds of poultry for a total of $3,380.68 to a poultry car last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

This is the second time this year that the farmers have had an opportunity to sell poultry at a fair price. This poultry goes into the big markets thereby taking surplus poultry off of local markets and will have a tendency to raise local prices.

HAYES SEEKS BERTH ON CRIMSON TEAM

University, Ala., March 17.—Alex "Red" Hayes, sophomore from Clanton, is one of the most promising infielders coming up from last season's Alabama freshman team.

"Red" is 20 years old, weighs 155 pounds, and stands six feet tall. He played second base while a frosh, but likes catching best. He can, in fact, play almost any position in either the infield or outfield. He specialized at shortstop while in prep school.

Hayes was a two sport man in prep school, having played football and baseball for Gulfcoast Military School. He made two letters as an end in football, and three as a shortstop in baseball.

"Red" has a brother in professional baseball now. Jack Hayes, who holds down the keystone sack for the Chicago White Sox, cavorted on the 'Bama diamond in 1927 and 1928. After playing two years at the Capstone, Birmingham signed him up. He was with the Barons only two weeks, however, before the Washington Senators grabbed him.

Alex, however, has no intentions of playing professional baseball. He plans to study medicine on finishing his undergraduate work here at Alabama.

FORMER CHILTON OFFICIAL PASSES IN TEXAS TOWN

One-Time Tax Collector Here Died In Chillicothe, Texas, Last Week

Chillicothe, Texas, March 11.—One of Chillicothe's oldest residents has passed on.

B. M. Gentry, aged 84 years and one week, died at the family home here last Friday following an illness of several months. Funeral services were conducted Saturday afternoon with the Revs. Ira L. Parrack and H. A. Nichols, officiating, assisted by members of the Odd Fellows Lodge of which Judge had been a member for many years.

The body was carried to the Chillicothe cemetery and laid to rest.

For about twenty years the deceased had served as justice of the peace here. Previous to his coming to Texas he was for about twelve years tax collector in Chilton county, Alabama, his home being at Jemison. Before coming to Chillicothe he had lived in Dallas and Haskell, Texas.

Judge, as he was familiarly addressed by his many friends in this section of the state, was born February 8, 1852. He was first married to Miss Mollie Mote and to this union four children were born, three sons and one daughter. A son preceded him in death, however, and the surviving are A. M. Gentry, Chillicothe, J. C. Gentry, Mobile, Ala.; and Mrs. Pearl Cooper of York, Ala.; also seventeen grandchildren and five great grandchildren; two brothers, C. C. Gentry, of Lewisville, Texas, and J. E. Gentry of Jemison.; a sister, Mrs. J. M. Johnson of Jemison, Ala.; also survives.

His first wife died about fifteen years ago, and in 1922 he was married to Mrs. Mary G. Burton, who faithfully and tenderly ministered to his every want during his long illness.

In early life Judge Gentry joined the Baptist church and since had served faithfully.

He was a greatly loved man, not alone in Chillicothe but wherever he was known. He was always cheerful and enjoyed joking his friends. Consequently the City Hall presents a different atmosphere since his going, as if there was something missing and there is something missing—Judge, who had his office location in the rear of the building. His greatest time, it seemed to friends, was during afternoons whtn he would sit out in front of the building and chat with those around him. They all enjoyed hearing him talk.

A glowing tribute was paid to Judge and the respect in which he was held was evidenced by the great number to attend the funeral.

J. O. Middleton At Concord Friday, 27

Young Republicans Will Hold Second Meeting; Good Crowd Expected

All Repsblicans who vote in Boxes 3 and 4 of Beat 4 are urged to attend the scheduled meeting of Young Republicans at the Concord schoolhouse on Friday night, March 27th.

Hon. J. Osmond Middleton has consented to be present and speak, and we are very anxious that a large crowd be present. Mr. Middleton is one of the outstanding speakers of the state, and a staunch Republican. Don't fail to be present and hear him.

In addition to Mr. Middleton's speech, further organization of this unit of Young Republicans is scheduled, and all between the agse of 18 and 36 who wish to become members of the organization will have a chance to do so. We would be glad to have older members of the Republican party to meet with us, also.

After the Middleton speech, and organization is finished, our first major objective will be explained in detail, and committees appointed in every community in these two boxes of Beat 4 to lead in this work.

We urge Republicans from the following communities to be present, and help in this work: Poplar Springs, Temple, Concord, Refuge, Walnut Creek, Jacksons Chapel, Pinedale, and Clanton (east of railroad). We will be glad to have Republicans from other communities with us, but especially those from the above-named communities to be present.

The meetings will be called to order promptly at 7:30. If you have ever heard Hon. J. Osmond Middleton speak, you know a treat is in store for us. If you have not heard him, by all means do so on this occasion. Don't forget the date, hour, and place—Friday night, March 27, at 7:30, at Concord schoolhouse, three miles east of Clanton on the Higgins Ferry road.—Paul C. Mims, chairman; Dalton Bice, secretary.

Delegates to the national convention will be chosen at the state convention in May.

Likewise, the Clanton Grammar school set out for another month of school work on a private basis. It has already been running one month without public aid.

It is understood that the high school will continue for two and a half months, giving the pupils a chance to finish their grades. The grammar school will not likely run more than one month.

Red Cross Asks Aid For Flood Victims

Thousands Homeless In Eastern States; Pres. Roosevelt Makes Proclamation

Mr. J. Mell Martin, local Red Cross Roll Call Chairman, is extending an invitation to all to help in the aid of flood sufferers in the east.

Mr. Martin pointed out that the eastern section of the country contributed heavily during the catastrophe which have come to Alabama in the past, notably the Elba flood, the Helena sorm, and our own two Chilton County toronadoes. Now, when the people of the eastern section are themselves victims of a like calamity, it is only fair that Alabama respond and help in their relief.

Chilton County owes much to the Red Cross, and now is an excellent chance for our people to show their appreciation of past favors by helping the Red Cross to help other sufferers.

Mr. Martin stated that some unsolicited donations had already been received at his office, to be turned over to Red Cross headquarters, to aid flood sufferers.

Late reports are that the flood situation throughout the east has grown worse instead of better. The most conservative estimate places the number of men, women and children looking to the Red Cross for immediate relief at 270,000. In Pittsburgh alone the Red Cross today is feeding 50,000 people. Food, clothing, shelter and medical care is being given to these homeless flood refugees within the flood areas of thirteen states.

Red Cross nurses are beng rushed to several of the areas to assist in epidemic prevention. Twenty of them are on duty in Pittsburgh, others have been sent to Sunbury, Pennsylvania, and to New England points.

New relief headquarters are being opened locally as new calls for assistance come into national headquarters.

President's Proclamation

"To The People Of The United States:

"Flood daters raging through eleven states have driven 200,000 people from their homes, with every indication that this number may be materially increased within the next 24 hours. In this grave emergency the homeless are turning to their great national relief agency, the American Red Cross, for food, clothing, shelter and medical care.

To enable the Red Cross to meet this immediate obligation and to continue to carry the burden of caring for these unfortunate men, women and children until their homes are restored and they can return to normal living conditions, it is necessary that a minimum relief fund of three million dollars be raised as promptly as possible.

As President of the United States and as President of the American Red Cross, I am, therefore, urging our people to contribute promptly and most generously so that sufficient funds may be available for the relief of these thousands of homeless fellow citizens. I am confident that in the face of this great need your response will be as immediate and as generous as has always been the case when the Red Cross has acted as your agent in the relief of human suffering.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

WISHES OF FEW VERSUS THE MASSES

[AN EDITORIAL]

Again Chilton county is greeted by its Democratic Representative and Senator with an array of local bills purporting to change to a considerable extent the working government of the county, which The Chilton County News, the Democratic organ, chooses to call "economy" measures. The most important one, or the one that will affect the wishes of most people, is the abolishing of the Commissioners Court and the setting up of a Board of Revenue in its stead.

Now, in the first place, if this is an economy measure and will save the people some of their hard-earned tax money, it is a brand new wrinkle to come out of a Democratic regime. Of course it is natural that they are shrewd enough to sugar-coat it with the word "economy" so as to make it less repulsive for the dear people to take; but then to make it work out that way is a horse of another color. When it comes to putting the scheme into operation, no doubt, it will be seen that it will cost more real money than the old order of things.

People of Chilton county, it is not like the Democrats to cut expenses, and you know it without us saying so. You have heard this old cry so many times that you know exactly what it means. They simply do not cut expenses and they simply do not reduce taxes. Every move they make is an increase, and no group of people knows it better than the masses of voters of Chilton County. We have seen it tried and seen it fail too many times.

And aside from the "economy" angle, we are faced again with the proposition which we have heard lots of before; that is legislating men out of office who were elected by the sovereign electorate of the county and who are the expressed choice of the people themselves. There can be only one explanation to the action of our Representative and Senator, and that is that they think they know better what is good for the masses of people of Chilton county than the people themselves do; and so far as these two officials are concerned, the wishes of the people can go to Guinea. They were elected by the people to carry out the wishes of the people, but since they are elected such wishes have not the least place in their minds. Now it is a dictatorship in Chilton county—pure and simple.

The question arises in the mond of The Union-Banner: Will the people of Chilton county sit still and let these two self-styled dictators trample under foot and treat with utter contempt the expressed wishes of ninety per cent of the taxpayers and legal, qualified voters of the county? Will we let them continue to force upon us measures that will without doubt raise to unheard of proportions our already almost unbearable rate of taxation, and at the same time bankrupt our county treasury, into which we pay our hard-earned cash dug from the rocky hill-sides of Chilton county? Will we let them appease us with this cry of "economy", when we have heard this same cry so many times before and know that it means nothing but just the opposite of economy?

We repeat: Will we sit still and be run over like so many red headed step-children, or will we form a delegation and go to Montgomery when the bill comes before the legislature, and show Governor Graves and that august body that we still have a little "fight-back" left in us? We feel sure that if somebody will start such a move, there will be plenty who will volunteer to fall in line and follow. Have we got a leader for such delegation? Or can we arrange a referendum on the question?

ATTENTION MEMBERS OF THE CLANTON BERRY GROWERS

I want to call the attention of all berry growers to the importance of growing clean berries and that nothing is more important than having berries well mulched, as sandy berries will not grade or sell as first class fruit.

Use pine straw, oat straw, cheap hay or cane pummies to thoroughly cover the exposed ground around the plants and it will be much easier to deliver clean berries that will be in demand. Otherwise we will break down our reputation for offering our markets first class berries. All berry buyers want clean berries and very often will refuse dirty berries at any price.—L. E. Diefenderfer.

SALES TAX AND LIQUOR BILLS PASS

Two Per Cent General Levy Okehed In House By Four Votes

Dates Are Fixed For Referendums

Montgomery, Ala., March 20.—Breaking a two-week's deadlock on taxation measure, the House of Representatives Friday afternoon by a four-vote margin, passed a two per cent general sales tax bill after having previously voted passage for the liquor referendum bill.

Both measures carry referendum features, the sales tax to go into effect June 1st, provided a majority of the voters ratify it at the polls on May 5th, and the liquor legislation bill to take effect immediately if the voters approve it in a general election set for April 14.

The Alabama Supreme Court Monday, in advisory opinions requested by the house, ruled that the sales tax or other direct revenue bills could not be submitted to the voters at a referendum since this would constitute an unlawful delegation of the legislature's inherent power to tax.

In view of the supreme court's decision that a referendum sales tax bill was unconstitutional, the house Tuesday reconsidered last Friday's 42 to 38 vote by which the bill was passed.

The motion to reconsider was made by Representative Clint Harrison, of Marengo, who said that the administration "never had any intention of passing a sales tax bill without a referendum."

Mrs. Clara Mullins invites you to visit the store and look over this new addition. She is sure that you will be pleased.

Mr. Little states that in the near future a picture of this building will be carried in the county papers, together with information regarding the dedicatory ceremonies.

The new Isabella building is nearing completion, and Mr. Little expects it to be ready for final inspection by April 24.

Nothing new has been given out regarding the school situation, but Supt. Luther Little expects some move to be made before adjournment of the legislature which will assure a full school term next year.

REV. W. S. COX URGES LARGE ATTENDANCE AT OLD TIME SING

Rev. W. S. Cox asks The Union-Banner to say for him to the people of Chilton county that he hopes they will take note of the old time singing to be held all day next Sunday at the courthouse. Bro. Cox is an old timer himself, and if there is anything he enjoys just a little better than all else, it must be "O Bear Me Away On Your Snowy Wings" or some of those old kindred airs found in the old Sacred Harp and Christian Harmony.

So, everybody who likes this style of singing, be sure and do as Bro. Cox asks, and attend this all day singing at the courthouse next Sunday.

CONVICTED IN COOSA

Montgomery Man Given 10 Years On Charge of Fraud

Goodwater, Ala.—Henry C. Jones, of Montgomery, Thursday had been convicted in Coosa Circuit Court and sentenced to 10 years imprisonment on a charge of defrauding Mrs. Artie Mitchell, of Kellyton, of 15 shares of stock.

Lawrence Gerald and Felix Smith, counsel for Jones, formerly a prominent business man of Montgomery, and real estate operator, said an appeal would be taken to the State Supreme Court

The state charged Jones promised to pay Mrs Mitchell $1,500 for the stock, but later sold it for $58 a share.

Jones is wanted in Chilton County for similar charges preferred by Henry Miller, Hugh Mims and Marion France Ellison.

Judge Smith Asks For A Referendum

Wants Voters To Register Wishes On Bill To Abolish Court

In an interview with Probate Judge J. Lee Smith last Tuesday, in regard to the Thomas bill to abolish the Commissioners Court, Judge Smith gave permission to publish the following quotation from him:

"I believe in honest popular government. I believe in allowing the people of our county a voice in affairs as important to them as this current bill. I believe the proposed manner of enacting this bill is not giving proper allowance for the voice of the people.

"Therefore, it is my intention of calling for a popular referendum on this question, to determine the wishes of the people of Chilton County, in which they will be given a chance to speak for themselves by their ballots. If arrangments are made for a state-wide referendum on the liquor question to be held on April 14, as has been mentioned, then I will ask that a referendum be held on the same date here in our county in regard to the bill to abolish the Commissioners Court. If it is decided that there be no state-wide referendum, then I will make further plans in regard to date, etc., for holding our county referendum anyway. I should know by next week all particulars as to the state-wide referendum, and therefore will be able to give out further information concrning the Commissioners Court referendum.

"It is my opinion that, in case the voters of the county are in favor of such a change, as may be expressed in such referendum, then the change will be made; but that, in case the voters are not in favor of this radical change in our county government, I do not believe the bill will become law."

TAXES MUST BE PAID BY APRIL 1 IF PENALTY IS TO BE AVOIDED

Tax Collector T. L. McKee asks The Union-Banner to again remind the people of the county that after April 1st there will be a penalty attached to all taxes that are paid. This is positively the last day of grace for payment of taxes, as no more time can be given and all laws complied with, says Mr. McKee.

JESUS EXPLAINS THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Luke 13:18-30.

GOLDEN TEXT—And they shall come from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God.—Luke 13:29.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Good News to Men.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Talks About His Kingdom.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—My Part in Extending Christ's Kingdom.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Requirements for Citizenship in the Kingdom.

I. Jesus Teaching in the Synagogue (vv. 10-21).

The presence of a sorely afflicted woman called forth Jesus' sympathy and he, therefore, healed her. This action on the Sabbath day provoked severe criticism on the part of the ruler of the synagogue. Jesus quickly silenced his objections by showing that this good deed was entirely in keeping with the purpose of the Sabbath day.

1. The parable of the mustard seed (vv. 18, 19).

a. Its unimportant beginnings (v. 19).

It begins as the least of all seeds and grows to be the greatest among herbs. The parentage and humble circumstances of Jesus the King greatly perplexed the people. That twelve unlettered fishermen should be selected as his advisers was still more amazing.

b. Its vigorous growth (v. 9). Though small in its inception, the work inaugurated by Jesus Christ has become mighty in power.

c. Its lodging capacity. The birds which find lodgment in a tree do not represent the children of men who find safety and salvation in the church, but they are predatory beings waiting to pluck the tender buds or to prey upon the ripened fruit. The effects of such lodging are evil, blighting even to the spoiling of the tree.

2. The parable of the leavened meal (v. 21). When the scriptural significance of the meal, the woman, and the leaven is known, the interpretation is easy.

a. The meal. Meal in Scripture means something wholesome and nutritious. It was used in one of the sweet savour offerings which typify Christ (Lev. 2:1-3) and was the food for the priests (Lev. 6:15-17).

b. The leaven (v. 21). In the Scriptures leaven is invariably a type of evil, as the following examples show (Exod. 12:5, Lev. 2:11; Matt. 16:6, 12; I Cor. 5:6-8).

c. The woman. In normal life the woman is the administrator of the home, not its head. Her responsibility is to take the bread provided by the head, prepare and distribute it to the household. In Scripture we find false doctrine being taught by a woman. Dealing with doctrine is forbidden to women (I Tim. 2:12). In I Timothy 4:1-3 we find that apostasy will be brought in through false teaching in the ranks of God's people. The meaning of the parable, therefore, is that the true doctrine of the meal given for the nourishment of the soul will be officially corrupted by false doctrine. The children's food is thus corrupted by their mother.

II. Jesus Teaching in the Villages and Cities (vv. 22-30).

Jesus knew that he was on the way to Jerusalem to be crucified. He was, therefore, making an effort to reach every person possible with the gospel.

1. A question asked (v. 23). We do not know just why this question was asked. It may have been out of curiosity or by some Jew who prided himself on being of the elect.

2. The Lord's answer (vv. 24-30). He did not answer directly, but by likening the blessing of the kingdom to a banquet hall in a palace.

a. The gate of the kingdom is strait and the way narrow. It is easy to see from his teaching, as well as from observation, that the saved are few. The fewness is not due to either Christ's unwillingness or inability to save, but the unwillingness of the sinner to come to him.

b. The immediate duty to set forth (v. 24). Regardless of what others are doing, the personal obligation is upon everyone to strive to enter.

c. The door to be shut (v. 25). God's patience will not last forever. His mercy is to end and his judgment will follow. Love and grace spurned will eventuate in the manifestation of divine wrath.

d. Pleading for entrance on the ground of knowing Christ (vv. 25, 26) This plea is met by the awful command to depart, and even calling them "workers of iniquity."

e. A day of weeping and gnashing of teeth (v. 28). The very sight of the faithful ones enjoying the blessing of the kingdom, while they themselves are shut out, will be extremely awful.

Laughter and Tears

God made both tears and laughter, and both for kind purposes; for as laughter enables mirth and surprise to breathe freely, so tears enable sorrow to vent itself patiently. Tears hinder sorrow from becoming despair and madness.—Leigh Hunt.

Truth

Truth and reason are common to everyone, and are no more his who spake them first than his who speaks them after.—Montaigne.

Fertilizer delivered to your farm.—J. Z. Mims, Clanton.

This story will interest many Men and Women

"Yes, I have come back to where I feel like myself again."

NOT long ago I was like some friends I have... low in spirits...run-down...out of sorts...tired easily and looked terrible. I knew I had no serious organic trouble so I reasoned sensibly...as my experience has since proven...that work, worry, colds and whatnot had just worn me down.

The confidence mother has always had in S.S.S. Tonic...which is still her stand-by when she feels run-down...convinced me I ought to try this Treatment...I started a course...the color began to come back to my skin...I felt better...I no longer tired easily and soon I felt that those red-blood-cells were back to so-called fighting strength...it is great to feel strong again and like my old self. © S.S.S. VATCHEL LINDSEY IS THANKFUL FOR SYMPATHY DURING BEREAVEMENT

Vatchel Lindsey of Clanton asked The Union-Banner to express his sincere appreciation for all help and sympathy extended to him by friends during the recent illness and death of his mother. He is very grateful for all acts of kindness, as well as the beautiful flowers.

There are a few minor additions and corrections which Vatchel wishes made to the write-up about his mother's death in last week's paper. She was nearly 75 years old, and was the widow of Benjamin Franklin Lindsey, who died in Coosa County in January, 1903. Up until 1908 she lived at Bazemore's Cross Roads, in Coosa County, at which time she moved to Clanton. she joined the church about 60 years ago, and at the time of her death was a member of Friendship, out from Clanton.

There are no survivals except two children, Vatchel Lindsey and Mrs. Emmett Popwell, and two grand children.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

FARMERS ADVISED GROW OWN OTOOTAN SOYBEANS

Auburn, Ala.—Ototan soybean seed can be produced and saved for farm use in most sections of Alabama, states J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, in advising that "the Ototan soybean is one of the most dependable hay crops for much of Alabama."

"This plant produces a hay fine of quality and has demonstrated its ability to withstand unfavorable conditions," Lowery reports. It has increased very rapidly in popularity in recent years in north Alabama and is now becoming popular in the southern half of the State for soil improvement and for temporary grazing.

"Ototans are very good for grazing poultry and livestock. The crop may be grazed at any stage but the maximum grazing will be obtained at the state to cut for hay."

If planting alone for seed, Ototans should be left 8 to 12 plants per hill eighteen inches apart in rows three feet apart. Locate seed patch on soil of medium fertility. One of the most common and a very successful method is to plant four or five beans between hills of corn. Plant in late corn—the last of May or first of June.

Plant 25 to 35 pounds of seed per acre about the middle of May to the first of June in rows just wide enough to permit one or two light cultivations. Apply 400 to 600 pounds per acre of basic slag. Cut for hay when the plants are in full bloom.

DETAILS OF NEW AAA PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

Auburn, Ala.—By cooperating with the government in the soil conservation program, Alabama farmers can increase their 1936 farm income by ten or eleven million dollars, announces Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the State Extension Service, who will administer the program.

A telegram received Saturday by Dr. Duncan from Washington states that the new program provides two types of payments—soil conservation payments, averaging $10 per acre within maximum acreage limits for the country as a whole, and soil building crops in 1936.

The payments on cotton will be five cents per pound for the normal yield of each acre diverted. Cotton payments will not be made for diversion of more than 35 per cent of the cotton base acreage for the individual farm.

Immediately fololwing the announcement of the new program in Washington and upon recommendations and endorsements of farmers in each county in Alabama, Dr. Duncan recommended to Secretary Wallace, the appointment of J. Litt Edwards, Selma, W. H. Robertson, Loachapoka, John V. Matthews, Huntsville, L. S. Fluker, Livingston, and Willis B. Crawley, Banks, as members of a state Adjustment Committee to represent the farmers in the administration of a new program. Walter L. Randolph will assist Dr. Duncan and the farmers in administering the program in the state.

Details of the program wil lbe carried to the farmers through county agents.

FARMERS PLAN MORE FOOD AND FEED CROPS

Auburn, Ala.—Indications on March 1 were that Alabama farmers will this year increase their acreage in Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, soybeans, peanuts, and tame hay, and that they will decrease their corn acreage slightly and plant the same amount of cowpeas as last year.

J. C. Garrett, State and Federal statistician, reports that the indicated acreage for harvest this year follows: corn, 3,307,000; oats, 114,000; Irish potatoes, 40,000; sweet potatoes, 77,000; soybeans, 86,000; cowpeas, 84,000; peanuts, 368,000; and tame hay, 653,000.

"The acreage exactly harvested in 1936 may turn out to be larger or smaller than the indicated acreage by reasons of weather conditions, price changes, labor supply, financial conditions, and the soil conservation program," Garret says.

FARMERS WILL COOPERATE IN NEW SOIL PROGRAM

Auburn, Ala.—A large percentage of Alabama Farmers will cooperate in the $500,000,000 soil conservation and domestic allotment program, report county agents in all parts of the state. Many agents state that between 95 and 100 per cent of the farmers are planning to cooperate.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Dr. Walter Wilson, a physician, Bible teacher, and preacher from Kansas City, Mo., who is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Bob Jones College, spoke recently for a week to the students of our institution. Dr. Wilson gave our students and faculty a new appreciation of the inexhaustible truths of the Bible. Taking John 3:16 for the subject of one of his messages he gave at least a half dozen outlines for sermons from this one verse. The writer does not remember all the outlines, but while Dr. Wilson was talking he made an outline of his own which he wishes to pass on to his friends. John 3:16 declares first, that there is a God. Second, God is interested in man. Third, this interest is a friendly interest. Fourth, He is interested in all men. "Whosoever believeth in Him should not perish." Fifth, His interest was so great He gave His only begotten Son to die that men might not perish but that they might have eternal life. Sixth, this God is omniscient. He loves all men. To love all men He must know all men. If He knows all men He has to be omnipotent. Seventh, this God is omnipresent. Men are everywhere on this earth and God would have to be everywhere if He is to save everybody who wishes salvation. Eighth, this God is omnipotent. Only an omnipotent God could save men from perishing and give eternal ife.

The writer was licensed to preach at the age of fifteen. He is now fifty-two years old and has studied the Bible for a great many years. He has sat at the feet of many great Bible teachers. The more he hears the great Bible teachers of the world and the more he studies the Bible himself, the more he is convinced that the Bible is the Word of God. It is strange how people express an opinion about the greatest Book in the world when they have never studied the Book. The most ignorant preacher in America knows more about science than most of the great scientists know about the Bible. Many of our modern scientists and so-called great scholars who may know facts about nature know nothing about the Bible, yet they question the Bible as the Word of God. These same men smile when we orthodox people say something about science. Dr. Robert Dick Wilson, who for years was connected with Princeton Seminary and died several years ago as a members of the faculty of Westminster Seminary, was possibly the greatest scholar of this generation. He said, "The modernists are ignoramuses. Send them to me." It is the writer's conviction that Dr. Wilson was right. The men who know the Bible believe it. The men who don't believe it just don't know it.

BRIEF FARM NEWS

Hale County 4-H club boys are feeding out a large number of beef calves to be shown at the Alabama state fair in Montgomery next fall, announces Joe P. Givhan, county agent in 4-H club work. "In addition. a number of purebred pigs have been purchased for the boys," he says.

Fifty 4-H club boys of Lamar County are planting ¼ acre of crotalaria to produce planting seed for another year and to sell for cash.

This is stated by John W. Vandiver, county agent in 4-H club work; who reports that club members taking cotton and corn for projects have pledged to use 6-8-4 fertilizer under the cotton and only nitrogen under the corn.

The CCC authorities cooperated with county agent, F. M. White in setting 512,000 seedling pines, 200,000 black locusts, and over 200,000 kudzu plants on Clay County farms.

Applications for pasture improvement and lespedeza fertilization with triple superphosphate for 40 demonstrations have been taken and submitted for 213 acres of pasture and 443 acres of lespedeza, says T. S. Morrow, county agent.

Coffee county farmers sold an average of more than $1,000 worth of hogs each day during the month of February. This is reported by Hugh D. Sexton, county agent, who gives figures showing that 2435 hogs were sold for a total of $31,458.23. Mr. Sexton also reports that 125 farmers of the county sold 9500 pounds of poultry cooperatively for $1,357.

FORMATION OF COUNTY CONSERVATION COUNCILS

Montgomery, Ala., March.—Formation of seven county conservation councils whose purpose it will be to unify all interested organizations in one concerted effort to preserve or restore Alabama's natural resources to a greater abundancy, has been announced by I. T. Quinn, State Commissioner of consevation.

Upon completion of the program, all 67 Alabama counties will have similar set-ups. Active councils are now functioning in Jackson, Madison, Limesotne, Moragn, Lauderdale, Cullman and Jefferson counties.

In the words of J. N. Darling, president of the General Wildlife Federation, these councils are being organized to acquaint all citizens with the need of government activity, or lack of it, in the field of conservation and to promote local conservation projects destined to either preserve or better the present wildlife status.

DISEASE RESISTANT SUGAR CANE IS BEST

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers and 4-H club members will find the planting of a few stalks of new disease-resistant sugar cane varities—POJ and C. P. 807—for multiplication. "A desirable project and one from which some money may be made in counties where these new canes are being introduced."

In advocating the planting of these new varities, J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, says:

"P. O. J. is established in most counties. Further distribution of this variety should be made in those sections not now growing it. Seed canes may be obtained in Baldwin, Escambia, Conecuh, and several southeast Alabama counties.

"C. P. 807 is a new variety highly disease-resistant and a very high yielder which has not been grown in large enough quantities to determine its place in this state. It is so promising, however, that it is very desirable to place small quantities of seed canes with good farmers in several communities in each county for observation or for production of a supply of seed canes in the event the variety proves popular."

Miss Ruth Foss, who is attending Augustana College this school year at Rock Island, Illinois, is on a tour with the Augustana College chorus and choir which is presenting fourteen concerts throughout the eastern and middlewest states.

This choir has been acclaimed by nationally known critics as the outstanding college and university choir in the country. Because of its excellence, the choir was chosen to represent all college and university choirs in the United States at the Biennial Convention of the Music Educators National Conference held at Chicago in April, 1934, and at the national convention of Music Teachers National Association held at Milwaukee, Wis., in December, 1934.

This was the first time in the history of these two leading musical associations, that the same college choir has been invited during the same year, to represent all American college and university choirs at these national conventions.

This tour will comprise concerts to be given in some of the principal cities of the east and middle west, such as Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Worcester, Mass., Norwich, Conn. and Brooklyn, New York.

While in New York they will broadcast over the NBC at Radio City Music Hall, the afternoon of March 26, from 1:30 to 2 o'clock, and while in Chicago, they will also broadcast from Orchestra Hall the date of this concert to be May 4th.

The Ladies Guild Social will be held on Thursday of this week at the home of Mrs. Marie Peterson. All are invited.

Following prayer meeting Wednesday evening at the Baptist church there will be a church conference, to which all the members are urged to attend.

Mrs. A. J. Sorrell and son, Cordes, and daughter, Ruth, from Birmingham were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Raybon Sunday.

WRITES REGARDING LOCAL BILLS BY COX AND THOMAS

Editor Union-Banner:

I would like a small space in your paper to say something about "Thomas and Cox County." It used to be Chilton County, but I guess we will have to change the name, because Representative Cox and Senator Thomas are giving us so much new legislation and bills. They pass them just the same—whether it pleases the people or not. I think we ought to name the county after them and make them rulers over everything up here; I don't think that would give them the "big head" much worse than they already have it.

Mr. Cox promised the people when he was running for Representative that he would not run anything over them that they didn't want; but he has run these bills over the people just the same. I think it takes a mighty narrow-minded fellow to just go long-headed and not pay any attention to what the people want. Some officials try to build up while they are in office, while others choose to tear down.

Sometimes it looks as though the candidates might as well withdraw and not run for office. I think it is time for the people to wake up and get on the job. It is astounding how few people there are who will stand to what they promise. Cox promised not to run over the wishes of the people; but I guess he is trying to give some sore-heads a job and pay them out of the tax money. If Thomas and Cox had to work hard and pay these bills themselves, they would likely be more careful how many they pass.

They must have forgotten that they were put in office to serve the people, but now they think they were put there to serve Bibb Graves and his pets.—J. E. Easterling, Clanton Route 5.

PLEASANT HILL

Health of our community is fair good at present, however, we are having some more good flu weather.

We would like to say that our annual prayer meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Cleckler last Saturday night, March 21st. A large crowd gathered at an early hour and enjoyed a real good prayer meeting and after the prayer meeting we had about a hour of good singing. We are hoping to meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Ellison for this annual service next year.

Our Sunday school was good last Sunday, however, there were quite a few absent, but we are hoping that they will be with us next Sunday. We don't know of anything more cheerful than to go to Sunday school for the good we get out of it, so let's all not forget to be present next Sunday and bring someone with us.

Miss Jesse Cleckler spent last Saturday night with Miss Hazel Blow.

Mr. Earl Littleton was the guest of Miss Pearlene Martin Sunday.

Montgomery, Ala. — Thomas A. Ford, director of county conservation planning for the state conservation department, announced an itinerary that will take him to six Central Alabama cities this week.

He met with sportsmen and conservation leaders in Selma on Monday and set up a county conservation council for Dallas county. He went from Selma to Columbiana on Tuesday to organize Shelby county. He was in Oneonta Wednesday.

The organization of the councils is being fostered by the state conservation department as a part of a national plan to bring conservation agencies into closer unity in preserving natural renewable resources. After the 67 counties of the state have been organized they will form a state wildlife federation to embrace the entire country.

OTOOTAN SOYBEANS GOOD FOR GRAZING YOUR HOGS

The Wiregrass Substation at Headland is finding Otootan soybeans very satisfactory for grazing hogs from around July 1st to October 1st. The results are so promising that you are urged to give otootans a fair trial in 1936 as a grazing crop for your hogs.

The following steps should be followed:

1. Acres needed—Provide about one-half acre of otootans for each litter that will be on the farm July 1.

2. When to plant—Plant the middle of April.

3. How to plant—Plant in three-foot rows with seven inch shelled runner peanut plate. This will take 18 to 20 pounds of seed per acre. Cover otootans about like covering cowpeas.

4. Cultivation—Cultivate like running peanuts but do not hoe.

5. Fertilizers—Otootans will make a good crop on land without fertilizers but 200 pounds of superphosphate or 400 pounds of basic slag per acre will pay.

6. When to begin grazing—Begin grazing when the plants are twelve to eighteen inches high which will be around July 1st.

How long to graze—Graze as long as green stems and leaves are present which will be around October 1.

8. Seed Supply—Otootan seed can be obtained from reliable seedsmen and through your local cooperative Farmer's Exchange.

Otootan seed are being produced in considerable quantity in Alabama.

Please call on me if you have further question about the use of otootans as grazing crop for hogs on your farm. —J. W. Fant, County Agent.

Will Try To Force On Sales Tax Law Friday

Montgomery, Ala., March 25.—Now that the governor and his tax-greedy administration leaders are fully aware of the fact that the people of Alabama are opposed to any additional taxes and have spoken clearly and emphatically through their representatives, Governor Bibb Graves should adjourn the special session of the legislature and "apologize to the people" for the expenditure of $200,000 for the session, B. C. Apperson executive-secretary of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama, said in a statement issued here today.

"The people through their representatives have spoken, but the tax-crazed politicians heed not the voice of those who pay the bills as they push on in their lust for more money to spend in building up a political machine to strangle the people of the state," Apperson said.

"Governor Graves, who pledged himself when running for office, that he would not need any additional revenue to operate the state government and to keep the schools open, should apologize to the people for the wasteful expenditure of $200,000 to hear the people demand that he use some degree of economy in the admmistration of the state's affairs.

"In other words this special session of the legislature is a $200,000 phonograph record brought to Montgomery with the voice of the tax-ridden people shrieking to the chief executive that the tax load is too heavy to bear.

"The administration has resorted to subterfuge in an attempt to clamp a sales tax on the people, but those sent here by the taxpayers to represent them have balked at every attempt of the politicians until now the governor's legislative crew is 'gun shy' and will jump at anything," Apperson said.

"Friday the governor and his lieutenants will put on their hob nail boots and stomp up and down the legislative hall of the lower house in an effort to shove through a sales tax measure disguised by another name. They haven't thought up the other name yet, but you can be sure that those who have dipped before into the governor's contingent fund, will be busy for the next few days trying to sugarcoat the measure, but like all taxes in the end—it's the consumer who pays.

"The governor would be satisfied with just any kind of a revenue bill that could wiggle through the lower house. All the administration wants is to get the title of some revenue measure past the swinging door of the Senate chamber where gentle hands will mould it to suit the tax-grabbing parisites who thrive on the sweat money turned over to the state by the taxpayers.

"Now that the Supreme Court, in an advisory opinion, has ruled that the legislators cannot put a revenue bill to a vote of the people, the people must be aware of the fact that the only thing standing between them and the tax-grabbers are the representatives and Senators," Apperson said.

The anti-sales tax official warned the consumers of the association to keep in touch with their representatives in the fight against additional taxation.

"Friday is the 'Big Drive' and the people should be ready," Apperson said.

Miss Janice Danforth and Mr. Swanson Lynch of Longview, Texas, were the guests of Mrs. M. A. Gore Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Renfro Mullins, Mr. Edwyn Mullins and Miss Pauline Hogan spent Sunday in Mobile visiting Belengrath Gardens.

WHAT IS THE BEST FERTILIZER FOR COTTON

The fact that a certain fertilizer will increase yields is not always proof that it is a good fertilizer. The best fertilizer for cotton is that fertilizer that will produce the greatest profit after the cost of the fertilizer has been taken out.

The farmers of Chilton County would have made many thousands of dollars additional income in 1935 had they followed the Alabama Experiment Station's recommendations and used 6-8-4 fertilizer under their cotton.

To find out what is the best fertilizer for cotton the Alabama Experiment Station conducted fertilizer tests with cotton at three substations and five experimental fields. Land, fertilizers and yields were measured accurately. In these tests fertilizer was applied at the rate of 600 pounds per acre. The following figures represent the results of five year's work:

One ton fertilizer—Yield seed cotton three and one-third acres—Value of cotton less cost of fertilizer—Less by not using 6-8-4.

4- 8-4	3550	120.00	$16.00
3-10-3	3377	113.86	22.14
2-11-3	3283	110.53	25.47
3- 8-5	3127	104.80	31.20

If 6-8-4 ready mixed fertilizer is used under cotton at time of planting no side dressing is necessary.

If 3-8-5 fertilizer is used under cotton 20 pounds of nitrate of soda should be used as a side dressing for every 100 pounds of 3-8-5 used.

Home Mixing

Many farmers home mix their fertilizer because of the saving in price. You can save money by home mixing. To make a 6-8-4 mix the following: 50 pounds nitrate of soda, 300 pounds superphosphate and 48 pounds of muiate of potash. Apply before planting and sidedress with 175 pounds nitrate of soda as soon as cotton is chopped and free from grass. This makes a total of 573 pounds. Use this amount on 1 acre or two acres. It is equivalent to 600 pounds of 6-8-4.

Corn Fertilizer

The best fertilizer for corn is the one that produces corn for the smallest cost per bushel.

The following is the results of 5 years experimental work at 5 experimental fields and 3 substations:

Fertilizer—Bushels per acre yield—Cost of increased yield per bushel:

6- 0-0	33.3	$ .23
6- 8-4	34.3	.43
3- 8-5	25.7	.64
2 11-3	22.5	.92

The above figures show that a fertilizer containing nitrogen alone produces corn at less per bushel than any other formula. The Alabama Experiment Station recommends 100 to 225 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre for corn. Apply 35 to 40 days after planting. No fertilizer is needed where a good crop of Austrian winter peas or vetch is plowed under.

Cotton Varieties

Most of the land in Chilton county is infested with wilt, therefore we need wilt resistant cotton varieties. The best varieties for land infested with wilt are Dixie Triumph, Cook 307-6, Celvewilt. Best varieties for non-wilt land: Stoneville No. 5 and D. P. L. 11.

Corn Varieties

For Chilton County use Whatley's Prolific or Hasting's Prolific corn. The best yellow varieties are Indian Chief and Jarvis Golden Yellow.—J. W. Fant, County Agent.

PURCHASING POWER

Whenever President Roosevelt makes a speech he asserts that the purchasing power of the farmer has been improved under his administration.

But he fails to take into consideration the corresponding increase in price the farmer must pay for what he has to buy. which has been out of all proportion to his increased income.

Conditions in this country are a fair sample. Can you recollect conditions in November and December, 1932?

Cotton and corn were cheap, hogs were cheap, chickens were cheap, yes, dreadfully cheap. Sure. Lard was cheap, so was flour, meal, sugar and potatoes.

What was the relief roll?

You couldn't go to a share-cropper's shack where they didn't have their winter's "grub" and plenty of it. Every laborer and renting farmers had his meat and plenty of it. Prices of his products were cheap, and that hurt his feelings, but he did have "purchasing power" and he used it to provide his winter's supplies and clothing.

He may have higher prices now for what he should have to sell, but he hasn't got anything to sell in the first place, and for those who may have a little surplus, they can't buy much with the price they get for it.—Lilbourn Mo. Banner.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

One of the principle results of the A.A.A. farm curtailment program has been the shifting of the raising of livestock and corn from one section of the country to the other.

According to census reports just issued, more farmers are engaged in raising livestock than was the case five years ago. For example, 673,000 more farmers are reported to be raising cattle and the number of farms on which cattle is being raised has increased in 46 out of 48 states, South Dakota and Rhode Island being the exceptions. The record of hog raising is almost as significant. The census reports show that 436.000 more farmers are raising pork than in 1930. While the total number of hogs on farms is reduced, the number of farms in the South actually increased.

The reason for this is not hard to find. When farmers in the Central States and West are urged to reduce cultivated acreage and the number of hogs and cattle, farmers in the South, who were paid to reduce cotton acreage, immediately went into the corn and hog business. Whether this will turn out to be a good thing for the country and the agricultural industry remains to be seen. Certainly it would seem sensible that the bulk of our livestock be raised in regions where it can be produced most efficiently. In touching on this shift of industry, Dr. E. V. Wilcox, secretary of the Farmers Independence Council of America, recently well stated:

"By cracking down on well established stock raisers in the regions best adapted to that form of agriculture, the animal industry of the country is being driven into new hands and into less suitable areas, to the discomfixture and disadvantage of the corn belt farmer sand western ranchers. The A.A.A. has tried to move all the national furniture around except the hornet's nest."

GHOSTS OF 1934

During the campaigns of 1934, our Senator Earle Thomas and Represenative C. B. Cox made many and varied promises and statements to the voters of this county.

In the light of recent developments in their activities in regard to local bills affecting Chilton County, it is quite interesting to quote once from each of these gentlemen.

In The Chilton County News, in its issue of April 26, 1934, Senator Earle Thomas (then "Candidate" Earle Thomas) made the following statement to the voters:

"I promise to serve you honestly and conscientiously".

The Union-Banner would like to know if Senator Thomas considers his action in proposing to arbitrarily remove from office county officers who were elected by the people as an "honest" move. We would like to inquire, too, if he is following the honest dictation of his conscience in this matter.

If so, then he has an altogether different idea of the definition of honesty to that impressed on us. And we would add, also, that his conscience is in reverse gear, in our humble opinion.

On November 1, 1934, Rep. Charlie Cox (then "Candidate" Charlie Cox) carried the following statement in The Chilton County News:

"I have just been told that certain parties are making the statement that if I am elected, I will use my time and influence to abolish the Court of County Commissioners. Such a statement is false. I say to you, I will not make any attempt to abolish this office."

It is true that Rep. Cox's name is not signed to the bill to abolish the Court, but it would be quite interesting news if Rep. Cox would be so kind as to state in next week's county papers whether or not it is his intention to support Senator Thomas's bill to abolish the court. We are anxious to know if he will make good on his promise: "I will not make ANY attempt to abolish this office."

The whole affair, in our opinion, is only another glaring instance of Democratic lack of reliability, insincerity of purpose, and unethical methods.

Again—"History repeats itself".

It is understood that the oil sanctions which the League has been planning for Mussolini are nothing like the oil sanctions which the Fascists apply to suspected Communists.

FARMER'S 'NEW DEAL' VOTE

According to the last United States Census, there were 6,297,877 farms in the United States. When the vote was taken in June last for and against the A.A.A. acts paying farmers for cotton and wheat that were not raised, only 2,918,578 farmers voted, if no farmer voted on more than one of these projects. Of course there must have been a large number of duplicates, persons voting on two or more subjects. But counting on duplicates, the total number voting were but about 46 per cent of the whole. Of these, eliminating cotton voters, for which we do not have the vote for and against, 247,059 voted against being paid for curtailing their crops. The wonder of it is that after all the Government propoganda and baiting with government checks (a sort of bribery) the farmers did not fall for the proposition 100 per cent. It speaks loudly for the sturdy manhood there manifest.—The Index.

WHEN "FARM RELIEF" HURTS

Theoretical "farm relief" often inflicts injury on some it is supposed to help.

An excellent example of this is found in an article in the Dairymen's League News, which points out that dairy farmers of the country are unfairly penalized under the new federal agricultural bill.

The bill, based on the Soil Conservation Act of 1935, provides that the Secretary of Agriculture can pay farmers to withdraw land from production in the interest of soil fertility. Dairy farming naturally prevents soil erosion and promites soil conservation. As a result, farmers raising other products will be paid to withdraw land from its normal use—and will be permitted to plant it in grasses or forage and put cows into the acreage. The inevitable consequence will be an artificial increase in dairy production by "part-time dairy farmers," at the expense of the three million farmers who maintain the dairy industry of the nation.

Any farmer who wants to is certainly entitled to go into dairying. But many unprejudiced observers doubt the wisdom of using public funds to pay farmers in other fields to compete with their fellows and create useless over-production.

Some of the pedagogues who allow themselves to be suspected of Communism will have a wave of unpopularity to face when the youngsters grow up and do not like it.

A friend with an emphatic wife suggests that the Minneapolis city electrician, knocked 12 feet when he touched a 2,300-volt cable recently, probably said, "Yes, my dear," when he was able to speak.—Topeka State Journal.

A Cleveland young woman called State liquor law enforcement men a "pack of louses," and was fined $100. And fined quite properly, too. The plural of louse isn't louses, and besides, they don't come in packs.—Exchange.

According to news dispatches from Washington, the members of the Supreme Court are willing to delay their vacation, if necessary, to pass on New Deal legislation. But no doubt the New Dealers would prefer that they go fishing.

There is one alphabetical agency the New Deal is not shouting about, but depends upon when all others have failed. It is the one that pays the taxes—YOU.—Portland Oregonian.

MAN IN THE MOON

AN OPEN LETTER TO SENATOR EARLE THOMAS

Senator Thomas:

I note advertisement in The Chilton County News of a local bill to be presented by you during the present session to the Legislature of Alabama, which proposes to abolish the Commissioners Court of Chilton County, and to set up in its place a Board of Revenue, appointed by the Governor of Alabama. Also, to re-district Chilton County. There are other provisions in this bill, Mr. Thomas, which I intend to take up in this letter to you. Inasmuch as this bill so vitally affects the citizens of Chilton County, I would like to ask you a few questions in regard to it, which I would be glad to have you answer, and explain the motive for such radical change in our county government, explain a few of the items of the bill which seem quite vague in their present form of presentation, also to explain the motive which prompted the drawing of such bill without consulting the people it affects, inasmuch as you are supposed to be a representative of those people, and are supposed to sponsor motions which are the desires of your people.

Section One. This section proposes to set up a Board of Revenue of three members, to take the place of our present Court of County Commissioners composed of four members. I understand, also, that the first members of this Board would be appointed by the Governor.

Mr. Thomas, I would be glad to have you explain what advantage could be gained by such a change. Evidently you must believe there are advantages, else you would not suggest the change. Why do you believe a 3-man court better than a 4-man court? And why do you stipulate that these members shall be appointed by the Governor, when there is ample time for election of such officers, in the event of pasage of the bill? Shall our people have no voice in selection of their county officials?

Section Two. This section seeks to re-district the county, putting it into three district, instead of four, as is now the case. Already there are rumors that the districts are too large for one man to look after in regard to road matters, and this would make such a condition worse instead of better. Of course, a road supervisor has been provided for, but I believe you are well aware of the fact that the people of Chilton County are firmly opposed to this also, both Democrats and Republicans. What advantage do you have in mind, Mr. Thomas, that would be gained by such a change? Is it to give Democrats a better chance to elect officers?

As the bill reads, District No. One would be composed of Beats 3, 4, 5, 10, and 16; District No. 2 would be composed of Beats 6, 7, 8, 14, and 15; and District No. Three would be composed of Beats 1, 2, 9, 11, 12, and 13. I can readily see that such grouping would give a much better chance for Democrats to elect two members of the Board, leaving Republicans a sure winner in the Third District. Is this the reason for the drawing of this section of your bill, Mr. Thomas? If not, then will you be kind enough to explain the real reason?

Section Three. As I understand, there is nothing important about this section, other than that it transfers the authority of the present Court of County Commissioners to the proposed Board of Revenue, which would follow as a matter of course, unless that authority should be increased or decreased by clauses in your new bill.

Section Four. In the drawing of this section, it seems to me, Mr. Thomas, that you have placed a highly over-rated value upon your own personal judgment, leaving very little for the proposed members of your Board to decide with reference to their duties. This, I believe, is a reflection upon the judgment and ability of any group of men who might be appointed on the Board.

In the first place, there is embodied in this Section a provision that the Board shall conduct the affairs of the County in the manner they deem expedient, and then you proceed to set out their specific duties in detail. Why? Have you an idea that those men might not be so smart as you? Do you believe yourself above the average in judgment?

Part 2 of this Section specifies general and special taxes. What does this mean, Mr. Thomas? This clause is quite vague. Will you be so good as to explain what you mean? Does it mean to keep up existing tax schedules, or does it mean different taxes? People would like to know about this.

Parts 4, 5, and 6 of this Section are now a part of the duties of the present Commissioners, I believe, Mr. Thomas.

In Part 7 of this Section, provision is made for fine and imprisonment "for contempt". Just what do you mean by "contempt"? "Contempt" for what? For whom? For you? For the new court? This clause will bear much explaining. Will you be so kind as to explain its meaning.

Parts 8, 9, 10, and 11 of this Section are also a part of the duties of the present court, I believe.

Part 12 of this Section provides for an appropriation up to $750.00 per year to install and maintain an exhibit of the county's resources. Just what good would come of that expenditure, Mr. Thomas?

Parts 13 and 14 of this Section are also duties of the present body of Commissioners, are they not, Mr. Thomas?

Part 15 provides for payment of all expenses attending the location of any division of the naval militia within the county. Are you looking for a riot, Mr. Thomas? I see no danger of the need of a division of militia here, unless it be to protect your person, when the full import of this bill is conveyed to the citizens of the county? Why not explain why this provision is made?

I believe Part 16 is cared for in the run of general expenses of the county at the present, except for the provision for telephone for the circuit judge. Are you planning wisely for the county, Mr. Thomas, to force its taxpayers to pay for a telephone for this office for 12 months in the year, when it will very probably not be used a dozen times a year?

As to Part 17, I believe citizens are more interested in seeing a little economy manifested in the management of their county's affairs, than they are in seeing a fund provided with which to pay premiums on livestock at shows and the like.

Part 18 is now a duty of the present court.

Part 19 proposes that the county pay for sewage systems for all thickly populated regions. Are we to understand that the county shall pay for sewage systems for all towns in the county, Mr. Thomas? Please explain fully what is meant by this provision.

All other parts of this Section, I believe, are taken care of by the present Commissioners Court. If I am wrong, I am at least honest in my belief, and am open to correction by you, and will be glad to have you explain in detail any point which I have misconstrued.

Section Five. If I understand this Section correctly, the new Board would not be elected by the people they are to serve, but are appointed by the Governor. I understand, also, that the first would hold office nearly five years, the second nearly seven years, and the third nearly nine years, by appointment. In short, the people would have officials carrying on the affairs of their county for from five to nine years in whose selection they would have absolutely no voice. Is that right? Do you mean that the people of the proposed Third District would be allowed no chance to elect their board members for almost nine years? If so, then there is one question I would like to ask you. Have you ever heard of representative government? Have you ever even read of government "by the people"? I think it oniy fair that you make full explanation of all this procedure to your people, who elected you, before presenting this bill for passage.

Section Six. I see nothing in this Section except a stipulation of the manner and date upon which successors to the Board members may be elected.

As to the remainder of this bill, I see no difference in it and in the regular work of the present court, except a few items of salary, etc., which I believe is not so important as some of the sections discussed above.

Frankly, Mr. Thomas, the people of Chilton County, both Democrats and Republicans, are both amazed and angered by the apparent audacity of their representatives in the legislative halls. I have heard numbers of citizens of both political beliefs inquiring if there is no manner in which you and Mr. C. B Cox could be removed from office. That is the bare truth. I do not hesitate to state that if the majority of people of Chilton County could have their way, you would be removed from office immediately. They know that you have clothed yourselves with the raiment of an autocrat of the first water. It is something new—and unpleasant.

If I am not mistaken, Mr. Thomas, when you were waging your campaign for office, you promised the people that if elected you would endeavor to carry out their desires in in matters of legislation. Are you doing that? Did you promise the people that you would carry out their desires, or that you would ram things down their throats that they had never even dreamed of? Did you promise them that you would determine their desires, and legislate according to them, or that you would draw up far-flung autoc bills and present them without even asking their desires in such matters?

Did you tell them, Mr. Thomas, that in case you should draw up bills which were distasteful, and committees should be sent to you to ask that you drop such bills, that you would ignore them completely? And, again, have you not done that on more than one occasion already? Is it a fact that you care nothing for the desires of the people of Chilton County? Do you consider yourself an autocrat or a public servant? Did you even write this bill spoken of above? If not, then who did?

It may be that you would like to plead ignorance of this bill, as did Mr. Cox in reference to the farm bill not long ago, although your name is signed to the bill, just as his was to that bill.

Has it ever occurred to you, Mr. Thomas, that you have, in the drawing of the above bill, without consultation with the people of Chilton County, whom it concerns, violated every law and rule, expresed or implied, in which legislative and representative decency, fairness and honesty of purpose are a factor?

In conclusion, Mr. Thomas, I would like to offer a challenge. If you will explain this bill thoroughly in the county papers, and after such explanation, if as much as one per cent of the people of the county are in favor of it, then I shall have notning to say. On the other hand, if you cannot show that such small part of our people are in favor, you will agree to drop such matter. That gives you a 99-to-1 chance. Surely if you consider your bill worthy you will have that much confidence in it. Shall we have an explanation?—Man in the Moon.

EMPLOYMENT AND EARNINGS

Possibly part due to election year, but probably more due to increased threats of additional taxation and competition by the Federal Government, the average weekly payroll and the hourly earnings as well as the employment which has been on the increase from July to December last year, has shown a decline. The National Industrial Conference Board of New York City stated in a recent report that:

Average weekly and hourly earnings, hours of work per week, employment and payrolls were lower in January than in December, in 25 manufacturing industries, according to the regular monthly survey of the National Conference Board.

Total man hours worked in January were 1.9 per cent less than in December. Employment dropped .7 per cent and pay rolls declined 2.4 per cent. Average hourly earnings fell from 60.5 cents in December to 60 cents in January, and average weekly earnings dropped from $23.47 to $23.07. Since there was no change in the cost of living from December to January, real weekly earnings declined to the same degree as nominal weekly earnings.

Despite the general decline in manufacturing activity from December to January, a number of industries made gains. In 11 of the 25 industries average weekly earnings were higher in January than in December. In nine hourly earning wages were more; and in eight, employment was higher. In 11 industries the average hours of work per week were higher in January than in December, but in only four of them were they more than 40.

Compared with January, 1935, substantial improvement was made during the 12 month period. Average hourly earnings rose 1 per cent, average hours of work per week were 5.5 per cent more and average weekly earnings January, 1936, were 6.8 per cent above those of the year before. Because of an increase in the cost of living during the year, real weekly earnings were only 2.7 per cent above those of January, 1935.

Walter Johnson threw a silver dollar across the Rappahannock, and it ought to be some consolation to know how far one of those 59 cent dollars will go.

In a cordial human spirit, President Roosevelt has become something of a "joiner". A good secret society affords fine discipline in considering eternal truths as general principles, with the privilege sometimes reserved of keeping their specific application off the record.—Washington Star.

Dust storms have started again down in the Southwest and it seems to us that this is rushing the season a little.

MORE TAXES LATER

In an effort to spare the passage of a ... bill providing for the levying of assessment against the undivided profits of corporations which have not distributed all their earnings in dividend payments, Treasury experts have suggested to Congress three alternatives which could be used in the place of undivided profits tax. The three suggestions, in brief are: a general manufacturers sales tax, ... increase in theatre admissions and other nuisance taxes; and a lowering of exemptions on small incomes, so that those with the small incomes would have to pay more taxes.

Naturally, suggestions of this kind would put a real fright into ambitious statesmen who are hoping to win gain in the forthcoming election. It looks much easier and less painful to tax undivided profits of corporations, so that it can be made to appear that the "plutocrats" and the "giant corporations" are paying the bill.

The "fear strategy" of the "financial experts" will probably work in this election year. But the thing for the average citizen to remember is that the returns from the new tax will prove only a "drop in the bucket" if a serious attempt at balancing the whole budget of the United States were made.

So if the present era of New Thought continues, we may expect the sales tax, greater nuisance and income taxes on the individual to come later. These new levies may have to come if we are to avoid inflation.

Of course there is one alternative. National Federal expenditures may be curbed and the budget brought into balance by less spending. Some advocate of throwing the money around and around will doubtless ask "Do you want the people to starve?" The answer is obviously "No". But it is to be remembered that nobody was permitted to starve even before we entered the new "abundant life", and there are ways to avoid starvation other than taking tree censuses and building dog havens and pigeon houses with Federal money.

PURCHASING POWER

Statements purporting to show the increased income of the people of the United States over the figures of 1933 make very pleasant reading. Unfortunately, however, the figures do not show the real situation, because they do not take into consideratin the increased cost of living and of the purchasing power of the average consumer.

For example, according to figures released by the Alexander Hamilton Institute, the per capita money income in 1933 had declined to $357 and then rose to $401 in the preliminary figures of 1935. But at the same time the cost of living index, fixed on the basis of 100 for 1929, rose from 74.8 in 1933 to 83.1 in 1935.

In other words, while the average per capita wage gained a little more than 12 per cent in two years, the cost of living rose more than 11 per cent. It can be seen, therefore, that the gain in the average per capita income was practically wiped out in the United States by the increased cost of living.

To illustrate from figures furnished by the Institute, the consumer's purchasing power rose from a low of 73.8 in 1933 to 77.1 in 1934 and then dropped back to 74.6 in 1935, a figure only .8 points above the 1933 level.

So the rise in income and the parallel rise in the cost of living gave the consumer after two years of New Deal and lavish Government expenditure to "prime the pump" an increase of just about 1 per cent in his purchasing power.

After all, it isn't so much the amount of money we get as what we can buy with it. The average citizen may decide for himself whether an increase of 1 per cent in his purchasing power in two years is worth an increase of ten billion dollars in the national debt, with the consequent looming ahead of higher taxes which will affect every consumer in the land, especially him who belongs to the middle class which strives to pay its debts and practice economy so far as this is possible in a new economic age.

The criticisms which General Hagood uttered against the W.P.A. were forgotten until he was retired from active service by the War Department. Then they were put on the front page by nearly every newspaper in the country. A faux pas?

Walter Johnson is reported to have thrown a silver dollar across the Rappannock River at Fredericksburg, Va., the other day. That is nothing. From Washington the brain trusters can throw dollars all over the United States.

Large sums are figured on in connection with current transactions. Rhetoric producers only wisecrackers! In responsible education arithmetic is a recognized test of intelectuality, plain or fancy.

"The econimic storm is over," we are told but the political winds seem to be increasing in violnece.—Burlington, Iowa, Hawkeye Gazette.

Hospitals of the country reported the birth of more twins and triplets in 1935 than ever before. Maybe this is one phase of the abundant life.

Germany's public debt is about $1,200,000,000 greater than it was before the World War. Shucks, that's nothing. Ours is thirty billion more.

CUBA MAKES BIG PLANS FOR VISITORS

Juan Sabates, President of the National Tourist Commission of Havana, writes the Alabama Press Association that "Havana is preparing to extend to them a markedly cordial welcome on their arrival." The Tourist Commission is a governmental bureau, and the courtesies that will be extended the party will be unusually entertaining. An interview with the President of Cuba, dinners, luncheons, a personally conducted tour of the wonderful new capitol building, and other things are being planned.

The members of the party, whether they be editors or not, will all participate in these courtesies. And the Press Association is this year inviting all who desire to do so to go with them on this splendid trip.

Those interested are asked to get in touch with the editor of this paper for complete details how to make this trip. The cost will be only $73.70 for the trip from Montgomery. This will include all the meals, the transportation, hotel and sightseeing, as well as the other courtesies to be extended the party in Havana.

The price for children under 12 years of age will be just half the regular price, and there will be many children in the party. Parents will take advantage of this unusual educational opportunity.

So much interest has been manifested in the trip that early reservations would be wise. Friends of the press are taking advantage of the unusual offer and the trip promises to be an extraordinary fine one.

The trip will start from Montgomery on Sunday, June 14th, and will last a week, four days and nights in Havana.

JEFF P. BEELAND CAMPAIGN MGR. ANTI-SALES TAX ASS'N

Montgomery, Ala.—With the appointment of Jeff P. Beeland, Greenville planter, as campaign manager, the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama planned a vigorous campaign this week against the adoption of a two per cent sales tax by the senate of the Alabama state legislature.

In accepting the position as active head of the legislative activities of the association, Beeland said that he would continue the organization's fight against any additional tax measures levied against the citizens of Alabama.

Beeland, who is a man of wide business experience, has forged to the front as a leader in the fight against the enactment of a sales tax by the special sesion of the legislature, called by Governor Bibb Graves.

In recognition of this leadership, the board of directors of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama, at a special meeting Thursday turned over the reins of the association to the Greenville planter.

"We shall continue our fight against any additional tax measures planned to be forced upon the already overburdened backs of the Alabama taxpayers," Beeland said.

"We are convinced that the revenues now received by the state of Alabama are sufficient to operate all departments of the governments and to keep the schools open for their full terms, provided even the least degree of economy is exercised by the state administration."

"The state comptroller tells us we have six million dollars in cash on hand in the state treasury and if there is danger of schools being closed and people are hungry in the state, it is urgent that the Governor of our state appropriate some of these funds to care for this emergency. This is not extraordinary, because it has been done before and it can be done now," Beeland said.

The campaign manager urged that all citizens get in touch with their senators and insist they defeat the two per cent sales tax measures when it comes before them some time this week.

"Our only hope is to defeat this obnoxious tax in the senate, Beeland said.

CUTTING THE FARMWOODS FOR SUSTAINED YIELD

The late William Willard Ashe was a pioneer in forestry in the South and left a rich legacy of precepts and principles.

One of his contributions is of outstanding importance to good forestry practice or management. It is the doctrine of maintaining an ample forest capital or growing stock at all times. By contrast, it is unwise and unprofitable for farmers to greatly reduce their forest capital by heavily overcutting their standing timber. In the words of Mr. Ashe, published in a leading farm journal:

"The way in which timber is cut and the amount of growing wood continuously left upon the land in large measure determine the profit which comes from the timberland. Not all of a stand of second growth pin, even though most of the trees therein may be 12 inches and even more in diameter, should be regarded as the crop. Only a portion of the trees represents the crop, while the remainder represents a portion of the capital or growing stock and must be held and kept growing in order to secure this maximum yield which the soil is capable of producing.

"Bear this in mind and never lose sight of it—it is the basis of all methods of making timberland profitable: No matter how urgent the need, no matter how insistent the buyer, hold upon the land a large part—at least half—of all the timber which in your mind, the soil is capable of sustaining. It would be far better could you hold two-thirds, but it is not always possible to hold this much in making a sale to a sawmill."

This is bed-rock doctrine for farm woodland owners.—W. R. Matoon, Extension Forester.

BACK TO LOG CABIN DAYS

While I was up in Bibb County I had the pleasure of getting lodging with an old farmer. The house he lives in is a log house, built up-to-date. The sills are 12x14 inches, the logs are 20x6 inches, and the joists are 6x8 inches, and was built in 1861. What a good house this is. Can you beat this?—C. T. Walker.

GOOD SINGING AT H. F. McCARY'S

The singing at Mr. H. F. McCary's was enjoyed Sunday evening. The singing was called to order by Rev. Charley Moats and one song was sung "How Beautiful Heaven Must Be." After the song H. F. McCary made a talk in the way of a welcome address and prayer by Rev. Moats. About two hours of great enjoyment was spent. Miss Bullard and Mrs. Beulah Hosey were organists for the evening. A special number was selected by Bro. Jim Baker and a closing prayer by Bro. Baker. Mr. McCary thinks it was the best evening he has spent since he left Friendship church. We thank all the singers and invite them back again.—H. F. McCary.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes; feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay? Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

Don't Guess But Know

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this.

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this — and see that you get what you want.

HEALTH OFFICER DISCUSSES "MATERIAL MORTALITY"

With so much being written concerning "Material Mortality", it might be well to discuss the meaning of the term, and briefly consider its cause and prevention. Literally, the term means the death of mothers, and refers particularly to deaths from causes directly related to childbirth.

Deaths from these causes are still far too prevalent, and many such deaths are preventable. Why this is so becomes evident when we consider that infections and convulsions are responsible for the majority of these deaths. Both of these can in many instances be prevented through early consultation of a physician and following the instructions he gives. Especially important is the need for frequent examinations by the physician during pregnancy, as in most cases symptoms which may later mean convulsions can be recognized by the physician and steps taken to prevent this complication.

Chilton County's Health Unit considers the lowering of the number of maternal deaths one of its principal aims, and already we feel that some good has been accomplished. Many expectant mothers have placed themselves under the care of physicians early in pregnancy due to the efforts of the County Health Nurse. The nurse has also assisted many mothers through advice and help in preparing for the coming baby. The midwives of the county, who attend approximately 35 per cent of all deliveries in the county, are being supervised by the Health Department; some who were unfit have been prohibited from practicing, and all have been instructed along the lines of cleanliness, and are rapidly being taught "danger signs", and that they must call a physician when any of these signs are encountered. For although all mothers should be attended by a physician, this is at times impossible and if a midwife must be employed she should know the essentials of cleanliness, and other things that are being taught her. Midwives that are proving satisfactory are being issued permits by the County Board of Health.

The fact that many of the deaths from causes directly related to childbirth can be prevented is worth repeating, for when this fact is known and is recognized by all many lives will be saved and much suffering prevented.

The chairman spoke briefly on the intentions of the Young Republican Federation, and outlined some of the work in the county and Beat units, after which nominations for chairman for Beat 9 was declared in order. Mr. Gerald Hubbard was elected to this position; and for secretary, Miss Estelle Benson was chosen.

The chairman, after giving some instructions to the newly elected officers, introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Percy M. Pitts, who made a short but interesting talk, dwelling principally on the advantages to be derived from the organization, and the need for united effort on the part of Republicans to combat the evils of free government under the opposite dominant party. Mr. Pitts cut his speech short on account of the disagreeable weather.

COMMUNITY WORKERS SENT INTO FOUR SECTIONS OF ALABAMA

The State Department of Public Welfare, in co-operation with the United States Children's Bureau, is sending Community Works into four sections of the State. Chilton County is one of the four counties which will be included in area number two and served by Miss Margaret Hodo. Miss Hodo will be stationed in Montevallo, but her services will be available to all of Chilton County.

Through the Community Worker the Department of Public Welfare hopes to further the development of community organization and recreation.

Since only one worker will be available to four counties, the amount of time she can spend in any one community will necessarily be limited. It is hoped, however, that such organizations as the Parent-Teacher Association, the American Legion, the Red Cross, the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, 4-H Clubs, Civic Clubs, Federated Clubs, Y. M. C. A.'s, Y. W. C. A.'s, Church Auxiliaries, and other interested clubs and organizations will cooperate to make the Community Worker's services as valuable as possible.

AUTAUGA COUNTY CONVENTION AT BILLINGSLEY 5th SUNDAY

Mr. Henry G. Carter, of Prattville, asks The Union-Banner to carry the announcement that the Autauga County Singing Convention will meet in regular Spring session at the high school building in Billingsley the fifth Sunday in March, 29th. It is handy to the Chilton county singers, since it is at Billingsley, and Mr. Carter is betting heavy on having a full representation of singers from here. He is expecting singers from all the adjoining counties. This is the second session of the Autauga organization, and the officials are reporting prospects for a very fine all day singing.

TEACHERS TO GET EXPERT VIEWS ON SCHOOL OUTLOOK

Problems Of Instructors Will Be Aired In Talks At A. E. A. Convention

The problems which confront the teachers in Alabama will be given special consideration at the meeting of the assembly of delegates Thursday morning, March 26, according to the program.

Attention is directed by officers of the association to two discussions on this program. One is on "Teacher Tenure," by Donald DuShane, of Columbia, Ind., chairman, National Educational Association committee, on teacher tenure. The other address will be by James S. Rickards, executive secretary, Florida Education Association, who will speak on "A Department of Classroom Teachers."

It is explained that Mr. Du Shane is probably the best authority on tenure in the country, having served on the N. E. A. tenure committee for a number of years. He is thoroughly acquainted with the merits and demerits of the kinds of tenure now in use. He is superitendent of schools at Columbia, Ind. Mr. Du Shane was founder and first editor of "The Indiana Teacher."

Mr. Rickards helped to establish in Florida its department of classroom teachers, considered one of the most satisfactory in the country. He too has made a long study of the subject on which he is to speak, and can say with authority the possibilities open to such groups.

The second meeting of the assembly of delegates will be held Saturday morning, March 28, when committee reports will be heard.

PASTORS CONFERENCE HERE

The pastors Conference of the Chilton-Unity associations will be held at the Clanton Baptist church Monday, April 6th, beginning at 10 o'clock. All pastors of the associations are urged to attend.—J. W. Jones.

TO CLANTON METHODISTS AND CONSTITUENCY

Next Sunday and the following Sunday are two RED LETTER days in our church during the year. Next Sunday is Palm Sunday. At eleven o'clock hour the pastor will have a christening service for small children. If you want your child christened, please communicate with the pastor before Sunday. At the evening service, at seven o'clock, we expect to have a group of young people from Huntingdon College put on a dramatic service. The public is invited to all the services of the day.

Beginning Sunday and continuing through the week at 7:30 each evening, we shall have a series of pre-Easter services. The pastor wil be assisted by his brother, Rev. W. E. Middlebrooks, pastor of the Foster Street Methodist church in Dothan. Special music will feature the service each evening. Invite your neighbors and friends to this service.

Then comes the Easter with the culmination of the program of evangelism in the church school. Candidates for membership will be received at the eleven o'clock hour, Easter. The pastor is inviting all children who expect to be received Easter to come to the parsonage next Tuesday at 3:30 He will give them further instruction concerning church membership. If you have not moved your church letter notify the pastor and he will be glad to get it for you and announce the transfer of your membership at the special service Easter.

At the eleven oclock hour, Easter, a beautiful consecration service will close the program at which time children and all church members and others will bring their Fellowship League of Sharing envelopes to the altar and place them on the communion table. This service last year was most impressive. You have been saving a penny per meal (children a penny per day) since March 8. At this consecration service you will make your offering and share with others in carrying the messages of the Master throughout the world. You are making a special denial and sharing Lenten offering. If you have lost your envelope or failed to get one place your offering in any plain envelope and write your name on it and participate in the Easter service.

Just after the rising of the sun on Easter we shall be worshipping in another "Easter Sunrise Service" similar to the one of last year. This service at the early hour is most worshipful. There will be no sermon nor address—only music, meditation, scripture, prayer and communion. Don't miss this fine opportunity to begin the day in the right way. The service will be forty minutes in length. The hour is 6 a.m.

Then at the evening hour, seven o'clock, on Easter, the young people will have charge and close the day with an excellent program. The fine choir of young people will sing. Invite your friends to all the services of next week beginning with this Sunday. Clip this notice from the paper and refer to it for the program during the week.—A. E. Middlebrooks, pastor Clanton Metodist church.

M. C. Broadhead, age 54, popularly known as "Mack", died at his home in Clanton on Monday night at 8:30 after a week's illness with pneumonia.

Funeral services were held at the home of his sister, Mrs. J. R. Popwell, Tuesday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock, with the Revs. A. E. Middlebrooks and R. P. Cochran of Greensboro officiating. Burial was in the Clanton cemetery, with Spigener in charge.

Mr. Broadhead is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Broadhead; his wife; one son, Wayne, seven years of age; two brothers—G. D. Broadhead of Montgomery, and J. D. Broadhead of Clanton; one sister, Mrs. Leona Popwell, of Clanton.

Pallbearers were L. F. Gerald, J. R. Mullins, F. J. Callen, M. Lande, W. H. Sartor, and D. A. Wingard.

Mack Broadhead was one of the best known and highly respected gentlemen in Chilton county. For a number of years he helped to carry on the mercantile establishment of J. R. Broadhead and Sons in Clanton, during which time he made hundreds of friends. About ten years ago he married Miss Pearl Messer of Verbena, and to this union was born one son, Wayne.

A few years ago the Broadhead firm dissolved, and moved to Maplesville, where it was operated for some time. Later he returned to live at Clanton, where he has been employed by some of the best business houses in the city.

His death marks the passing of one of our best known citizens, and The Union-Banner joins with his family and many friends in mourning his untimely death.

Relief Need At Peak Millions Jobs Short

Unemployment Government's Main Problem Despite Business Recovery

Washington, March 28.—With relief needs still at peak heights, the biggest problem facing the Roosevelt administration today is how to find jobs for 16 million people.

Business has definitely improved, income tax collections show a healthy increase, industrial production is larger, but the army of idle men remains.

Thousands of WPA projects, innumerable "boondoggling" makeshifts, resettlement and rehabilitation experiments, slum clearances and subsistence homesteads have failed to reduce the great masses of the unemployed.

Congressional leaders, considering President Roosevelt's relief estimates for the next fiscal year, declared there seems little to do except to "close your eyes and pass it."

More than a billion dollars admittedly must be appropriated to care for the growing legions on the relief rolls.

Each year, under the Roosevelt program, a larger and larger share of the relief funds has been paid out by the federal government. Each year promise is made that better business would reduce the number of unemployed.

Those now on relief rolls, however, appear to have no opportunity and in some cases, perhaps, no desire to get off.

In 1933, first year of the Roosevelt "New Deal", the federal share for relief was 60.6 per cent. State and local governments provided the remainder.

Last year the federal government paid 74.5 per cent of all relief money, with state governments spending 12.2 per cent and local governments only 13.3 per cent.

More than $4,000,000,000 has been spent for work relief or direct doles to the needy in the last three years, exclusive of the billions for PWA grants and loans.

In 1933 the total federal relief bill was but a billion dollars. Last year it was over $2,000,000,000.

Roosevelt advisers boast that the crest of the business crisis has definitely passed. They do not say the same of relief. More than 5,000,000 families are dependent on public aid or charity.

Meanwhile relief officials continue to hope that increased industrial activity will draw a large proportion of the unemployed back to regular jobs.

W. LEON MULLINS BURIED HERE TUESDAY AFTERNOON

W. L. (Shorty) Mullins, former resident of Clanton and widely known throughout Alabama, died at 10:00 o'clock Monday morning at his home in Tuscaloosa, following an illness of several months duration. His condition had gradually grown worse for several weeks and death had been expected almost daily for weeks. He was 34 years of age.

Born in October, 1901, at Tallassee, he removed with his family to Clanton at an early age, and made this city his home since that time. For the past three and one-half years, he had lived in Tuscaloosa, where, before ill health forced him to giveup his work, he was connected with the Bolton Motor Van Lines.

He was educated in the schools of Clanton and the University of Alabama. Before removing to Tuscaloosa, he was employed as traveling representative of the International Harvester Company. Prior to that time, he was connected with the Dixie Construction Company for several years. He was a member of the Calvary Baptist Church in Tuscaloosa and was a member of the Masonic Lodge.

Surviving are: his widow, Mrs. Bertie Doffin Mullins; mother, Mrs. Annie Stephens Mullins; one sister, Mrs. J. E. Edgar, of Clanton, and one brother, H. C. Mullins, of Tuscaloosa.

Proponents Of Bills Invited To Present Their Arguments

The Union-Banner Suggests That People Be Told Of Merits Of Measures In Mass Meeting To Be Held Here Next Saturday

There must be some reasons why the local bills have been advertised to abolish the Commissioners Court and make other changes in the county's local government; and The Union-Banner believes the voters of the county ought to be permitted to hear the arguments of those who fostered and who favor the enactment of these measures.

Therefore we suggest that a mass meeting be held at the courthouse next Saturday afternoon, say at 2:00 o'clock, and those who favor these bills be given every opportunity to defend their stand on the matters. We do not mean a joint debate, but that the meeting be altogether for the purpose of explaining to the voters what merits there are attached to these proposed legislative bills.

If those people who are sponsoring these measures will agree to meet the people of the county in such mass meeting and explain to them why they favor these bills, The Union-Banner will print and distribute hand bills advertising such meeting free of charge. Why not let us hear both sides upon these questions? We are ready to print and distribute the circulars. What say you, proponents of the bills,

REPUBLICAN SPEAKING AT THORSBY FRIDAY NIGHT

J. O. Middleton and Percy M. Pitts Will Address Young Republican Gathering

The Beat 9 unit of the Young Republican Federation will hold their first meeting at the Thorsby Public school building Friday night of this week, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The officers of the Beat 9 unit extend an invitation to everybody to attend this meeting. Although primarily intended for the younger voters, the older ones are urged to attend also.

The unit feels exceptionally fortunate in getting the speakers that it has for this meeting. Judge J. O. Middleton and Hon. Percy M. Pitts have both consented to address the gathering, which assures those in attendance of some good lecturing. Their subjects will be mostly along the lines of the young Republican movement, but will likely treat on some of the leading political issues of the day in our nation, state and county.

You will not want to miss hearing these speakers so all are invited and urged to attend.—Gerald Hubbard, Beat chairman; Estelle Benson, secretary.

SCHOOL MEETING AT CONCORD

There will be a school meeting at Concord schoolhouse Thursday night, April 9, at 7 oclock. The purpose is to elect new teachers for the coming year. All interested are invited to attend.

Young Republican Meetings To Be Held In Near Future

Dates Announced For Four Meetings In As Many Beats To Organize Units of Federation

The work of organizing Beat units of the young Republicans of Chilton is being pushed steadily forward. The organizers are meeting with enthusiastic reception wherever they have been. We were rained out at Enterprise in Beat 6 Friday night, but a meeting will be held there Saturday night of this week. A good meeting was held at Baker schoolhouse Monday night, and a unit for the western half of Beat 4 perfected.

During the coming week meetings will be held at the following places and units organized for those Beats:

Providence, Beat 16, on Thursday night, April 2 .

Enterprise, Beat 6, Saturday night, April 4.

Union Grove, Beat 12, Monday night, April 6.

Stanton, Beat 8, Wednesday night, April 8.

All of the above meetings will be held at 7:30 o'clock. When possible a speaker will be procured to speak briefly after the organization at each place is perfected. The people in these communities are urged to bear the dates and places in mind and help to get as many young people interested in attending as possible. Other meetings will be arranged for next week.—T. E. Wyatt, County Chairman; Gertrude P. Calloway, Secretary.

VOTERS WILL BE GIVEN OPPORTUNITY TO EXPRESS THEIR VIEWS ON LOCAL LEGISLATION

Only Short Time Given For Citizens To Be Notified of Voting. Everybody Urged To Go To Polls and Vote On Important Measures

A group of citizens of Chilton county met at the court house last Monday night for the purpose of considering the proposed bill by Senator Earle Thomas to abolish the Commissioners Court of Chilton county. Attending this meeting were the following:

Judge J. Lee Smith, Judge L. H. Reynolds, Grady Reynolds, W. J. Billingsley, Jno. M. Robinson, Circuit Clerk J. C. Pattillo, Geo. Calfee, Billy Smith, Paul C. Mims, J. M. Parrish, W. T. White, Sheriff J. R. Hardy, Commissioner H. R. Oden, W. L. Popwell, A. P. Vinson, Cleveland Driver, Dr. W. G. DuBose, Dr. J. P. Hayes, Deputy J. A. Nivens, Hill Foshee, Commissioner J. P. Bean, Tom Driver, Dr. N. S. Johnson, J. N. Dennis, and others.

Opinions of all present in regard to the proposed bill were asked, and it was found that all were opposed to its passage. A number of the gentlemen present made short talks, among them being Judge L. H. Reynolds, Grady Reynolds, Billy Smith, J. C. Pattillo, Dr. J. P. Hayes, Dr. N. S. Johnson, Dr. W. G. DuBose, J. N. Dennis, H. R. Oden, and others.

Several parts of the bill were discussed, and it was brought out that the duties of the proposed Board of Revenue under the new dispensation would be the same as those now carried out by the Commissioners Court, except in the point of the purchase of the legal library. The main bone of contention was that such action would remove the rights of voters, in taking away their right to name their officers for the county government.

It was further brought out at this meeting that Rep. Charley Cox had promised that if a referendum should be called on the question, that he would abide by the result; that if a majority were opposed, that he would oppose it's passage in the House of Representatives.

Both Mr. Cox and Mr. Thomas were invited to the meeting, it was stated, but did not attend.

A motion was made and seconded, therefore, that a referendum be held on next Tuesday, April 7, on which date both this Commissioners Court bill and the bill proposing to make the office of County Solicitor elective, be presented to the people of the county for their opinion.

Accordingly, a committee was appointed by those in attendance at the meeting, to make plans for calling the referendum, to fully acquaint the voters in the several Beats of the county with the contents of the proposed bills, and to urge them to come out and let their wishes be known by voting their opinions upon them. This committee was composed of the following:

Judge J. Lee Smith, chairman; J. C. Pattillo, Dr. J. P. Hayes, W. L. Popwell, Dr. W. G. DuBose, Dr. N. S. Johnson and Grady Reynolds; Billy Smith and T. E. Wyatt were appointed as publicity committee. This committee, after consultation, issued the following statement to the voters:

"At a meeting called at the courthouse on March 30, 1936, for consideration of a proposed bill to abolish the Commissioners Court of Chilton county, said bill to be presented to the Legislature of the State of Alabama during the present special session of that body, by Senator Earle Thomas, and which bill also proposes to set up a Board of Revenue, to be appointed by the Governor of Alabama, we, the undersigned committee were appointed to give the bill further consideration. Therefore, after due consideration, we offer the following recommendations for record:

"We believe the right of the people to elect their presiding officers of government is an inalienable one, guaranteed to them under the Constitution and Laws of the United States of America and of the State of Alabama. We believe that in matters of such grave importance as that in question they should have the final word of sanction.

"We believe, under the provisions embodied in the proposed bill, that this inalienable right is removed from them. The provisions set out in the bill provide for the removal of county officers duly elected by the qualified voters of the county, and substituting for them officers in the naming of whom they will have no part and who will serve from five to nine years. Such action, we believe, is arbitrary, autocratic, and in no manner conducive to good government.

"We are informed that Rep. Charley Cox has stated that in case a referendum is called on the question, that he will abide by the result: that if it is found that the majority of the voters are opposed to the bills, then he will oppose them when presented to the House of Representatives.

"We are further informed that Sen. Earle Thomas has stated that he likewise would abide by a referendum, if the people could be properly informed as to the provisions of the proposed bills, but declined to allow time for presenting such information to the people before presenting the bills to the Legislature.

"We, therefore, ask that a referendum be called for the date of Tuesday, April 7, at which time the qualified electors of the county may have a chance to voice their sentiment in the matter in question. If, after such referendum, it is found that majority of those voting are in favor of the passage of the proposed bills, then we are willing to abide; and if, after such referendum, it is found that a majority of those voting are opposed to the passage of these bills, then we respectfully ask that our Rep. Charley Cox and Sen. Earle Thomas likewise abide by the popular decisions.

"We further ask that every possible move be made to see that the voters are properly informed on the provisions of the proposed bills, that all possible publicity be given them in the newspapers of the county, and that all voters be fully acquainted with provisions of the bills before voting. We urge every voter in the county to make every effort to thoroughly acquaint himself with these provisions and to vote his honest convictions acordingly.—(Signed)—J. Lee Smith, J. C. Pattillo, J. P. Hayes, W. L. Popwell, Dr. W. G DuBose, Dr. N. S. Johnson, Grady Reynolds".

The Union-Banner has never believed in such tactics as those employed in the attempt to pass these measures over the wishes of the people of Chilton county, and we never will.

This county belongs to the people of the county. It is theirs, their money, their roads, their several institutions of county government to be affected, and we believe they should have the last word as to the manner in which that government is carried on, or on any such radical change as that proposed.

We would like to point out that Chilton county has been faring well, even better than other counties of the state which have the very kind of county government that is now being proposed for us. Those in favor of the bills might point out that Chilton is well-blessed as to tax matters. That is true, but it was not always the case, and even before there were any big tax-paying institutions within our borders from which to draw, Chilton county could hold up its head with the best in Alabama in the discussion of governmental or financial matters.

We firmly believe this is all a result of a sound method of local government, and we see no reason to depart from it. Indeed, no reason whatever has been advanced for such a change! We invite comparison in a financial way with the nation, the state, or with any other county in the state. We are willing to stack our record against the best that can be advanced. Our county is not nearly so deeply in debt as the nation, by proper ratio. While the financial condition of our state is deplorable, we can point with pride to our own, in the very heart of the state. As for any other county in the state, we are anxious—ready to compare—dollar for dollar, record against record, system against system, results against results.

We urge our readers to study this matter closely, for it is by far the most important that has come before the voters of the county in recent years. Acquaint yourselves with the provisions of these bills. Know their import. Think what could, and very probably would happen to the finances of your county government under the jurisdiction of a board of revenue in the selection of which you had no part, and who would not be answerable to you, as taxpayers, in any sense.

We are informed that such a body could not place more bonds against your county's credit, but there is no limit to the amount of "warrant" indebtedness that can be placed on the shoulders of your already overburdened taxpayers.

We believe that, after due consideration, you too will see in these proposed bills a sinister monster of autocratic intent—a will to rule and ruin—a substitution of personal greed for power against popular will for honest representative government. We believe the public is honest, and that it will voice its true sentiment. Any way, we know that the public should have its voice in all matters so important as this.

We, too, are willing to abide by the wishes of the majority, whatever they may be, and whether they run along the same plane as ours. Find the truth on this question. We believe you will agree that our county government is best in its present form. But whatever the will of the majority—that is our will also. We again urge every voter in the county to go to the polls on next Tuesday and vote your honest convictions.

Mrs. Beard, wife of Charles A. Beard, another famed historian, spoke under the auspices of the Tuscaloosa branch of the American Association of University Women.

"Higher education for Women," Mrs. Beard told the women students, "depends on our learning who we are. Let's find out who and what we are and make our own judgment of history."

The fact that three million homes in the United States are unfit for human habitation was stressed by former Senator J. Thomas Heflin in an address before a convocation of students and faculty members at the University of Alabama.

The speech embodied an explanation of the task and purpose of the Federal Housing Administration.

Sixteen million other American homes are in need of repairs, which have been prevented by the difficulty of obtaining credit on real estate collateral, stated the speaker. Time-payment mortgages issued by the F. H. A. have made possible these repairs, and the construction of homes to replace outmoded and uninhabitable shacks, he added.

P. M. MARTIN WRITES

Dear Voter:

I hope that you will consider this as a personal letter from me, for, as you know it would be impossible for me to make a personal visit to each of you.

I do not feel that it is necessary to comment at length upon myself and my political standing. I was a candidate for this same office, member of the school board, two years ago. If you see fit to elect me in November I will put forth every effort for better schools. I do not mean to criticize our present board of education, for I feel that they are doing what they can for the schools. But why can't our school system be as that of the State of California The education of its children is a vital part of the government. Whereas, in Alabama education is an unimportant factor. As a result this state ranks near the top in percentage of illiteracy. This is an alarming situation and it is high time that the legislature takes note and makes a start to remedy the conditions. It is discouraging to run for this place, since the schools have had to close for lack of money. But I think we have plenty of school money to run a full term if it was handled right. Our county has gotten its part of the school money if the state would give its part of the tax money.

It is a shame that our children are not getting a nine month's school, when the money is being wasted. It is a shame too that Alabama is the only state in the union whose schools will not run a full term this year.

We will consider the gas tax. The school getting nothing and highways get about all of it. I believe in good roads, but I do not feel that the education of our children should be sacrificed for the cause of good roads. I favor a full term school—I oppose any further raise in taxes.

I believe in using teachers from this county first, then if we have not enough, go elsewhere for them. I believe teachers should be elected before they have to go to college so they will know if they have a job.

I am a farmer in Beat 12, in Union Grove community, on Jemison Route 2, and would welcome any inquiry you care to make of me. Yours for an overwhelming victory for the Republican party in the coming elections.—P. M. Martin.

IN MEMORY OF OUR FATHER

On Saturday morning, March 21, the death angel visited our father's home and bore him away from us. He was 79 years of age. He had suffered for some time but just lived six days when he took his bed. I know he is easy and resting now, but it was so hard to give him up. He has left a vacant place in Chilton county, but, oh, what a vacant place in our home. One that can never be filled.

Dear father, how we miss you. How we miss your voice, but we hope we will meet yoo in that land of love and peace. We saw not the white-robed angel as it entered with folded wings to summon home our loved one to the arms of our Heavenly King.—His daughter, Lucinda Dunlap.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to our many friends who assisted in any way during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father. We thank Dr. Franklin and Dr. Bullard for their services. Also Bro. Robinson for his words of comfort. May God's richest blesings rest upon each one of you is our prayer.—Mrs. Mellie Robinson and Family.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

"My peace I give unto you, not as the world giveth". That is what Jesus told His disciples. He did not promise the disciples they would have peace in the world. Jesus lived in the midst of strife all His life. When He was a baby His parents had to take Him away to protect His life. He was always hounded by the devil and persecuted by the ecclesiastical powers. They tried to mob Him. The storms beat upon Him. The Bible calls Him a man of sorrows. Yet He always had peace. He was never disturbed. They placed a thorn of crowns upon His brow and spat in His face but He was still composed. Going up the hill with His Cross He fell to the ground but still preserved His composure. On the cross when the war of human hatred was wreaking its vengeance upon Himh, the sinless Son of God said, "Father forgive them, they know not what they do". In a world where there was no peace He had peace. We live in a world where there is no peace. There never has been such world-wide unrest as we have today. Yet we may have peace in our hearts. No wonder the inspired writer speaks of the peace of God which passeth all understanding.

One man loses his fortune and in despair ends his life. Another man loses his fortune but he stands upon the ruins of the wrecked fortune undisturbed, because He knows that "all things work together for good to them that love God". No human being can really worry if he is a Christian and has implicit faith in the goodness and protecting care of the Heavenly Father. Worry is a sin. "Let not your heart be troubled". That is what Jesus says to His followers. He says "If it were not so I would have told you". In other words, "I am interested in you. Everything that happens is for your good if you belong to me. Everything may not turn out for your ease or temporary prosperity, but everything tuns out for your permanent good if you are mine". "In my father's house are many mansions", that is what He says. In other words, you have an eternal home. "I am going to prepare a place for you." Remember, He has been there two thousand years. Heaven was already there when He went back. Our Lord has been doing interior decorating in heaven for two thousand years. What a home we have beyond the skies. If He can make a flower bloom in the springtime, if He can paint the exquisite tints of a golden sunset in only a few minutes, what must heaven be after two thousand years that He has been there putting the "finishing touches" on the interior of our home? Christians, if you believe it, what are you worrying about? "Let not your heart be troubled." Some day our Lord will come again and receive you unto Himself.

NEW CEDRON BASEBALL CLUB HAS BEEN ORGANIZED

The New Cedron Cubs came through another work-out Saturday in the best of condition. This will be the last work-out before the beginning of the season's schedule.

A game was played between two teams made up of members of the team, which resulted in a score of 7 to 6. All pitchers on the roster had a chance, and all showed up well except Brown, who was a bit wild, due to an injured finger.

Manager Lawrence says:

"This year's team prospects are the best we have had in years, and we hope to have and believe we will have a winning team." Everyone is invited to see our opening game, which will be played Saturday afternoon with the CCC team on the latter's diamond.

WEST CHILTON

Editor Union-Banner:

The candidates are coming around now interviewing the voters. Among them is Mr. Paul C. Mims (Man in the Moon). Our opinion of Mr. Mims is that he is one of the best. His efficiency ir undoubted. His loyalty is unquestioned. He is fearless, and beyond a shadow of a doubt, would make an official of whom we would be proud. In a way, we happen to know something of the influence thrown around him in early life and that was the best.

Then there is Mr. Ben Glass, another noble young man. His training was good. His parents were fine people. He is loyal and honest and a most worthy candidate.

Now, bear in mind that we would not, under any circumstances throw a word that would be detrimental to any other Republican candidate. That is nauseating to us. We say let the voters rule, and we pledge our support to the nominees and wish all the defeated candidates would vie with each other in loyalty to the nominee.

Such times as we are having now. Such disregard for the people's wishes is enough to make angels weep. Where is the democracy of such methods Good Democrats are humiliated by their leaders. We can remember our representatives from Mm. A. Collier until now. We never saw such methonds before. No one believes that if we had elected Percy Pitts, W. L. Sanders, or Chas. Cooper, that we would have had the trials we are now having.

We wish to register our approval of some of the resolutions adopted at the late Republican mass meeting, relative to Robinson, Waldrop, Glasscock, and, we will add, Dock Gentry No, we will not break faith with them. This is superion to any marble monument to them, however costly.

How we long for a repetition of our old time local rule, when the wishes of the peopl were respected. How glad we are that by no word, vote or influence, did we assist in fastening on our people the present galling condition.

Our privileges are going away from us and going rapidly. Thinking people are alarmed at the situation. Our only remedy is a united front in the ballot box.

Our candidates are good Republicans. Support your choice, and when the contest is over, line up to a man and to a woman, behind the nominees. Very simple, but the only way to restore to us the old time power. Are you ready.—A Republican.

Not On The Team But Carrying The Ball

THE HARP AND HARMONY WAS A REAL SUCCESS

The Harp and Harmony singing, held at the courthouse last Sunday was quite a success.

It was opened with prayer by Bro. Cox and throughout the entire day there was heartfelt interest manifest by everyone taking part in the service.

The occasion was planned in honor of Mr. John W. Hays' 76th birthday aniversary, and it is the writer's opinion that a more fitting or appropriate celebration could no be imagined since Mr. Hays is a pioneer in good old time singing.

We hope there are many more like celebrations in store for this noble man and that the old time singing will continue on down through the years.—A Reader.

L. H. Reynolds Voices Protest To Changes In County Gov'mt

There will be an election held in Chilton county next Tuesday for the purpose of giving the voters of this county an opportunity to decide whether or not they want the bills passed that are now being advertised by Senator Earle Thomas in The Chilton County News, one to abolish the Commisioner's Court and the other to make the deputy solicitor elected by the people.

I have tried to get all the information I could on the advisability and the necessity of the Legislature abolishing the Commissioner's Court and to give the Governor the right to appoint three commissioners to serve this county from five to nine years, and I have failed to find, or hear, one logical reason expressed why this should be done and I have heard no argument which will go to show that the Governor would appoint better men to handle the county's affairs than the people of the county can elect. I do not believe in appointing men to office in the place of the voters electing them, and it looks like if the people of this county are competent to elect a probate judge, sheriff, tax collector, tax assessor, representative and senator, that they would be well enough informed to elect the commissioners, and under the present law, if we elect a commissioner that will not look after the county's affairs, we have an opportunity in four years to elect another in his place, but under this proposed bill, it makes no difference what the officials may do and how badly they manage the county's affairs, the people of the county have lost their right and privilege to govern their own affairs and they would be at the mercy of these three commisioners appointed by the Governor for eight or nine years, and I believe if the voters of this county will investigate the conditions that they will find that the people of Chilton County have managed their affairs equally as well, or better than the state has managed its affairs.

Now as to the bill making the deputy solicitor elected by the people I want to say to the voters of the county that the deputy solicitor is not an officer, but serves under the circuit solicitor and it seems to me that it would be dangerous and would be a bad law to take a chance of electing an assistant to any officer who might not be fully in accord with the official. Suppose the people of this were to elect a deputy for Mr. Huddleston, our circuit solicitor, that he could not work agreeably with. Could you imagine the injustice that it would do to him and to his administration of the office of Circuit Solicitor? Would the people of this county want to elect a chief clerk for the Judge of Probate, a chief deputy for the sheriff, or to elect an assistant for any officer? Can you imagine how embarrassing it might be to an officer to not let him control the affairs of his office?

I hope the voters of the county will go to the polls next Tuesday and give due consideration to these two bills before they cast their ballots and I hope both bills will have a large majority against them when the votes are counted.

When our forefathers came to this country and left the old world on account of the oppression and because the people did not have a voice in their government affairs, they came here and established the greatest government the world has ever seen. They laid the foundation for a government by the people and for the people and not by rulers and bosses and for rulers and bosses, and they laid down the great principle that thy were opposed to taxation without representation, which is the greatest principle of government that has ever been devised by man and under this principle and these ideas the United States is looked upon by the balance of the world as having the best and greatest government in the world, where a majority of the people rule, and I hope that our county will vote strong against the bills next Tuesday and that there will be no question left as to where the people of Chilton County stand on local self-government.

We may have not always agreed with the Commissioners Court, and I state frankly that I have not agreed with them for the last few years, but the people have elected them and at the last election there were more Democrats elected in this county than have been elected in over forty years and we now have a Democratic probate judge, sheriff, circuit clerk, tax collector, tax assessor and one Democratic commissioner and a Democratic Representative and I can see no reason why the people of this county should be deprived of the privilege of electing their officers in the future. In just a few days the people will be called upon to nominate county commissioners and other officers and the Democrats and Republicans both have some of the best men running for offices that have been candidates in this county for a long time, and let's vote to maintain the idea that a majority of the people should rule, and let's go to the Primary to vote for the best man to fill the various offices and then in November will have another chance at them and then the people can elect the nominees who they feel are the best men to administer the affairs of this county, and as long as we can keep the government of our county in the hands of the people we can feel that it is safe, but if we turn our county over to one or two dictators we do not know what will happen, but I predict that if this is done that this county will not get over the results of it within the next twenty-five years.—Yours truly, L. H. Reynolds.

CROWSON BUILDING ADDITION TO MILLING COMPANY PLANT

Mr. Willie Crowson, on Monday of this week, began building an addition to the plant of the Central Alabama Milling Company in East Clanton. When the new part is completed, the housing space of the plant will be about double what it now is, and the machinery, likewise, will be doubled. In the new part Mr. Crowson will install a fine new corn meal mill, the kind that will turn out bolted meal.

The Union-Banner stated some months ago that Mr. Crowson was going to keep adding to his plant across the creek until he really got prepared to take care of the farmers' needs in the way of ground and crushed feeds. Well, he is making our promise good. When he gets shaped up right, and according to his present plans, there will be no need for our farmers to go elsewhere to get their crushed feed. He will be able to supply everything.

Keep up with the things Mr. Crowson wants to buy and sell by reading his adv. on the back page of The Union-Banner every week.

NEW DEAL HELD RETARDING U.S.

New York, March 30.—President Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., of General Motors Corp., charged today, in his annual report to stockholders, that the New Deal has "definitely postponed recovery."

General Motors sales and earnings last year were the highest since 1929, he reported, and net profits exceeded those of 1934 by 76.46 per cent.

The corporation payroll increased 22.7 per cent over 1934. The avreage increase of the hourly wage rate was five per cent.

Policies of the Roosevelt Administration that have distributed normal economic processes and increased Government expenditures will cause not only increased taxes, Sloan said, but reduced production through necessitating higher prices and decreased consumption.

"The corporation believes, and has no hesitancy in taking the position," he said, "that the present attitude of Government and the results of its experiments in the realem of economics have not, to say the least, resulted in accelerating the process of recovery or inspiring confidence in the operations of the future.

"On the contrary, they have definitely postponed recovery."

He recommended that industry assume a vigorous role in shaping national policies toward sound economic development.

ATTRACTIVE SEASHORE DISPLAY

Window shoppers this week, especially those inclined toward the favorite sport of the season, are attracted to the window at Murray-Bell Hardware Company. It is a seashore imitation, and has everything represented except probably the bathing beauties that usually grace such a scene; it has the water, the fish, the fishing tackle, and all kindred objects and articles. There is an abundance of seashore sand, fresh from Dr. Parrish's pasture, all of which makes a most attractive arrangement for a window. Somebody at Murray-Bell's is an artist at such foolishness.

Lesson for April 5

JESUS INVITES ALL PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 14:15-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come; for all things are now ready.—Luke 14:17.
PRIMARY TOPIC—How Jesus Kept the Sabbath.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Great Invitation.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Excuses We Make.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Response to Christ's Invitation.

In this chapter Luke pictures Jesus freely mingling with his fellowmen in worship and social intercourse. While thus freely mingling with his fellowmen, he was aware of their inner hostility to him and set forth under the parable of the great supper the sinful folly of men who reject his gracious offer of salvation.

I. The Great Supper (v. 16).

This great supper represents God's gracious provision of salvation through the vicarious atonement of Jesus Christ. Christ himself declared that he was the bread of life. As bread is to the physical body, so is Jesus Christ to the soul. It is called a supper because it is the last meal of the day. Jesus Christ's sacrificial death is God's last effort for the salvation of men. The one who misses supper goes hungry through the night; the one who neglects and rejects the gracious offer of salvation in Jesus Christ shall forever perish. It is a great supper because its provision was made in the counsels of the eternal Godhead. It was wrought out by the Son of God and avails for the salvation of all races and kindred and tongues. There is no one whose sinful condition debars him from this precious feast.

II. The Gracious and Urgent Invitation (vv. 16, 17).

These words, "Come; for all things are now ready," reveal the attitude of God toward a sinning race. Truly it is not the will of God that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. His servants have been going up and down the world for thousands of years saying to men dead in trespasses and sins, perishing for want of the bread of life, "Come; for all things are now ready." God is never behind time. There is absolutely nothing lacking in his provision for needy souls. The only thing demanded of the hungry and dying world is that it accept his urgent invitation. Man's responsibility is to receive Jesus Christ. All who accept his invitation are assured of a welcome at his table.

III. Men's Attitude Toward God's Gracious Invitation (vv. 18-20).

"They all with one accord began to make excuse." They feigned a willingness to come, but their excuses showed that they were completely absorbed in selfish interests and, therefore, disregarded the invitation of the divine Host. This is a vivid picture of the reception which men are everywhere giving the gospel.

1. The first one was taken up with the buying of land. On this account he begged to be excused. Supper time is a poor time to go to see a piece of ground. Besides, he had already bought the ground and, therefore, he was under no necessity of going to see it at supper time.

2. The second man desired to be excused in order that he might test a yoke of oxen which he had bought. Supper time is not a proper time to test oxen. Then, too, he had already bought them; therefore, there was no urgency in testing them.

3. The third excuse was perhaps the flimsiest of all. In all probability his wife would have been glad to accompany him. It is to be noted that the excuses made are plausible, as they concern things that are right in themselves. It is right for a man to have land, have oxen, and live with a wife, but when these legitimate interests crowd out God and the things of the Spirit, they are to be ignored.

IV. Guests From the Highways and Hedges (vv. 21-24).

1. The anger of the master of the house (v. 21). It should not be forgotten that God, while great in mercy, is capable of anger toward those who reject his mercy. It is a great mistake to remove anger from the character of God. To reject his mercy exposes to his fierce anger.

2. The Lord's house filled (vv. 21-23). The places of the very ones who were first bidden were filled with other guests, some of them poor and helpless, from the lanes and streets of the city and others the vagrants from the highways.

3. The awful condition of those first bidden (v. 24). The master of the house declares that none of them shall taste of his supper. Since the supper represents the free grace and mercy of Jesus Christ, to refuse him is to be eternally deprived of the high privilege of sitting at the Master's table.

Why We Are Lonely

Loneliness is often our own fault. We have not brought others enough into our own life, or we have repelled others by making too many claims upon them, or by seeking too much sympathy for ourselves.—Stopford A Brooke.

Goodness

As the presence of salt is not so noticeable as its absence, so the good are most appreciated when they are gone.

Judge J. Lee Smith Criticizes Changes In Lacal Government

You will note that Senator Earle Thomas is advertising a local bill in The Chilton County News, to be enacted by the legislature of Alabama to abolish the Commissioners Court of Chilton County, and set up a Board of Revenue, to be appointed by the Governor of Alabama, for a term of from five to nine years.

Inasmuch as this bill affects the voters and tax payers of Chilton county, I feel that it would only be fair to give them due consideration. I take this position because of the broad and far-reaching import of the bill proposed. The duties of this Board, should this bill become a law, are in effect, the duties, powers and functions of your present Court of County Commissioners. To my way of thinking it may prove a very dangerous surrender of the rights of the tax payers of Chilton county, to have the business management of your county taken from the administrative hands of an elective board as you now have, and turned over to an appointed board selected by the Governor of Alabama. Your present board receives a commission as your business agent, by your vote, and for no longer than a period of four years.

Under the provisions of the bill proposed you are denied the choice of approving or disapproving by your vote of any one or more of the appointtees in the general election of 1938. You are given the privilege of voting on this question in 1940 only as to one appointee. The generosity of the proponent of this bill is further evidenced by the fact that he permits you to supplant a second appointtee in 1942, and a third appointtee is fettered to you until 1945.

We are living under an age fast changing from representative government to bureaus. We do not know what may come before us in the next decade, the period covered by this proposed change, but I feel that if we are to judge the future by the past, that we may expect some far-reaching problems to be brought before the governing boards of our county, and we are constrained to take the position that it is best to, at all times, to know that our administrative officers hold a commission from the taxpayers.

Should this bill become a law, many of our oldest and most highly respected citizens, who for a lifetime have had a voice in the guidance of our affairs, will be disfranchised.

In offering the above considerations, I am not unmindful, that this proposed legislature act would nullify the wishes of the voters of Chilton county as expressed by the general election of 1934, by removing from office two of your present commissioners, and take from your Probate Judge most of the important duties you entusted to his consideration by your vote.

The taxpayers of Chilton county are the masters of the present board. And you have at present, the privileges of discharging unfaithful and unworthy members of your present board. Do you wish to surrender this privilege? It is reasonable that the proposed appointive board will somewhere have a master.

This bill is unethical. It is undemocratic in principle. It is unwarranted. It is unfair to the former and present managment of Chilton county. The present safe and sound financial condition of Chilton county is a ringing challenge to any such proposed change, for, by comparison, any fair-minded person will draw the conclusion that Chilton county is one of the very foremost counties in the State of Alabama. This bill further challenges the intelligence and integrity of Chilton county, and is a reflection on the high intelligence of our citizenship.

An aroused and militant citizenship has urged a referendum on this question. Our Senator and Representative have agreed that they would abide by the results of the referendum, and this proposition is being submitted to the qualified voters of Chilton county on next Tuesday, April 7th, 1936.

I urge every voter in Chilton county to go out to the polls and vote for your best interest. Some of our officials may have lost confidence in you, but I am willing to abide by your wishes.

J. LEE SMITH, Judge of Probate.

TRUCK CROP ITEMS NO. 1

From time to time during the growing season this office will attempt to keep our correspondents informed, by means of truck crop items, as to the conditions in this and near-by trucking areas. Information contained in these truck-crop items will come from news releases of the U. S. Crop Reporting Board, and will, in the main, deal with reported conditions in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Florida, and Texas. Short items of general interest from other states may also be included.

Southeastern states—General—For the past two weeks the southeastrn states have enjoyed warm, fair weather. Prior to this time conditions were unfavorable for planting of spring crops, with the result that spring crops are now being planted throughout the trucking areas.

Cabbage—A decrease in the earlier estimate of Mississippi cabbage is indicated as a result of a severe and unexpected freeze in the copish county area in late February. The indicated acreage for the state is now set at 5200 acres, with the condition 74 per cent of normal, as of March 1st. This acreage is the same as last year. The Alabama condition is reported at 75. However, the state has only 1,000 acres in cabbage as compared to 1,600 acres in 1935. The acreage is in all the second early states (Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia) is now estimated at 13,790 acres, as compared with 14,900 acres in 1935—a decrease of 7 per cent.

There are now 295,700 tons of cabbage forecast for the four early states (California, Florida, Louisiana, and Texas), and this indicated production is more than double last year's crop of 126,400 tons, and 42 per cent larger than the five-year average (1928-1932) of 208,900 tons.

Tomatoes—no estimate of tomato acreage in Mississippi was made in March, and this year's preliminary estimate will be as of April 1-15. However, a preliminary estimate for three early commercial districts (Imperial Valley, California, Lower Valley, Texas, and Florida) show a 59 per cent increase in acreage over the 22,000 acres in 1935. The 35,000 acres estimated for 1936 is the largest acreage reported for these districts since 1924.

Yield indications for the crop in south Florida have been reduced considerably from those of a month ago. Due chiefly to damage by heavy rainfall. Production in this section is now expected to be 24 per cent smaller than in 1935, or 1,395,000 bushels, compared with 1,824,000 bushels in 1935.

Snap Beans—Alabama and Mississippi's preliminary estimate of acreage will not be made until April 1. A preliminary estimate of production for the fall-crop states, Florida and Texas, show a 3 per cent decrease below the 1935 crop—1,285,000 bushels compared with 1,327,000 bushels in 1935. The production of snap beans now forecast for the winter crop in Florida is one-fifth smaller than in 1935.

Strawberries—Indications are that 1936 production will be greater than 1935 despite the fact that the reported acreage of 34,850 acres in the five early states (Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Missippi and Texas) is 14 per cent smaller than the 1935 estimated acreage. The Mississippi acreage estimate is now down to 400 acres compared with 500 acres in 1935, and the Alabama acreage is 2,100 compared with 2,500 acres in 1935. Mississippi's condition is reported 76 per cent of normal as of March 1. Alabama's condition 78 the same date. The Louisiana acreage is now estimated at 21,100 acres compared with 26,700 in 1935, and the condition 89, compared with 83 on March 1, 1935. No frost or freeze damage has occurred but the plants have made slow progress due to cold weather. However, numerous blooms had made their appearance by March 1.—B. L. Collins, Assistant Agricultural Statistician.

Gold Medal Basket Ball Tournament

As per notice given in the county papers last week, the Gold Medal Basketball Tournament was held in the Mitchell Dam gymnasium last Saturday. Seven teams were entered in the tournament, these being from Sand Mountain, Mitchell Dam, Richville, Jemison, Alexander City, Verbena, and Mt. Pleasant.

First pairings were as follows: Mt. Pleasant vs. Richville; Alexander City vs. Mitchell Dam; and Sand Mountain vs. Verbena; Jemison drew a bye. Second round play bracketed Mitchell Dam vs. Jemison; Sand Mountain vs. Richville. Jemison and Richfield for 3rd and 4th places came next, with the grand finale being Mitchell Dam vs. Sand Mountain for the championship.

Mt. Pleasant 14—Richville 31

Mt. Pleasant and Richville opened the festivities at 1:00 p.m., with Richville winning, 31 to 14, although the youngsters from Mt. Pleasant offered a scrapping organization, and one of the cleanest teams in the whole affair. Melton, who finally won the sportsmanship medal, led Mt. Pleasant with seven points, while Ward led for Richville with 14 points.

Mitchell Dam 48—Alexander City 43

Mitchell Dam and Alexander City gave the fans a grand thrill in the next game. Some of the finest pass work, as well as goal-shooting was shown in this game. Bryant led for the Dammers with 14 points, closely followed by Cobb with 11. Carter led for the Alex Citians, flashing in with 20 points, trailed by his team-mate, Avery, with 15.

Sand Mountain 66—Verbena 28

This was the first real one-sided affair, the Sand Mountain men running up an easy lead over Verbena, and coasting in, taking long shots at the basket. Brown ran wild in this game for the Mountaineers, ringing the hoop for 32 points, "Breezy" Beard chiming in with 14, most of them difficult shots. N. Dennis turned in some classy work for Verbena, making eight points, although eased out by his team-mate, Rodgers, with 10 points. N. Dennis drew serious consideration from judges in picking outstanding players in the tournament.

Mitchell Dam 52—Jemison 34

The Dammers outclassed a scrapping team from Jemison in the next game, 52-34, although Jemison paraded one of the best forwards in the tournament, Joyce Howard, who later won a place on one of the all-star teams. Cobb and Bryant led the Dammers atack with 18 points each, while Howard was putting on a beautiful exhibition of marksmanship in turning in his 18 points.

Sand Mountain 48—Richville 32

Sand Mountain next defeated a stubborn, fighting Richville team, 48-32. This was a real upset, as it had been freely predicted that the Mountaineers would run wild over the boys from Coosa. Brown again came to life to lead this team from the mountains, with 18 points, closely paced by Beard with 16. Ward led for Richville with seven points, while Lewis and Spear were close with six each. Richville's tight defense was the high place in this game.

Richville 39—Jemison 27

Richville outclassed Jemison 39-27 in the next game, scramble to place for third and fourth positions. Woodfin, Waites and Ward had 10 points each to lead for Richville. Howard was the smartest article on the floor in this affair, burning up the hoops for 20 of his team's 27 points.

Mitchell Dam 40—Sand Mountain 66

In the championship game, Sand Mountain had a good edge over the Dammers, winning handily, 66-40. The Mountaineers really went to work in the second quarter, firing at the basket at every opportunity, and finding it for many difficult shots. The Dammers staged a desperate struggle, but were no match for their visitors. Dock Baker led for the Dammers with his 13 points. But Beard bore down to turn in the classy work which won for him the rank of most outstanding player in the tounament, shooting 27 points.

After all games were finished, Mr. John Hollis, manager of the tournament, came forward with an imposing array of medals, headed by the grand trophy.

The grand trophy was awarded the Sand Mountain team, the captain receiving it.

The judges having decided on an all-tournament all-star first team and second team, medals of award for placing on these respective teams were awarded to.

First team—Brown, Sand Mountain, and Cobb, Mitchell Dam, Forwards; Carter, Alexander City, Center; V. Baker, Mitchell Dam, and Beard, Sand Mountain, Guards.

Second team—Howard, Jemison, and Bryant, Sand Mountain, Forwards; Rogers, Verbena, Center; Mayfield, Mitchell Dam, and R. Ellison, Jemison, Guards.

There were three medals for the three most outstanding players entered in the tournament. These were awarded to 1—Beard, Sand Mountain; 2—V. Baker, Mitchell Dam; Howard, Jemison.

A beautiful medal was awarded to the player making the most spectacular play during the tournament. This medal was awarded to York, Sand Mountain. In making his "dead shot" to win this prize, York, standing past court center, hurled the ball in football forward passing style toward his goal. The ball hit the back of the ring, quivered back and forth several times, and dropped through.

The medal for "best sportsman" was awarded to young Melton, of Mt. Pleasant. This medal was awarded to the player exhibiting the best and cleanest sportsmanship during the tournament.

Medals were awarded for high score man in any one game, and in the tournament. Both of these medals went to Brown, Sand Mountain, who piled up a score of 32 points in one game, and 62 points during the tournament.

Medals were awarded to the ten outstanding players of the three teams first defeated. These ten awards went to Payne, Avery, Carter, and Boos, of Alexander City; Melton, Chambers, and Thornton, of Mt. Pleasant; N. Dennis, Rogers, and Norris, of Verbena.

Following awarding of medals and awards, Mr. Hollis thanked all teams taking part, all visitors to view the games, and everyone who had taken a part in making this Gold Medal Tournament the grand success that it was.

The whole tournament was one grand success, and it is hoped that next year will see another of its kind. Some fine basket ball was exhibited very little bad play showed, good sportsmanship was the order of the day, and in general "a good time was had by all".

Referees for all games were Coach Porch of Isabella, and Bill Simpson of Clanton. Their work drew commendation from captains of all teams entered and their fairness was unquestioned. Judges in the affair were Prof. Ed Glasscock and Paul C. Mims, whose duty it was to pick all-star teams, most spectacuar shots, sportsmanlike player, etc. Their work also drew commendation.

C. B. Cox Writes About Local Bills

"It has been brought to my attention that a referendum will be held in this county on Tuesday, April 7th, for the purpose of securing the wishes of the people of the county regarding two local bills, which are sponsored by Senator Earle Thomas, the representative of the people of Chilton county in the Senate of Alabama, and who proposes to introduce the bills in the present session of the Legislature.

After spending some time discussing this certain local legislation with officials of the county and others, and having stated I would abide by the wishes of the people of the county, provided they are properly informed regarding any public matter they may be interested in, I feel it my duty to make this statement before the referendum is held.

"Another reason for my making this statement is that I am informed that a vigorous campaign is now being put on, night and day, by some county officials and most county road employees in opposition to the proposed legislation, and instead of being able to inform the people, I doubt if they are well enough informed themselves to be able to tell the people just what the issue means.

"In view of these facts, and in view of the manner in which it appears that an attempt is being made to misinform the people of the county regarding this certain local legislation, instead of properly informing them of the direct advantages to the people, I feel that it is my duty to the people I represent to reserve the right to act according to my convictions for the best interest of the people of Chilton County.

"In face of such prevailing conditions affecting these matters, I also feel that I owe it to the people of the county to advise them now that since I do not believe the people are being properly informed, I will act as stated above, as I believe it to the best interest of the people and future of Chilton County regarding all legislation.

"It is my sincere hope that the people of the county wil understand my position in this matter if these proposed bills reach me in the House of Representatives. Very Truly yours, C. B. Cox.

MISS BLACK WED TO MR. TAYLOR IN PRETTY CEREMONY SUNDAY

Beautiful in its simplicity was the wedding of Miss Lucyle Black, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Black, of Montevallo, and Aubrey A. Taylor, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Rowland W. Taylor of Clanton. The wedding took place Sunday afternoon, March 29, at three o'clock in the home of the bride's parents, with only the immediate families present.

Ferns and baskets of Easter lilies in front of the high mantel formed a pretty background for the impressive ring ceremony, which was read by Rev. Fred B. Pearson, pastor of the Montevallo Baptist church.

Mrs. Lewis Faucett, of Northport, was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a navy tailored outfit with matching accessories. Her bouquet was pink radience roses and snapdragons.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a lovely silver grey dress with all accessories in navy. She carried an arm boquet swetheart roses and valley lilies.

Edd Mullins of Clanton srved the groom as best man.

Black, prominent attorney formerly of Birmingham, but now of Washington, D. C. She is a niece of Hugo L. Black. The bride attended Alabama College where she was an outstanding and popular studnt.

Mr. Taylor attended Alabama Polyechnic Institute at Auburn, where he received his degree in Electrical Engineering. He was a prominent member of Theta Upsilon Omega Fraternity. Since graduation he has been engaged in the wholesale and retail grocery business with his father.

SHUSH-SHUSH!

There are several things which spokesmen of the Administration will not mention in their 1936 campaign broadcasts.

Nothing will be said about the 12 million unemployed.

Very little will be said about an estimate of the actual value of the American dollar or its prospective value on the day after tomorrow.

Almost nothing will be said about the invalidation of N.R.A. and A.A.A.; and slender claims, if any, will be made for the efficacy of the late Blue Eagle.

No mention will be made of the fact that the country's national debt has increased by about 10 billion dollars since 1933, and that it is increasing today more rapidly than ever before.

No promise that is of the slightest value will be made concerning whether there is or is not to be currency inflation.

Practically nothing at all will be said about the enormous increase of various kinds of Federal taxes.

No convincing prediction will be made that the "new A.A.A." or (S.C.S.) can stand the test of constitutionality when (after the election) it reaches the Supreme Court.

And the public will be asked to forget that Mr. Roosevelt's effort at re-election is being supported by a battery of salaried office-holders, about a fifth of a million of whom have got on to the public pay roll since Mr. Roosevelt took office.—Fort Wayne News Sentinel.

They are still talking about a war to end war, but it looks like the next war will end everything.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

To those Americans who try to take a detached view of the present situation across the dark Atlantic, it must become apparent that the only power which would gain any real advantage from a European war at this time would be Soviet Russia. Hitler has marched troops into the Rhineland, which is a part of the German Reich, in violation of the Versailles treaty and the Locarno pact. France has called attention to the breach, but Germany claims the allies no longer have any right to dictate the placement of troops in German territory and that France violated the spirit of the Locarno pact by concluding an alliance with Soviet Russia.

Without going into the history of the Rhineland for the past 15 years, it must be apparent that war at this time would be an exhaustive affair. In all human probability, if war comes and France is able to bring most of her allies into it on her side, the Germans would be defeated. Hers would not, however, be a hasty collapse and the fighting might and probably would drag on for months before a decisive decision could be arrived at. This would mean more deaths, more destruction of property and more human misery in Europe. And the dark and bloody continent just emerging from the depression, has had about all the suffering it can stand.

It is easy to believe, therefore, that if the war lasted into the fall, with the Russians playing a prominent part, as they doubtless would, the spread of communism would be unpreventable. Little Soviets and workers and soldiers' governments would probably spring up on every side. The Soviet leaders realize this well, much better than many of the leaders in the countries of their possible allies seem to realize. It is not difficult to perceive, therefore, why Mr. Stalin is so warmly backing the French during the present difficulties and insisting that Hitler's soldiers be driven out of the Rhineland forthwith. He wants first, of course, to destroy Nazi Germany,, because Hitler, who may have a kind of terror of his own, is the arch enemy of the Red Terror. If the Russians were to rush westward into Germany in conjunction with the drive of other allies from the south and west, and if Hitler were crushed, this very likely would not be the end of it all. After the Nazi government was overthrown and the Red army had succeeded in releasing its comrades from the cellars and concentration camps of the Reich, it would be comparatively easy to Sovietize Germany. Then if some of the smaller nations round about had already joined the Red front, there would be little to prevent Mr. Stalin next carrying on a successful attack on his former friends and allies, the French. The beloved French would then become the hated captitalistic French. It is the hope of the Red leaders finally to win the whole world to communism.

Although the significance of this probability has been lost on some statesmen in the heat of the moment, it is to be remembered, whether you like it or not, that the British are the cleverest and most far-seeing statesmen in Europe. It is more than likely that they have already glimpsed the possibilities of a Red drive through Europe. At least they are apparently doing their best to bring about a peaceable solution of the Rhineland affairs at this time, if it is at all possible.

Once the Red drive moves through central Europe, there would be none left to save the situation except Great Britain and the United States. Britain is now loath to send her armies across the English Channel and it is certain that Uncle Sam has no taste for an international venture at this time. He has an abundance of troubles at home and would show decidedly poor judgment in seeking to settle some that were not of his own making.

A WORTH-WHILE NOTE AT LAST

The legislature of Alabama has at last landed on a sound financial policy for the State. After 17 days of the allotted 30 for this special session had been quibbled away without any constructive and workable legislation, late last week fourteen Senators turned in a bill providing not for raising taxes but for cutting appropriations $4,000,000 to come within the revenue collected.

Now, these fourteen Senators have hit on the right track. We do not attempt to say how far they will be able to get with this kind of legislation, but it is the most sensible course set out upon by the present group of law makers. There is simply no argument. The State of Alabama is collecting enough taxes, and there is no reason that the machinery could not be made to function on what money is being collected. It looks as though it might be a mistake to cut down on the school appropriation, inasmuch as the school term has already been cut short; but if after the other departments have been sheared close there is still a shortage, then the educational department should take its share of the curtailment too.

Another measure before the law makers that should be supported by all honest, fair-minded citizens is that bill aimed at lessening the absentee ballot abuses in Alabama. In this regard the Senate has passed a bill providing for those who wish to vote an absentee ballot to call in person at the office of the Probate Judge not less than 20 days before the election, and get their ballot and vote it then and there, in person. This method would certainly eliminate a great portion of the fraud that has been practiced in the absentee ballot business in the past. However, what the House of Representatives will do with the Senate bill is problematical.

Regarding this absentee ballot adjustment, The Montgomery Journal very courageously and truthfully says editorially: "The legislature will certainly be responding to widespread popular sentiment if it will correct this law."

INTERNATIONAL PROPAGANDA

The effort to get Uncle Sam in the League Court or to involve him in European commitments which might spell our participation in the next great war have not been discontinued. For example, there have been mailed out of New York recently circulars under the caption "Sound Republican Doctrine" and "Sound Democratic Doctrine", quoting Democratic and Republican platforms of the recent past and prominent leaders of both political parties on the subjects of outlawing war, agreements for international peace and good will, and the so-called World Court and League of Nations.

It may be said without danger of serious contradiction that there are few people in the United States, no matter what their views on international policies may be, who actually want the United States to be engaged in any war, either in the Western Hemisphere or the Old World. The divergence of opinion is on how war may best be avoided. The internationalists seem to think that the way to do this is to involve Uncle Sam in Old World politics, and making him a party to forcing the peace everywhere, no matter whether the dispute which may arise, is one in which he is interested, or whether it concerns the Balkans or the Barbary Coast.

The Nationalists believe that the way to avoid war is to attend to our own business and to practice real neutrality between warring nations. With this they advocate a strong defensive program which will make any alien nation hesitate to make an attack on the interests of the United States.

There has long been an ideal in this country of a high-minded and impartial World Court, which would judge all international disputes in all fairness and in acordance with an established and codified international law. Every good citizen would favor such a court of international justice.

Unfortunately the so-called World Court is no such tribunal. It was established under the authority of the League of Nations, and its judges, in case of serious dispute, will represent no impartiality, but merely the wishes and desires of the nation back home. Were this not the case the typical judge would have no authority behind him, because he must express only the will of the nation he represents.

That this is true is indicated by the history of the League of Nations during the past few years. It has acted only in the interests of the great nations which control it, when an international crisis has arisen. It is the voice not of international justice, but of the powers who dominate it. Like father like son, and like the League of Nations, the League Court.

Political platforms in the past have envisioned a real international court of justice and not a League controlled court, with all its diplomatic maneuvers and diplomatic chess-playing.

The record of Europe and its alliance and international organizations during the past few years is not such that it will induce hte United States to plunge into the troubled political waters of the Old World if the great masses of our people have their say.

Instead of quoting old platforms and declarations about our adhering to European grand alliances let us have a real referendum by American voters on the subject. The results will be surprising to many of those who think the American people have learned no lessons from world history with its backstairs diplomacy and debt repudiations during the past decade.

MAN IN THE MOON

A BOUQUET

The Editor of The Union-Banner has received a letter from Hon. C. O. Vardaman, in which he commends Mr. Wyatt in regard to his activities in connection with the Young Republican movement.

Among other things, he handed "The Man in the Moon" a bouquet for the article "Our Young Republicans", which appeared in this column in the issue of March 12. Mr. Vardaman states that this article expresses exactly the correct attitude for the Young Republicans to take, and that he has thought so well of it that he has forwarded it to national headquarters in Washington, with the suggestion that it would be well to circulate it all over the country.

Naturally, being only humble human beings, we are just a bit proud of this commendation. But, far from becoming "swelled" over the compliment, we feel that we must work all the harder to merit such recognition of our efforts. We look upon ourselves not as leaders, but as workers, ever striving for the good of our party organization, and for the perpetuation of its principles. We shall view our Young Republican organization not as cog in a machine, but as a living, breathing, fighting battalion, taking advantage of every opportunity for the betterment of our cause, and fighting steadily and doggedly on to victory for it. We have no idea of lessening our fight until that victory is won, and even then we shall continue to fight to hold our ground.

We would like to enroll every person within the age limits of the Young Republicans organization who believes in the principles of the Republican party. If we can do that, and impress upon them the responsibility that is theirs, we have no fear for the future of our party in Chilton County .

So, thanks, Mr. Vardaman, for the compliment. We have just begun to fight!

THE MISSING LINK

I want to quote from The Birmingham News, in its issue of Sunday, March 15th:

"Boys and girls in Alabama today have a better opportunity to train themselves to meet life's problems than they did a decade ago. The have better school buildings in which to study. On the whole their homes are in better repair, and their outlook brighter. The teachers now are better trained, and more progressive in their thinking. These boys and girls have good roads over which to travel to and from school. In many instances free buses are provided for them. Alabama men and women have exerted themselves for the youth of the state; they have sacrificed many necessities in order that education might benefit. It is a glorious and worthy goal that they have set. They righly deserve to reach it".

What The News should have said is that our boys and girls have better "facilities", which, if used correctly, would bring about a better opportunity to train themselves. But the sad fact remains that, despite these better facilities, their opportunities are less than they have been in the past.

It is true that we have better school buildings, better homes, better roads, better means of transportation to and from the schools, better teachers, better everything, except management. It is my humble opinion that Alabama's present officials have exhibited some of the poorest judgment, the most foolish management, and the rottenest policies in regard to the school problem that has ever been written on the pages of our state's history.

Not long after Governor Graves took office in this administration, a report was made public, showing that his officials had been able to collect far more taxes for the length of time than the past Miller administration ever had during a like time. A great boast was made of it.

Yet with all these better facilities, with more taxes, better roads, better homes, better schools, and better teachers, our children cannot attend schools—BECAUSE THERE ARE NO SCHOOLS. There is a missing link. We have all these things with which to carry on schools, even the money. Why, then, are there no schools? Any citizen of Alabama knows the answer—OFFICIAL GREED AND EXTRAVAGANCE, AND THE PAYMENT OF POLITICAL DEBTS, AT THE EXPENSE OF THE TRAINING OF THE FUTURE CITIZENS OF OUR STATE!

At a time when ECONOMY is in everybody's mouths, when it is known and acclaimed all over the state that economy in our state government is the answer to all our troubles, state officials go merrily along, paying their political debts with the state's tax money, and grabbing and grasping for more taxes to waste in ever conceivable manner they can think of.

They dare not leave the projects to a vote of the people—the taxpayers. They KNOW what would happen. They KNOW those taxpayers would cut down expenses. And so John Taxpayer never is allowed so much as a chance to say how his money shall be spent.

When the present special session was called, among the first acts was to appropriate thousands of dollars for the expense of the session. After two weeks, it was openly conceded that not one single thing had been done toward the work for which the session was called—to do something for the schools. And you can bet your last thin dime that those parasites will sit right there on Goat Hill until the last penny of that appropriation is spent, and perhaps more with it. The officials and representatives of Alabama, (with rare exceptions), are not what their title suggests—they are parasites—squandering the blood money that the far overburdened taxpayers of Alabama have paid in for government.

And right there is the missing link that keeps our schools closed. Poor and foolish management! Political greed and extravagance! Money—plenty of it—has been provided to run the schools, but those bonehead politicians have seen fit to class the educational system as a non-essential. Think of that! The training of the future citizens of the state is not essential in the eyes of our state officials! They say the highways are essential, the prisons are essential, and many other departments are essential; but the schools—the training of the youth of the state—that isn't essential.

Anyone with a brain as big as a peanut ought to know better than that. They DO know better. Here is the reason. So far, none of those high and mighty officials have thought up a way to build up a political machine, or set up a system of graft through the schools. If they could just do that, you would see plenty of money provided for schools.

I do not say that we should have no highway department. And I do not believe that we could do away with the convict department. But I do believe that some of the money that is being squandered in these departments could be put to better use in running the schools.

I wish every taxpayer in Alabama would go to the trouble of looking through Kilby Prison, or the institution at Atmore. At Kilby there is one of the most beautiful buildings I have ever looked on. Electric conveniences of every kind, hot and cold baths—nine out of ten of the prisoners are housed better than they would be at home. But the worst part of it is, there is a veritable army of attendants there, several times more than are necessary, and all drawing down pay. They are part of the political machine—they are receiving payment of a political debt in the form of a soft job. That is the reason the prison allotment is so plentiful.

In the highway department the story is the same. Overstuffed staffs drawing stuffed salaries. Right now, even as the children of Alabama must stay out of school for lack of funds, there is under construction a $244,000 highway administration building just across the street from the capitol building. And, mind you, ground was broken, and grand official ceremonies were the order of the day the building was begun, and on this very day it was first announced that the schools might have to be closed FOR LACK OF FUNDS!

Yes, we have the facilities, we have the teachers, we have the children—and we have the money—to run the schools. Our problem is to find someone with enough honesty and business sense to manage affairs so that this money can link the schools, the teachers and the children. What we want to find and MUST find is "the missing link"—honest, competent officials. When that is done, our school problem is solved.—Man in the Moon.

ATTACKING SUPREME COURT

The Supreme Court has suffered occasional but severe attacks from disappointed theorists in and out of Congress during its entire existence, the present being merely a repetition of the onslaught, says Dan W. Gilbert in the March number of The National Republic. Pointing out many of these attacks, Mr. Gilbert says in part:

"The great Justice Joseph Story foresaw that the Supreme Court would recurrently be under attack by politicians. The reason for this, he clearly pointed out, lies in the very nature and function of the Court. In performing its duty, Justice Story said, the Court must 'perpetually thwart the wishes and views of demagogues.' Since 'it can have no places to give and no patronage to draw around it close defenders' among demagogic politicians, Justice Story foresaw that the Supreme Court would be insidiously attacked. The Supreme Court, the great jurist said, has no means to defend itself—'it is essentially feeble'—and it must look to the force of an upright and patriotic public opinion to defend it against the designs of scheming politicians; in Justice Story's words, 'Its only support is the wise and good.'

"History has amply confirmed the insight and foresight of the famed Justice. Politicians, of both parties, have frequently been bitter in their strictures upon the Supreme Court when its decisions have 'thwarted' their wishes.

"It has not seemed to matter to many of them how often the Supreme Court may uphold their wishes and programs; all that is overlooked, and they have given way to bitter denunciation of the Court when it has venteured to thwart them in the most minor respect. Invariably, when the Court has rendered a decision which in some important way crosses the 'wishes' of an Administration, there have been angry cries from ardent Administration partisians that the Court should be abolished, or at least be stripped of its powers. This unreasoned antagonism and intolerance toward the judiciary on the part of members of other departments of the Government seems, to the impartial observer, most inexcusable as well as unpatriotic. Every President does things which large elements of Congress disapprove; every President has some of his vetos overridden by Congress. Yet no member of Congress argues that, because the Executive pursues policies of which they disapprove, that his powers should be taken from him. No President has ever argued that, because Congress overrides his wishes, Congress should be abolished. But at the present time there are at least several dozen Representatives and a few Senators who openly say that, because the Supreme Court has 'overridden' their wishes in the matter of legislation, it must be stripped of its powers. All these anti-Supreme Court Congressmen recognize and expect that the Executive will exercise his constitutional right to reto legislation which he does not approve. They recognize the right and duty of a President to veto laws which he believes to be unconstitutional. Yet they deny to the Supreme Court, whose very function is to pass on the constitutionality of legislation, this right to set aside laws it believes to be unconstitutional.

"The historical fact is that the professional politicians, of both parties, have never really accepted the constitutional provisions establishing the Supreme Court. They have recognized, as Justice Story envisioned, that the Court has no patronage to dispense, that it is absolutely non-political and that its main purpose is to thwart the unconstitutional and unjust form of special and class legislation so dear to the hearts and essential to the programs of demagogues. It is this innate antagonism to the great bulwark which obstructs their plants to seize upon powers which the Constitution denies them, it is this resentment which the scheming demagogue feels toward any agency of the people which places restraints upon his arbitrary exercise of power—in a word, it is the nature of the demagogue's mind which makes him revolt against the Supreme Court. Those men in Congress who have the statesman's and not the demagogue's mind do not attack the Supreme Court, even when it 'disappoints' them. There were doubtless at least a hundred men in Congress who received the N.R.A. and the A.A.A. decisions with genuine grief—yet only a few of them expressed their grief in bitterness toward the judiciary. It is folly to say that attacks upon the court are actuated by 'sincere regard for the general welfare' or by 'sympathy for the masses whose interests were injured by decisions of the Supreme Court.' The real friends of the common man realize that the Supreme Court is the great protector of the rights of all Americans. They would not advocate the abolition of the Supreme Court simply because it may have made, what they consider, a mistake."

IN SWADDLING CLOTHES

A citizen of Chilton county was [illegible] The Banner office Tuesday and said he wanted to ask us a question. He proceeded: "What I want to know is when will the people of Alabama grow up sufficiently that they can lay aside their swaddling clothes and put on real breeches and wear them themselves? A few years ago we began wearing bibbs here; we got for four years, but went back to wearing bibbs again. So, when will we wax sufficiently in stature and knowledge to lay aside our bibbs and get into real grown-folks clothes and stand up for those things which we know to be to our interest, rather than be babies, always permitting our political daddies to lord everything over us without asking our consent or permission?"

We were not able to answer the man's question, but we do recognize the real logic that lies in his question and his reasoning.

POLITICS AND RELIEF

Of course we have been led to understand that none of the four or five billions appropriated for relief will be used for "political purposes." There have been some anti-New Dealers unkind enough to say that the great appropriations made by the present Congress are a political asset to the Administration which ought to give it another victory in the November election. It has been asserted that no matter how much the Republicans may be able to raise for a war chest, the aggregate amount will be mere pin money compared with the relief administration expenses. The New Dealers themselves have, of course, greeted such remarks as these with uplifted eyebrows and expressions of scorn. They have led the public to believe that they are far too high-minded to permit any of the money to be used directly or indirectly to garner political support. National Relief Adminstrator Harry L. Hopkins, Secretary Ickes and others have cracked down so hard on the heads of critics that it seemed the boys were in danger of splitting their hammers.

And yet, despite the first-aid support which has been given the relief plans by these and distinguished statesmen and others, the rumor or will not down that there is politics in the relief. The P.W.A. work in West Virginia, for example, is now in the limelight. Charges of political manipulation of this relief agency were made by United States Senator Rush Holt. This brilliant young man has been regarded as an ardent New Dealer. So fond of him did West Virginia voters appear to be that they elected him to the Senate before he was 30 years of age. Some enthusiastic Democratic Senators even proposed seating Senator Holt before he arrived at the legal age, doubtless on the theory that the Constitution should not be so seriously regarded among friends. But they were overruled by the majority of Senators and now some of the former sponsors of Senator Holt are probably glad of it, as they do not seem so enthusiastic over his presence in the Senate as they once were.

For example, Senator Holt has charged that the local P. W. A. organization at Charleston had been built up solely for the purpose of providing State Administrator W. McCulloch with a machine with which he might get himself nominated and elected governor. Attorney General Homer A. Holt, however, will not permit McCulloch's candidacy to go through without a fight, as he plans to become governor himself and is said to have the backing of the present Governor Krump. Then there is Ernest L. Ball, who was removed from the office of State Roads Commissioner by Governor Kump last year. He is said to have gubernatorial aspirations and he is said to have the backing of Senator Holt.

Then Senator Neeley is coming up for renomination and re-election. It is reported that he will have stiff opposition for nomination, too, and that Governor Kump himself may decide to oppose him. All of which makes the P.W.A. charges burn brighter and brighter.

National Administrator Hopkins, after his investigation in West Virginia, announced that the W.P.A. administration over there was pure as a lily. This sort of a report was not unexpected, however, and interests not friendly to the W.P.A. administration are calling the report a "whitewash."

In the meantime, charges of politics in relief are coming from other parts of the country. Perhaps it will take one of those Senate investigations to determine just what is the matter.

Fant Gives Data On Cotton Plan

Rates and Condition of Payment:—Payment will be made, in connection with the utilization in 1936, of the land on any farm in the Southern Region of the United States in the amounts and subject to the conditions set forth:

1. Soil Building Payments:—Payment will be made for the planting of soil building crops on crop land in 1936, and the carrying out of soil building practices on crop land or pasture in 1936, at such rates in any state, and for such crops and practices in any state, and upon such conditions as are recommended by the state committee for such state and approved by the secretary: Provided, that the total soil building payment made with respect to any farm shall not exceed any amount equal to $1.00 for each acre of crop land on the farm used in 1936 for soil conserving crops and soil building crops.

2. Soil Conserving Payments:—Payments will be made with respect to each acre of the base acreage for the farm of any soil depleting crops or any group of such crops which in 1936 is used for the production of any soil conserving crop or any soil building crop, or is devoted to any approved soil conservation or building practice. The amount of such payment made with respect to any form shall be computed as follows:

Cotton:—Five cents for each pound of the normal yield per acre of cotton for the farm. Payment will be made on 35 per cent of the cotton base acreage.

There will be payment for the division of corn acreage up to 15 per cent of the base acreage for the farm, but the exact payments are not known at present.

3. Minimum Acreage of Soil Conserving Crops:—No payment shall be made with respect to any farm, in accordance with any of the provisions herein, unless the total acreage of soil conserving crops and soil building crops on crop land on the farm in 1936 equals or exceeds (a) 20 per cent of the base acreages of all soil depleting crops from the farms, or (b) the maximum acreage with respect to which soil conserving payments could be obtained pursuant to the provisions of section 2.

4. Adjustment in Rates:—The rates specified in section 2 are based upon an estimate of available funds and an estimate of approximately 80 per cent participation by farmers. If participation in any region exceeds that estimated for that region, all the rates specified in section 2 for such region, will be reduced pro rata. If participation in any region is less than the estimate for the region, the rates may be increased pro rata. In no case will the rates be increased or decreased by more than 10 per cent.

5. Increases of Soil Depleting Crops:—If the acreage on any farm in 1936 of any soil depleting crop or any group of soil depleting crops is in excess of the base acreage for the farm for such crop or group of crops, and deduction from any payment which otherwise would be made for the farm pusuant to any of the provisions herein will be made for each acre of such excess acreage at the rates per acre specified in section 2 above, for the diversion of land to soil conserving crops and soil building crops from the particular crop or group of crops which exceed their bases. No deductions will be made with respect to any food or feed crop grown in combination with a soil conserving crop or a soil building crop, unless food and feed crops are grown in excess of the home consumption needs for the farm.

6. Food and Feed Crops:—Notwithstanding the provisions of section 2, no payment as therein specified will be made in connection with the shifting of land out of food and feed crops unless such crops have been produced in excess of home consumption needs for the farm, and, if such crops have been produced on the farm in excess of such needs, payment will be made only with respect to the diversion of all or part of such excess.

B. Division of Soil Conserving and Soil Building Payments.

Soil Conserving Payment—The soil conserving payment shall be divided as follows:

(a) 37½ per cent to the producer who furnishes the land.

(b) 12½ per cent to the producer who furnishes the workstock and equipment.

(c) 50 per cent to be divided among the producers who are parties to the lease of operating agreement in the proportion that such producers are entitled to share in 1936 in these soil depleting crops, or the proceeds thereof, with respect to which the soil conserving payment is made.

Soil Building Payment—The soil building payment shall be made to the eligible producer who the county committee determines under instructions issued by the Secretary as incurred the expense of 1936 with respect to the soil building crop or practices; where two or more producers are thus determined by th county committee to have incurred the expense in 1936 with respect to the soil building crop practices, the soil building payment shall be divided equally between them.

Mr. Fant advises that application blanks are not yet available, but will be in a few days. A schedule of visits over the county will be arranged and announced in the near future.

The churches represented were: Medline, Bethlehem, Siloam, Mt. Olive, Pisgah, Uniontown, Second Pleasant Grove, Plantersville and Rehoboth. The day was pleasantly, and we hope, profitably spent.

After adjournment the members of Uniontown Second Baptist Church, paid their pastor, Rev. E. H. Littlejohn, a short visit and again rendered some beautiful, soul-stirring music, which was enjoyed by people from Plantersville, Medline and the immediate community.

We wish to thank all who took part on the program, and those who furnished baskets, and also we thank the people of Uniontown Second, who, out of their generosity, drove fifty two miles to render their part of the program—Music. We hope to have them with us again at some time in the near future.—Daisy R. Littlejohn.

DAIRY PRODUCTION INCREASE EXPECTED

Auburn, Ala.—Increased production of dairy products is in prospect this spring since the relationship between prices of feeds and dairy products is favorable for dairy production, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

ALABAMA LEGISLATURE ACCEPTS NEW FARM ACT

Alabama holds the distinction of being the first State in the nation to pass legislation accepting the provisions of the new $470,000,000 Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act. The new farm program was accepted by a unanimous vote of the Legislature.

"If the State makes provision for necessary cooperation in helping finance the administration of the act in Alabama, the new law will pave the way for farmers of the State to receive benefit payments of from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 annually, beginning in 1936," Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the State Extension Service, said in complimenting the members of the Legislature on their members of the Legislature on their prompt pasage of Senate Bill No. 102 by Senator Walden, of Headland, and House Bill No. 268 by Parish of Henry county accepting the Act.

The bill passed by the Legislature designates the Extension Service to administer the new soil program in Alabama. This recognition, it was explained, was given the Extension Service because of its efficient manner of administering the AAA program through which Alabama farmers were paid almost $30,000,000 in benefit and parity payments during the past three years.

The new law authorizes the Extension Service, in cooperation with the farmers of the State to make a plan each year to promote soil conservation and other agricultural benefits.

It is expected that most states in the Union will pass legislation similar to that passed by the Alabama Legislature, as it is one of the requirements of the Federal law that such acts be passed before 1938 by all states which expect to participate in the program.

FARMERS URGED TO VISIT EROSION CONTROL AREAS

If soil erosion is damaging your farm, jump into the family flivver some sunny afternoon and visit one of the Soil Conservation Service demonstration areas in Alabama, urges R. Y. Bailey, State Coordinator, and the Alabama Extension Service. This is one of the best times in the year to see what is being done to protect the soil.

These demonstrations areas were established, Mr. Bailey says, to apply in an intensive manner in a considerable area all known methods of erosion control and also to develop new methods. They are showing farmers how they can treat their own land to control erosion. There are three projects in Alabama, located near Dadeville, Greenville and Anniston.

With the cooperation of farmers, the best known methods of erosion control are applied on these project areas.

How terraces have stood up under the heavy rains of the winter, and the effectivenes of check dams, strip-crops, cover crops, grasses and trees in controlling erosion may be seen on these areas.

Mr. Bailey hopes every person in Alabama, and particularly farmers, will visit at least one of the projects this spring and again in the summer when crops may be seen growing on treated fields.

Your county agent or members of vice will gladly organize a tour of the staff of the Soil Conservation Ser- any project area at your convenience.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS AND PROGRESS OF CHILTON C. C. C. EROSION CAMP

March 31, 1936, marks the third anniversary of the Civilian Conservation Corps. In July, 1935, what is commonly known as an erosion camp was established in Chilton County.

Since the establishment of this camp it has made progress in the prevention of soil erosion. With the cooperation of the county agent, J. W. Fant, it was possible to make immediate personal contact with many farmers of the county. Farmers made applications for a survey of their property to see just what could be done to help conserve their soil which was rapidly being damaged by erosion. To date 140 such applications have been received. Of this number it has been possible to make a survey of 88 farms, and cooperative agreements have been made to serve this number.

This service consists of diversified forms of erosion control; namely, outlet channel work, gully control, and tree and vine planting. In the outlet channel work an outlet is constructed to take care of the water which is drained from terraces. In this outlet some form of permanent structure is built controlling the grade so that no large gully will be formed. Where the gradient is not over three to eight per cent a sodded outlet can b constructed. That is simply sodding the outlet with some kind of grass such as Bermuda, Carpet, or Dallis grass, which will form a permanent bed that will prevent scouring or the formation of a gully.

In the gully control as a general rule, the type of structure built are more of a temporary nature, as their purpose is to catch up enough soil to form a foundation for the growth of vegetation. Kudzu or black locust planted on land which is too steep or too badly eroded for profitable cultivation.

In carrying out the erosion program 16,670 linear feet of ditch has been excavated, 4,573 permanent and temporary masonary, rock and brush dams have been built. In the planting program 510,175 loblolly pines, 65,000 slash pines, 1,000 black locust, and 7,500 kudzu crowns have been planted, and 525 bushels of pine cones have been collected for seed purposes.

Field work was begun October 29. Including all phases of the work a total of 49 farms, which represent approximately 8,000 acres have been served.

WATER CONSERVATION CAMPAIGN IS WAGED

Mayor C. Fenn Jones is beginning a campaign to make citizens of Clanton "water waste conscious". Mayor Jones says Clanton's water supply is none too plentiful, that there must be some kind of addition to the present supply, and it is his desire that all of the people of the city be as conservative as possible with water until such time as these added facilities can be provided.

Mayor Jones has drawn up a table to show just how much money a little water waste can cost over a period of a month. In a leak where the waste is only a "dropping" waste, it will cost 23 cents per month for the 450 gallons of water it will waste in that time. If it is a stream 1-32 of an inch in diameter, about the size of the body of a straight pin, the waste will be 6,400 gallons a month, and will cost $3.20. A stream 1-16th of an inch in diameter, it will waste 26,440 gallons of water in a month, although the stream is no bigger than the head of a pin, and this will cost $12.23. A stream 1-8th inch in diameter will waste 102,425 gallons of water, costing $42.14 in a month. And if the stream is 1-4th inch in diameter, or about the size of a common lead pencil, it will waste 415,045 gallons in a month, the cost of which will be $74.71.

In starting this waste conservation campaign, Mayor Jones wishes that all people in the city would cooperate in trying to save all waste water. He wants all to use all necessary, but to stop the waste. The above figures are compiled from actual tests as to gallons of waste from various size waste streams, and this figured against Clanton water rate.

It is thought that work will begin on the new water supply in the near future. Until such time as added facilities for water supply the city authorities will appreciate the cooperation of everyone in this conservation project.

SOUTHERN INDUSTRIES

"The Southland is famous for many things," says the Orlando, Florida, Morning Sentinel, "Ranging from incomparable women to race horses, from sun-kissed oranges to cotton, from expanding industrialism to sunshine. Of recent date, however, Hopewell, Virginia, has come in for fame because of the air nitrogen industry."

This great nitrate of soda industry of the South has come in for much attention lately. The Commonwealth Magazine (Virginia) states "Virginia and the South have in the Hopewell plant a trust of which they may well be proud."

Few farmers fully understand how much the American nitrogen industry means to them. The Orlando paper says, for example, "Secretary Wallace states that the price of nitrate of soda was reduced from over $50 per ton to its present price of around $32 per ton by the presence of domestic nitrate of soda." In this way alone, the American nitrate of soda industry has saved the Southern farmer a substantial part of his "soda" costs.

The American nitrate of soda industry is also important to the national defense, since nitrate of soda is used in explosives. This industry was first created after the War when far-seeing Americans, including General Pershing, saw the need to prepare for the future in times of peace.

A third reason why American nitrate of soda is a boon to the South is the fact that when farmers use Southern products, they are helping build up Southern industry and prosperity. Southern industry is leading the South to great prosperity.

Last but not least, the American nitrate of soda industry has aided the farmer and fertilizer dealer by being the first to introduce moisture-proof bags and even weight bags. In results, one soda may be said to be as good as the other, but for the reasons stated above many farmers are asking for the American product.

SCREW WORMS APPEAR IN SOUTHERN STATES

Auburn, Ala.—Screw worms have already made their appearance in southern Florida and in a few scattered areas of Georgia, reports Dr. F. C. Bishop of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

"As the weather becomes warmer the pests will multiply and spread," said Dr. Bishop in warning that "unless stockmen apply effective preventive measures the pest promises to become a serious problem again this year in the Southern States.

"Frequent examinations of all livestock and prompt treatment with pine tar oil of every scratch, sore, and cut is an effective way to stop multiplication of the pest," he says.

H. N. Smith For Abolish'g Court

I understand and have investigated some of it and found it true, that there is quite a bit of rumor of the fact that high pressure is being put on the people, especially the employees of Chilton County, by a certain faction or factions who are more or less, directly or indirectly, benefitted by the tax payers money of Chilton County and are against some of the local bills which are advertised to be introduced and enacted into the law of Chilton County. I, as a candidate for commissioner from the fourth district of Chilton County, think that the proposed bills are one progressive step toward the improvement and construction of some permanent roads, bridges and causeways, and will prove economical in the nanagement of the county's affairs.

I have gone to the trouble to investigate the reports in order to show you people how much money had been spent, not invested in Chilton County, but in your Commissioner's Court in the years 1934 and 1935. The reason that I have got two years of this is to keep you from thinking that this is a political letter.

Amount spent from general fund in 1934, $71,679.89; spent from the road fund, $31,249.80; spent from the gasoline fund, $75,718.23. Total spent from these three funds, $178,647.92.

Cost for operating the Commissioner's Court during 1934: J. C. Atchison, $1,381.45; Cobb, $901.60; Duke, $1145.65; Mims, $132.05; Robinson, $632.45.

Recording commissioner's minutes, L. H. Reynolds $541.35; Probate Judge's salary, $800.00; clerk for commissioner's court, $720.00; salary for commissioner's court lawyer, $600; Total expenses for operating commissioner's court for 1934, $6,854.55.

Spent from general fund in 1935, $62,923.60; spent from road fund in 1935, $29,723.93; spent from gasoline fund in 1935, $75,693.20; total amount spent from these three funds in 1935, $168,340.73.

Cost of operating the commissioners court: J. C. Atchison, $1149.10; Bean, $976.35; Cobb, $27.05; Duke, $1123.95; Robinson, $88.70; Oden, $1,059.10; recording commissioners court minutes, J. Lee Smith, $475; Probate Judge's salary, $800.00; clerk of commissioner's court, $520; salary for commissioner's couurt lawyer, $600.00; total cost for operating commissioner's court for 1935, $6,-819.25.

Now in addition to the amount spent above I understand that the state and federal government has sent into this county approximately $250,-000 which has been handed out by the commissioners court or spent in a way and manner that we are not able to see any effect that it produced, or wherein our tax money, of the spent to build any permanent roads or anything of permanent nature in the county.. From the figures above, I want to ask you tax payers in the county if you are willing to keep on trying the old system that we have been working under for all these many years and not make any show in the permanent construction of our roads. I will illustrate the above by asking you another question. If you had a $175,000 business and had put a man or men over see it and be custodian of it, as our commissioners are our tax money, and you had to apply another $175,000 or more each year and the business never got any bigger or better, you could not see the difference in the fall than it was in the spring, how long would it take you to run that man off the job and try a new one?

As before stated, we see that the old system is a failure, and from the figures taken from the records of the treasurer's report, and you see that it has cost entirely too muuch money so why not let's organize a "new deal" system and save money and pay our debts and biuld some permanent roads in our county.

I hope you will read this and study it out from a business standpoint, forgetting everything but the best interests for the people of Chilton County, and all go to the polls next Tuesday and vote according to the dictation of your best judgement.—Yours truly, H. N. SMITH.

Chilton County Called Upon To Lend Aid To Red Cross

Sufferers In Tornado Areas Make Frantic Appeal For Aid Caused From Worst Tragedy In Many Years

Once more the Red Cross appeals earnestly to Chilton County people to help them in their everyday fight to aid suffering humanity. Not long ago there was an appeal for flood sufferers; but now the appeal is for funds to aid people who are now in the same plight as our own people were in 1932.

On March 21, 1932, tornadoes swept through Chilton County, leaving a trail of devastation and death. While the screams of Chilton's harrassed people yet resounded, and bells tolled sad news of group funerals in numerous communities in our county, the Red Cross came to our aid. Nor did they cease in their errand of mercy until the last unfortunate had been cared for. The wounds of our people were bound up, their needs were supplied, even houses were built for numbers of them. It was then that the Red Cross came to be known as the great helping hand, and its people as angels of mercy.

To carry on its errand of mercy to Chilton County people then, the Red Cross was helped with contributions from all over America. No doubt Tupelo, Miss. and Gainesville, Ga. had their part in these contributions. We are told that all men are brothers, under the skin, and the people from these two sections must surely have contributed, along with the people from all other sections.

Now the people of Tupelo and Gainesville are victims of the very same kind of horrors which Chilton County knows so well. Our people know what it means for one's home to lie in splinters, or to disappear altogether. We know what it means for the tornado, swirling monster that it is, to wipe out whole communities. We know the suffering and privation that attends such conditions, for we have been face to face with them.

Now Chilton people have a glorious chance to repay the Red Cross and at least a part of the contributors who helped them in their hour of need. Take your conribution to the local chairman, J. Mell Martin, or hand it to any of the solicitors. Chilton Countians have much to thank the Red Cross for. Why not show them that our hearts are as big in 1936 as our needs were in 1932. Don't wait for a solicitor to give your donation to—hunt one and give it to him, or leave it with J. Mell Martin.

OVER 400 KILLED IN 2 TORNADOES

Mississippi and Georgia Suffer Most

Gainesville, Ga., April 6.—A furious Spring windstorm which passed in three minutes killed over 200 persons here today in a blast that turned the business section into blazing wreckage increasing to more than 400 the dead in tornadoes lashing the South.

The death toll mounted steadily throughout the day and on into the night as rescue workers braved the storm-caused fires to search the wreckage.

At 9 p.m., 139 bodies had been removed from the debris and relief authorities said there were many others in the wreckage of the flattened buildings.

In another storm stricken community, Tupelo, Miss., like Gainesville, a town of approximately 8,000, the loss of dead also mounted steadily as the workers pursued their grim hunt of the litter of is westside residential section.

Financial Report Of The City Of Clanton

Mayor C. Fenn Jones Makes Statement of Record Since Taking Office Here

Believing the people would like to know what has been accomplished during the eighteen months of my service as Mayor, I am pleased to submit this summary statement at the close of business March 31st, 1936.

When I took office October 1st, 1934, the city owed the following amounts as is shown by the official audit:

Bonds Outstanding	$63,000.00
Notes	10,617.25
Accounts	2,774.93
	$76,392.18
Less cash on hand	851.76
Total indebtedness, October 1st, 1934	$75,540.42
The city owes today, March 31st, 1936:
Bonds Outstanding	$75,500.00
Notes for borrowed money	3,000.00
Accounts	None
	$78,500.00
Less cash on hand to apply on debts	4,081.34
Total indebtedness, March 31st, 1936	$74,418.66
Total reduction of indebtedness in eighteen months	$1,122.76

Following is a list of property and some of the improvements we have today that we did not own when I took office eighteen months ago, all of which is paid for except as is carried in the total debt of the city shown above, which is $1,122.76 less than the city owed at the beginning of my term and we have property and improvements valued at $37,332.13 that cost the city $27,405.13 after the donation by the government is deducted.

City Hall and Lot cost	$25,460.50
Extending water mains	10,201.85
Total cost of both	$35,662.35
Less donation by government	9,918.00
Total cost to the city	$25,744.35
Steel bridge on Kincheon road	397.50
Emergency, or extra engine at city wells	483.38
Pipe to replace old bridges	152.60
Fire hose, 350 feet	377.30
Four acres of land, dumping ground	250.00
Total cost to city of the improvements	$27,405.13

You will please notice that the city has a net gain, or is worth, $27,405.13 more than it was when I took office, owes $1,122.76 less money, and no increase in taxes.

No accounting is taken of the accrued interest on outstanding bonds, or the fixed operating cost for March, considering the water bills due for March, some taxes and licenses yet due the city, and other smaller items of improvement omitted, will more than offset those charges.

I think it fair to invite your attention to the purchase, nine years ago, of the fire truck at $7,500.00, and that I have paid the balance due on it of $4,000.00. I am not listing this truck as newly acquired property although I have paid more than half the original cost of it. It cost the city $900.00 to refund the Street Improvement bonds that came due January 1st, 1936. Another item of cash that I have not listed is $1,065.00 donated to the city schools.

There are many improvements yet that I wish to do for the city, and will, if given an opportunity. If the people, the City Council, City Clerk and employees will cooperate with me in the future as they have done in the past, we, altogether, will place Clanton at the head of the list as being the very best managed city in Alabama.

You have had eighteen months of strictly business administration of the affairs of the city, economy and honesty in government. Have I made good or not?

C. FENN JONES, Mayor.

EARLE THOMAS REFUSED TO "PROPERLY INFORM" VOTERS

Following up a suggestion made by The Union-Banner in last week's issue, a mass meeting was called at the courthouse last Saturday at 2:00 o'clock, to allow Rep. Charlie Cox and Sen. Earle Thomas an opportunity to fully explain their proposed bills to the people.

These men had already stated that they would be willing to abide by the results of the referendum, if the people could be "properly informed" of the contents of the bills. Opponents of the bills, believing that no one could be more competent to "properly inform" the people on them, arranged the mass meeting, and tendered a special invitation to Messrs. Cox and Thomas, as sponsors of the bills, to be present and explain them fully, promising that no speakers would be on hand to speak against them.

However, as the hour for the explanation arrived, the speakers were not present, although a large and representative crowd was on hand to hear them. Shortly before the hour for the meeting to open, Mr. Thomas passed the courthouse door and was stopped and urged to explain his bills, but he flatly refused, stating that he had not called a mass meeting, had not promised to speak, know nothing of the meeting being called, and under no circumstances would address the gathering. Mr. Cox did not even come to the courthouse, but it was reported that he was sick.

Therefore, when it was finally settled that proponents of the bills would not speak, numbers of would-be listeners asked that someone explain them, and also discuss matters of county government in general. A good crowd gathered in the main court room and listened to the following:

T. E. Wyatt read details of an agreement made by the proponents of the bills that they would abide by the results of the referendum, if the people could be "properly informed", which agreements were witnessed by county officials, and to which they have signed affidavits. Telegrams were read in which Judge Smith had invited Messrs: Cox and Thomas to explain their bills at the mass meeting, promising no contending speakers. Judge Smith stated that he had no response to these invitations, although he had confirmation from Western Union that the messages had been delivered to addressees in person.

Following this short talks were made by Judge Smith, Judge Reynolds, J. N. Scott, D. B. Adams, and others, and the meeting was dismissed.

Floy Devaughn is a Chilton county boy and a splendid singer. The people in this vicinity who like good singing will not want to miss hearing the Vaughan Alabama Four.

J. Dudley Collins Is Victim Of Apoplexy

Prominent Citizen of Chilton County Buried At Collins Chapel Wednesday P.M.

James Dudley Collins, age 59, prominent farmer and one of Chilton county's outstanding citizens, died last Tuesday morning at 6:40 o'clock at his home on the Lay Dam Road, 1½ miles northeast of Clanton.

Mr. Collins suffered a stroke about nine o'clock Wednesday night, April 1, shortly after he had returned from prayer meeting at Friendship church, near his home. When physicians were called it was found that he had a cerebral hemorrhage. For the most part, he was unconscious from the time he was stricken until death. However, there were times when he regained consciousness, and during this time he gave information to his family regarding his business affairs. It is reported that he was aware of this critical conditions, knew that little hope could be held for recovery, and so did all he could to inform his family regarding his affairs.

Mr. Collins was born in the Collins Chapel community March 15, 1877, and lived there until he came to Clanton in 1913. He married Miss Mattie Green, on December 3, 1896. To this union were born three children, two sons and one daughter.

He was elected Tax Collector of Chilton County in the fall of 1912, taking office in January, 1913. He was re-elected to this office in 1916, and served until January, 1921. He was elected Sheriff in 1926, serving in that capacity until 1930. During all his political life, he was considered a good official, and made a good record in all his official acts.

He became a member of Collins Chapel Baptist church at the age of 17. In 1914, when Friendship church was organized, Mr. Collins transferred his membership there, and was one if the charter members of Friendship. He has been a devoted church and Sunday school worker since his first church connection.

James Dudley Collins can truly be said to be a Chilton Countian. He was born here, and spent all his life here, making for himself an enviable record as a citizen and a man of integrity.

Survivors are: his widow; one son—J. D., Jr.; one daughter, Mrs. Linnie Gillespie; (one son died in 1912); seven grandchildren; two brothers—John H. Collins of Thorsby, and Sam W. Collins of Clanton three sisters—Mrs. Julia Benson, Mrs. Erline Littleton, and Mrs. Susie Benson, all of Collins Chapel community.

Funeral services were held at 12:00 Wednesday at Friendship Baptist church, with Rev. W. E. Robinson officiating, assisted by Rev. W. P. Lowery and Rev. J. Robert Bean. Another funeral service was held at Collins Chapel church at 2:00 p.m., in charge of the same ministers. Burial was in the Collins Chapel cemetery with Martin directing.

Young Republican Meetings To Be Held In Near Future

Young citizens over the county are continually adding their names to the list of Young Republicans, by signing and returning enrollment cards. Cards, signed up, have even come in from Beats that have never been organized.

During the coming week, meetings will be held at the following places and times, at 7:30 oo'clock on the dates named:

Beat 15, Vermont schoolhouse, Monday night, April 13th.

Beat 11, Cane Creek schoolhoouse, and Beat 1, Mullins Academy, Wednesday night, April 15th.

On the last two dates, there will be an organizer at each of the two schoolhouses named; and a speaker will be procured for each meeting, where same is possible. All voters are invited to attend these meetings.

All of the above meetings will be held at 7:30 o'clock. When possible a speaker will be procured to speak briefly after the organization at each place is perfected. The people in these communities are urged to bear the dates and places in mind and help to get as many young people interested in attending as possible. Other meetings will be arranged for next week.—T. E. Wyatt, County Chairman; Gertrude P. Calloway, Secretary.

Commissioners Court Bill Voted Down Nearly Twenty To One

Heavy Vote In Referendum Tuesday Shows Conclusively That People of Chilton County Oppose Local Bills

Chilton County's voters trooped to the polls last Tuesday in the referendum to determine the will of the people of the county relative to the proposed local bills abolishing the Commissioner's Court and the office of County Solicitor and voiced their disapproval in no uncertain terms.

In regard to the bill to abolish the Commissioners Court, the total was 2,216 to keep the court, with only 126 voting for a change to a Board of Revenue, appointed by the Gevernor. In regard to the bill to abolish the position of the County Solicitor as an appointive position, and to make it elective, the total was 1,776 to keep the Solicitor appointive, as is the case at present. These figures show a majority of approximately 17 to 1 in the Commissioners Court case, and over 3 to 1 in the Solicitor case.

Beat 4, largest beat in the county, gave the bill only 22 votes. Beat 9 went 260 to 1 against this bill, and box 2 of Beat 9, Beat 14 and Beat 16 all failed to register a single vote for either bill. Beat 1, the home Beat of Rep. Cox and T. L. McKee, tax collector, white-washed the Commissioner bill, 27 to 0. Beat 10 gave the Commisioner bill its biggest vote, 33, and the Solicitor bill 108.

A large crowd was on hand to hear the returns read out at the courthouse Tuesday night, and the majority was far above what the most optomistic opponents of the bills hoped for. Republicans joined wholeheartedly with Democrats in swamping both bills, one of the few times the two parties in Chilton County have ever seen eye to eye on any question.

The results of the referendum are not legally binding on proponents of the bill, but should carry quite a bit of weight if the bills are presented for argument in the legislature, especially as Rep. Cox had promised to abide by the results of the referendum. If the proposed bills are presented, they will come up some time this week. In the event there is not time for their presentation, it is expected they will be presented the first opportunity Sen. Thomas sees to do so, which would probably be a special session some time this summer or fall.

CIRCUIT COURT SETTLED TWO SUITS LAST WEEK

In addition to the report of Circuit Court activities as reported in last week's issue, two other cases were disposed of last week.

One of these was the case of Saderia Meeks vs. City of Clanton—Jury and verdict for plaintiff in the sum of $200. The other was the case of H. M. Kelley vs. Tom Kemp—Jury and verdict for plaintiff in the sum of $400.

LIQUOR STILL CAPTURED NEAR MAPLESVILLE MON.

Deputy C. L. Smith, of Maplesville, reports the capture of a 30-gallon liquor still on Monday night, March 30th, five miles southeast of Maplesville. Deputy Smith arrested Virgil Christian, who was operating the still, and destroyed three barrels of beer and four gallons of whiskey.

CITY DOCKETS ONLY TWO CASES

Only two cases were docketed in city court last week, acording to Mayor C. Fenn Jones. Both of these were for public drunkenness. In one of these cases, fine of $5 and costs was imposed. In the other, fine of $1 and costs was imposed.

New Theatre Opens Here Wed. April 15

Visiting Hours From 12 to 4:00 For Inspection of House And Equipment

Mr. C. W. Wade and son, Charles Wade, announce the opening of the new theatre in Clanton for next Wednesday, April 15th. From 12 o'clock until 4 has been set aside as inspection time for the fine new play house. During these hours the public will be shown through the beautiful new building and explained the intricacies of the brand new equipment, how it works, etc.

Then the box office will open about 6:30 o'clock, and the sales of tickets for the opening performance begun. The first picture will be Harold Lloyd in "The Milky Way".

This new theatre is one of the finest buildings in Clanton, and is arranged to a "T" for pictures and vaudeville. The big Neon Electric front presents an appearance that is really a commander of attention.

The Messrs. Wade extend an invitation to their friends to come to their inspection on opening day. They will take great pleasure in showing you through the fine new play house.

Among the modern equipment are 600 cushion back and bottom opera seats, in the balcony and on the main floor. All the sounding and projection equipment are the most modern to be had.

Mr. Charles W. Wade, Jr., will be house manager of the new place, which will be known as the New Wadesonian Theatre. The price of admission will be 10c and 25c. The old theatre west of the railroad will continue to be operated also.

The Opening Picture

In the opening picture Wednesday night, Harold Lloyd, without leaving his estate, can play golf, tennis, table tennis, squash, handball, croquet, or any of the acquatic sports. These amusements should make any man self-sufficient.

Lloyd keeps in good condition with these sports, plus daily roadwork over the spiral trails of his twenty-acres of wood-covered hillside.

The spectacled comedian was slim and wiry on presenting himself at the Paramount studio, for the making of "The Milky Way."

The evening pastimes of this farce king are mild. Once or twice each week he screens some of the new films for his household and guests. When he wants a quiet evening, he paints in his study, assembles slides for his microscopes, or reads in his library.

Occasionally some of "the boys" drop in and repair to the pool hall for a bout with the cues, or a go at the pinboards, which Lloyd introduced to the West Coast.

A favorite amusement of the comedian is to get out some of the kid games owned by the Lloyd children—especially those that require mental agility — and play them with his offspring, Harold, Jr., Gloria and Peggy.

There is a cache of such games in the library which the funmaker keeps for the entertainment of adults. The guest, who really finds pleasure in Bingo, Lotto, Parchessi, or the many crossword-puzzle games, is sure of a repeat invitation.

"The Milky Way" brings Harold Lloyd to the screen as a timid milkman who ducks a prize fighter's blow, and then keeps on ducking his way into fistic fame. His supporting cast of players is headed by Adolphe Menjou, Verree Teasdale, Helne Mack, William Gargan, Dorothy Wilson, George Barbier and Lionel Stander.

CHILTON COUNTY B. Y. P. U. CONVENTION AT JEMISON

The B. Y. P. U. convention of the Chilton county association will hold its quarterly meeting at Jemison Baptist church next Sunday afternoon, April 12, beginning at 2 o'clock. All members of the unions of the Chilton county association are urged to attend this quarterly meeting.

Judge J. Osmond Midleton left his work in Montgomery Tuesday long enough to come up to Clanton to vote in the Commissioner's Court referendum.

CLANTON IS GROWING FAST

The Union-Banner wishes to call especial attention to the article by Mayor C. Fenn Jones in this week's issue regarding the condition of the affairs of the City of Clanton. This article is to be found on another page of this paper, and explains very plainly the improved conditions in our city, especailly in the financial department.

As will be seen by the above mentioned article, Clanton's indebtedness is now $1,122.76 less than it was 18 months ago, the present administration has made added improvements in the sum of $27,405.13, and various other additions have been made.

The Union-Banner commends the present administration upon the record shown in these figures. It is highly a ceridatble showing, and citizens of Clanton have reason to feel proud of their city and their officials.

SECOND MEETING CALLED FOR CONCORD ON FRIDAY NIGHT

The second meeting for young Republicans in the eastern half of Beat 4 (boxes 1 and 4) is called for next Friday night, April 10th. An able speaker will be provided, and it is hoped that a good crowd will attend.

The scheduled second meeting two weeks ago was rained out, although the speakers, Percy M. Pitts and J. Osmond Middleton, were on hand to speak, in case any had been there to listen.

We especially invite people from the following communities, who are in the unit embraced: Poplar Springs, Temple, Concord, Walnut Creek, Refuge, Jackson Chapel, and Pinedale, as well as the east side of Clanton. We also urge all members of the unit recently formed at Providence, Beat 16, to be present with us at this meeting.

It is very important that all who intend to become members to attend this meeting, as a supply of membership cards will be provided, and the actual work of enrolling members will be attended to. In addition to the objective of this unit will be explained in detail, and we urge all to be present to hear this explanation.

Don't forget the date, hour, and place—Friday, April 10th, at 7:30 p.m., at Concord schoolhouse.—Paul C. Mims, Chairman; H. Dalton Bice, Secretary.

COUNTIES UNITE TO SEND BASEBALL FANS TO B'HAM

The counties of Shelby, Bibb and Chilton have banded together in a three-way triumvirate to send five thousand fans to Birmingham for the opening day of the 1936 pennant campaign in the Southern League. They have undertaken this task simply because they enjoy clean, wholesome sport, and for the simple reason that they want to see Birmingham cop the attendance trophy this year. President John D. Martin offers annually a silver trophy to the Southern League city which registers the biggest opening day attendance. Shelby, Chilton and Bibb think it's Brimingham's time to win that trophy.

They also are laboring under the impression that Birmingham has corralled a good ball club this year under the management of Rigg Stephenson, the old Alabama, Cleveland and Chicago Cub's Star and in that they are looking forward to many pleasant afternoons in Birmingham this summer, they want to give Riggs and an all-new ball club a good send-off for opening day.

Harry Gordon, Mayor of Columbiana, has been nambed as Chairman of opening day arrangements for the three counties, and Harry says he is going to have five thousand fans from the rural precincts at Rickwood rooting for Birmingham on that opening day. The Baron's for the lid-buster-offer will be Larry Gilbert's New Orleans Pelicans.

The three counties South of Birmingham have always been a "feeder" to Rickwood, even in the days when the Barons suffered an acute attack of "Slumpitis." Now, that the skies have lifted and it looks as if Birmingham has a club that wil finish one-two-three, they are intent on sending a big delegation into Jones Valley for opening day.

Riggs Stephenson, the old Chicago Cub Star, a man who once starred in football at the University of Alabama, looks as if he has lined up a winner for the Barons the coming season. The purse strings have been loosened and much money has been spent in trying to outfit a wining ball club for the Alabama metropolis.

Joe Palmisano, one of the greatest minor league catchers ever to wear the big mitt, was purchased from Atlanta, and will be the Barons' first string catcher the coming season. Uncle Bud Clancy, who hit over .300 last year, will be back on second base. Eddie Cihocki, a great defensive infielder, was sent to Birmingham by the Chicago Cubs and will be on second base. Eddie Moore, who was drafted from the sandlots of Florida last season, and who has a great year his first in organized baseball, will hold down the short field position. Elmer Trapp, who was hitting .340 for Birmingham when he was recalled by Pittsburgh last year will be at third base.

Asthings, look now, Old Hoss Stephenson wlil be in left, a youngster by the name of Luce will be in center, and Legrant Scott will hold down the right field post for the Barons.

Among the class "A" pitchers who are trying out for berths on the Birmingham Club are Ray Coombs, Joiner, Darrow, Jones, Simms and Hulvey, with Lefty George in reserve and also a release or two from the Cubs. Joe Woodard will be utility man for the Barons this year, and it looks as if they the mighty well heeled to make a one-two-three bid for a berth that high in the Southern League.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

A skit under the direction of Margaret Nix, Maplesville, was presented at the annual student government banquet for the women's association at the University of Alabama.

All applicants for jobs with large companies should be able to answer the question "Why do you want to work for our company?", was the advise of Dr. Burton R. Morley to University of Alabama seniors in the Commerce school.

Dr. Morley, Professor of Economics, is Director of the Commerce school placement Bureau. This question put to seniors by prespective employers causes widespread chagrin, he said.

Most students, he explained, are caught off guard and stumped when faced suddenly with the query. Even the "A" students, he said, flounder in their interviews and lose possible jobs.

Arrangements for a University of Alabama section meeting of the World Peace Conference have been completed by the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. cabinets here, according to Allen Cook, Andalusia, chairman of the conference.

The meetings have been set for Friday, April 10, and are open to all students at the University.

Molly Mercer, Evanston, Ill., was selected Miss Alabama, the Million Dollar Band sponsor, at the University of Alabama Monday night. She is a member of the Alpha Phi sorority and a freshman in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Three victories out of four decisions debates was the records brought back by the University of Alabama debating team from a tour of universities in the north central states last week.

A sales tax in Alabama would have yielded approximately $6,000,000, according to an article in the University of Alabama Business News for April. The article was written by Dr. H. H. Chapman and W. M. Adamson, Director and Statistician respectively of the Bureau of Business Research at the University.

BUMBLE-FOOT TREATMENT EXPLAINED BY McADORY

Auburn, Ala.—Bumble-foot in poultry may be preveted by proper diet, by lowering perches and nests, and by keeping the poultry-house floor covered with good litter, advises Dr. I. S. McAdory, acting veterinary school dean at Auburn and State veterinarian.

The condition consists of an infection and swelling of the underpart of foot which practically incapacitates the fowl. Bumble-foot, most common in heavy breeds, results from bruises or other injuries to the pad when birds jump from high perches or nests onto hard, unlittred floors. Too much protein and a deficiency of green feed also are conductive to its development.

Treatment consists in cutting open the swelling with a knife, removing the thick pus, and cleansing with suitable disinfectant solution.

CCC BOYS HELPING TO CONTROL EROSION

About two thousand enrollees in 11 CCC camps assigned to the Soil Conservation Service are working in cooperation with farmers and extension workers to control erosion on thousands of acres of Alabama land.

Before work is started farms are surveyed by a technician of the camp. The type of soil, degree of slope, and extent of erosion are deetermined. With this information in hand the farmer and a soil conservationist go over the farm and assign each field to a particular use that will best control erosion and give the owner hte greatest return in crops.

Farmers terrace culticated land where terraces are needed. The camps construct terrace outlets and terrace outlet channels to conduct water from terraces to stabilized areas, to prevent the formation of gullies. Cropping systems including rotations and the fullest possible use of winter and summer legumes are planned to assist in controlling sheet erosion.

Steep, highly erosible areas are retired from cultivation and planted with such erosion-preventng crops as trees, grass, and kudzu. Gullies are being stabilized with simple check dams and soil-holding vegetation.

One of the purposes of this work is to give farmers throughout the state an opportunity to see what they can do to control erosion on their farms. Visit one or more of the camp areas this spring or summer to see how erosion control methods are supplied by the enrolles and farmers working together.

4-H GIRLS URGED TO MODEL IN STYLE DRESS CONTEST

The seventh annual 4-H girl's style revue in which 40 or more state champions will compete fo rfinal honors is to feature the National Club Congress in Chicago Nov. 27-Dec. 5 to be held in connection with the International Livestock Exposition.

Every 4-H girl in this county and state may compete in this great educational contest. To do so she must be enrolled in a sewing or clothing project and make and model one of four classes of outfits. They are a wash dress for school or sport wear—a wool, silk or rayon dress or suit for school—a best dress—and an informal party dress. She also must select her shoes and other accessories for the outfit which is judged for neatness, modesty, attractiveness, economy and other points. The girl may obtain the materials and aritcles anywhere she chooses. Score cards and other details may be obtained by local eaders from the county extension agent.

Although the experience a girl gets in the contest alone is worth the effort she puts in, many atractive prizes are offered as inentives for her to take part. They start with a beautiful, especially designed gold medal of honor and htree silver medals for county champions. The state winner in each of the four types of outfits receives an elegant silver bracelet, while the state champion wins a trip with all expenses, to the National Revue in Chicago.

Each of the four class winners in Chicago receives a 17-jewel gold watch, and the national winner a special gold medal, all prizes being provided by the Chicago Mail Order Co., sponsor of the contest which is conductetd by the Natinal Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work in cooperation with state and federal extension agents.

WALLACE BARS AAA PAYMENTS TO BIG FARMS

Huge Checks to Large-Scale Sugar Cotton, Hog Operators Listed in Report

Washington, April 6.—Making his first move to comply with Senator Vandenberg's reiterated demands for publicity on large AAA benefit payments, Secretary Wallace published today a report showing that they ranged up to $1,067,665, the sum paid to one Florida sugar corporation.

Wallace deplored the larger payments, but blamed them on pre-new deal condition. Because of "crushing effects" of low prices which "squeezed out" many small farmers, he said, control of much farm land had "fallen into the hands of corporations, absentee owners and larger operators." The AAA, he held, "arrested this alarming development."

Prisons Get Funds

In making his partial report, Wallace withheld th enames of all recipients, with three exceptions. He disclosed that the largest cotton rental benefital, $123,747 for 1934, went to a Mississippi company headed by Oscar Johnston, an AAA official. Among the largest cotton payment receipients in 1933 were the Mississippi state penitentiary, which received $43,200 for controlling production on its cotton acreage; and $25,500 to the Arkansas state prison.

Johnston, the report said, is manager of the federal cotton pool and has been with AAA since June, 1933. At that time, Wallace stressed, his connection with the private concern was made a matter of public record. Beside the 1934 payment to the company a 1933 check for $54,200 went jointly to it and the farm credit administration to which it was indebted. Because of the debt, the full share of the check was later signed over to FCA.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

BEST COTTON SPACING IS GIVEN BY FUNCHESS

Auburn, Ala.—Experiments by the Alabama Experiment Station show that "much of the cotton planted in Alabama should be on 2½-foot rows with 2 stalks per hill 18 inches apart," says Dean M. J. Funchess, in explaining that "our results indicate strongly that this is by far the best spacing where low to modest yields are to be expected."

"The evidence indicated that in general best yields of cotton may be had from spacing that involved not less than 8,000 stalks per acre and not more than 25,000 stalks per acre," he says. "All the work indicates that where something like a bale of cotton per acre is possible the hills should be something like 18 inches apart and the rows about 3½ feet wide, with 1, 2, or 3 stalks per hill. However, where no fertilizer was used decidedly the best yield was obtained from 2½-foot rows with hills 18 inches apart. At this spacing the yield was 124 pounds per acre greater than with the next best spacing which was 3½-foot rows, hills 15 inches apart."

STATE GAME NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., April 7.—Alabama is shown to be in the van of cooperative research in wildlife management in a report recently made public by I. T. Bode, head of the Division of Wildlife Research in the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey.

Cooperative research investigations are underway in nine state land grant colleges to determine how to increase, maintain and employ wildlife resources and demonstrate how the facts discovered by the research can be given practical application.

Funds to maintain these research stations are derived from the Biological Survey, the American Wildlife Institute, the colleges in which they are located and the conservation departments of the states in which they operate.

PAYMENTS DEPENDENT UPON CONSERVATION

Auburn, Ala.—To qualify for payments or grants under the new Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, farmers must grow soil-building and soil-conserving crops, such as cowpeas, soybeans, lespedeza, Alfalfa, kuzdu, velvet beans, crotalaria, winter legumes, clovers, small grains, and grasses.

Generally speaking, they must have at least one acre of soil-conserving or soil-building crops to every five acres of soil-depleting crops in the base acreage, says Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the Stae Extension Service.

This means that a farmer who has 100 acres of corn and and cotton (soil-depleting crops) in the base must have planted on this farm in 1936 at least 20 acres of conserving and building crops to participate in the program.

Farmers will be eligible for payments for shifting up to 35 percent of the base acreage of cotton to soil-building or soil-conserving crops, except the country shifting cannot exceed 25 percent of the base acreage.

In the case of peanuts the greatest shift of acreage for which payments may be made is 20 per cent of the base.

Where food and feed crops have been produced in excess of home needs, the grower may shift as much as 15 per cent of the excess acreage of corn, potatoes, and small grains for harvest, to legumes, cover crops or approved soil-building practices and receive payments.

By planting soil-building and soil-conserving crops and following soil-conserving and building practices, such as terracing, farmers may qualify for two types of payments. The class 1 payment will be made for the planting in 1936 of soil-conserving crops on soil-depleting crop acreage, and class II payment will be made for the planting of soil-building crops and the carrying out of soil-building practices on crop land or pastures in 1936.

BASEBALL IS IN THE AIR

Local baseball fans are becoming interested in whether or not Clanton will have a baseball team this year, and many of them are quite confident that some arrangements can be made whereby we will be able to afford a good team to represent us.

There are numbers of youngsters in this community who are just budding into potential baseball talent, and they should be encouraged to make the most of their ability.

Local fans are used to seeing their share of baseball during the long summer months, and they don't mind paying for the privilege. Last year we had good attendance all season, and Clanton had a fairly good team.

Before long it may be that actual work will be started toward building a team, and its expected that a general baseball meeting will be called in which a manager will be appointed, and possibilities of a team discussed. Keep this in mind, discuss it with your friends. and when such meeting is called, make it a point to be present and take part in the proceedings.

A MAN'S BEST YEARS

An Ohio psychologist, Dr. Harvey C. Lehman, after much research, has come to the conclusion that the age of 41 years is the high spot in production for writers and that poets are at their best around 35. Other specialists are in proporton, with the usual exceptons, of course.

Speaking of late bloomers in literature and the arts generally, how about William De Morgan? Up to a gracious maturity of 65 years he was interested in decorations, with emphasis on pottery and tiles. Then he burst out with "Joseph Vance," not a negligible novel, and within five years had turned out three or four more that made pre-war readers in England and America to do a lot of new reading. There was Mark Twain, who did some of his best work after 50. Think of Hugo and Dickens How about Joseph Conrad? He was a sea captain when he turned to writing fiction and not by any means in his first youth when he started; when he died at 67 he was famous, with a lot of good books to his credit and still more in his inexhaustible mind. Was he at his peak? The general impression seems to be he was. Howells wrote his greatest novel at 48.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

In view of the various polls taken and the opinions expressed as to the ability of Mr. Roosevelt to succeed himself as President of the United States as a result of the November election, a careful survey of the situation would seem to justify the statement that it is entirely too early as yet to predict with any certainty what is likely to happen in the Fall election.

A big question mark which must be added to any poll of public sentiment taken at this time, is justified by the fact that it is still several weeks before the Republicans nominate their candidate to oppose Mr. Roosevelt and until the G. O. P. standard bearer is chosen it is decidedly difficult to get a line on public sentiment. In short, how is it possible to ascertain just how strong politically Mr. Roosevelt is going to be on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November unless we know who will be the opposing candidate? No matter how strong or how fast a racer may be it is a little difficult to guess the outcome of the race until one knows what other horses will be on the track. It is certainly true that some potential Republican candidates wil make a better showing than others. So until we know the official runners, there is no use speculating too seriously on the result.

For the past two weeks New Deal leaders have claimed that the Administration is gaining its strength again after having slumped decidedly following the congressional election. One Republican student of political affairs, admits that this may be true, told the writer the other day that he was not, in any event, seriously concerned over it. Public opinion is now in a state of decided uncertainty, he said, and there are apt to be surges and relapses in the political strength of the Administration during the next few months. In his opinion, the impression of a turn in the tide of Mr. Roosevelt's fortunes at this time has been due to the fact that opposition within the Democratic ranks to the Administration has not turned out to be as formidable to date as was anticipated in some quarters. This, however, he added, was to be expected. The real test in November will be one of candidates and principles. "If the Republicans get out their vote, after having chosen a powerful candidate, that will be a far more important development than the amount of opposition that arises in the Philadelphia convention. After all, the Republicans are in the majority in this country. When they stay together and vote their sentiments, they win; when they don't do this, they lose."

Other uncertain quantities, in addition to the lack of Republican candidate at this time, can be found in the economic condition of the country, and other developments due to political and natural causes. Nobody knows just now what the economic condition of the country will be in November. The result of the election will depend in a great part on how prosperous the people feel when November rolls around. Neither is anyone aware of what direction the new tax program will take, whether the amount of unemployment will increase or decrease, what the crop situation will be, and how much effect the mailing of "conservation" checks will have on the farmers in September and October.

In short, the best procedure for the Republicans would seem to be to refrain from worrying about straw votes, and the ebb and flow of the political tide, and to expend their efforts in selecting a candidate of sound principles who will command the respect and support of his party. If this is done and a real organization is built up for the purpose of getting out the vote when the election day arrives, then they will have done all that is humanly possible to win the country back to the G. O. P.

MORE BUREAUCRACY

Now that we are often told the depression is over and things are getting back to normal so that the multitude of offices and bureaus connected with the New Deal can be curtailed comes the information that the new agricultural set-up envisions a bureaucratic machine which may put to shame anything that has yet been conceived in the philosophy of the new era.

Although the exact intentions and ramifications of the new farm program seem still somewhat cloudy, even to those who are seeking to explain it from the inside, it is slowly becoming apparent that there will be plenty of Federal and State machinery in this so-called soil conservation plan.

It seems plain enough that the new scheme for regimentation of the farmer through "soil conservation" and the "protection of soil fertility" have its political value, no matter how it may ultimately affect the farmers and the other taxpayers who will be required to put up the money to hire the agriculturalists to conserve their soil and its fertility.

Two kinds of payments will be given the farmers, one for conserving the land and the other for building up its fertility. For this the farmer will be equipped to submit to a new form of regimentation, or perhaps the old form of regimentation, or perhaps the old form in new clothes. Whether the new scheme will finally pass the Supreme Court remains to be seen, but that ciontingency is far ahead as yet, and the immediate political value of the "conservation" program in this campaign year of 1936 can not be doubted.

A rain of checks will pour on the farmers during the critical months of September and October, but this is not all of it. There will be plenty of reward for the faithful, too. It is going to take a lot of men and a lot of salaries to administer this new regimentation. Five regional divisions are to be established, all working under Washington, and there will be state and county units which will reach into every community of farmers. The states will provide a hook-up with the National Administration and the county units co-operating with the agricultural schools will be called on to "inform" the farmers of the blessings of this new agricultural order.

It would be unkind and neglectful not to pay tribute to the political acumen of the men who devised this new bureaucratic machinery. The Brain Trusters may lack political skill, but they certainly "hit the ball" when this new agrcultural scheme was devised. It is complete from Washington down to the humblest prairie farm. There are no missing links from the chain.

Washington is filled to overflowing with commissions, bureaus and what-not. New Federal employes have overflowed the Federal buildings, the vacant apartment houses and those aristocratic homes which have been let to the Government. There is even talk of taking in Baltimore as a part of the Capital, because bureaucracy has now outgrown Washington. Yet let it not be forgotten, as Oliver McKee, Washington correspondent of the Boston Transcript, wrote the other day:

"The real bureacracy, however, lies out in the country, rather than in Washington. In every state and nearly every country the Federal Government is now strongly entrenched, with branches of its various and sundry agencies—from the A.A.A. to Federal Housing and W.P.A."

TAXES AND BUSINESS

In 1935 more than 80 per cent of all Federal tax revenues were collected from business in the first stance, according to the National Industrial Conference Board. In an analysis of the proposed tax on undivided profits, the board points out that while many of these taxes, such as the tax on tobacco and liquors, are shifted to consumers, the Federal Government now depends and must continue to depend upon business for the major part of its tax revenues. Consequently, the Government would be pursuing a course contrary to its own revenue interests in adopting measures tending to disorganize and deplete the capital structure of business enterprise. A summary of the board's study says:

"The earnings of corporations and unincorporated businesses cannot be tapped indefinitely without introducing tendencies which in the long run will prove to be economically harmful. If the Government absorbs $620,000,000 more of the earnings of business enterprises in 1937 than in 1936, it will mean that the funds available for productive purposes and for the expansion and improvement of productive equipment wil be reduced."

Taxing big business has alwas been one of the favorite plans of the so-called statesman who likes to think, or at least to have people think, that he is "taxing the giant corporations" to favor the common man. He is apt to forget that when another half billion is taken from the business interests, there is just a half billion less with which business can expand and provide more jobs for the workers. If the taxes are made progressively high enough, business will finally arrive at the point where most of its income will go to the Government. The result will be unemployment and idleness and a greater cost of living. If the "distribution of wealth" continued it might easily arrive at the point where it would be necessary for the Government to take over and operate private business. Then we would have the socialized state in America without any question.

In the meantime, it must be remembered, some of the tax assessed by the Federal and local governments against business necessarily passes on to the consumer. So the consumer is paying this part of the tax himself in the way of higher food prices, higher rents, higher clothing costs and so on down the line.

It may appear possible for awhile, to tax giant corporations and big business in the interest of the masses. But sooner or later the masses will have to suffer. It is very likely they will have to suffer sooner as well as later—sooner when they feel the cost of living going up, and later when the tax burdens stunt the industry and provide fewer and fewer jobs on which the prosperity of America is founded.

MAN IN THE MOON

LANDON IS "THE MAN"

I hear many people from both parties these days say that they are not so party conscious as they once were. Many of them say: "I am for the man. I don't care what party he belongs to, if I can believe that he has better ideas to advance, more sound principles, and if I can find something in his record to lead me to believe he is the best man for the place, I will vote for him, no matter what his party."

In this connection, I would like to offer the name of Gov. Alf Landon, of Kansas—"budget balancing Alf", if you please. In all but a very few instances, he is the exact opposite of Mr. Roosevelt, and even in these few instances, in which he would seek to obtain the same results as Mr. Roosevelt professes to be striving for, he proposes to proceed along altogether different methods, which appear to be more sound, more practical, and more along the American style of doing things.

To cite a few instances—Mr. Landon proposes to help big business that it may be able to provide more jobs, and thus ease, in part, at least, the unemployment problem; Mr. Roosevelt's idea seems to be to suppress big business, to draw from it prohibitive taxes that tend to cripple it, which, in the long run, makes the unemployment problem worse. In short, Mr. Roosevelt seeks to kill the goose which lays the golden eggs, while Mr. Landon's idea is to feed the goose better, that it may lay more golden eggs.

Mr. Landon, like Mr. Roosevelt, seeks also to help agriculture, but seeks to do this by methods that would provide self-sustaining subsidies, and in the end would not be a perpetual drain on the national treasury. On the other hand, Mr. Landon would like to do away with the maze of reciprocal trade treaties recently enacted by Mr. Roosevelt.

A recent poll taken by the Institute of Public Opinion shows Mr. Landon has a running start on all other candidates to be nominated at the Cleveland convention. It is possible that Mr. Borah could gather enough votes at this convention to block Landon, but political leaders in high circles believe Mr. Landon "is the man." We hope to be able to "Help Landon Land On Roosevelt."

"FORGIVE THEM LORD—"

I note with interest a very elaborate article in last week's county papers, signed by Mr. H. N. Smith, which is in strong support of the proposed Thomas bill to kick out the Commissioner's Court and substitute a board of Revenue composed of three men appointed by the Governor. Mr. Smith's article might be quite interesting if it proved anything—if it did not show within itself that the cost of county gevernment and supervision of the road system would be higher under the new order than under the old—and if its intentions were not so utterly ridiculous that they were quite laughable.

In the first place, what does Mr. Smith's article prove in regard to what the Commissioner's Court has spent? He has merely stated what the Treasurer's report had already given out—the amounts spent by the Court in carrying on the county's many departments. He does not state in what way a Board of Revenue would have done better Indeed, he does not even offer the suggestion that they would be able to do better! He does nothing but cite a few figures. It would have been quite interesting if Mr. Smith could have pointed out instances where his dearly beloved Board of Revenue would have done better. Then we might have had something, at least, by which to compare. He only "believes" such an arrangement would be better. Why? How?

Mr. Smith says he has "gone to the trouble" to gather some figures to show the people how much money has been spent. How interesting! I suppose Mr. Smith has an idea that the rank and file of the people are not interested enough in their county's affairs to read such reports.

He says he has picked out two years, so that "you will not think this is a political letter." If it isn't, Mr. Smith, then suppose you tell us what kind it is—it has all the ear-marks of one. And in discussing and making comparisons, I shall use the year 1934, the one which shows the greatest expense under the old system. Let's compare.

In 1934, you state that the Commissioner's Court cost the county the sum of $6,854.55. You must remember that this amount also paid for supervision of the road system. I know that you believe that this supervision has been bad, but have you any proof that it would be better under the new system? Here are comparative figures:

1934, under the old system—To pay commissioner's wages and expenses for attendance at court and supervision of roads, $4,193.20; Recording court minutes, $541.35; Probate Judge's salary, $800.00; Clerk for Commissioner's Court, $720.00; Salary for Commissioners Court lawyer, $600.00; Total, $6,854.55

Under the new system with the supervisor, and all attendant bills carried through—Board of Revenue salaries, $2,800.00; Salary and expenses of road supervisor, not less than $3,600.00 (this could be increased to $4,200.00); Recording court minutes, approximately $500.00; Probate Judge's salary, $800.00; Clerk for Board of Revenue, salary, not less than $600.00, (this could be increased to $900.00); Total, $8,300.00.

These figures show, then, Mr. Smith, that it would cost the county nearly two-thousand dollars more to get the work done under the new plan than it is costing them under the present plan. And is it reasonable to believe that a Board of Revenue, appointed by the Governor, would be able to get more value per dollar of the county's money than the commissioners are now doing, or have been doing? Is it not a fact that any man does work he is hired to do in the manner desired by the agency who hired him? You KNOW this is true, Mr. Smith. Then is it not reasonable to believe that the appointed (not elected) Board of Revenue will be more anxious to carry out the wishes of the governor and Mr. Cox, who will have hired them, than they will to please the people, who pay them, but who had no part in their selection? Isn't that a sensible supposition?

Mr. Smith told me, personally, when he called at The Union-Banner office to turn in the copy for his letter last week, that he wanted some economy in the county government—that was the reason he gave for wanting the bills passed. Is it reasonable to believe, from the above camparison, that such economy would be effected? Remember, nothing has been said about the right of the people to elect their officials. I asked Mr. Smith if he did not believe the people were as competent to elect good officials as the governor was to appoint them. And here are the exact words of his reply—"in some cases they are not." I want that reply to stick in the minds of Chilton County's taxpayers—that you may know that in some quarters the people of Chilton County are not considered as competent to elect officials to look after the affairs of the county government and to spend their tax money, as is the governor of the state, who has no especial interest in our county's affairs.

I believe and I think that about 99 per cent of Chilton County's people believe, that our people have sense enough to pick officials who are competent to spend the dollars our taxpayers pay in to run the affairs of our county. I do not believe we need the "super minds" of men like Mr. Thomas and Mr. Cox to dictate to us the "things that are best for us", to use their own words. Who are these men, to judge what is best for us? They drew their election from the very people whom they NOW profess to believe are incompetent to elect good officers. On second thought, maybe these men are about right about us not being able to pick good officials —we elected Cox and Thomas—maybe that is enough to raise a doubt.

I believe it is the general opinion of our county's people that at the present we have the most incompetent, the most short-sighted, the most egotistic and most autocratic representation in the halls of the legislature that we have EVER had in the county's history. They respect no opinion but their own. Even Hitler, in his recent farcical election, gave his people the right to vote FOR his ideas—Cox and Thomas have not even allowed that—they have signified their intention of ramming their ideas down our throats, whether we like them or not. Such action is undemocratic, ungrateful, disloyal, unfair, and in its final analysis—dishonest.

And as for your idea of supporting the bills, Mr. Smith, I believe if you will inquire around a bit, you will find that the popular opinion is that the reason you have come out in favor of them is because you have reason to believe that by so doing you will have a good chance to be appointed on the Board of Revenue, in case it is set up. Is this the reason, or is there another, which you have not explained, as yet?

"Forgive them, Lord—they know not what they do."—Man in the Moon.

WHO OWNS THE CHAIN STORES?

Whenever a campaign is inaugurated in a state to levy excessive special or punitive taxes against chain stores, a determined effort is always made to convince the voters that these store sare owned and dominated by "Wall Street"—mythical capitalists who live far away, draw the financial life-blood from communities and give nothing in return.

Now a survey has been made to determine just who owns the chain stores—and the result is interesting. Replies were obtained from a very large percentage of all the chains in the country.

Two significant facts are disclosed. First, in the case of chains which are owned individually or by a partnership, the local character of the business is apparent from the fact that such concerns invariably operate in one city or county, more rarely, within the entire home state. In cases of incorporated stores, the majority of the companies operate in one state only and their stockholders are located in that state exclusively. "In either case," the survey says, "the charge of Wall Street domination is absurd."

Second, in the case of companies operating in more than one state, the stockholders tend to be concentrated in the states served. Again the local interest is apparent.

These facts should go a long way toward divorcing the public mind from the old "Wall Street owns the chains stores" argument. A chain store corporation is no different than a utility, an automobile, or a clothing store corporation. It is owned by thousands of people, some well-to-do, many in the middle-income group, and some who have little or nothing save their chain store securities. A large proportion of these owners will also be patrons, and you rub shoulders with them on the streets, or live next door to them. There is no such animal as a chain store financial monoply—and don't let those who want to put the chains out of business, at the consumer's expense, make you think so.

INFLATION LOOMS

Out of Washington comes the rumbling of inflation like distant thunderclaps preceding a storm.

The treasury of the United States is the strongest in the world, but it is being depleted at a rate so fast that is cannot be replenished by any honest means. Relief spending is only one of the major causes. Others include indirect expenditures, alleged but not proved to have the effect of direct relief and increases in the regular budget items, such as Army, Navy and the departments. Social security, farm relief and the bonus are setting up vested interests which amounts to pipelines from the Treasury without shut-off valves. The flow will increase with the years.

How long can the borrowing continue? Until the banks can no longer buy the Government I. O. U.'s. And when will that be? No one knows exactly, but there have already been signs of financial regurgitation as banks have tried to swallow the vast and frequent offerings. Whether the bonus and Security Act borrowings can be downed without throwing them back on Washington remains to be seen.

There is the issue. It must be faced. Curb the excess spending or squander the country into squalor. Cease piling up an unpayable debt or—inflation looms.—St. Louis, Mo., Star-Times.

IT'S NOT OUR BUSINESS

War in Europe is unlikely just now, because European nations despite their loud talk, do not want war, according to Emil Lengyl, author and lecturer, in an address at the Town Hall in Washington, D. C., recently.

This is, of course, reassuring and Americans will devoutly hope it is true. Another portion of Mr. Lengyl's remarks was not so reassuring, however, so far as Americans are concerned.

Lengyl declared that the League is in a demoralizing condition and can do nothing to maintain peace at this time. Then he added:

"The United States has frustrated the chance of world peace.

"Europe needs an 'internation mentality' to that function. We have no ax to grind in European problems."

The last statement is doubtless true. The United States has no ax to grind in European problems, and that is exactly one reason why Americans believe that we should stay out of European disputes. Every European nation which does engage in such disputes has an ax to grind, and a real one. Often the designs and prejudices date back for centuries. Pushing Uncle Sam into the mess would put him right in the midst of a lot of battleaxes which have already been ground and sharpened and are ready for duty. Instead of blunting the edge of the weapon, he would serve an arbiter and our country can provide very likely get in good position to get himself all cut up.

What Europe needs is not an international mentality, but a will to peace. When such a will is achieved, then the services of an international mentality will not be necessary. Europe formulates its own quarrels and wages its own wars. It is therefore up to Europe to maintain its own peace. If one wants to avoid having to call the fire department, he ought to quit playing with matches.

If the League of Nations is now an impotent political body and if the United States could revive it by joining in, then this can only mean one thing: the League will be revived by the prospect of American credit and American soldiers, and it will be up to Uncle Sam to furnish the sinews of war which may enforce peace through destruction, but will never preserve it.

If the League is to be revived, let European nations revive it. The great powers which control the League have acted so badly in the past dozen years that the world generally mistrusts them, and the League has become a by-word of political impotency. If these powers want the League revived, let them make it a real service rather than lip service designed to cover up the selfish ends which they may have in view.

REAL SPENDING

According to a recent Treasury Statement, the total expenditures of the Federal Government since July 1, when the fiscal year started, had mounted to $5,082,000,000. The deficit on the same date was given as $2,285,000,000, about 21,000,000 more than the deficit of the year before on the same date, while the gross debt has mounted to $31,445,000,000. On the same date the year previous the debt was $28,611,000,000. Going up!

But this is not all of the story. The spending will continue in spite of the fact that the New Dealers like to tell us frequently that the emergency is over.

According to an estimate made recently by the conserving Associated Press, the recasting of the Government's figures indicate a spending program of more than nine billions of dollars in the next fiscal year! It is estimated that the total expenditures for the present fiscal year will be around $7,645,000,000. Uncle Sam is now cutting into his sixth billion, so that the estimates seems fairly conservative.

It is estimated further that the borrowing during the next fiscal year will be something like three and a half billion dollars, so that the total gross national debt bids fair to swell to something like $35,000,000,000 by the end of the next fiscal year, June 30, 1937.

Here are the estimates as carried by the Associated Press for the fiscal year 1937:

Regular receipts for the next fiscal year are estimated at $5,654,000,000 and ordinary expenditures at $5,649,000,000, which would create an ordinary surplus of $5,000,000.

Expenditures for recovery and relief, however, are expected to lead to the $2,598,000,000 deficit, without taking the bonus into consideration.

The budget, therefore shapes up as follows for 1937:

Total receipts, $5,654,000,000.

Regular expenditures, $5,000,000.

Recovery and relief expenditures, $2,603,000,000.

Total deficit, $2,598,000,000.

Total borrowing (including $1,000,000,000 for bonus), $3,598,000,000.

Gross debt today, $31,447,000,000.

Gross debt with new borrowing, $35,045,000,000.

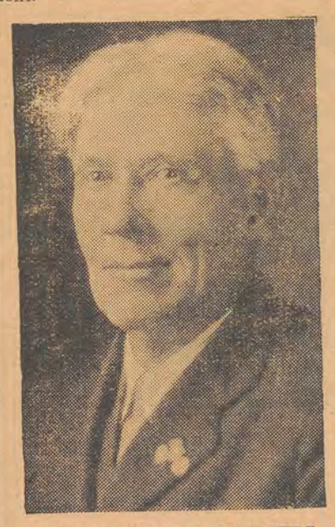
Maxwell For Congress

Mr. Thomas H. Maxwell of Woodbank Farm, Route No. 1, Tuscaloosa, Ala., whose announecement as a candidate for Congress to represent the people of Alabama, District No. 6, appears in another column, enjoys the distinction of residing in the same District in which he is a candidate. Mr. Maxwell endeared himself to the aged people and thereby, also to the young and medium aged people for being the first in the District to advocate a Federal Old-Age Pension of $30.00 per month for those whose incomes were below $1,000.00 per annum, administered by states.

He was the first to advocate in 1931 cotton crop control by states, which idea was adopted by South Carolina and Louisiana in the fall of 1931, which laws were repealed in the early part of 1932, because the other cotton states were inert. Mr. Maxwell, however, was undaunted. He wrote the governor of a state whose farmers could not grow cotton and received a reply, dated October 12, 1931, at Warm Springs, Georgia saying in substance: "We are going to do something to improve the whole cotton situation"—Signed—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mr. Maxwell kept up correspondence with the New York's governor and convinced him that farmers of all staple products needed governmental co-operative control of both prices and production to insure to the grower above cost for his products. All this was happening prior to Mr. Roosevelt's nomination to which goal he aided and saw him triumphantly elected. Action began immediately after March 4th, 1933, with, on Mr. Maxwell's suggestion, the order to impound monetary and other gold and the temporary closing of the banks. Mr. Maxwell also suggested the compounding silver and the circulation of paper notes in lieu thereof, to represent both medals at the old ratio of 16 to 1. But Mr. Roosevelt accomplished the matter in a wiser manner by getting Congress to enact a law which enabled him to coin the metals at 27 plus of silver to one part of gold, raising the price of gold from $20.54 per ounce, thus enabling miners to produce at a profit from lean ores. Under the law, Mr. Roosevelt also raised the price to producers of silver from about 30 cents per ounce to 77½ cents per ounce, enabling them also to profit. Thus the President is causing a gradual increase of monetary media without causing a wild boom which he did not desire. Thus is explained the Patman Bill and patriotic ex-soldiers might thus understand their President.



FROM THOMAS H. MAXWELL

Mr. Maxwell, in asking the people to elect him to congress, wishes to be in a position to render more and more positive aid in repealing bad laws and enacting good laws in accordance with our best of Constitutions to insure to the people of all stages of property ownership a sufficiency of constitutional money and that without borrowing for Congress, the creater of money should never be forced by simple minded Congressmen to borrow on its own creature.

Mr. Maxwell believes that the state by-lws should help the farmer to receive a just price for his cotton seed oil, linters, meal and hulls and the meal and hulls should pass through live stock on their way to enriching the soil that produced the cotton.

Mr. Maxwell has, in his mature seniority of 63 years, an honorable ambition to serve in the body which controls the purse-strings of this patriotic nation to the end that misery-causing panics of evil men should never be and that peoples' savings shall be insured.

Mr. Maxwell contemplates serving in a statesmanlike manner, devoid of cheap-skate politics and devoid of using public patronage in any other than an honorable way.

Mr. Maxwell's father, James R. Maxwell, served as a Confederate in the war between the states. Is a widower, the father of two lawyer sons in Havana, Cuba. Mr. Maxwell is a graduate of the School of Engineering, University of Alabama, an S. E. A., a Spanish War Veteran, wiht seventeen month's service in France in the A. E. F.; a Legionnaire and a V. F. W.

I desire the support of the gray-haired, young, and middle-aged voters on May 5th, 1936, whether it rains or shines. Pass the message by word of mouth, postal card or letter to the voters in our own county of Tuscaloosa and to those in Bibb, Chilton, Greene, Hale, Perry, Shelby and Sumter, and lets try to make it unanimous. Hale has had two of her native sons in the position, and should, as a matter of fair play, allow Tuscaloosa to put her native son in Congress on May 5th, 1936.—Sincerely, Thomas H. Maxwell.

J. N. SCOTT PAYS RESPECTS TO SENATOR THOMAS AND COX

Editor Union-Banner:

I have been on the puny list for several weeks, but here I come with another little chat. I have been thinking, since we met at the courthouse last Saturday, how quick some men can change after they get in office. When Messrs. Cox and Thomas were in the campaign wanting to be our servants, we could not keep them knocked away from our meetings with a stick. They went to every political meeting, all day singing, and to church; but since they were elected to their offices they don't seem to want to go to any sort of meetings.

It seems from the way they act, they don't want to see the "deer peeple" and shake heir hands any more. We have wanted to see them and hear them talk; they have been invited to come to our meetings, but they refuse to come, and by so doing say that they are our bosses now and do not need our advice or help. By their actions they say: "You people let us alone; we know what we want, and we are going to run the business of Chilton County to suit ourselves. You people now can go to Guinea; we have got a job when our time is out in Montgomery. We are going to arrange for that now."

The bills already passed and the ones proposed must be a selfish proposition on the part of Mr. Cox and Mr. Thomas. I have not heard any criticism of our system of county government, and we have the best road system in the state.

I want to ask Messrs. Cox and Thomas, who got up the proposition of having the Commisioner's Court abolished; and who invented the idea of a road supervisor? Who did it, I ask? Was it some leading Democrat or some leading Republican? Was it a majority of the voters of the county?

I believe there are yet enough good people who believe in majority rule to block these bills which Cox and Thomas want passed. The citizens of Chilton County have not asked for them, and do not want them.

Well, I can't much blame our two servants hiding out and not wanting to see their bosses. They have gone and done something wrong, and they realize it and are ashamed to face the music. They know their acts will cripple them and their Democratic party; and they know they will get a spanking if they ever ask for another job. This thing beats all in the history of Chilton county; we have never had such a trick pulled on us before. I am 72 years old and was raised in this county, and I have no knowledge of such a thing being done to us people before.

The referendum that is being held today, Tuesday, will show how the people of Chilton county feel about the proposed laws—that they are beyond doubt against them. I hope that our servants will abide by the wishes of the people's decision. From the same old man who stands for justice to all.—J. N. Scott.

MARVIN MARTIN REPLIES TO H. N. SMITH'S LETTER

Jemison, Ala, April 6, 1936.

I wish to make some comments on Mr. H. N. Smith's letter to The Union-Banner of April 2nd. There really are two factions working on the proposed legislation. One is the group of loyal citizens and taxpayers who are trying to keep the county in its high-standing position. The other is a bunch of suckers who are hoping to get a hand out from our would-be dictators—Cox and Thomas.

Why is Mr. Smith, who is a candidate for Commissioner, supporting these bills? There can be only one reason. He has either been promised appointment or hopes that by taking this stand he will be appointed to some office. That would be an easy way for Mr. Smith to get an office.

Since Mr. Smith has been so kind as to go to the trouble to investigate the Treasurer's Report so as to inform us of the cost of the Commissioners Court for the years of 1934-35. Why did he not compare this with the cost of a Board of Revenue and Supervisor for the same years? I am sure he could have obtained this from some county which now employs such officials.

According to the reports made at the 1935 session of Legislature, Chilton County's Commissioners Court had worked out a far better plan than any other county Board of Revenue had adopted. And as a result of this Chilton county was in much better shape financially than any Board of Revenue governed county.

I don't think Mr. Smith understands very much about the $250,000 which has been handed out by the government, because if he had he would also have undestood that this same government that handed out the money also handed out specific instructions as to its distribution. Therefore I would like to inform him that the Commissioners had little or no say as to how and where this money was spent.

As to Mr. Smith's illustration, if I had a man hired to run a business for me and he was not giving satisfaction I would feel that it was my place to fire him and hire some one else. Also I feel that the people of Chilton county are capable of firing and hiring their own officials even if Mr. Cox and Mr. Thomas are not of that opinion. According to Mr. Cox's and Mr. Thomas's plan, supported by you, Mr. Smith, the people would have no voice in this matter.

If it were not too serious a matter, Mr. Smith's request for a new deal would be a good laugh, but considering what the New Deal has already done for the nation I ask you, Is that what we want for our county? Yours truly.—Marvin Martin.

ANTI-SALES TAX ASSOCIATION SCORES SALES TAX LEADERS

Montgomery, Ala., April 6.—Declaring that educational lobbyists were using the recent meeting of the Alabama Educational Association in Birmingham as a vehicle to spread sales tax propaganda, Jeff P. Beeland, campaign manager of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama, scored the sales tax leaders in a statement issued here today.

"These so-called educational leaders have been using the schools to spread propaganda for a sales tax," Beeland said, "so it did not startle us when we learned that Dr. J. A. Keller, state superintendent of education, took advantage of the opportunity and delivered a sales tax talk instead of using the time allotted to him on the program to suggest methods of advancing education in the state."

Beeland said that the educational lobbyists, joined with other administration leaders, will make an attempt to pass the sales tax bill this week.

"The majority of those who are really interested in the advancement of our schools have supported the fight staged by our organization against adoption of additional taxes by this special session of the legislature," Beeland said.

"While Dr. Keller and his gang are scheming to get their hands on more tax money it is encouraging to know that Representative Goolsby, of Escambia county, a distinguished teacher and educator, led the first battle on the floor of the house against the adoption of a sales tax," Beeland said.

"We are of the opinion that the teachers and parents appreciate the work done by Representative Goolsby and condemn the practice of our state superintendent in his effort to force a sales tax onto the overburdened backs of the Alabama taxpayers," Beeland added.

MARSHALL COUNTY CHANGES BACK TO COMMISSIONERS

During 1935, a local bill was put through the Alabama Legislature which abolished the Commissioners Court of Marshall County, Alabama, and set up, instead, a Board of Revenue.

Last week a bill was introduced by Rep. Rayburn of Marshall County to repeal the act of 1935 which created the Board of Revenue, and also introduced another bill creating the Court of County Commissioners. Both bills went through and were signed by Gov. Graves last Monday.

The Marshall bill of 1935 is almost exactly like that which Sen. Earle Thomas is trying to put through for Chilton County. The people of Marshall County do not like the system of a Board of Revenue for themselves, and their Representative is conscientious enough in the execution of the duties of his position to abide by their will, and has obtained the repeal of their objectionable bill of 1935.

Why is it that our legislative officers, Sen. Earle Thomas and Rep. Charlie Cox, cannot take a page from Marshall County's book of experience and profit thereby?

If such an arrangement is good for one county, it should be good for another. Likewise, if it is bad for one, reason would teach that it would be bad for another. The experience of Marshall County teaches that the system is bad for them. If this is true, it is reasonable that it would be bad for us.

At any rate, why not allow the wishes of the majority to be respected? THE MAJORITY OF CHILTON COUNTY'S PEOPLE DO NOT WANT A CHANGE IN OUR SYSTEM OF COUNTY GOVERNMENT!

CARD OF THANKS

With heartfelt gratitude we, the family of Henry Jackson Dobbs, take this privilege of expressing our thanks to our many friends who so willingly assisted us in our recent bereavement. Words cannot express our thankfullness, but God in His Almighty wisdom will reward you all.—The Family.

POLITICAL PRINCIPLE INVOLVED

A political principle rather than personalities will be at stake in the May primaries in the contest of Judge Leon McCord and Matt Murphy for election as National Democratic Committeeman.

The principle involved is the one which aroused such widespread indignation throughout the state recently when the Democratic State Committee in defiance of the wishes of the voters of Alabama and over the protest of a minorty of its membership arbitrarily appointed delegates to the Democratic national convention in Philadelphia and refused the people the right to elect these delegates.

The action was due to the influence of Governor Bibb Graves, abetted by Pitt Tyson Maner and approved by those committeemen who look to Graves for personal sponsorship.

At the time this was done, Judge McCord, present National Democratic Committeeman, was denied the privilege of the floor to protest such action. The refusal to allow this gentleman, high in Democratic party councils and representative of the national Democratic party, to speak, was not only a discourtesy to him, but an insult to the Democrats of the state. In the past the national committeemen of the state have been considered as almost ex-officio members of the state committee and have always been welcomed to all committee meetings.

It is the consensus of political opinion that Matt Murphy's candidacy is an effort of the Graves crowd to chastise McCord for an attempt to interfere with the plans of political dominance of the Little Man on Goat Hill. Certainly every effort is being made by the Graves people to put Murphy into office.

A vote for Judge McCord in this race will be a vote for the principle of allowing a democratic people to choose their own representatives whether it be in public office or party council. A landslide victory for McCord will be a pointed rebuff to Bibb Graves and his political associates.

The Mobile Press Register hopes that such a rebuff will be administered.—The Mobile Register of Date March 28, 1936.

W. J. BILLINGSLEY PLEDGES SUPPORT

Editor Union-Banner:

I would like to ask for a small space in your paper this week.

It has been brought to my attention this week that some are wondering and wanting to know how the candidates are going to stand after the primaries if they are defeated. As for myself I stated in my announcement that if I should be defeated, that I would get behind the Republican ticket and help to put it over in November. My candidacy for the Treasurer's office is a sacred covenant with the people. I am going to live up to my pledge to stand by the Republican ticket in November.—W. J. Billingsley.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

On March 29th, the children and grandchildren of T. G. Robinson gathered at his home one mile east of Jemison, to enjoy to day together, as has been the custom for five years, to meet with him on his birthday and spend the day.

There were 26 children and grandchildren present, and several friends of the family. Only one of the children was absent this year, Miss Mamie Robinson, who lives in Miami, Fla., and 4 grand children in Birmingham were not there. The father, T. G. Robinson, was 67 years of age on this date.

Everyone seemed to enjoy a good time. Plenty of eats at noon. Also, had good music by T. G. Robinson with his violin and Mr. Ponder with his harp and guitar. About 4 p.m. the children began to depart for their homes, all wishing him several more happy birthdays.

If nothing happens we will all be back next March to celebrate his 70th birthday together. We expect to keep this date as a day of reverence to our father, T. G. Robinson.—One of the Boys.

CORRECTION IN UNCLE JACK POWELL FUNERAL

The Union-Banner nas had its attention called to an error in the report we carried last week aboot the funeral of Andrew Jackson Powell. It should have read that the funeral was conducted by Rev. M. Lockhart. We extend our apologies for the error.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Armstrong visited relatives in Lanett, Ala. last week end.

THE ORGANIZATION OF SHILOH DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The ladies of Shiloh community met at the home of Mrs. Ethel Billingsle on Monday afternoon, March 30th, for the purpose of organizing a Home Demonstration club. Due to the fact that Miss Pardue could not be with us we did not have the demonstration but we elected the following officers President, Mrs. Morris Keen; vice president, Miss Zula Nelson; secretary, treasurer and reporter, Miss Eloise Keen; project leaders, Mrs Minnie Mullins and Mrs. L. C. Keen; community leaders, Mrs. J. O. Bice and Miss Etta Mullins; poultry leader, Mrs. J. F. Poole; director, Miss Ethel Mullins.

We now have a membership of nineteen members and hope that the number will be much larger at our next meeting, which will be held on Friday, April 24th, at the home of Mrs. J. S. Kendrick, at 2:00 o'clock. We urge all members to be present.—Eloise Keen, Reporter.

BANTAM—I MEAN BANTAM 12 YEARS OLD

The Union-Banner is in possession of a Bantam egg that was laid at Mrs. Lonzie Mims's hen-house. This is a reliable Bantam. She was hatched in Elmore county near Eclectic in the spring of 1924, and brought to Chilton county by Charlie Thornton in the fall of 1924, stopping in Beat 16, three miles north of Cooper. Jessie Mitchell gave Charlie 25c for this hen and kept it one year and gave it to his wife's sister, the owner now. She is still in Beat 16. You can see her at Lonzie Mims's place, Verbena Route 2. —Written by Jesse Mitchell.

Lesson for April 12

JESUS TRIUMPHS OVER DEATH

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:1-35.
GOLDEN TEXT—Because I live, ye shall live also.—John 14:19.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Glad Surprise.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Conqueror.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Is Alive.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Living Lord.

The supreme test of Christianity is the fact of the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. It matters little what Jesus said and did while alive if his body remained in the grave. If he did not come forth in triumph from the tomb, then all his claims are false. On the other hand, if he did arise, all his claims are true. Fortunately, there is no better authenticated fact in all history than that of the resurrection of the body of Jesus Christ.

I. The Empty Sepulchre (vv. 1-3).

1. The coming of the women (v. 1). As an expression of affectionate regard for the Master, they came with spices for his body. This was a beautiful expression of sentiment but showed their lack of faith. If they had believed his words, they would have known that his body could not be found in the sepulchre.

2. What they found (vv. 2, 3). When they came to the sepulchre, they found the stone had been removed. How the stone was to be removed greatly perplexed them on their way, but on their arrival they discovered that their difficulty had already been met. They found the stone rolled away, but they found not the body of Jesus. For them to have found his body in the sepulchre would have been the world's greatest tragedy. The empty tomb spoke most eloquently of the deity and power of the Son of God (Rom. 1:4).

II. The Message of the Men in Shining Garments (vv. 4-8).

1. "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" (v. 5). This question has been reverberating through the centuries since it was uttered by the angels.

2. "He is not here, but is risen." Jesus had made all these matters quite plain. He had told them that the Lord must be betrayed and crucified and that on the third day he would arise again. If they had given heed to his words, they would have been relieved of their perplexities.

III. The Women Witnessing to the Eleven (vv. 9-11).

Their thrilling testimony concerning the empty tomb and the words of the angels appeared to the disciples as idle tales and they refused to believe:

IV. Peter Investigating (v. 12).

While the testimony of the women seemed as idle tales, Peter was not of the temperament to dismiss the matter from his mind. Therefore, he ran to the sepulchre. Upon close investigation he found the linen clothes lying in such a way as to prove the reality of the resurrection.

V. The Convinced Disciples (vv. 13-35.)

1. The walk of two discouraged disciples (vv. 13-15). Emmaus was seven and a half miles northwest of Jerusalem. Just why the disciples were walking this way we may not surely know. The topic of conversation as they wa ked miles northwest of Jerusalem. Just why the disciples were walking this way we may not surely know. The topic of conversation as they walked was the tragedy of the cross and the resurrection rumors. If they had believed what Jesus said about his coming forth from the grave, they would have expected to hear such reports.

2. The unrecognized companion (vv. 16-24).

a. Who he was (v. 16). While they reasoned together on the wonderful events of the past few days, Jesus joined them on the journey.

b. His question (v. 17). Perceiving their sadness and perplexity, he sought to help them by calling forth a statement of their grief. This question surprised them and caused them to jump at the conclusion that he was a stranger in Jerusalem, for the condemnation and crucifixion of the great Prophet of Nazareth were so recent and notorious that no one who had lived in Jerusalem could be ignorant of them.

3. The Scriptures opened (vv. 25-31).

a. His rebuke (vv. 25-30). He rebuked them not for their unbelief of the strange stories that they had heard but for ignorance and lack of confidence in the Old Testament.

b. Jesus recognized (v. 31). While sitting at meat with the disciples their eyes were opened as they saw him bless the bread and distribute to them.

4. The effect upon the disciples (vv. 32-35). They were so filled with joy over this revelation of the Saviour that they hastened back to Jerusalem to tell the other disciples of his resurrection.

God's Love

God's love gives in such a way that it flows from a father's heart, the well-spring of all good. The heart of the giver makes the gift dear and precious; as among ourselves we say of even a trifling gift, "It comes from a hand we love," and look not so much at the gift as at the heart.—Luther.

Laugh From the Heart

A laugh to be joyous must flow from a joyous heart, for without kindness there can be no true joy.—Carlyle.

Mrs. Delia Traywick went to Lanette, Ala., Saturday, where she will spend some time with her daughter, Mrs. W. B. Foster.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Jesus preached a wonderful sermon an the mount. When the sermon was over He came down the mountain followed by a great multitude. Human nature has always been the same. That crowd was just like a great crowd in the modern world who come home after hearing a great speaker. Jesus was the greatest speaker the world ever heard. "Never man spake as this man". That is what the people of His generation said. The most profound statements ever made were the beatitudes. "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God". Nothing more profound was ever uttered than that statement and every word except one is a monosyllable. Can't you hear the crowd talking? "What do you think about what He said about the pure in heart seeing God?" "I am glad old Mr. So and So heard what He said about the peacemakers. That old boy has stirred up trouble in this community all his life." "Did you see old Brother Blank look down when He talked about the meek? That old stiff-necked brother knows nothing about meekness". As a matter of human interest the writer would have traveled miles to have heard the comments of the crowd about the sermon of Jesus on the mount.

While the crowd was talking about what Jesus said as they came down from the mountain the attention of Jesus was attracted to a man in need. The needy man possibly heard the sermon that Jesus had preached. He, of course, could not have been in the midst of the crowd because he was a leper, but Jesus may have commanded the winds to take His words and carry them down the mountain some distance to the ear of the leper. What faith this leper had! "Lord, if thou wilt thou canst make me clean." If thou wilt" you will notice he said. "You have the power to do it." How did he know Jesus had the power to heal him? He must have heard what Jesus said. He was convinced that a man who could say the sublime things that Jesus said and say them as naturally as Jesus said them must be the Son of God and therefore if it was His will He could heal leprosy. "He has the power, I know". That was the leper's conclusion. What faith! It is a remarkable story. A sermon was preached on the mount. It was the greatest sermon the world ever heard. The only record we have of the immediate transforming power of the sermon was the effect it had in stimulating the faith of a poor leper. Truth honestly proclaimed always proclaimed always produces results in a heart with the right response. The intellectual and prominent crowd may have had mental delight in analyzing the statements of Jesus. More may write books about the Lord and they get a thrill from the spell of His personality and yet go down to the grave with leprous souls. Only those who look to him for saving mercy and healing grace hear His words "I will, be thou clean."

BIBLE THOUGHTS

That we shall all appear before the seat of Christ to give accounts of deeds done in our bodies is too simply and plainly stated to be questioned. (See II Cor. 5:10). There will be no deeds done in the body after we are dead, and therefore we have no hope of a second chance. Also we will be judged as individuals and not in groups. We are not going to heaven in groups, neither because some groups is justified or condemned. Our hope of eternal life is in following Christ. He is the way the truth and the life. Jno. 14:6. He is the author of eternal salvation unto all that obey Him. Heb. 5:9.

Classifying the teaching of the scripture into isms and ites is a monstrosity. All the isms, ists and ites, started in the mind of man. Jesus taught the Jews that it was vain for them to worship God through the doctrines and commandments of men. Matt. 15:9; Col. 2:20-23. But if we all do the will of God there can be no place for antagonism and sectarianism among the people of God. Jno. 17:20-23; I Cor. 1:9-12.—R. L. Huffman.

STATE AUDIT FINDS THE COUNTY SCHOOLS ARE O. K.

During March of this year a critical audit of the County school system and records and reports of officers was made, under the supervision of Mr. C. R. Keener. On March 27th a report of this audit was filed with the State Comptroller.

The audit covered all financial business connected with the educational department from May 1, 1931, through December 1, 1935. This took in the work of former County Superintendent Buford Lawrence for the period May 1, 1931, to June 1, 1933; and the work of the present superintendent, Luther E. Little, from June 1, 1935, to December 1, 1935. During the whole period covered by the audit, Mr. John C. Page was treasurer of the school funds of Chilton County.

It is highly significant of the ability and integrity of all these gentlemen connected with the work covered by the audit, that after this strict accounting was completed, it was found that not one cent had been misappropriated, that all payments had been correct and according to law, and that, in short, the educational department had been carried on by competent and conscientious officers.

Chilton County's people, we believe, are fortunate in having had their school matters in such capable hands as those of Mr. Little, Mr. Lawrence, and Mr. Page. Inasmuch as the audit was made for the purpose of trying to find "leaks" in Alabama's school system, and therefore a very critical audit made, the record of the Chilton officers is all the more outstanding. Chilton County people have reason to feel proud of their educational officers and the record they have made. Chilton stands among the top counties of the state in this connection.

Rev. W. W. Robinson of Beat 16 was in Clanton Wednesday.

JUST STARTED FIGHT AGAINST THE CONSUMERS SALES TAX

Montgomery, Ala., April 4.—"We have just started fighting against increased taxes in the state of Alabama."

That was the declaration of Jeff P. Beeland, State Campaign Manager of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama, when the lower house by a majority of 62 to 36 killed the Harrison sales tax bill last week.

Beeland directed the association's fight against the adoption of the sales tax and other forms of added taxes.

"We have won a temporary victory, but the people should ever be on guard for to relax our fight now might mean that added tax burdens may be placed upon us, for we must keep in mind that other revenue measures are now on the house calendar and in a miment's notice, with a few parliamentary tricks, the administration leaders may turn one of them into a general sales tax or a gross recepits levy," Beeland said.

"This in reality, so far, is the people's legislature, for with one stroke, it saved the taxpayers of Alabama $10,000,000 when it killed the sales tax bill.

"However, like a snake hidden in the grass, we never know when it may strike again. Politicians are now scheming. They work at night while the taxpayer slumbers.

JUDGE J. LEE SMITH MAKES A STATEMENT

Judge J. Lee Smith had the following statement to make to the public following Tuesday's referendum, and the publication of the results:

"The referendum of Tuesday, April 7th, was the suggestion of Rep C. B. Cox, and he stated in the presence of reliable witnesse swho have made affidavit thereto, and he would abide by the result of such a referendum.

"I believe the voters of Chilton County have made their wishes known in connection with the proposed bills I believe the overwhelming majority against these measures bespeaks the sincere opinion of the people of our county in their regard.

"Therefore, inasmuch as the referendum was the suggestion of Mr. Cox I, together with the citizens of Chilton County, shall most certainly expect him to hold good on his promise and block the passage of these bills —J. Lee Smith, Judge of Probate."

Citizens Appear Before Senate In Local Bill Battle

Committee Ignored In Hearing Before Senate Committee; Bills May Die

Montgomery, Ala., April 15.—Two bills proposed in the senate by Senator Thomas of Chilton County, which prominent Democrats claim will mean the "death knell" to the Democratic party in the county if adopted, brought a delegation of prominent Chilton county citizens to Montgomery Tuesday to oppose the measures before the senate local legislative committee.

The bills would abolish the commission form of government and institute a three-member board of revenue for the county. These three members would be appointed by Governor Bibb Graves for terms of five, seven and nine years, which those representing the Democratic party before the committee said would not give the people of the county an opportunity to vote for revenue board members for a period of nine years.

Senator Thomas was severely criticised by those who apeared before the committee. And it was pointed out that at a referendum election held in the county last Tuesday, two thousand two hundred and sixteen voters objected to the change in the present form of government, while one hundred and twenty-six favored the change.

Among those who appeared before the committee were:

J. Lee Smith, Judge of Probate, J. C. Pattillo, clerk of the Circuit Court, Dr. V. J. Gragg, President of the Central Alabama Hospital, W. Y. Keel, Member of the Democratic Executive committee for over thirty years, Howard Oden, Chilton County Commissioner, Dr. J. P. Hayes, Clanton physician, W. M. Polk, special agent of the State Tax Commission, Dr. F. G. DuBose, retired physician, Luther E. Little, Superintendent of Education of Chilton County, H. M. Simpson, Clanton business man, and Judge L. H. Reynolds, former Probate Judge.

Judge Reynolds, a life long Republican, told the committee that he voted a split vote for the first time last election "because the Democrats had some mighty good men on the ticket."

During his discussion, Judge Reynolds said that Representative Cox had promised him, while campaigning for office, that he would not abolish the commissioners court, and that such a political advertisement appeared over his name in a Chilton county paper.

"I don't believe Representative Cox will vote for such measures in the house," Judge Reynolds said.

Those staging the protest before the committee presented a petition signed by twenty members of the Democratic Executive Committee of the County opposing the change in the county form of government.

"The action of Senator Thomas in sponsoring these bills in the face of the results of the referendum on them last week, plainly indicates that he is ignoring the desire of the majority of the voters in Chilton county", Judge Smith said.

"Senator Thomas refused an invitation to attend a mass meeting at Clanton on April fourth to discuss these questions," Judge Lee Smith told the committee.

"We agreed to have no other speaker present at the meeting and to give him a full opportunity to explain any reason why he had sponsored the bills," Judge Smith said.

The speaker stressed the fact that the Democratic party had made strong gains in Chilton county in the past few years. And that for the first time in forty years, in 1934, elected a full Democratic ticket.

Members of the County Democratic Executive Committee pointed out that the adoption of these two bills would mean a split in the party, and probably result in the Republicans gaining full control of the county offices in the next election.

The spokesman presented a petition signed by all of the five members of the school board opposing the change in government.

Lack of Time May Save Cause

It was stated by attendants at the hearing that immediately after the Chilton spokesmen had finished, a vote was taken by the Senate committee, and the bills were reported favorably to the Senate floor. This action was taken as an almost certainty that they would pass in the Senate.

However, indications were that due to House rules, these bills could not come up for passage in the lower body until some time next week. It was almost unanimous opinion that the legislature will be disbanded the latter part of this week, and if this materializes, the bills would automatically die, for lack of time for passage.

It is expected that Gov. Graves will call the legislature back into another special session some time this summer or fall, but these bills would have to be re-advertised, and all work done over again. In the meantime, it is hoped that some kind of agreement can be reached to forestall the introduction of the bills a second time.

REV. PAUL ODEN WILL PREACH AT CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

In the absence of Dr. Ezell, who is holding a revival with Dr. Reid at South Avondale Baptist church, Birmingham, Rev. Paul Oden will fill the pulpit Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. At the 7:30 hour of evening worship, Bro. Oden will give a stereopticon lecture on the life of Paul. Those who have heard brother Oden preach know that he is one of the outstanding preachers in the state. The public is cordially invited to hear him. Tell your friends and come to hear him.

A MATHEMATICAL PROBLEM

Mr. M. L. Milford, Clanton Route 6, has a problem in arithmetic, or some other kind of mathematics, which he wants somebody to figure out for him. Of course, we know Rev. E. W. Butler of Thorsby Institute will figure it out, but we would like to have some of our young sprouts work on it too. Here is the problem:

Mr. Milford has two children, one of whose birthday this year came on Easter Sunday, and the other's birthday will come on Thanksgiving day. Mr. Milford wants to know how often each will have a birthday on these particular holidays, and how often they will happen as they have this year—both on Easter and Thanksgiving of the same year.

Now, get down your pencil and paper, or your old slate, or both, and get busy on this problme. The Union-Banner will give one subscription free to the first one who sends the correct answer to both, or rather, all three of the above portions of the problem. Rev. E. W. Butler, of Thorsby will pass on the correctness of the calculations.

URGES PEOPLE NOT TO FILL UP ROAD DITCHES

Editor Union-Banner:

I would like to urge the people to pay more attention to filling up the ditches beside the roads, and turning the water so that it will injure the roads. oLts of times folks unthugth edly clean out their fence corners and partly fill up the ditches with the trash. This often proves considerable injury to the roads, and the supervisor gets the cussing. People living on public roads can help lots in this. —C. T. Walker.

THE HOME MAKERS S. S. CLASS

The Home Makers Sunday School Class will meet Friday afternoon, April 17, at the home of Mrs. Spurgeon Calloway, at 3:00 o'clock, for their regular class meeting.

JUST FROM SHOULTS

Well, folks, there has been so much said about Cox and Thomas, I thought I would say something too. Well, I do remember Mr. Cox saying he would not try to get any law passed that the people did not want. Has he kept his promise? No wonder I vote the Republican ticket.—Yours for something better than we have got at present, C. T. Walker.

Marvin Collins Was Killed Last Sunday

Said To Have Stepped In Front of Freight Train Early Sunday Morning At Strasburg

Marvin H. Collins, age 21, was struck and instantly killed by a freight train about five o'clock Sunday morning, a short distance south of Thorsby. Trainmen stated that the young man was walking on the railroad, which at this point is a double-track affair. He was on the off track, out of the path of the train, but as it approached, seemed to become startled, and stepped directly into the train's path.

Mr. Collins was a son of Simpson Collins, a minister, of Lanett, Ala. He had been operating a filling station for his grandfather, Alfred Collins, about four miles north of Clanton for about fourteen months.

He is survived by his father, and two brothers—A. L., and Donald.

Funeral services were held at 11:00 o'clock Monday at New Salem, with Rev. J. J. Dubose, of Jemison, officiating. Burial was in the cemetery at that place, with Martin in charge.

Pallbearers were Luther Teel, John Sundburg, Mathew Shaw, Will Collins, [illegible] Robinson, wh wrks in the Hill store, performed the ceremony. for

Citizens Still Urged To Help Red Cross

Although many sections of the country have responded nobly to the call for help, through the Red Cross, for sufferers in the storms that have swept various sections of the country during recent weeks, there has been a lack of response in certain sections of the county, according to J. Mell Martin, chairman of the drive.

"We are highly pleased with the response received from most of the county, and if other sections would only come across in the same spirit there would be no doubt that Chilton County would make a worthy showing," Mr. Martin stated. "And we feel that we are justified in urging those who have not yet made contributions to take advantage of this opportunity to show that Chilton County appreciates the help given by the Red Cross when our own section was torn by angry winds a few years ago. Every person in this county should feel indebted to this organization and its efforts in behalf of suffering humanity. The people of this county have reason to know how well the Red Cross serves those in need."

Mr. Martin pointed out that approximately 500 have lost their lives in storms and floods and millions of dollars worth of property have been destroyed recently. The only chance these people, left without homes, have of surviving is from help rendered them by those who have been more fortunate.

Sunday, April 26, the management of the New Wadesonian Theatre will give the proceeds of the boxoffice, above actual operating costs, to this fund. C. W. Wade, Sr., announced this week that he has been requested to cooperate in this movement, and stated that he had secured one of the best pictures of the season for this occasion.

Berry Shipments Are Expected This Week

Some local strawberry shipments are expected to be made during this week, and car load movements are expected early next week, according to Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer. Mr. Diefenderfer stated Monday that he expects the crop this year to be rather small, but likewise expects the price to be somewhat above the average of the past few years. Reports have come in from different parts of this territory that a leaf disease has shown up, and this is expected to cut down on the crop in some degree.

Young Republican Meetings To Be Held In Near Future

Meetings To Be Held Friday Night At Isabella and Maplesville; Monday Night At Jemison and Union Grove

Meeting of the Young Republican Federation will be held at Isabella schoolhouse and at Maplesville schoolhouse Friday night of this week, April 17th, at 7:30 o'clock. Organizations for Beats 3 and 7 will be perfected. An organizer with the proper authority will be present at each place to transact the business of organizing in a legitimate way.

On Monday night, April 20th, a meeting for Beat 12 will be held at Union Grove, when a unit for that Beat will be organized.

On the same date and hour, another organizer will be at the schoolhouse at Jemison and organize a unit for Beat 2.

The young citizens of these Beats are urged to attend these meetings; the older ones are invited too, both men and women. Everybody talk it among your neighbors and try and let everybody know about it. We want a good crowd.

All of the above meetings will be held at 7:30 o'clock. When possible a speaker will be procured to speak briefly after the organization at each place is perfected. The people in these communities are urged to bear the dates and places in mind and help to get as many young people interested in attending as possible. Other meetings will be arranged for next week.—T. E. Wyatt, County Chairman; Gertrude P. Calloway, Secretary.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS TO MEET AT THOMAS JR. HIGH SCHOOL

At the regular meeting of the eastern division of Beat 4 unit of young Republicans, held last Friday night at Concord, it was decided to hold the next meeting of this unit at the Thomas Jr. High School building, in order to give would-be attendants in the southern end of this territory a better chance to attend.

Negotiations are under way with the chairman of the Beat 10 unit to have their members to present at this meeting, also. Too, we would be glad to have members from any other units with us, as well as any visitors other than members who might like to attend.

We have the promise that Hon. J. Osmond Middleton will be on hand to speak for us, together with other speakers of the county. It will be well worth your time and trouble to come out to this meeting.—Paul C. Mims, Chairman; H. Dalton Bice, Secretary.

SEVEN YOUNG REPUBLICAN UNITS HAVE BEEN ORGANIZED TO DATE

To date there have been seven units of Young Republicans organized in as many Beats in Chilton County. The officers for the different units are as follows:

Beat 4-1—Concord, Paul C. Mims, Clanton, Chairman; H. Dalton Bice, Secretary, Clanton Route 1.

Beat 9—Collins Chapel, Gerald Hubbard, Chairman, Clanton Route 4; Miss Estelle Benson, Secretary, Clanton Route 4.

Beat 10—Coopers, L. D. Hughes, Chairman, Verbena, Ala., Route 2; Luke Calloway, Secretary, Cooper, Ala.

Beat 4-3—Baker, Marvin Lowery, Chairman, Clanton Route 6; Mrs. Girdie Johnson, Secretary, Clanton Route 6.

Beat 16—Providence, Marion Mims, Chairman, Clanton Route 1; Calvin Robinson, Secretary, Clanton Route 1.

Beat 6—Enterprise, Clarence Billingsley, Chairman, Verbena, Ala., Route 1; Sam Williams, Secretary, Verbena Route 1.

Beat 15—Vermont, Frank Giles, Chairman, Maplesville Route 2; D. A. Short, Secretary, Maplesville Route 2.

The second meeting in two different Beats have already been held. In Beat 9 the second meeting of that unit was held Friday night April 3rd. This meeting was presided over by the county chairman, and Judge J. Osmond Middleton spoke to the gathering.

In Beat 4, east of the railroad, the second meeting of that unit was held Friday night, April 10. The local chairman presided over that meeting, and the gathering was addressed by Hon. Percy M. Pitts.

Similar meetings are being planned for other units. Later on there will be district meetings held over the county, where three or four Beats will take part, and an outstanding speaker will be provided. Then, after all the Beats of the county have been organized, there will be a county-wide meeting held at the courthouse, when Hon. C. O. Vardaman of Birmingham, and other prominent lecturers will be procured.

The interest among the young voters of the county is suprisingly good. Wherever the opportunity is given, they jump right in to the work with much zeal and enthusiasm. The older citizens also offer lots of encouragement to the work.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS ORGANIZED IN BEAT 15 LAST MONDAY NIGHT.

One of the best meetings the young Republicans have held in the county was held at Vermont schoolhouse, Beat 15, Monday night of this week. T. E. Wyatt, the county chairman, presided, and Mrs. Homer Ratliff was appointed temporary secretary. After some brief remarks by the chairman, the organization for the Beat unit was perfected. Mr. Frank Giles was elected chairman, and Mr. Vardaman Short was elected secretary. The attendance was exceptionally good.

Mr. Percy M. Pitts, of Clanton spoke to the meeting after the business had been attended to. Mr. Pitts was followed by Mr. E. H. Littlejohn, who spoke very interestingly for a few minutes. The meeting was closed with a speech by Mr. Clifford Manning of Isabella community; all of which was very inspiring and interesting to those present.

We predict great work from the unit of the Young Republicans in Beat 15. It has started off with the most promising prospects; and the interest among the young people is mighty encouraging. Another meeting of the unit will be planned in the near future, when a debate or some other attraction was arranged. The place and date will be announced soon.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS OF BEAT 6 MEETING WEDNESDAY NIGHT, 22

A meeting of the Young Republicans of Beat 6 is hereby called at Enterprise for Wednesday night, April 22, at 7:30 o'clock. All young voters of this and adjoining Beats are urged to attend. Hon. Percy M. Pitts will address the gathering, after the business matters have been attended to.

All candidates have a special invitation and will be depended upon to be present at this meeting. You will get to meet lots of voters if you attend our meeting, and we are going to expect you.

The older voters, both men and women, are invited to meet with us. The speakers will have something good for you too. Mark this date down, and do not fail to attend this meeting.—Clarence Billingsley, Chairman; Sam Williams, Secretary.

MAYOR JONES SEEKS NEW AIDS FOR CITY OF CLANTON

Mayor C. Fenn Jones is in the midst of quite a bit of correspondence with various institutions, regarding further advantages for Clanton and Chilton County people.

Mayor Jones is trying to get the consent of the Louisville & Nashville authorities to have L. & N. passenger trains No. 1 and No. 4 stop at Clanton. This would be a great addition to Clanton's travel facilities.

Correspondence is also under way with Western Union authorities to have a regular Western Union telegraph station put in here. At one time the Western Union had such here, but for some reason it was removed, and the office moved to the railroad office. This has caused quite a bit of inconvenience to our people, however, and so Mayor Jones is asking that the regular service be re-instated.

Mayor C. Fenn Jones has demonstrated several times that he is always on the alert to take up any kind of measure for the betterment of his city and its people.

LIQUOR STILL RAIDED NEAR JEMISON LAST TUESDAY

Deputies H. R. Wright and Velpo Mims raided a small liquor still last Tuesday afternoon, a few miles west of Jemison, in the Mars Hill community.

The officers went to the still ahead of the operators, watched them fire on the still and run the liquor. The still was about 250 yards from the home of the operators, Boss Smith and his son, Euell Smith. These men were brought to Clanton and placed in jail on a charge of manufacturing liquor and possession of still, pending a $500 bond in each case.

LAY DAM VS. ALA. MILLS IN BASEBALL GAME SAT.

BIRMINGHAM PEOPLE IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Last Saturday afternoon, a car in which were riding four ladies and one man, all of Birmingham, left an embankment about 3 miles north of Canton, and landed against a telephone pole. The car, belonging to Miss Alma Klinner, was badly damaged.

Besides Miss Klinner, the occupants of the car were; the driver, Ellen Colley, Julia Colley, Mrs. Ben Colley, Dorothy Guffey and Tom Colley. No one was hurt much except Miss Ellen Colley, the driver of the car. She was not seriously hurt, but had to be carried to Central Alabama Hospital, where she remained for a few days.

And, too, after the above date, The Union-Banner will go back to the regular price of $1.50 per year. If your time is nearly out, and you want to get in on the special dollar rate, you had better take action between now and closing time May 2nd.

PROMINENT MUSIC PUBLISHER DIED AT MACON, GEORGIA

Lovers of sacred music and those acquainted with the publishers of the South during years past will regret to learn of the death last week of Mr. T. S. Schoope of Dalton, Ga., for a number of years manager of the Showalter company. Mr. Schoope was 68 years old, and has been with Showalter, the original sacred music publishers of the South, for on toward half a century.

Kiwanis Club To Sponsor Scouts Troup For City

Meeting Called Friday Night, April 17, At Clanton City Hall

The Boy Scouts of America, is to be sponsored by the Clanton Kiwanis Club for Clanton and vicinity. Necessary arrangements have been made by a committee and the field representatives of this district have been designated. This representative, Mr. Lackey, and the committee, composed of Luther Little, Percy M. Pitts, J. Mell Martin and Joe Mims have designated Prof. J. B. Varnell as Scoutmaster for this organization. The field representative, Mr. Lackey, and the Scoutmaster, Mr. Varnell, respectfully request that all boys in the City of Clanton and other nearby towns and communities in this county meet with them at the City Hall in Clanton, on Friday, April 17, 1936, at 7:00 p.m., of this week.

At this time this organization of scouting, will be effected and all boys twelve years of age and upwards are requested to be present.

The Clanton Kiwanis Club is behind this organization and feel that Clanton is in great need of such an organization to help train, in a useful way, the young manhood of our city and community, and give them wholesome and supervised entertainment. The purpose of this organization will be to promote, through organization, and cooperation with other agencies, the ability of boys to do things for themselves and others, to train them in scoutcraft, and to teach them patriotism, courage, self-reliance and kindred virtues, using the methods which are now in common use by Boy Scouts, by placing emphasis upon the Scout Oath and Law for Character Development, citizenship training and physical fitness.

The Clanton Kiwanis Club and the business men of Clanton believe that the purpose of this organization justifies it's existence and we trust that the youth of our city and community will take advantage of this opportunity.

Remember to be on hand at this meeting, Friday night, April 17, 1936, at the city hall. Any parents are cordially invited to attend this meeting, if they see fit to attend.—Respectfully yours, J. B. Varnell, Scoutmaster.

CCC CAMP OUTSLUGS LAY DAM 16 TO 13 SAT.

The local CC camp baseball team went to Lay Dam Saturday afternoon, and won an old-fashioned slug match from the Dammers, 16 to 13. The CC boys made five errors and the Dammers four, all of which aided in the scoring.

Turner started the pitching duties for Lay Dam, but ran afoul of a bunch of base hits in the third; he gave way to Branch, but he failed to stop the rally; Mack Dennis was called in, but being cold and wild, had quite a bit of difficulty quelling the riot, in which 15 batters took turns at the plate.

Lay Dam had a big first inning, when they scored five runs on a hit batter, a single, a triple, a base on balls, and two errors. Again, in the 6th, a hit batter a double three singles and an error gathered four runs.

The CC boys got 21 hits, including 16 singles, 3 doubles, and 2 triples. Dickerson led this team at the bat, with 5 out of 6; Viera was close behind with 4 out of 6.

Dennis led for the Lay Dam team with 3 out of 5; Branch and Cecil Jones chimed in with two hits each.

Both the CC camp and Lay Dam have fine prospects for good teams, but show the need of quite a bit of polishing. Local baseball fans will see these two clubs turn in some good games before autumn.

LORA ELIZABETH TRAYWICK

COUNTY WARRANTS HELD UP PENDING DECISION

Among other developments that have come out in the heat of the commissioners court and supervisor controversy, was the stoppage last week of warrants for road work for work done in March.

A rumor has been circulated that the issuance of such warrants by the probate judge would be illegal. However, a ruling has been asked from the attorney general on the matter, and the warrants are being held up, until such opinion is given.

FOUR ARRESTS BY CITY

Four arrests were made by city officers last week. Two of them were for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated. Two others were for public drunkenness. In all these cases, Mayor Jones agreed to continue hearing to Saturday, April 18.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

SCREW WORMS APPEAR IN SOUTHERN ALABAMA

Auburn, Ala.—Screw worms, one of the most dreadful livestock pests, have alraedy been unofficially reported in a south Alabama county, reports Dr. R. S. Suggs, extension animal husbandman, in warning farmers "not to ear-mark, castrate, or dehorn cattle in warm weather except when absolutely necessary."

"If it is necesary, be sure to apply pine tar oil to the wound at once, and every day thereafter, until they are completely 'healed'," he advises.

"All animals should be examined frequently for scratches, or other wounds, which should be treated with pine tar oi lat once. Where infestation has taken place, benzol may be used successfully to prevent future infestation."

Farmers finding case sof screw worms in their herds should report them to their county agent or to T. F. McGhee, P. O. Building, Montgomery, in order that steps may be taken to prevent spread of the pest.

CORN AND LEGUMES 50% SOIL DEPLETING AND 50% CONSERVING

Auburn, Ala.—Where corn is interplanted with summer legumes, such as soybeans, velvet beans, crotalaria, cowpeas, or peanuts when hogged off, it will be classified under the new national soil conservation program as 50 per cent soil-depleting and 50 per cent soil conserving, explains W. H. Robertson, member of the State Soil Conservation committee.

This means that farmer with 30 acres of corn interpanted with summer legumes has 15 acres of soil-depleting crops and 15 acres of soil conserving crops. However, the stalks of corn cannot exceed 4,500 per acre and the stand of legumes must be sufficient to conserve and improve the soil and cover at least one-half of the land. Even where legumes are planted between corn hills and also between rows and ooccupy at least two-thirds of the land, the crops would still be classified as 50 per cent soil-depleting and 50 per cent soil-conserving.

Mr. Robertson states that this ruling will aid growers materially in qualifying for payments under the new farm program.

FARMERS TOLD GROW OWN PLANTING SEED

Auburn, Ala.—The scarcity and high price of legume seed for planting this spring emphasizes the importance of farmers growing their own seed for planting next year.

This can be done by farmers planting small seed patches this spring and saving the seed this summer, declares J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, who advises farmers to see their county agents for information on growing soybeans, cowpeas, crotalaria, velvet beans, and other soil-building and soil-conserving crops.

"PORCH VINE" USED TO CHOKE GULLIES

Kudzu is taking up new duties in Soil Conservation Service areas where erosion control methods are being demonstrated, according to R. Y. Bailey, State Coordinator of the Service. A Japanese plant, kudzu, has been shading Alabama proches for so long it is often known as "porch vine." Unti a few years ago it was used largely as an ornamental.

For controlling erosion in gullies and on galled spots, it has few superiors. As a legume it enriches the soil, assisting in reclaiming areas destroyed for cultivation. In many sections of Alabama it is called "mile-a-minute-vine' and "hurrah vine," names suggestive of its rapid growth. This property makes it particularly valuable for erosion control.

Kuzdu provides fine limited grazing as a temporary pasture, but overgrazing may kill it out. It also produces a good yield of excellent hay.

17-YEAR LOCUST TO APPEAR THIS SPRING

Auburn, Ala.—The 17-year locust is due to swarm over the eastern United States the latter part of May and the first of June, this year. They will appear in the Tennessee Valley and Sand Mountain areas of North Alabama, reports J. M. Robinson, head of the entomology department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Usually the insects do little damage, occasionally injuring young orchard trees which have been set out on new ground. These trees may be protected by covering them with mosquito netting or tobacco cloth until the locusts disappear.

The department of entomology at Auburn is anxious to get a complete record of this brood, and has asked that interested persons in the State keep a lookout for the insects.

The department will appreciate any reports received, also specimens that may be sent in, Prof. Robinson said The locusts may be mailed safely in a strong pasteboard box.

INCREASE EXPECTED IN HOG SLAUGHTER

Auburn, Ala.—Commercial slaughter of hogs in the United States during the remainder of the present hog marketing year, through September, probably will be from 30 to 35 per cent greater than last year, says the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural of Economics.

SEED AND FERTILIZER SHOULD BE SEPARATED

Auburn, Ala.—Planting cotton seed in the drill with fertilizer often causes poor stands, warns J. C. Lowery, agronomist, in advising farmers to plant their cotton so that the seed will not come in contact with the fertilizer.

"Where the planter will not separate the two in the drill, some light equipment should be run through the row to cover the fertilizer before the seed are dropped," he says.

NEW COTTON FORMULA NEEDS NO SIDE-DRESS

Auburn, Ala.—Cotton fertilized with 6-8-4 fertilizer wil not need side-dressing with additional nitrate, advises Dean M. J. Funchess, director of the Alabama Experiment Station.

"This fertilizer, when used at planting time, supplies all nitrogen necessary and saves the trouble and expense of side-dressing," he says.

SIDE DRESS COTTON TO PREVENT RUST AND RAISE YIELDS

The Alabama Experiment Station recommends that fertilizer analyzing 6-8-4 be used for cotton this year throughout the state. This advice is the result of experiments conducted at eight points in which the principle soil types were included, and the analysis suggested is the formula that has given the most profitable yields on the average at the places where tests have been made.

While the State Experiment Station recommends that 600 pounds of fertilizer per acre be applied, the indications are that the average for the state willl be much less than this amount. However, experiments have shown that the planting application may be supplimented with additional plant food in the form of a side dresser with entirely satisfactory results.

For instance, the Alabama Experiment Station recommends that the equivalent of 48 pounds per acre of muriate of potash be used for most profitable yields. If this amount was applied at planting it can easily be added as a side ddressing, the quantity depending on the potash content of the initial application and also whether cotton on the area planted showed a tendency to rust in past years.

If, for example, 300 pounds per acre of a fertilizer analyzing four per cent potash was applied at planting time, then at least 25 pounds should be supplied as a side dresser. However, since many soils of the state are inclined to rust and show evidences of potash starvation, it is considered advisable by many research officials and farmers to apply from 50 to 100 lbs. per acre of muriate of potash to guard against disease and provide sufficient plant food for proper development of the cotton plants.

Experimental results show that cotton should be given the side application of fertilizer about 35 days after planting for best results.

Q. C. MERONEY WRITES ABOUT POSTAL LAWS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allaw me space in your paper to expose my ignorance.

There are a few postal laws that everybody should know. That is what I want to talk about—cooperation between the mail carrier and his patrons. For the good of both, postal laws require a patron of a mail route to furnish a box; this box can be purchased for less than 75c. This box must be erected so that it will be accessible to the carrier. This is important, for thirty minutes spent in erecting a box right saves the carrier time, also insures your mail being kept dry in bad weather.

The carrier, on the other hand, is required to keep a correct roster of his route. If a patron fails or refuses to give the names of persons getting mail in his box, including all children, then the carrier has to do some tall guessing or leave his roster incomplete.

The patron's name should be on the box facing the way from which the carrier is coming. The number of the box represents the location on the route and does not belong to the box or the man. Each time a box is moved the number is changed. Never put it on the box.

Fourth class mail should be properly wrapped and addressed, but never put any writing on the inside. A letter on the outside of the package is all right. Nothing is forwarded except first-class mail.

This letter is not prompted by any personal grudge. I simply feel that a better understanding will insure better service.

Hoping to be of service to someone, I am—Yours truly, Q. C. Meroney, Carrier, Verbena Route 1.

That's something worth talking about!

Whenever Southern farmers get together you find they are talking about the value of the extra Nitrogen for "ARCADIAN".

And this extra value is well proved, too, for the Department of Agriculture and Immigration of the State of Virginia, after official tests, reported that ARCADIAN, THE AMERICAN NITRATE OF SODA contains extra Nitrogen over the guaranteed 16% with an extra cash value running as high as 88¢ per ton.

Tell your fertilizer dealer to sell you only

ARCADIAN, THE AMERICAN NITRATE OF SODA

FIRST: Because it is proved to be extra rich in Nitrogen.

SECOND: Because it is produced in the South and its use helps to keep Southern workers employed.

NIGHTS AND SUNDAYS

Are BARGAIN TIMES on "LONG DISTANCE" CALLS

Now the low rates in operation for long distance telephoning after 7 P.M. apply all day Sunday. This extension of night rates to all day Sunday includes both Station-to-Station and Person-to-Person calls to most points.

And now, too, new low rates apply on Person-to-Person calls every night of the week after seven o'clock to those points where the day Person-to-Person rate is more than 50 cents.

When you telephone out of town and will talk to anyone at the number called—that is a Station-to-Station call. But if you must talk to only one particular person, whose name you give to the operator—that is a Person-to-Person call. Full information on these classes of service, and rates to many cities, will be found in the front pages of your directory.

Remember, Nights and Sundays are bargain times for your long distance calls.

CONGRATULATIONS

THE NEW WADESONIAN THEATRE

The New Wadesonian Theatre, Clanton, Ala., Messrs. C. W. Wade, Sr., and C. W. Wade, Jr., (Charles), is proud of what it has to offer the people of Clanton and Chilton County. The operators of this theatre feel that they are presenting to Clanton an amusement house that is second to none in cities like Clanton of 4,000, and that it would be a distinct credit to a city much larger than this. The people of Clanton too, should be, and are, proud of the New Wadesonian Theatre. Therefore, during this, the opening week, the operators and the citizens of Clanton are mutual in celebrating the event and congratulating themselves upon the splendid accomplishments in this instance.

And too, the business concerns of Birmingham, with spaces below, join the people of Clanton in celebrating and extending congratulations. People from nearby cities, while passing through Clanton, have had their attentions attracted to the building of the new theatre, which has been in progress for the past several weeks, that building being located on the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway. It is because of this fact these business firms of "The Magic City" are taking the opportunity of extending congratulations. The New Wadesonian Theatre is a nice one, and is a district credit to the thriving and growing little City of Clanton. The home folks in Chilton county are proud of it, and these Birmingham business establishments gladly join in the jubilation during this week of the Grand Opening.

ANTI-SALES TAX ASSOCIATION URGE LEGISLATURE ECONOMY

Montgomery, Ala., April 14.—This special session of the state legislature is "hog-tied" by a governor's call which limits to passing only revenue measures which would add more taxes on the citizens of Alabama, Jeff P. Beeland, campaign manager of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama said today in commenting on reports concerning a movement on foot to adjourn this session sine die.

"While this meeting of the legislature will go down in history as 'the people's legislature' and has saved the taxpayers millions of dollars in additional exhorbitant taxes, this special sesion would have been the greatest in history had not Governor Bibb Graves seen fit to limit its activities to revenue measures only."

"Had Governor Graves included economy in his special call, the legislature, I am sure, would have adopted economy measures which would have saved the citizens of the state millions of dollars and would have gone down in history as the session of Legislature which placed the state upon a sound, economic business-like basis," Beeland continued.

The head of the Anti-Sales Tax Association said that since Governor Graves did not include economy in the special call, it was necesary that a two-thirds majority in each house vote for economy measures in order for them to become laws.

"The casual observer knows that the administration controls two-thirds or more of the votes in each house, hence any attempt to pass economy bills appear to be an impossibility," Beeland continued.

"The only way in which this legislature can demand economy is to do what they have done during the past week, and that is to vote against any additional tax measures," Beeland said.

"No criticism should be directed against this session because it cannot attempt any economy measures without the support of the administration. And it appears that the administration has no idea of sponsoring any measurse designed to bring about economy in our state government," Beeland said.

Lesson for April 19

GOD, THE FORGIVING FATHER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:11-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him.—Psalm 103:13.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Boy's Good Father.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Is God Like?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Forgiving Love.

The center of interest in this parable is not the prodigal nor his brother, but the "certain man who had two sons." In this parable, in a most picturesque and dramatic manner, the history of man is portrayed from his fall to his reconciliation with God. The whole orbit of revelation is swept as it pertains to a sinning race and a pardoning God. He who fails to see the heart of our Father God will miss the purpose of the parable. It should be understood and taught not as a piece of far-off ancient history, but as a portrayal of modern conditions.

I. The Son's Insubordination (v. 12).

There is every indication that this was a happy home, but a devil entered it and stirred up discontent in the heart of the younger son. He became tired of the restraints of home. His desire for freedom moved him wilfully to choose to leave home to throw off the constraints of a father's rule. Sin is the desire to be free from the restraints of rightful authority and is selfish indulgence. It starts out with wrong thoughts about God.

II. The Son's Departure (v. 13).

Having made the fatal decision, he went posthaste to the enjoyment of his cherished vision. He, therefore, got his goods in portable shape and withdrew from his father's presence. Adam and Eve, after they had sinned, hid themselves. The son could not stand the presence of his father, so he hastened away. When the sinner casts off allegiance to God, he takes all that he has with him.

III. The Son's Degeneration (vv. 13, 14).

He had his good time while his money lasted, but the end came quickly. Indications are that his course was soon run. From plenty in his father's house to destitution in the far country was a short journey. The sinner comes to realize the "famine" when the very powers which ministered to his pleasure are burned out.

IV. The Son's Degradation (vv. 15, 16).

His friends lasted only while he had money. When his money was all gone he was driven to hire out to a citizen to feed swine. It was indeed a change from a son in his father's house to feeding swine in a far country. It is ever so that those who will not serve God are made slaves to the Devil (Rom. 6:16). This vividly portrays the story of many men and women about us, and is a picture of the inevitable consequences of sin.

V. The Son's Restoration (vv. 17-24).

1. He "came to himself" (v. 17). When he reflected a bit he was made conscious that though he had wronged his father and ruined himself, yet he was a son of his father. In the days of his sinning he was beside himself. The sinner continues in sin because he is insane. The world calls the sinner who leaves off his evil ways crazy, but in reality he has just become sane. If sinners could be induced to think seriously of their condition, it would be easy to get them to turn from their sins.

2. His resolution (v. 18). His reflection ripened into resolution. The picture of his home, where even the hired servants had a superabundance, moved him to make a decision to leave the far country and go home.

3. His confession (vv. 18, 19). He acknowledged that his sin was against heaven and his father, that he had forfeited his rights to be called a son, and begged to be given a place as a hired servant.

4. His action (v. 20). Resolution will not avail unless accompanied with action. When the confession is genuine, action will follow.

5. His reception by his father (vv. 20-24). The father had not forgotten his son. No doubt during these years he longed for the son's return. He must often have looked for him, for he beheld him when he was a great way off. So axious was he for him that he ran to meet him and fell upon his neck and kissed him. So glad was the father that he even did not hear the son's confession through, but ordered the tokens of honor to be placed upon him, receiving him back into a son's position. Then the feast was made, expressive of the joy of his heart. God is love; Jesus came to reveal God. This parable lays bare God's heart.

A Good Heart

A good heart, a tender disposition, a charity that shuns the day, a modesty that blushes at its own excellence, an impulse toward something more divine than mammon; such are the accomplishments that preserve beauty forever young.—Lord Lytton.

Virtues

Great souls are not those which have fewer passions and more virtue than common ones, but those only which have greater aims.—La Rochefoucauld.

"Yes, I have come back to where I feel like myself again."

NOT long ago I was like some friends I have... low in spirits...run-down...out of sorts...tired easily and looked terrible. I knew I had no serious organic trouble so I reasoned sensibly...as my experience has since proven...that work, worry, colds and whatnot had just worn me down.

The confidence mother has always had in S.S.S. Tonic...which is still her stand-by when she feels run-down...convinced me I ought to try this Treatment...I started a course...the color began to come back to my skin...I felt better...I no longer tire easily and soon I felt that those red-blood-cells were back to so-called fighting strength...it is great to feel strong again and like my old self. © S.S.S. The SNAPSHOT GUILD

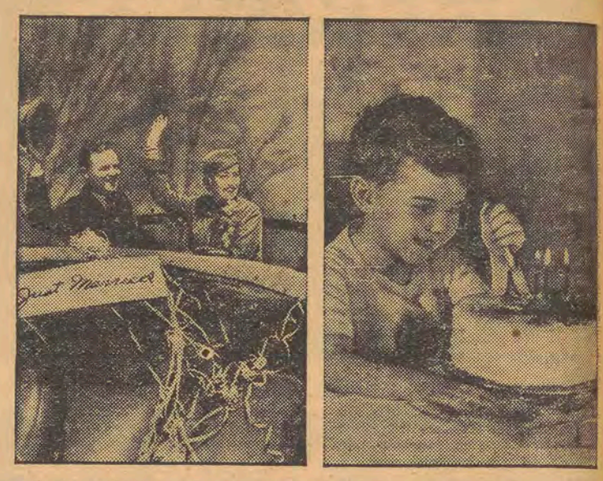
Be the Family News Photographer



Pictures of home news events like these are of imperishable interest.

A ROARING explosion, the crashing of glass and falling debris—and the city's most disastrous fire in months breaks out. Clanging bells and the wail of sirens announce the approach of the fire apparatus. Smoke and flame shoot skyward. Crowds gather.

Into this perfect setting for a thrilling picture steps the news photographer, makes his exposures, rushes back to the darkroom, and turns the prints over to the city editor. Copies of the next edition reach the street, with the pictures spread out on the front page. They are snatched up avidly. Here are pictures of the big fire. They're news and everybody wants to see them.

In a way just as interesting to your family circle you can be the home news photographer. You don't need to be an expert. If your pictures are timely, everyone will want to see the prints, and furthermore the interest in them will last longer than in the case of the newspaper pictures, because of being intimate and personal. Amateur failings will be forgiven in the eagerness to see how Johnny looked when he won the race at the Sunday School picnic, or how yesterday's cloudburst turned Uncle Henry's garden into a lake.

When Sister Ann triumphs at the spelling-bee, don't delay in getting a picture of her holding the trophy. See that there's a snapshot of every important family and neighborhood happening — birthday parties, picnics, the baby on the day he takes his first step, indoor shots at night of family gatherings, and, of course, you would not dare forget such an important event as a wedding. Be on the alert for these home "news" events. Have the camera always loaded and handy, so as not to miss unexpected happenings. You'll enjoy doing it as much as does the real news photographer — and your smaller "public" will be every bit as enthusiastic and appreciative as his larger one. You will have the satisfaction, too, of having made, eventually, a photographic history of the family.

Alabama Power Customers Increase Use Of Electricity

Still Lower Rates Delayed by High Taxes, Says Report

In the annual report of Alabama Power Company, recently mailed to its stockholders, Thomas W. Martin, President, reports that while the sale of electricity to regular customers of the Company was almost 12% greater in 1935 than in 1934, the amount of money received for it increased only approximately 9%. Operating expenses and taxes increased over 12%, or one-third faster than revenue.

The report indicates that at the end of 1935 Alabama Power Company was rendering service directly to 515 communities in Alabama and in addition was serving 63 communities at wholesale. The average use of electricity in homes served by it gained substantially, while the average rates for the service declined sharply. During a ten year period, 1926-1936, the residential customers have increased their average use 152%, while the average rates have declined 54%.

This increased use of electricity is attributed in large part to the immediate-objective rate plan, under which the rate per kilowatt-hour becomes less with increased use by the customer, and which, established in Alabama in 1933 has since been adopted in whole or with modifications in 30 other states. However, a major part of the increase in use is felt to have resulted from the increasing appreciation of better lighting and more labor-saving devices in the home which has been brought about through aggressive effort on the part of the Company's sales department in cooperation with Alabama electrical merchants. The "immediate-objective" rate plan of 1933, which included a low rate of 1c per kilowatt-hour became available to all urban residential customers April 1, 1936. (In recent weeks a further downward revision of the rate has been made, resulting in immediate annual savings of $60,000 to approximately 20,000 customers, and permitting the additional use of $324,000 of electricity by 60 thousand customers, much of it at the low 1c rate).

The report states that as a result of the promotional activities of the Company, the average annual use of electricity per residential customer crossed the 1,000 kilowatt-hour mark in January, 1936, a record attained by only one other large utility company east of the Rocky Mountains. This average was exceeded in 61 communities served by Alabama Power Company during 1936. The annual use per residential customers in these communities ranged from 1,006 to 3,223 kilowatt-hours.

A chart contained in the report reveals that in these 61 towns or communities, the average annual use per residential customer equals or exceeds the average annual use in three of the towns so widely publicized by the TVA, and that there are 30 towns or communities served by Alabama Power Company where the use of electric service in the home is as great or greater than in three other towns served by TVA.

More than 50% of the electricity used in residences served by Alabama Power Company is provided at 2c per kilowatt-hour or less, and more than 30% is sold at 1¼c or less.

The report of the Company contends that its promotional activities accomplish more in creating an appreciation of and desire for the labor-saving, comfort-creating benefits resulting from the liberal use of electricity than does the lowering of the rates, because an understanding of what electricity will do for him is necessary before a customer will want to increase his use of it whatever the rate. When he understands that increased use can lift labor and toil from the backs of women by lightening the burden of many home tasks; by protecting the health and lives of the family; by making the home a more pleasant place in which to live and thus improve the standards of citizensship in many ways, he wants to use more electricity.

At the close of 1935 the Company was serving approximately 40,000 rural customers; that is, customers located within rural areas and districts within the definition of the Federal Bureau of the Census.

Rural customers represent 35% of the 114,187 customers of the Company. Of these rural customers, approximately 30,000 were served at the Company's low urban rates. In 1935 the Company added 285 miles of lines to its rural system and has approved for construction during 1936, 729 miles of new rural lines, which added to the present lines, will make a total of 3,[illegible] miles of rural lines.

A review of the Company's studies of soil erosion over the past two years is contained in the report, and states that as yet there is no serious impairment of the reservoir volume of its several dams, but views as serious the loss of fertile topsoil in the farms of adjoining counties. In October 1934 the Company planted its first seed beds for the propagation of slash pine near Jordan Dam, and in the spring of 1935 largely increased this planting. It also transplanted to its nurseries located near Wetumpka and Alexander City seedlings obtained from the State nursery at Livingston. In January of this year it planted great quantities of seedlings on lands which it owns adjoining Martin Dam.

THOMAS W. MARTIN

Twenty-one different kinds of direct taxes are paid by the Company, of which 14 are State and 7 Federal. Total taxes paid equal 15c out of every dollar collected by the Company and are approximately equal to 75% of the total salaries and wages paid to its 2,200 employees. These taxes totalled $2,565,967.96 in 1935, an increase of nearly 11% over 1934. The report states that the constant tendency of Federal, State and local governments to take each year an increased share of the earnings of the Company constitute a major threat to its stability and the continuity of dividends to thousands of stockholders who have invested their savings in it. It is suggested that those responsible for raising public revenues, the institutions supported by such revenues, and other taxpayers, should recognize that in each instance of entry of government into the realm of private endeavor, no matter in what particular line, the flow of taxes from the business replaced is practically, if not altogether cut off, thus forcing the tax collecting authorities to make up the deficit by higher levies upon the diminishing number of those left in the ownership of private property.

The striking example of this condition resulting from the gradual taking over of electric operations in the State under the TVA plan of operation presents a problem which educational and government authorities and the taxpayers must meet, namely: how and from whom will this deficit be made up?

The report contrasts Alabama Power Company's payment of taxes on lands acquired by it for the same purposes as those of the TVA, namely the production and sale of electric energy. The Company's lands are assessed on the average 50% higher than adjoining lands of other taxpayers, while the TVA pays no taxes on the land it acquires, removing from the tax rolls, according to a recent 1936 report of the Bureau of Business Research, University of Alabama, assessed values of $3,000,000 in Limestone, Lauderdale, Madison and Morgan Counties.

In the report President Martin states, "Perhaps we may take hope from the recent expression of Dr. Morgan, Chairman of TVA, quoting the President as follows: 'If they (public plants) are to serve as comparisons, they must be open and above-board, with nothing hidden. They must be fair, with no special, arbitrary advantages. They must pay taxes, just as private companies must do, and every other reasonable charge, if they are to provide us with a fair comparison.'"

A review of the TVA situation as it affects the Company is contained in the report, which states "The rates of TVA bear no fair relation to the total costs of supplying the service. If this Company could be relieved in the same proportion of its obligation to pay interest and dividends, and be placed on the same basis as the TVA with respect to taxes, it could reduce even the TVA rates by more than 25%.

"The bookkeeping of the TVA and TVA's exemption from taxation do not mean that the cost of producing and distributing electric energy has been reduced. Such procedure by the TVA merely shifts the cost of electric service from present users to taxpayers throughout the United States."

It might be a permanent solution, but the unemployment problem could be pretty well disposed of for the next six months by providing each man out of work with a fishpole and let the W.P.A. supervise a bait-digging project.—Hutchison, Kansas, News.

WAR PASSIONS AND CHANGE

Nothing, it has been said, is permanent but change; and in a few things is this better illustrated than in the changes in men's thoughts during and long after wars.

"The Lusitania might have been used to transport 10,000 American troops in a single voyage to fight Germany. If women and children choose to cruise about in war areas, they must expect what they get. In sinking the Lusitania as an act of war, the German Admirality was right."

"Edith Cavell was a courageous woman whom the Germans were entitled to execute."

Had anyone, no matter how well known his pro-Ally sentiments, made the first statement to an American audience, and the second to a British audience, in the monstrous days preceding the armistice, or even for some time afterward, the chances would have been very good that the speaker would have been torn limb from limb by a howling, insane mob. Today the war is 18 years behind us; men and women no longer think with their blood instead of their heads. Even the child-like and illiterate, the worst dupes of propaganda in war-time, can read declarations such as these here quoted and not suffer a change of temperature. Who made these statements? Well, the first was made by the Earl of Cork and Orery, a leading British naval authority and until recently commander of the British Home Fleet, before a London audience. The author of the second was Alfred Duff Cooper, British Secretary for War. Neither remark aroused more than mild interest.—Argonaut.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

According to some of the political prophets in Washington, those members of the Democratic party who oppose the principles of the New Deal have decided not to try to oppose the nomination of President Roosevelt in the Philadelpha convention, but to direct their efforts toward electing as members of Congress as many so-called "Jeffersonian Democrats" as possibile.

This is doubtless sound strategy, whether it will be adopted or not. There is little or no chance of any anti-New Dealers' preventing the nomination of President Roosevelt in Philadelphia, or even of writing an "old-fashioned" platform. When a party is in power and the president is a candidate for re-election he usually gets what he wants from the national convention. To upset him or his principles would be political suicide.

The act of electing Jeffersonian Democrats to Congress, however, presents its difficulties. The Democratic Party now has in Congress about as big a majority as it may hope to get. In the coming primaries the sitting Congressmen, as is always the case, will have the inside track for renomination. Whether they are reelected or not is another question.

Now certainly the vast majority of the sitting Congressman who have the inside track for renomination do not belong to the Jeffersonian school. Their records of the New Deal legislation demanded by the Administration furnishes ample evidence of this.

To clinch the point further, the following sentences quoted from Jefferson show how far removed the present Congressman is from the views of the so-called father of the Democratic Party:

"We should bear constantly in mind the fact that considerations which induced the framers of the Constitution to withhold from general government the power to regulate the great mass of the business and concerns of the people have been fully justified by experience, and that it cannot be doubted that the genius of our institutions prescribes simplicity and economy as the characteristics of reform. . . Limited to a general superintending power to maintain peace at home and abroad, and to prescribe laws on a few subjects of general interest not calculated to restrict human liberty, but to enforce human rights, this government will find its strength and glory in the faithful discharge of these plain and simple duties."

Alas, under the New Deal, the duties of government are no longer plain or simple but involved and complex, wasteful and expensive and are rapidly mounting to heights of extravagance and absurdity that would undoubtedly cause the sage of Montecello to disown the leaders of the party he founded.

It would perhaps be entirely satisfactory to many thinking people if more statesmen holding to these Jeffersonian principles coould be returned to the next Congress. But it may seem strange if they have to be gathered from the Republican rather than the New-Deal Democratic ranks.

REPUBLICAN PARTY SOLUTION TO OUR GOVERNMENTAL DIFFICULTIES IN COUNTY AND NATION

The expression that "Politics and our government are in a bad state of affairs," is common. This reason and no other is attributed as the cause of the phenomenal muddle that everything is in, and various and sundry panaceas are prescribed as remedies to the various ailments. About as many cures are suggested as there are suggesters — and that is nearly everybody you chance to talk to in these days of political turmoil and upheavel.

Unemployment in the nation is today as it was in 1933—the most pressing and the most vital problem before those at the helm of our government at Washington. Also the number of those without jobs are estimated by statisticians to be practically the same as three years ago. And too, this is the case after the Democratic officials at Washington have plunged the country into debt over ten billion dollars more than it was at the beginning of Mr. Roosevelt's term as president. The main goal was the reduction of unemployment; we ask, what have they accomplished in this direction? And, again we ask you, how much has the number of people on government relief been reduced during these years?

In short, we submit to you, and believe you must agree, that the Democratic administration at Washington has accomplished nothing so far as the major problems before the country are concerned; but they have done much toward communizing our government and subdueing our people to serfdom and political slavery.

In Chilton county, which is normally Republican and has been for the past nearly half a century, we have our difficulties too. We must say that these political troubles in our county have increased many fold since our Democratic officials took charge of things. We know that there are still a few Republicans holding office in the county, and too, not all the present Democratic officials are responsible for the unwholesome things that have happened and are happening. But we emphatically state that all the mischief that is being played is being played by Democratic officials—and the Democratic party will be called upon to bear the brunt of the consequences. There can be no shifting of the responsibilities. The people of Chilton county may not have so much sense—they may be even as ignorant as some official is said to have accused them of being—but they know where to place the blame for the defects we are suffering in our county government. The Democratic party cannot pass the buck.

Therefore, we offer the good old Republican party as a remedy for our political troubles and inequalities. It hasn't failed us in the past, and we believe it will hold good again. No Republican official in Chilton county has ever been guilty of totally disregarding the wishes of a vast majority of the voters of the county. Can you say that no Democrat has ever done that?

There is no mid-way ground between the two parties; it is either Democrat or Republican, and that is the end of it. This pollywog business and this free-lance league stuff only brings trouble where it holds any sway. It has proved fatal in the past; it proved fatal two years ago; it will always prove fatal.

If you sow to the wind you will reap a whirlwind; if you sow to the flesh you will of the flesh reap corruption.

MAN IN THE MOON

"LET YOUR LIGHT SO SHINE—"

In matters of popular interest, where the welfare of the masses was at stake, we have always made it a policy to take a stand for or against any question which might arise. We have never been able to sit aloof, passively allowing nature to take its course. We have always tried to find the right side of every question, and having decided which we thought was right, have not hesitated to state our convictions in no uncertain terms. We're just built like that.

In many instances we have been oposed by our friendly opponent, The Chilton County News, and we feel that we have won our share of the victories in all such encounters. The News has put up some very creditable arguments, too.

But, of late, when some of the biggest questions ever to face the people of Chilton County have been in process of argument, The News has not lifted its voice, for nor against, although the questions at hand were vital ones, and the general opinion of the people of the county was apparent. We would like to know the reason for this sudden lack of interest on the part of The News.

When the question of the road supervisor was being considered, and it was well known that our people held strongly against such a move, The News had nothing to say, although it was the people's fight against a highly autocratic move, and The News professes to be a great champion of the rights of the people. Why?

Again, when the question of abolishing the Commissioners Court came up, and Democrats and Republicans alike joined wholeheartedly in protest, The News remained strangely quiet, although it was and is a well known fact that protest of the move was almost unanimous. When asked if The News would join in the fight against this bill, a high reprseentative of that paper flatly refused to do so, although professing to be an opponent of the bill personally. Again—why?

Is there some super "boss" behind The News, which directs its policies and makes up its mind for it? If this is not the case, then why all the aloofness? We learned long ago how to smoke a rabbit out of a log. But a newspaper editor—we wonder if such a "smoking out" would work as well on him as it does on a rabbit.

THE "GREAT" FRANKLIN D.

Every once in a while I run into a good old dyed-in-the-wool Democrat who professes to believe that President Roosevelt "is one of the greatest presidents this country has ever had". To anyone who really, conscientiously believes such fol-de-rol, I have nothing to say, for I am a firm believer in every person having a right to his own beliefs. However, there are a few, I believe, (some of them right here with us) who merely state this in order to be looked on as "good Democrats", when deep down in their hearts they know his whole administration has been one grand flop. To these I would like to put a few questions.

What makes a president great? In the past we have always called our presidents great men when they planned wisely, governed equitably, and managed the nation's affairs economically. Heretofore "great" presidents have called about them the country's best minds, trained in management of affairs vital to the nation. They have counseled with these, and from this method have come plans which have carried our nation within the short span of a century and a half from a handful of colonies to the greatest nation on the face of the earth.

Let's see what Roosevelt has done. Let's see if he really is great. The very first thing he did was to ask the congress to delegate their powers to him—was that great? In the first place, it was not the power of congress that was being given, but the voice of the people, and the people were the ones who were being betrayed. None of the other "great" presidents have ever asked to be made dictator. Did he want this power that he might become a "great" president, or a "great" dictator. After all, he only took a leaf out of the plan book of Hitler and Mussolini—maybe he dreamed of becoming "great" in the same sense in which they are so considered.

Next, he had drawn about him a bunch of crack-brained theorists who never did a practical job in their whole lives—college professors, who were perhaps top-notchers in their line of instruction, with books to go by, but untrained and wholly unfit for the gigantic job of drawing plans upon which rested the welfare of over a hundred million Americans. President Roosevelt, himself, did not have much confidence in the plans they drew up, as he was quoted on more than one occasion as saying: "Well, we'll try this one and see how it works, until something better can be thought of". These plans were typical of the college man who has always worked his plans out on a blackboard—if they worked out wrong, he could erase, and start all over again. But the sad part about their system was that America was the blackboard, and Americans were the figures—they couldn't wipe these out and start over again. "Great" presidents of the past have not set out on a hit-or-miss plan, but have proceeded along sound and sensible methods.

This untrained "brain trust" and our "great" president then set out to "tree" prosperity and bring it home alive. And what methods they set out with. To relieve hunger they ordered millions of cattle and hogs killed and burned. By way of clothing the ragged, they plowed under cotton. And by way of balancing the budget (which Mr. Rosevelt had promised so faithfully) they began borrowing money and spending on both ends against the middle. Was this "great"? You know this kind of planning was not great, but childish—foolish.

Corner younr banker some time and ask him if he really believes this country can spend itself back to prosperity. No individual could do such, and the nation is nothing more than a collection of individuals.

Costly experiments were the next step. Now experiments are all right in a laboratory, where the experimenter can have his germs and the like, and guinea pigs to try them on, but I beg to submit that the American people are not guinea pigs, and should not be treated as such. Does this kind of stuff Make Mr. Roosevelt "great?"

More than half of the planks in the Democratic platform have been flatly repudiated. Mr. Roosevelt stated many times in campaign talks that he considered party principles and requirements "binding on all candidates of the party concerned", yet he has disregarded the major portion of the platform upon which he was elected. Does one acquire "greatness" by building up a reputation of failure to keep his word? Not in our neck of the woods.

I am honest about it—if Mr. Roosevelt has done ONE thing that is "great", I would be proud to have some of his supporters write in and tell us all what it has been. A few days ago, he was compared with Andrew Jackson—it was even hinted that he was a "greater" man than Jackson. I humbly beseech someone to open up and tell us all in just what way this is true.

He has attempted autocracy in the midst of democracy. He has experimented when tried and true methods were most needed. He has followed a system of destruction when careful building was necessary. He has followed and practiced the most gigantic spendthrift policy to be found in the pages of history when careful economy was imperative. He has broken faith with the nation's people and so lost their confidence when that confidence was the only thing left on which to build. He had the greatest chance any president ever had to prove himself "great" and he has muffed it. Can one be counted "great" when he has done all these things?

To those who voted for Mr. Roosevelt, I would like to ask these questions. Did you believe that he would ask for all power? Did you believe he would experiment with your welfare—with your very own life? Did you believe he would usher in a reign of destruction? Did you believe he would seemingly try to "break" the nation? Did you believe he would turn his back on the platform which he had so fervently sworn to uphold and carry out? Did you believe he would drive white Federal employees out of the White House and place negroes in their places? Did you believe he would appoint over thirteen times as many negroes to Federal positions as any other president ever has? Did you believe he would appoint more negroes to office in the White House than any other three presidents ever had? Would you have voted for him if you had known he would do these things? Would you?

Mr. Roosevelt has made the record above outlined, and everyone knows it. You know it, yourself, no matter what your politics. And now one more question. Knowing the record that Mr. Roosevelt has made, and knowing that in all probability he would keep it up if he should be re-elected, would you vote for him again? Do YOU consider him "great"? Be honest with yourself, and answer this question for yourself. If Mr. Roosevelt is great, then our prisons are full of "great" men.—Man in the Moon.

UNEMPLOYMENT FIGURES

President Roosevelt in his latest relief message points out that there are still about 5,300,000 families and unattached persons who need some form of Government relief. Of this number, it is pointed out, a million and a half are persons who might be termed unemployables, leaving about 3,800,000 who will have to be helped by government relief rolls.

More than a year ago the Chief Executive, in reviewing the situation, announced that there were about 5,000,000 persons on the relief rolls, including a million and a half unable to work who would have to be taken care of by state and local relief. This left at the beginning of 1935 about 3,500,000 to be taken care of on the Government work relief rolls.

It is significant, therefore, in spite of highly advertised propaganda to the effect that government spending is pulling us out of the depression, there are as many if not more now who need relief than was the case 15 months ago.

The figures do not offer a more encouraging view of the situation. Of the $4,800,000,000 appropriated over a year ago to carry on the relief work, it is estimated that approximately $2,900,000,000 will have to be expended by the end of the fiscal year, June 30, which leaves au unexpended balance of something like $1,100,000,000. It is stated that an additional $1,500,000,000 will be needed in the relief for the fiscal year beginning on July 1st, 1936, making a total of about $2,600,000,000 to be spent. This is $300,000,000 less than this year, but additional appropriations for the CCC and increased work will bring the total up to more than $3,000,000,000, as against an estimated expenditure of $2,900,000,000 this year. And judging by the fact that as many if not more people will need relief, the sum seems none too great if we are to measure things by the lavish expenditures made this year. The picture is not exactly a happy one.

In this respect it is interesting to note that the American Federation of Labor estimates that there were 12,500,000 unemployed in the United States in February, which is only a decrease of 214,000 from February 1935. The most significant re-employment was in the agricultural industry, the Federation pointed out in its report, in preparation for the Spring season. The signs of re-employment in industry were said to be insignificant.

Continuing, the report said:

"Remembering that the answer to unemployment is not relief but work in industry, it is significant to note that our relief rolls last year exceeded the pay rolls of our five largest industries—textiles and clothing, railroads, building, machinery, iron and steel and their products. These industries employed 4,737,000 (average) in 1935, while relief rolls averaged 4,798,000 cases.

"Unless a determined effort is made to create work, we may expect that for many years millions will be denied the chance to produce wealth and the nation will be taxed to maintain them in poverty.

"Trade union figures for March show the start of Spring gains in business. Unemployment declined from 16.7 per cent to 16.1 per cent of the membership (weighted figures) This gain is of small consequence compared to the need."

There can be no question that the solution to the problem is re-employment in private industry. It is evident that such industry must be encouraged rather than throttled by threats of Government restriction and Federal competition.

A meteor seen in the skies recently dropped into the Atlantic off the New Jersey coast. This ought to be a lesson to those brilliant and shining young politicians.

Hitler had two big dirigibles flying over the Reich advertising his political campaign. But we don't beleve they would be as effective as relief checks.

About the only thing a general war in Europe would do now would be to make the world safe for Communism.

Pittsburgh has been digging itself out of the mud, which indicates that a flood may be as bad as a political campaign.

Now we have floods, dust storms, deficits and what-not to think about. Who remembers when our chief worry in the Spring was whether or not the local ball team had a good pitcher?

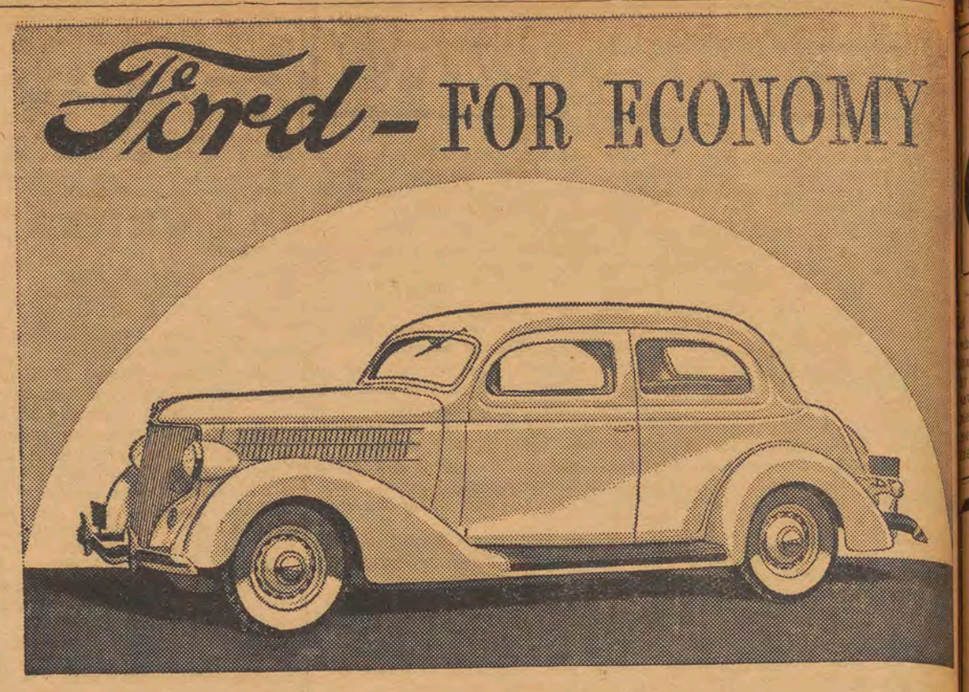
On the afternoon of April 4th, at 2:30, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Lewis and bore away the soul of their darling grandson, Lowell Denson. All that loving hearts and willing hands could do was done, but God saw fit to call him from earth to Heaven. He only stayed with us 19 months.

He leaves behind to mourn his loss his mother, grandfather and grandmother and a host of relatives and friends. Let us all strive hard to meet Denson in that gloryland where there will come no more parting.—His mother, Sally Lewis.



"The Ford V-8 uses less fuel and oil for the power it gives than any other car we have ever made

AND ITS UP-KEEP COST IS THE LOWEST"

ENTHUSIASTIC sales talk often begins and ends with gasoline mileage. Some salesmen would like you to believe it is the whole story of automobile economy. But drivers ought to know better. For, the fact is, it's way down the list.

The big items of car economy are low first cost, low up-keep cost and low depreciation. Savings here can make a great deal of difference in cost per mile. Gasoline mileage is more of a talking point than an economy factor.

Check up and you will find that the difference between 17 and 19 miles a gallon is less than $10 for a whole year's average driving (8400 miles at 18 cents a gallon). Here are the big items that make the Ford the most economical car:

More value for every dollar you pay.
Lower cost for repairs and service.
Long life. Slow depreciation.

Quality means economy and the 1936 Ford V-8 gives you more real quality than any other low-price car. No other car under $1645 has a V-8 engine. No other low-price car has Center-Poise Riding, safe, sure mechanical brakes and Safety Glass all around at no extra cost.

IN MEMORY OF A FRIEND

It was my privilege of associating with Bro. J. Dudley Collins for ten years and I knew him to be an upright, honest, truthful Christian gentleman, a friend to everybody. I lived on his plantation ten years as a renter and in business I found him to be a man who fulfilled his promises at any cost. He was a man who would always meet his fellowman half way in every matter and he was always ready to help the needy in the hours of distress.

Bro. Collins will be missed in many places. I am glad that I have been blessed with the privilege of the association of such Christian as Bro. Collins was. He was a great help to me in my Christian warfare, and I intend by the grace of God to meet him in the land where we will never grow old.

I want to say to Mrs. Collins and his two children that it seems hard to have to give him up, but God knows best and does all things well. So let us be reconciled to God's will and look for Jesus to come in glory and say "Well done good and faithful servant; enter into the joys of the Lord."—A Friend, H. F. McCary.

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

"It pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save men". That is what the Bible says. You will note that it does not say "It pleased God by the foolishness of TEACHING to save people." Teaching does not save them. Preaching saves them. After men are saved by preaching they are then in position to be taught. Nicodemus said to Jesus, "We know that you are a teacher come from God." Jesus replied by saying in substance, "Nicodemus you do not need a teacher, you need a lifegiver. You need to be born again. Unless a man is born again he cannot PERCEIVE of the kingdom of God." Spiritual truths are apprehended by spiritually minded people. Men are not spiritually minded until they get the mind of Christ and they get this mind when they are born again. All this effort to teach spiritual doctrines to unregenerated men will amount to nothing. The message to unregenerated men is this: "You are a sinner. You are lost. God loves you. Jesus Christ died a substitutional and vicarious death on the cross for your salvation. He bore your sin in His body. Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved". After men are saved then they need to be taught and built up in the faith. In many of our churches the teaching element is the dominant thing and real gospel preaching has been left out of the ministry.

The writer has just returned from a fifteen-day evangelistic campaign in the Church of the Open Door in Los Angeles, California. The Church of the Open Door is one of the great orthodox centers of America. Dr. Louis Talbot, the gifted and consecrated pastor of the church, is from Australia. Dr. Talbot came to America a few years ago and enrolled for Christian training in the Moody Bible Institute. After staying in the Institute a short while he learned that he really was not saved. So he trusted Jesus Christ and wos born again. Dr. Talbot is doing a great work in Los Angeles. He has a constructive evangelistic program and he is a great Bible teacher. In Los Angeles there are many religious 'isms". Christian people are "mixed up" with the different groups who interpret in their own peculiar way some of the "non-essential truths". I am more convinced than ever that what this nation needs is a preaching crusade. I sometimes wonder if the devil has not split us up into little factions and has got us arguing about little things which do not matter greatly, when we should be preaching the gospel to lost men.

I am sending a few words for pubication, which I intend for all of our 'amily and for our many frineds in Chilton county. The little poem which I inclose is such a consolation to me now, as the 17th brings the third year since my dear mother went away, and to you only a few days past since your dear dad went on to be with his sister and others departed. We are all lonely here, but soon we will be happy too, when we join our loved ones in heaven.

In Memory—Some Day

I wonder if we realize
That those we cherish 'neath His skies
Are God's own treasures on display,
And He will take them home some day;
To teach us all, the while we live
Unselfishness, the need to give.
Although they've ever seemed a part,
They really were His from the start;
And in His wisdom doth decree
That they should nearer to Him be;
His arms so tender from above
Embraces them in heavenly love.

Partin—this always seems so sad,
But do we realize that we've had
The chance to love and know that they
Await our comng, that some day
When earthly life and works shall cease,
Again they're ours mid eternal peace.

The above poem is copied from Thomas McClure Owen, and is sent in to The Union-Banner for publication in honor of the memory of James Madison Wyatt and Mrs. Dorena Dupree, brother and sister, the former died on February 23, 1936, and the latter died April 17, 1933. Sent in by Mrs. Martha Bradbury, 228 Herron Street, Montgomery, Ala.

POPLAR SPRINGS

ANNUAL EASTER SINGING

Once again Easter has come and gone, and once again people of this community as well as other places in the county and state gathered at Poplar Springs to take part in the annual Easter singing. Before 10:00 o'clock the house was filled almost to capacity.

The house was called to order by W. M. Devaughn singing one song, and prayer by J. L. Smith. W. M. Devaughn was elected chairman and Mattie Lou Crew Secretary. A short talk was made by Mr. Lonnie Ray from Prattville, but formally from this place. He talked of the memories recalled by the Easter singing and the value of singing.

Directors for the morning were: T. E. Barry, W. Lee Higgins, L. T. Grant, Jesse C. Jones, Ralph Grant, O. L. Devaughn, Steve Stanley, Floy Devaughn, Troy Daniel, A. O. Boswell, Emmett Wilson, Johnnie Daniel and I. D. Huett.

This closed the morning session and so far as we know every one had plenty to eat at the noon hour.

In the afternoon the directors were: Lee J. Grant, Clarence Billingsley, Archie Devaughn, T. E. Wyatt, L. D. Hughes, Joseph Painter, Edward Jones, Jasper Robinson, Carl Rains, Newman Ruff, J. B. Crew and Jas. D. Wade. Others who directed in the morning were recalled by request: L. J. Crew, Paul Hughes and Orben Devaughn, three small boys directed one song. To see these youngsters direct makes one feel that the future for Chilton county singing will be bright.

We were fortunate to have two of the best quartets in the South, the Showalter Quartet and the Alabama Four. Mr. W. M. Devaughn had his family quartet; Mr. Edward Jones brought a quartet from Prattville, and Mr. Jesse C. Jones arranged quartet. One of the feature numbers of the day was the special song by the Alabama Four, the Showalter and the Devaughn quarets.

Solos were sung by Messrs. Floy Devaughn, Jas. D. Wade and Eugene Davis. Pianists were Mrs. T. E. Barry, Miss Lena Mae Devaughn, Mr. W. Lee Higgins, Ralph Grant and Mrs. Littlejohn.

This singing has been held for thirty or more years, but we think we can truthfully say that this is the best one yet. The weather was almost perfect, the people unusually attentive, the class large and wanting to sing. So the singing was splendid.

We are thankful for this opportunity and hope that many more such days of praise will be observed at this place in honor of the risen Lord.

WRITES IN FAVOR OF E. H. LITTLEJOHN FOR COM.

Editor Union-Banner:

I desire to express myself to the voters in behalf of Mr. E. H. Littlejohn, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination as Commissioner from the Third District.

I have known Mr. Littlejohn for a number of years and I, together with many of his neighbors, and acquaintances, highly recommend him for this job as Commissioner of our District. Brother Littlejohn is a man of good moral character, of good sound business ability, and in my judgment, is well fit for the position he seeks as a member of the Commissioners Court.

I take pleasure in recommending him highly to the voters of the county.

Thanking you for any support you may see fit to give our friend and neighbor in the coming primary, I am respectfuly yours—J. L. Abbott, Pletcher, Ala., April 13, 1936.

Game and Fish News

Montgomery, Ala.—Game management has real possibilities from an agricultural standpoint and the farmers of Alabama would be wise to lend it their support and encouragement, declares Dr. L. N. Duncan, president of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, in the April issue of Alabama Game and Fish News.

Dr. Duncan said the new $470,000,000 soil conservation program and the organization of county conservation councils throughout Alabama offer farmers of the state an unusual opportunity to enrich farm life through game development and restoration.

Under the new farm program farmers will be encouraged to and in the cases of some crops paid for growing soil-improving and soil-conserving crops, such as cowpeas, soybeans, field beans, and other legumes, wheat, oats, rye, barley, and other small grains, all kinds of grasses and forest trees—all of which are ideal for encouraging wildlife growth, he said.

New Deal Assailed By Senator Reed

Missouri Senator Flays Democrats In Recent Kansas City Speech

Kansas City, April 14.—James A. Reed, fiery ex-Senator of Missouri, declared tonight the Roosevelt administration is speeding the United States "toward the swamps and morasses of communism, bolshevism and fascism."

The former Democratic Senator, addressing the Lawyers Association of Kansas City, said he was appealing to "the men and women of America who consider their duty to flag and country as more sacred than allegiance to an ypolitical party."

"I unhestitatingly say that our march away from constitutional government and toward the swamps and morasses of communism, bolshevism and fascism, from liberty to tyranny, has been more rapid than similar revolutions in Russia, in Germany and in Italy," he declared.

"Between that crimson flood and the liberties of the American people . . . are the nine venerable justices of the Supreme Court of the United States.

"How long will nature spare them. . . how long will it be until the present administration, if continued in power, will pack the Supreme Court with additional judges, all of them New Dealers? That, I assert, has been threatened.

"I call upon American citizens to awaken to the dangers of this hour and to employ the constitutional weapon placed in their hands—the ballots of freemen."

The former Senator scored the Roosevelt administration for what he termed is "necessity" legislation.

"Under this plea of necessity," he declared, "a law concocted by braintrusters, some of whom were better known in Russia than in the United States, was rushed through practically without debate." He referred to the outlawed NRA.

"Nothing done by Stalin, by Mussolini, by Hitler, was more drastic, more brutal and more destructive of liberty.

"This NRA law was in every line and paragraph violative of the constitution. It and the brood of Legislative serpents to which it speedily gave birth were violative of the constitution. . . .

"Three years ago it was not possible to conceive that within a few short months a swarm of spies, sneaks and informers were to be turned loose upon the nation and authorized to thrust themselves into the business of private concerns . . . so that the entire business, commercial and economic world stood trembling before the club of a master threatening to 'crack down' on them in case of non-obedience . . . .

"If the Supreme Court had not defended the constitution and the rights of the people thereunder, literally tens of thousands of (courts) actions would have been brought and the big club would have been cracked down upon the heads and fortunes of the American people."

Reed said the United States "is the only country in which the liberties and rights of all citizens are declared safe-guarded and preserved against the encroachments of power and the oppressoin of rulers.

"That is done by the constitution. Destroy the constitution and liberty is dead."

Mazer's To Begin Reorganization Sale

The attention of the buying public of Chilton county is this week directed to the big reorganization sale of the Mazer Store in Clanton. Phenomenal are the bargains which Mr. Levine, the manager, is putting on the block this week. It will pay those who intend to buy dry goods to investigate the bargains offered in this sale.

Turn to this page and look over it, and then visit Mazer's before the closing date on May 1st.

THERE WERE HOT TIMES IN THE STATE LEGISLATURE LAST WEEK

Interesting Revelations Made By, Far and Between Politicians of Chilton County

The following article is clipped from The (Montgomery) Alabama Journal, which paper carried it under the heading of "Under The Capital Dome" in its issue of April 16, 1936:

Brickbats and bouquets flew, party lines were forgotten and personalities frequently were resorted to during the hearing before the senate local legislation committee this week on a series of bills by Senator Earle Thomas, of Chilton, to change the form of government of his county.

For many years Chilton has been almost evenly divided as to republicans and democrats, with the republicans holding the edge in county offices until the last election, when the democrats won out. So it was interesting to observe the trend of sentiment among the large delegation which came here to appear for and against the bills.

Even Judge Reynolds

Judge L. H. Reynolds, a republican who served for 24 years as Chilton's probate judge until succeeded by democrat Lee Smith in the last election, was against the bills. Judge Reynolds is the type of man which many democratic leaders have often said they would be glad to have in their party—and they got him last time because he bolted.

"I want to take off my hat to the democrats," he said. "For 40 years I had never scratched a ticket, but I voted the entire democratic ticket last year because I believed my own people had gone wrong. I felt when the nominations were made in the primaries that the democrats had nominated the best ticket."

Judge Reynolds, before becoming probate judge, served several terms in the legislature, entering in 1896 along with the late Speaker Alf Tunstall of Hale.

Answer in Kind

Senator Thomas, denying that partisian politics was involved, had words of praise for Judge Reynolds during his address in support of his bills, which he said would save the people money.

"There has never been a county in Alabama in better shope than was Chilton when Judge Reynolds was at the steering wheel," the senator declared. "Chilton was an example for the entire state. But the present bunch in office know that the feed bag is about to be tapped; that's why they are against these bills."

Thomas Changes Sides

Then the same daily paper, The Alabama Journal, came out Friday afternoon, April 17th, with this statement about Senator Thomas regardnig the Senate's vote that day on the State store liquor bill:

"Senator Earle Thomas, of Autauga, who voted for the repeal measure Thursday, opposed it Friday."

There failed to be a two- thirds majority for the bill, therefore, it failed of passage, after a long and bitter fight.

UNCLE TOM HUBBARD HERE

The Union-Banner was pleased Monday to have a visit from our good old Republican friend, Uncle Tom Hubbard, of West Chilton. Uncle Tom, although 83 years old, always has something cheerful to say, and usually splices in a word once in a while about politics. He is a neighbor of those two sterling gentlemen and staunch Republicans, Z. J. Jones and H. H. Armstrong, out in Beat 14. We are always glad to hear from that section of the county.

THE UNION-BANNER HAS A BIRTHDAY

You will notice that this week the Volume No. of The Union-Banner has changed from 43 to 44, which means that this paper is this week beginning its forty-fourth year of existence. The paper was established in 1892, then The Banner, the founder being a man by the name of White. Frank Crichton soon came along and purchased an interest, and a short while later assumed complete control. Then in 1911 The Banner was consolidated with The Union, which had been running for eight years, edited by Wallace C. Edler. At the consolidation Mr. Crutcher became editor and publisher; since that time the paper has been under the management of F. B. Tichenor, Osce Bird, M. D. Foshee, E. C. Powell, W. M. Wyatt, and then on up to the present management.

During its forty-four years of existence this paper has weathered many a storm. It has survived panic after panic; has withstood many shocks, and is battle-scarred from political skirmishes that have rocked and shocked the hills and valleys of Chilton county. At times it has looked as though that issue would be the last one; but amongst it all, not a single week has been missed. Its visits into the homes of the people of Chilton county has been uninterrupted by the many and sundry changes that have come about during these more than four decades, until in more than a thousand homes in the county The Union-Banner has become a household word, and occupies a place almost like one of the family in these homes.

And at this time, the present management of the paper wishes to pause long enough, amid the ramble and scramble of modern politics and things, to sprinkle into the general mixture of vicissitudes a portion of our gratitude and thankfulness for the friends that we have and for the many kindnesses we have experienced in our various dealings with people. We have enjoyed it all and sometimes we have even been led to hope that our existence has not been altogether in vain. May the future years, and the Volumes that will be added to the 44, prove to be mutual in pleasant relations, and of service to and among the people of Chilton county.

"MICKEY MOUSE" GETS A HOUSE

State Workers Donate Bibb Beach Bungalow

(Editorial in The Mobile Post)

The camp followers of Bibb Graves, Governor of Alabama, on Friday, December 27, presented him with a furnished beach bungalow, located on the edge of the new State Park, near Foley, Alabama, in Baldwin County.

There is a little story behind this gift—a story of sheaves of letters requesting the various employees of the State to donate a portion of the salaries that Bibb gave them—a kind of benevolent coercion, so to speak, toward giving the Governor the aforementioned house, lot and furnishings.

The people are not always fools, and workers on a State payroll would not commit job suicide by refusing a donation to a man who can either make or break them with a wave of his hand.

Therefore we can not blame them so much when the orders or letters were handed them but what does surprise us, and our astonishment and amazement is not hidden behind a bushel, is that a person who has been honored twice by voters of Alabama with the gift of the Governorship had so little respect for himself and the high office that he holds as to take this furnished house and lot from workers who are under him. That is the thing that hurts many of the former supporters of Graves and make them ashamed of the peanut politics of our pigmy Governor.

Such a brand of politics comes close to the precipice of graft, pure and simple, and while it might not be illegal in the true sense of the term, his acceptance of this gift is both unmoral and unethical from the standpoint of thousands of Alabama's decent citizenry.

What is the world coming to anyway? Are our national political morals shattered and shell shocked? Are professional politicians "stringing" the people? Is Bibb Graves trying to cash in on his administration as Governor of Alabama? At any rate the majority of Alabamians reading of the occurrence can not help but draw the above conclusion.

Many think, too, that the house and lot are a kind of payment for favors. If he frees Cochrane Bridge what can he expect? And will he be paid for changing the management of the State Docks? The twenty-six million dollar department of Galloping Gaston, the Scott, what will it bequeath him? Politicians who take little things on the side at first, often end by grabbing big things, even large sums of money, instead of houses, without disturbing conscientious scruples. All they need is to break the ice, as after all they are but creatures of habit.

Since his acceptance of the Baldwin County furnished house and lot, Bibb is decidedly on the downward grade and it would not cause surprise to see him with his hand out, from now on.

"The Gentleman at the Knot Hole," who nicknamed Graves some years ago "Barnacle Bibb, the Sailor" didn't know the true Bibb, as he appeared last week taking the "gift House," and the Post, therefore, re-christens him as little "Mickey Mouse," typifying professional politics in its worst form.—The Mobile Post, issue of Jan. 3, 1936.

In addition to the above meeting, meetings will be held at three places next week. The Beat 7 unit will hold its second meeting at Pleasant Grove on Tuesday night, April 28. Work began Monday morning of this week enlarging the area of the Clanton airport, located two miles north-east of Clanton. Twenty-five men were put to work on the project of bringing into use for the landing field of thirty-two additional acres, which was bought some time ago by the county. The work that is being done now includes the moving back of fences leveling ditches, digging new ditches, etc. The airport road will be changed so as to go north at the home of Mrs. Mamie Bates, about 200 yards to the north boundary of the port property, thence due east to the home of Mr. Ross Mahan. About two and one-half months time will be required to complete the work of bringing the additional land into use.

Legislature Ended Special Session

'Do Nothing' Legislature Fails To Pass Any Constructive Measures

Montgomery, Ala.—The 1936 extra session Legislature—called Feb. 11 to raise revenue—stood adjourned Saturday after leaving behind it in a hectic session Friday night a defeated liquor control bill and a departmental parity plan.

After suffering a stunning defeat in the special legislative session ending Friday night, Gov. Bibb Graves Saturday left for a two-weeks stay at his cottage on the Gulf Coast to prepare a new fiscal program to present to another special session planned for next summer.

Those close to the governor declared he will formulate a definite financial program and carry it to the voters in a state-wide campaign of personal and radio appearances before the next special session convene.

The legislature failed to pass any major revenue increasing measure and all agreed that its outstanding action was passage of a bill diverting $250,000 from a "carpet bag" bond sinking fund to relief purposes.

Left waiting in the balance along with the parity constitutional amendment was the House bill which would have placed the state's sea food industry under regulation of the Alabama Oyster Commission.

Gov. Graves called the extra session principally for "raising revenue for a functioning government," including additional funds asked for schools, public health and relief.

There were three other points in the call—revised truck regulations, cheaper automobile tags, and amendments to social security laws.

Passed were social security law amendments providing the state's old-age pension and unemployment insurance plans should stand or fall with federal statutes.

Auto tag reduction legislation died in the Senate after House passage as did new regulatory trucking laws.

Following a wild day which saw modificationists finally abandon all prohibition repeal bills. The two houses were adjourned at 11:36 p.m. Friday.

A house resolution, signed by 41 members and calling for "strict economy and no more taxes" in the event of another extra session, died in the Senate rules committee after the representatives passed it.

During numerous recesses Friday night levity prevailed with both House and Senate members joining in songs while pages took charge in mock session. Former U. S. Senator J. Thomas Heflin told jokes and made speeches praising the "New Deal" and President Roosevelt.

DR. EDGAR OUT OF OFFICE

Dr. Edgar wishes the announcement published that he will be out of his office from April 26th until May 11th.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

PRODUCERS MAY SELL 12-CENT LOAN COTTON

Alabama county agents have received printed forms for cotton producers to use in obtaining release of warehouse receipts so that they may sell a million bales of 12-cent loan cotton through the regular channels.

"The plan that has been adopted not to exceed 25 points for the marketing of this cototn together with will afford producers a commission of such premiums which may accrue on account of grade, staple, and location," says Secretary Wallace in a letter to all county agents in the State.

"It is particularly important that cotton producers who desire to take advantage of this plan be advised that they should insist that buyers pay them the full market price and all premiums which their particular cotton should bring. In other words, the producer should market this cotton in the same manner that he would market his crop, because if less than full value is paid by the buyer the net amount which will be obtained by the producer will be less. It is desired to emphasize this point as already we have received reports that producers who have cotton in the loan are pledging or assigning their equities at less than the full value. While no assignments or pledges will be recognized, producers should be fully advised of the value of their holdings in order that private arrangements will not be made which involve a sacrifice of the producers' return under this program."

FOUR BOYS AND GIRLS WILL BE GIVEN TRIPS

Two Alabama boys and two girls will be given trips to the National 4-H Club Camp in Washington, June 18 to 24, announce T. A. Simms and Elizabeth Deloney, State 4-H Club leaders, who have set May 1st as the final day for receiving reports from clubsters competing for the trips.

File your reports with your county and home agents immediately, so they may forward it to Auburn before May 1st, say the leaders to 4-H club members throughout the state.

PEANUT DIVERSION PLAN OFFERED STATE GROWERS

A plan for diverting surplus peanuts from the 1935 crop into peanut oil has been announced by the Secretary of Agriculture. Until April 30 farmers will get diversion payments for peanuts grown in 1935 which they sell to millers for crushing. The payments will be $11 on Spanish type peanuts, $21 on Virginia type, and $3 for runner type peanuts. It is expected that the grower will receive from the miller only the oil value for peanuts on which the grower receives diversion payments.

In addition to the offer to growers the Secretary invited peanut millers to submit offers to buy and divert 1935 peanuts into oil.

Peanuts producers and millers interested in this proposition should terested in this proposition may obtain details from their county agents, advises Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the State Extension Service.

FARM PROGRAM PROVIDES AID FOR SOIL BUILDING

Payments under the soil conservation program for adopting sound farm practices which conserve the soil and improve its fertility will provide relief from the economic pressure that has forced farmers to mine their soil in order to get enough cash to meet interest, taxes, and living expenses, in the opinion of Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the State Extension Service.

"Every cultivated crop takes a certain amout of the original plant food out of the soil. The necessary cultivation if such crops exposes the land to erosion which results not only in additional fertility losses, but also in losses of soil," he says.

The new farm program is designed to give farmers financial assistance in preserving and re-building their soil resources.

CREDIT ASSOCIATIONS LENDING MORE MONEY

Production credit associations throughout the United States loaned farmers over $66,000,000 during the first three months of 1936, the largest amount in any similar period since the organizations were started.

Eight of the associations for making crop and livestock loans are located at Bay Minette, Ozark, Auburn, Huntsville, Russelville, Demoplis and Montgomery in Alabama.

FIGHT HOUSE FLY EARLY IN SPRING

"Fight the house fly now. The homemaker who takes the offensive in early spring will not find herself on the defensive in August," says the Alabama State College of Home Economics at Auburn.

Screens are among the best weapons to use against the fly, the college points out. Screens in just a few of the windows or in the windows alone are not enough. Every door should have its screen. Full length window screens add greatly to summer comfort because the windows can be opened at the top or bottom for better ventilation, and cracks are eliminated between the upper edges and the top sash which admits flies and other insects.

"The best way to destroy the fly, however, is to destroy its breeding place. House flies not only annoy in summer but menace health because they breed in filth and feed on filth before alighting on human food. They pick up germs on the thick hairs and bristles which cover their legs and bodies. Absolute cleanliness in disposal of all garbage and waste, whethin the house or barnyards, is essential in fighting the fly."

CALLING FOR VELVET BEANS, PEANUTS AND CORN

There is a man in Clanton who wants to buy all the velvet beans, corn and peanuts that he can hold of. There surely must be some farmers in Chilton County who have a surplus. of these crops, and could afford to turn them into cash money. Mr. Willie Crowson is the man who wants to buy these farm products, and he is the owner and operator of the Central Alabama Milling Company, of East Clanton. Mr. Crowson carries an adv. of his business in The Union-Banner every week.

And in this connection The Union-Banner would like to stress the importance of the farmers of Chilton county raising more corn, velvet beans and peanuts next year. Mr. Crowson is planning to use three or four times as much of these products the coming year as he has used the past year. Surely, it would pay our farmers to take advantage of this market that is being created right here in our midst for these products. Our land is adapted to these crops, and they can be raised with little work.

Mr. Crowson had an order for several tons of ground velvet beans just a few days ago, which he had to pass up because he could not get the beans to grind up. These things are happening to him every day, not only with beans but with corn and peanuts.

The extent of machinery and operations of the Central Alabama Milling Company is now in the process of being doubled; and when this is done. twice as much feed can be turned out, and twice as much produce will be needed to keep the grinding machine something to do. We believe it would pay our farmers to take advantage of this market for their products of this kind.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

A representative exhibit of the works of Alabama artists was shown at the University of Alabama last week under the sponsorship of the University art department.

The exhibit included watercolors, oils, and etchings, with one oil painter or two watercolors or prints coming from each of the artists represented.

"The machine is absolutely foolproof and tamper-proof," said Mrs. Washington Moody, club woman connected with University Club Extension work. "You may change your mind as many times as you want, but you can't vote but once," she said.

Mrs. Moody pointed out that the machine had been previously used in an election of a woman's section of the A. E. A. in Birmingham.

Mortimer H. Jordon, Birmingham, was elected president of the student body at the University of Alabama in one of the closest elections held on the campus in several years.

Benn Anderson, Sellers, won handily over Willard Hodges, Odenville, in the race for vice-president.

Forty-two cadet officers of the R. O. T. C. unit at the University of Alabama were named last week of membership in Scabbard and Blade, honorary military fraternity, for members of the advanced course in military science.

Announcement of the selections was made by Frank Taylor, Birmingham, Captain of Company K, Fifth Regiment, of the organization located here.

ENDORSES J. L. BURNETT FOR COMMISSIONER

Editor Union-Banner:

I would like to say a few words in your paper to the voters of the County in behalf of Mr. J. L. Burnett, who is a candidate for Commissioner from the Third District.

As you all know, Mr. Burnett has served two terms in the Commissioner's Court and he has gained experience in working the roads and looking after the other business of Chilton County. I believe that now more than ever before we need men in office with experience, who can carry on the County's work without having to experiment and learn to do this work after they are put in office, and Mr. Burnett, with his eight years experience, if nominated and elected, can go in office and immediately know just what to do and the best way to save the taxpayer's money.

I have known Mr. Burnett for something around twelve years and I recommend him to both the Republican party of Chilton County and to all other voters of the County, as I believe he can be depended upon to make us a good Commissioner, and save the taxpayer's money.—Yours very truly, J. T. Rucker, Maplesville Route 2.

SAWMILL BUSINESS STARTED UP BELOW SOUTH CLANTON

A sawmill and lumber business, which proposes to grow into a large business enterprise here, has been started up on the Jasper Dennis place, at the old sawdust pile just below South Clanton. R. H. Humphrey and sons are the owners of the business. A small mill is now in operation on the site, where lumber is being cut to be used in the foundation for a much larger mill to be put in use a little later.

The headquarters for the company is in Montgomery, and they are now operating a mill at Maplesville. Mr. Humphrey says that he figures there is enough timber in this vicinity to keep the large mill running for about five years.

Mr. Humphrey and his four sons will be glad to get in touch with timber owners in this section, as well as those in need of lumber.

MINERAL SPRINGS

The health of our community is very good except the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ulmer Ashcraft is very sick, but we hope for her speedy recovery.

Our Sunday school is not doing as well as it could but there are still some that are faithful and true. We are having Sunday school but we need the help of the parents of our community. It seems like the time has come when the people haven't got time to go to church or Sunday school.

Want to tell the parents of our community and other communities they had better take time to go to church and Sunday school, for you might see the time when you will not have the chance to go.

I want to ask all of the parents to come on out to Sunday school and bring your little ones with you and the older ones will follow, for you don't know how long you will have them with us to take them. And while you have got the chance you had better use it. Now lets all come out next Sunday and have a good Sunday school and we will feel better to mix and mingle with one another and do us good.—M. Gore.

For the benefit of the singers here Sunday, April 25th, Esco's Eat Shoppe, will be open all day. Located at rear New Mullins-Moore Building, on Highway, Clanton, Ala.

GIVES POINTERS ON FEEDING OF CALVES

High Prices on Good Cows Puts New Value on Growing Profitable Heifers.

Losing calves or stunting their growth takes on a far more serious air today than it did a few years ago. Good milk cows can only be developed from thrifty growing heifers and today's higher prices for good cows has automatically put more interest and care into raising heifer calves

In line with the trend of the times W. R. Arends, well-known dairy authority of the Purina Mills, says, "It has long been known that vitamin A and D are extremely essential in the ration for raising the right kind of heifer. Now with the recent discovery of concentrated vitamin A, calf raising has become less hazardous. This concentrated vitamin A is being passed along to dairymen by the Purina Research Farm in the form of a new ingredient called Pur-a-tene, added to every sack of Purina calf feed.

First Feed Should Be Milk

In making feeding recommendations for the first few days of a calf's life Arends says that the first food should be calf's own mother's colostrum milk. This milk is laxative and performs the job of setting the digestive system in motion. If it is felt necessary to take the calf from its mother before nursing, and if the milk is fit. Arends advises milking the cow and feeding the calf by hand. He says a bottle and nipple may be necessary although many dairymen teach the calf to drink from a pail the first feeding. If for reason of disease, the mother's milk cannot be used, milk from a cow that's in the first part of her lactation period should be fed.

"Nature has taught the calf to look up for its milk," according to Arends, "yet when the dairyman teaches it to drink he expects the calf to hold its head down. Remember, the calf must be taught every step of the way. The earlier the calf is started, the easier it will be."

Overfeeding Milk Is Dangerous

Another condition Arends points to is that the baby calf has a very delicate digestive system and overloading it with milk is almost sure to bring trouble. He advises starting with about three pounds of milk daily for small breeds, and about four pounds daily for the larger breeds; gradually increasing the milk up to 8 pounds daily by the last day of the week for heavier breeds and 7 per day for the smaller breeds. Along with the milk the calf should be taught to eat dry feed as quickly as possible.

Easy Way to Get Calves Eating

"When the calf is but 4 days old it should get its first solid food," says Arends. "Calf Chow in checker form is the easiest and safest dry feed on which to start the calf. A few checkers should be placed in the calf's mouth directly after feeding it milk With checkers and a grain ration in a trough before the calf at all times it will soon get the habit of taking feed as it needs it. Fresh, clean water and good alfalfa hay should be available at all times. On this kind of feeding, it won't be long until the calf is well on its way to a profitable first-calf heifer."

"If interested, more information can be obtained on raising calves from the latest Purina dairy bulletin, available from all feed stores handling Purina feeds."

There is usually a definite reason for such complaints...so, now let's reason sensibly.

Don't try to get well in a day...this is asking too much of Nature. Remember, she has certain natural processes that just cannot be hurried.

But there is a certain scientific way you can assist by starting those digestive juices in the stomach to flowing more freely and at the same time supply a balanced mineral deficiency the body needs.

Therefore, if you are pale, tired, lack a keen appetite, have lost weight and feel rundown...a frequent sign that your blood-cells are weak, with a tendency towards anemia—then do try in the simple, easy way so many millions approve—by starting a course of S.S.S. Blood Tonic.

Much more could be said—a trial will thoroughly convince you that this way, in the absence of any organic trouble, will start you on the road to feeling like yourself again. © S.S.S. Co.

SINGING HELD AT MACEDONIA LAST SUNDAY

Most everyone in this community and several from other communities arose with the sun last Sunday to make ready to go to Mocedonia for a singing. Before 11:00 o'clock the house was filled to capacity, besides several others who were unable to get in the church.

The house was called to order by Mr. Clint Veazey, who sang two songs. Prayer was led by Mr. Zack Jones. At this time Mr. Ellis Martin was elected chairman for the day.

Directors for the morning were: Prof. Devaughn, Jesse Jones, Ralph Grant, B. L. Cofer, Prof. Veazey, Doyle Thacker, Prof. O. L. Devaughn, Prof. Grant, Mr. Deason and Mr. Morris.

At the noon hour a delicious dinner was spread by the ladies and was enjoyed by all. Everyone was soon ready for singing again.

The afternoon directors were: Ellis Martin, Ralph Grant Jesse Jones, Claud Corneliah, Prof. Grant, Prof. Veazey, a young Mr. Sams, Marion Cofer, Lloyd Edwards, Mr. Deason, B. L. Cofer, Mr. Wyatt, Mr. Lika, Berly Sherdon, a young Mr. Springured, Wilber Dickens, Chester Maddox, Mr. Graham and Velpo Mims.

We were very fortunate to have with us the Lackey Quartet, the Deason Quartet, and two quartets from Selma, The Melody Four, The Friendly Four, and The Mulberry Quartet.

Mr. B. L. Cofer and little son rendered several special numbers during the day, which were greatly enjoyed by all. An accordian solo by Mr. Homer Dyer was much appreciated also.

There was probably other names not mentioned who helped to make the day a success. We want to thank everyone who helped in anyway, for we feel that it was a day well spent in singing praise to the Master.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Oglesby were among the out of town visitors here Monday.

WILL ORGANIZE WILDLIFE FEDERATION CLUB HERE

Montgomery, Ala., April 21.—Steps have been taken in 17 Alabama counties to set up county conservation councils in conformity with the program of the General Wildlife Federation being fostered in this State by the Conservation Department.

Twelve of these counties have been completely organized and organization in the other five is expected to be finished this week following visits to each by Thomas A. Ford, the State department's director of county conservation planning.

Meeting In Clanton

Mr. Ford will be in Clanton, Chilton County, Monday and organize this county.

"Alabamians are realizing something must be done to save our wildlife and natural renewable resources," said Commissioner I. T. Quinn in commenting on the work of the organization.

"By coordinating all the organizations in a county along a definite line of endeavor in conservation we are placing the lover of the outdoors in a position where he can be kept informed of the needs of wildlife and then take the proper steps to see that nature's bounty is amply protected and given the opportunity to maintain or better its status.

"The response to the efforts of the Conservation Department to organize the county conservation councils to date has been very gratifying."

PRESS ASSOCIATION TRIP TO HAVANA BEING ARRANGED

The Convention of the Alabama members of the Association, with their Press Association really begins as the families, friends and invited guests, step up the gang plank to the spacious decks of the S. S. "CUBA," the perfectly appointed luxury cruise ship of the Peninsular & Occidental S. S. Company, enroute to their Convention City, Havana, Cuba, under the most ideal conditions imaginable. The "CUBA," in addition to satisfying all the exacting requirements of discriminating travellers for comfort, convenience and luxury accommodations, is particularly suited for a convention ship. The Promenades, the numerous wide halls and stairways, that give free access to add parts of the ship, evade that sense of jostle and crowd so trying to many. Paramount to her beauty and suitability, the "CUBA" rates her construction, built under the most rigid provisions for safety, completely modern radio equipment, adequate lifeboat provision and trained crew, the "CUBA" is a cruise boat de luxe.

So, as the coast of Florida goes down astern with the setting sun, the "CUBA" bears the members of the party of the Alabama Press Association, pleasure bound, through the tropical night. No danger of storms or hurricanes at this time of the year.

The boat reaches Havana in the early afternoon of June 15th, giving a long period for sight-seeing, golf and shopping, and a long evening that may be well spent, in any way the individual members consider "well." All in a holiday mood, the members of the party may do most anything, and probably will. Before they return they may wander in gay, worldly atmosphere of the Prado, that wonder of boulevards; two miles long and magnificantly wide, where all society promenades.

IN LOVING MEMORY

On Monday night, March 30th, the death angel visited St. Margaret's Hospital, in Montgomery, and carried away the spirit of our dearly beloved friend, Mr. Tom Allen.

We have been farming for Mr. Allen for twenty-two (22) consecutive years, and we have learned him to be "a man of all men."

During those years we learned to love him almost like a father. For words of comfort to the family, we would say, weep not, for he is at rest. —A family that loved him, Mr. and Mrs. Green Griffin and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Jones of Montgomery were guests of his mother, Mrs. Will Phillips Jones this week end.

Vote Of Thanks From Judge L. H. Reynolds

(From The Montgomery Advertiser)

Editor The Advertiser:

I would like to express to the members of the Legislature and to all who helped us in Chilton county's local fight to prevent the passage of a local bill which would have abolished the Commissioners Court and established a Board of Revenue of three members, and I wish I had the opportunity of meeting each member of the Legislature and all other persons who helped us to kill these bills and to convey to them the appreciation of the overwhelming majority of the people of this county. I would especially like to mention of those who helped us around the Capitol the valuable services of Mr. Hamp Draper and Dr. P. T. Hinkle, and I am sure all of these will occupy a place of favor in the hearts of 95 per cent of the people of our county.

I was selected to the Legislature from Chilton county in 1896 and served with such men as the late deceased Alf Tunstall and Governor Brandon and was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1901 and efforts have been made several times since then to abolish the Commissioners Court of this county and always the Democrats of Alabama as well as the Legislature have come to our rescue and defeated these efforts. In the recent fight in a referendum, only 126 voters expressed themselves in favor of the abolition of the Commissioners Court while 2,216 voted against the same and I am glad to know that again the Democrats of Alabama helped us to sustain the wishes of the vast majority of the voters of our county and the maintenance of local self-government.

I served as Probate Judge of Chilton county for 24 years. Several years before my term expired I began to differ with some of the leaders of my party and I predicted at that time that if the policies were pursued and continued that it would mean the ultimate defeat of the Republican party in Chilton county and the breach widened and in the general election of 1934 the Republican party did go down in defeat for the first time in 45 years.

It is encouraging to note that when the interest of our county is involved and the right of the people to govern themselves is to be sacrificed that both Democrats and Republicans can forget for the moment that partisan difference and fight under one banner to uphold these rights of the people.

I congratulate all who had a part in this fight.

L. H. REYNOLDS.

It is called Alka-Seltzer because it makes a sparkling alkaline drink, and as it contains an analgesic (Acetyl-Salicylate) it first relieves the pain of everyday ailments and then by restoring the alkaline balance corrects the cause when due to excess acid.

After trying many brands of medicines—so-called relief for gas, and all of them a failure, I gave up hopes. By chance I tried Alka-Seltzer—I am more than satisfied. Geo. Bennett, New York, N. Y.

BUSINESS LEADERSHIP

By ROBERT V. FLEMING

President American Bankers Association

R. V. FLEMING

It is my belief that the passage of the Banking Act of 1935 settled for the present at least the question of major banking legislation and that, with the general improvement in business conditions, bankers can now turn their attention more to the problems of how they can develop and extend the scope of banking service.

With respect to Government competition with banking, we must recognize that in times of emergency the Government of necessity had to come to the assistance of the people where chartered institutions were unable to do so on account of the nature of the emergency. Possibly many functions which the Government is performing are of a nature which cannot be handled by the chartered banking institutions under the fundamental principles of sound banking.

A Survey of Government Banking

On the other hand, I believe it is our duty to survey all of these emergency lending agencies of the Government in order that we may ascertain the methods being employed by it and bring to bankers the results of this study in order that they may have the opportunity of judging for themselves which of these activities can be properly and soundly taken over in their respective communities by their own institutions.

In the light of past experiences I believe that bankers are better equipped than ever before to render adequate and constructive service to the people of this Nation. However, I believe that there has been too much dependence upon legislation as a cure-all for our troubles. While we must all recognize that some legislation was needed to correct certain conditions and bad practices which developed since the world war, we cannot legislate ourselves back to prosperity.

It seems to me that what America needs most is a resumption by business men and bankers of that leadership which played such an important part in the growth and development of our country and in which there should be the support of Government.

Graduate School of Banking

NEW YORK.—Plans for the 1936 session of the Graduate School of Banking, to be held under the direction of the American Bankers Association, in cooperation with Rutgers University, at New Brunswick, New Jersey, have been announced.

The school, which held its first session last year, was established for the purpose of offering to bank officers who have American Institute of Banking training or its equivalent, educational opportunities of an advanced character in the fields of their professional interest. This year's session at the university will open June 22 and run to July 3.

Enrollment for those to attend the 1936 session will be limited to the first 400 applicants who meet the qualifications for admission and are approved by the faculty committee on admissions. The complete course covers six weeks of resident work at the university, comprising two weeks each summer for three consecutive summers, and twenty months of supervised home study.

Instruction in the practical and technical aspects of banking will be conducted by bank official, who are specialists in commercial banking, investments and trust business. Studies in the legal phases of banking will be directed by the General Counsel of the office of the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States.

Economic courses in the historical and theoretical background of the problems involved in the relationship of government to finance and banking will be given by university instructors. This year a course in "Administrative Problems in Credit Extension" will be offered for the first time.

The Volume of Bank Law

The people of the United States should be aware of the amount of law which has been passed to regulate banking, a banker recently said. It is a fact that it takes 810 pages merely to repeat the laws pertaining to the national banking system. In one state it takes a book of 718 pages to recite the statutes regarding state chartered banks. It also takes in all some 20,000 pages of law throughout the nation to recite the banking codes of all the states.

The great majority of the people are probably not aware of the fact that a chartered bank in America must be willing at any time to permit the representatives of the people to investigate any and every act of that institution. They probably are not aware of the fact that last year it required a book of over 800 pages for the Comptroller of the Currency to report upon the public examination of the chartered national banks.

"Banking, therefore, is not a private business run according to the whims and fancies and for the benefit of a few people. It is a chartered business operated through the American system of individual enterprise but supervised and regulated at every point by the people through their governmental representatives," he said.

That big business in this country is owned by millions of corporatively poor people.

"Undistributed profits" of business are the reserves laid by in fat years for paying wages and dividends in lean years.

That rising prices do not make prosperity though prosperity may make rising prices.

That "wealth' does not consist of money, but of property.

That excessive taxation does not increase the national wealth, but reduces it by diverting money from productive to non-productive activities.

That wages to industrial workers pay a profit to the nation, while salaries paid to government employes make a deficit.

That the "rich man" spends his income paying wages and buying products made by wages.

That confiscatory income taxes reduce the opportunity to employ workers, both in business and out of it.

That government credit is not demonstrated beyond question by loading banks with Government paper when they are already loaded with idle money, and have no choice.

That spendthrifts always come to a bad end, whether they be individuals or governments, even though they flourish for a time on somebody else's money.

Patrick Henry asked for liberty or death. Industry needs liberty; what is it actually doing to prevent its death?—Manufacturers' News.

A lot of fellows don't find out, until it is too late, that they can't preserve their health in alcohol.

It is a lot easier for Congress to roll up a big national deficit than it is for the people to pay it off.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

One of the mysteries of world psychology seems to be that while her propagandists are preaching peace and disarmament, Russia is every day in the year preparing for what she expects to be the biggest war which has yet afflicted the earth.

Reds and misguided liberals plea for the disarmament of America and other so-called capitalist countries, while Soviet Russia, which has declared war on capitalism everywhere, is steadily going ahead organizing the nation down to the grass roots along military lines. And yet, a great many people in the United States seem to be s oeasily fooled that they regard militarism in Russia as an exponent of peace, while they denounce preperation for defense in their own country as war psychology.

For example, Opal Corbin Lee, writing recently in the Washington Post under the caption "Russia Prepares for a War It Regards as an Impending Certainty," tells an interesting story of a conversation she had not long ago with a Russian emigree, who had been out of Russia for a comparatively short time. Mrs. Lee mentioned her acquaintance the fact that she would like to send her children to Italy on a vacation were it not for the long war clouds now lowering over Europe.

Puzzled by the expression "war clouds," the young Russian finally broke into laughter and said:

"For a moment I could not think. Here in your militaristic, overbearing capitalistic state one sees so little and hears so little of the war preparation that one who does not follow your papers too closely loses the conciousness of men fighting somewhere in the world; but, ah! it is so different in our peace-loving Soviet country. There, where all men are brothers, we are daily preparing for bigger and better carnage. We hear war, we talk war, we feel war."

Daily demonstrations of military nature occur in Russia, Mrs. Lee, who spent some time in the country with her husband, explains to her readers. Once she asked a simple Russian why demonstrations were so successful and the demonstrators never failed to march when ordered to do so. She quotes the reply as follows:

"It is simple to explain. In the morning an order comes to the office where you work to the effect that you and your associates are to take part in a demonstration during the afternoon. You go, you march, you carry a banner, perhaps. You demonstrate against capitalism, against Poland, against religion—what does it matter? If a marcher turns out as a parade turns a corner, he may expect to have no job the next morning. And that is the least that can happen to him!"

It is easy, of course, to blame this condition onto autocracy. The serious thing is, however, that the red leaders are able to put it over. They not only destroy the seeds of religion in the heart of the demonstrator, but they infuse into him that Russia is not about to be attacked by some wicked capitalistic nation.

Yet anyone who has studied the Soviet system knows that it is not in its fundamentals a defensive one; Soviet Rusia desires to conquer the world for Communism. It has declared war on capitalism everywhere. Every weapon of sabotage and propoganda is being used. And militarism will be employed when the machine is perfected and the time is right. It is easy, of course, to sway the average Russian. But the pity of it is that the people of America who consider themselves intellegent are taken in by this pseudo pacifist propoganda.

ANOTHER "AGREEMENT" FADES

Another gentlemen's agreement is said to have gone by the board, which is probably not to be wondered at too greatly, as international agreements now go. This agreement is one which is said to have been entered into by Japan and the United States for cutting down the export of cloth from the Mikado's empire into our country.

According to Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, the Massachusetts Congresswoman, who usually knows whereof she speaks, imports of cotton goods from Japan to the United States are growing. Imports of bleached cloth from the Japanese to our country, it is said, in the year 1935 were five times greater than they were the year previous, 117 times greater than in 1933, and 584 times greater than in 1932. The record for printed cotton cloth is an impressive one, too. The imports were five times greater in 1935 than in 1934, seven times greater than in 1933, and eight and one-half times the imports in 1932. Other imports from Japan are given as follows: Cotton handkerchiefs, three and one-half times as many in 1935 as in 1934, 44 times as many as in 1933, and 404 times as many as in 1932. Cotton velveteens: Imports in 1935, 21 times greater than in 1934, with little or no import of the material from Japan before that time.

On the other hand, it is stated that exports of cotton from the United States to Japan for February, 1936, show a decrease of 65 per cent over the exports in January, and a decline of 44 per cent in hte exports over the amount in February 1935. Evidently there is a larger sized Ethiopian in the international woodpile and he is not doing Uncle Sam any good.

Speaking of the comparative situation, Mrs. Rogers says:

"Employers and employes of every foreign nation have looked upon this country with envy and admiration. They know that the workers in the United States have been paid higher wages than labor in any other nation in the world. Today they look upon us in amazement. They think we are allowing countries such as Japan to take our trade from us, and they know that eventually it will mean that our workers will be paid less in order to compete with poorly paid foreign labor.

"If we continue, we shall become the laughing stock of the entire world. Clever foreign countries will gladly take advantage of us. We must halt before it is too late."

Evidently international agreements relative to imports and exports are not always kept any better than any other international agreements. For examples of the other kind, we can refer to Mussolini and Hitler, to say nothing of the many and varied debt agreements which Uncle Sam holds with European nations. Japan, as a most favored nation, benefits every time Secretary Hull makes one of those reciprocal tariff agreements with another nation. The way she appreciates this is indicated by the cotton trade record of the past two or three years.

Maybe some of these days Uncle Sam will quit playing the goat. Unfortunately, however, this does not seem about to come to pass in the near future.

HOW THE MONEY WAS SPENT

Demand that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace make public the names of those who have received sums in excess of $10,000 for not raising crops, and the amounts paid over to them by the A. A. A. seems to have borne fruit already, despite the Secretary's contention that to reveal this information would subject the recipients of the money to "exploitation" by high-presure salesmen or others, a contention that was given no weight when it came to publishing the amount of income of those who were assessed heavily by the Federal government.

At least we are informed of a few rather "juicy" payments in the pretentious scheme for the control of agricultural production. Three sugar corporations, it is stated, received something like a million dollars each for not growing so much sugar. One of these corporations was in Florida, one in Hawaii and one in Puerto Rico. In addition, we are told that one hog-raising and farming company received $157,000 in one year for not raising hogs, while a big cotton planter received something like $124,000 for failing to raise so much cotton. And the list is growing.

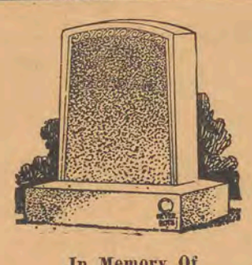
Now it is probably true, as the Secretary contends, that to make a crop control program successful you have to hire the corporations and big individual farmers not to raise so much, just as you have to pay the little fellow. The disclosure of these big payments, however, furnishes some food for serious thought on the part of the country. The crop control program not only reduced the American surplus, it brought in huge importations of agricultural commodities from other countries. The import of sugar from Cuba under the American curtailment and the reciprocal treaty grew to the point where under the new dispensation we bought last year five times as much Cuban sugar as we sold goods in value to the Cubans themselves. Therefore the A. A. A. paid a million dollars each to the above mentioned sugar corporations so that the American people, under the new dispensation, could buy Cuban rather than American sugar. There were great imports of hogs, lard and other pork products from Canada and other counties. So the A. A. A. paid $157,000 to one hog-raising company and big sums to other large-scale hog raisers, that the American consumers might buy Canadian products instead of the home-grown one and the money went to alien rather than American farmers.

However, there is still another phase of the picture. When the A. A. A. was paying out these sizeable sums, it had to get the money somewhere. The money was raised through the processing tax. So the American housewife, when she took her market basket to the corner grocery and meat market, was compelled to put up, in higher prices for what she bought, the money which went to the three sugar and other corporations that they might be paid for not producing.

Here are some points which ought not be overlooked. The American farmers buy sugar and cotton goods—some of them even buy pork products. Just where, then, does the American consumer "get off", no matter whether he lives in town or in the country? Those three sugar corporations who were paid a million dollars apiece for not employing so many hands and raising so much sugar, certainly have a good-sized laught coming. But perhaps the folks who pay the bill won't feel so funny about it.

Federal receipts on March 25 for the fiscal year were $3,035,727,926, which was an increase of 8 per cent over the date the year previous. However, there is a small fly in the ointment. On the same date the deficit for the year was about seven million dollars greater than it was on the same date in 1935. It seems that the more comes in, the more goes out.

MAN IN THE MOON



In Memory Of

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY

Of Chilton County

The deceased first became quite ill some years ago, when in losing control of the county government, it was found that it had placed the county in debt in the unbelievable amount of $216,000.

Then the late deceased party passed into a state of coma, in which state it remained for a number of years, during which time the county was governed by Republicans.

Some years ago, the deceased showed signs of improvement, and narrowly missed taking over the reins of the county government. And in 1934, again came to life, and for the brief period since then, seemed its old self again.

Indeed, the good old Democratic party WAS itself again, and its favorite elected sons set out once more along the same old dissipation that landed it in the sick bed so many years ago — high-handed extravagance and disregard of the rights of the people.

The final knock-out attack came, however, only a few short weeks ago, when two of those favorite elected sons—Cox and Thomas—sought to put a crown on this party's long line of blazing achievements of political mischief, by introducing two highly autocratic and disreputable bills—the highway supervisor bill and the commissioners court abolition bill—and so staunchly did these favorite sons press these bills that they, together with their sponsors, became a stench in the nostrils of every self-respecting, liberty-loving Chilton Countian. The first of these bills was rammed down the people's throats, but the second died in the State House of Representatives.

And in this death died the political hopes of Messrs. Cox and Thomas, and likewise, the late revived Democratic Party of Chilton county. May it rest in peace—or pieces! May it never rise to halt the progress of our fair county again, but rest forever in the dust of its deadness, that fairness and honesty and the voice of our people may reign, undisturbed, forever and ever. Amen!

ALABAMA AND GEORGIA

It seems ot be the vogue nowadays, especially insofar as governmental affairs are concerned, to spend as much as possible, never looking forward to the day of payment. The national government is being run along these lines at present, plunging into abnormal debt, apparently with no thought of the day when these debts must be paid, if, indeed, they ever are paid.

The State of Alabama is having its governmental afairs run along the same lines, plunging, ever plunging into deeper debt. Our state officials seem to have no thought or care for the future. They seem not to consider that if we must go deeper in debt now to run the state government that the future generation will be hard put to keep running and pay the state debts of their fathers. Our state is up to its neck in debt, and will go deeper at the first chance. And all the while the tax load is mounting. There is never a thought, it seems, for lightening this tax load. When our Alabama legislature meets, it is always to study new tax measures—never to consider a cut in taxes.

In our sister state, Georgia, we are informed that affairs are being run quite different. In a radio address recently, Gov. Talmadge made some statements and gave some figures on his state's financial condition which put Alabama to shame. Said he:

"The State of Georgia at present has $3,521,466.01 in its vaults. There is due the State of Georgia from banks the sum of $3,517,821.34. Georgia is out of debt. The state did not borrow any money last year, for the first time since the Civil War, and during the past year it has paid back debts to the sum of $7,525,532.59. The schools of the state have received $1,728,514.00 this year. State taxes have been cut during the years 1933, 1934 and 1935. This reduction has saved Georgia taxpayers $16,630,000.00."

I wonder how much cash Alabama has. I wonder how long it has been since Alabama failed to borrow money during a year. How long has it been since we made any appreciable payments on debts? How much did our schools get last year? Has there EVER been a tax cut in Alabama? And what is the reason for all the difference in our conditions, when only a line separates the two states? There's a dead cat on the line somewhere.

DOLLARS OVER THE RIVER

American history tells us that at one time George Washington threw a silver dollar over the Potomac River. He was criticised for it, too. But if those critics would be living now, we wonder just what they would think of the latest dollar-throwing marathon.

During President Roosevelt's "reign" he has thrown not one dollar, but BILLIONS of them over the Potomac. George Washington enjoyed the thrill of knowing that he was "man" enough to perform his feat, but the present dollar tosser gets an entirely different thrill out of his tossing. There have been times when his myriad of bureaus were not throwing the cash to the four winds as fast as he wanted it done, and at such times he has not hesitated to remove the heads of these bureaus and replace them with faster spenders.

The chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has gone on record with this statement:

"We most certainly are seeing history made, But what pages these will be for our children to look back upon. All our history has been a continuation of the teaching that thrift brings independence, that extravagance and waste bring want. And now we are seeing the tables exactly reversed. It is considered smart, nowadays, to be extravangant. It is considered old-fogeyism to practice thrift. Throughout all our history, our children have been taught to pattern their lives after presidents. The present regime has put an end to that, however, just as it has put an end to many other habits which have come to be considered sound and basically American. I firmly believe that America could much better have weathered another four years of depression than to have struggled under the alien ideas that have been advanced under the New Deal."

Dollars over the river! Not in the spirit that the father of our country threw his, but that it might build prestige for the president, at the cost of back breaking taxes for future generations to come. Such has been the record of the New Deal—unnatural, un-American, and the direct reverse of all the sensible teachings gathered from the experience of all our past, as a nation.—Man in the Moon.

CONSTITUTION IS CHALLENGED

The basic principles of the American Constitution are now challenged and not since the Civil War have so many attacks been made on America's charter of free government, according to Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, in the current issue of the National Republic, under the caption "Constitution is Challenged." By way of beginning, Senator Walsh says:

"The Constitution is the guardian of the liberties of every individual under the flag and is the stabilizing influence that has contributed to most of our expansion and progress. It is the keel which insures, protects and guarantees the inalienable rights which inspired the patriots to arms against the mother country at Concord Bridge on the morning of April 19, 1775.

'Our Constitution embraces the experience of countless martyrs of religious persecution—the experience of hordes of political prisoners whose only crime was the exercise of free speech—the experience of the peasants of France who toiled in the field and were required to give 78 per cent of their crops in tax; the experience of prison-bound debtors, the victims of usury laws; the experience of all those who through the ages have been the victims of intolerance, race prejudice and class conflict; and have been denied equality before the law.

"The experience of those who have opposed the various forms of tyranny which our forefathers came here to avoid—form of tyranny which denied mankind free speech, free assembly, free conscience, freedom of thought and action, freedom of the press—is incorporated in the Constitution. In a word, our Constitution reflected the sorrows, the hopes and aspirations of all the oppressed throughout the world who were the victims of tyrannical governments.

"Yet at no time since the Civil War has the form of government established by the Constitution and under which we have lived for 150 years, a representative form of government, with independent branches, been challenged so openly in and out of Congress. A great national emergency has apparently awakened a movement for removal or radical change in the limitations upon Federal authority imposed by the Constitution. Few stop to realize that this very agitation may ultimately result in destroying the constitutional safeguards of individual liberty. Of course, on the surface this is not contemplated nor desired, but the sweeping changes proposed can lead to no other end.

"It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that throughout the land there are many who are gravely concerned and apprehensive lest in the name of relief to humanity and under the representation that the suspension of the Constiuttion may be temporary, we forget the indispensible requisites of American liberty namely, fidelity and protection to the Constitution, whenever its fundamentals are attacked."

TOWNSEND TAXATION

The investigation of the promoters of the Townsend plan and their methods of doing business, by a committee in the National House of Representatives has already developed some doubtful questions of ethics and procedure on the part of certain of the Townsendites and the alleged records of some of the promoters, which many observers feel will serve to put a decided crimp in the Townsend plan, as a political influence.

However, it ought not to be necessary to call into question the methods used in raising and expending money gleaned from the followers of Dr. Townsend and his friends. These subjects are doubtless proper for congressional investigation, but the impracticability of the scheme itself ought to be enough to convince any thinking American that it will just about ruin the country if it is ever put into practice.

For example, it is estimated that if the Townsend plan is to be financed properly the sum of $24,000,000,000 annually will be required to provide spending money for the aged. It is hoped by the sponsors of the plan, it is said, to raise this stupendous sum through a 2 per cent transaction tax.

Now, the sum of twenty-four billions stuns the imagination. This is nearly three times what it cost the New Deal Government to run the nation in the worst year of the depression. Each year when it has been necessary to raise a sum not more than one-third of the required Townsend old-age money, Congress has been unable to do the task through taxation. That is one reason why the national budget has remained out of balance and the national debt has steadily increased. Yet it is blithely proposed that Uncle Sam, by a new tax plan, raise a great many more times in revenue what he has been able to raise before with burdensome taxation.

The great increase in the cost of living that would fall on the consumers of the nation if any such plan were put into effect, would be ruinous to America. As the Boston Chamber of Commerce recently put it:

"Young married men, struggling to support a wife and children on $1,500 or $1,800 a year would be required to pay from $500 to $900 per year in taxes. They would be reduced to grinding poverty if not absolute starvation in order to support in luxury men and women of 60 or more, many of whom are able-bodied at an age when they normally have no dependents."

The New England economic organization points out, in bringing the situation home to its own people that the Townsend plan would cost the taxpayers of Massachusetts alone the stupendous sum of a billion dollars a year to carry out a plan to pay 9 per cent of the people of the state $2,400 a year, the cost falling on 91 per cent of the population. This would mean, it is added, that taxes would take up half of the income of all wage workers, that business would be ruined and unemployment increase by leaps and bounds.

These are facts which ought to enable the average thinking American to make up his mind about the Townsend plan without waiting for a congressional investigation to probe into the ethics of the situation.

PYROIL Safeguards ALLOY BEARINGS!

Technical Service Bureau, Inc.

June 28, 1935

The Pyroil Company
LaCrosse, Wisconsin.

Gentlemen:

We have just completed a series of chemical and lubrication tests to determine the value of "Pyroil B" on silver alloy bearings. The lubrication tests were made on a calibrated Faville-LeVally testing machine, at the PHOENIX CHEMICAL LABORATORIES, under the direction of their chief lubrication engineer.

Six sets of bearings were broken in three of them with Pyroilized oil and three with the same oil without "Pyroil" at the conclusion of the "break-in", the bearings which had been broken in with "Pyroil" showed 15.1% less friction than did the plain oil lubricated bearings.

In extreme pressure tests conducted to determine the film strength of "Pyroil", the "Pyroilized" bearings withstood a 50% greater pressure before the film broke than did the plain lubricated bearings. In another extreme pressure test, the Pyroil treated bearing showed reductions of 13.5% in friction losses and 30% reduction in temperature rise.

Chemical tests conducted in our laboratories indicate that Pyroil is ENTIRELY FREE FROM CHLORINE AND CHLORINATED DERIVATIVES, as well as other chemicals which are reputed to produce detrimental chemical action on the bearing metal used in these tests.

Very truly yours,

Clanton's Air Fans Got Real Thrill At Airport On Tuesday

Clanton's air pioneers, including Dr. V. J. Gragg, Leo Thompson, Charlie Wade, Harry Walker, as well as people who live close to Gragg Field, were treated to a rare thrill last Tuesday by Mr. J. W. Allen, well known pilot, who has visited in Clanton and worked with would-be fliers for some time past.

Mr. Allen flew up from Montgomery Tuesday, bringing with him Mr. V. W. Burnett, a member of the "Flying Aces", who have been putting on the air act at Montgomery recently. Mr. Burnett was introduced about town to the local fliers as Mr. Crew, from Demopolis, a student flier, just getting his first feel of the joy stick. In reality, Mr. Burnett is a stunt performer of the first water, and has been for some seven years. He knows just about how to do everything with a plane except turn it inside out.

All the local air boys were invited out to the local field, where Mr. Allen was supposed to give Mr. Burnett, or "Mr. Crew", some instruction. When all were present, Mr. Allen gave the new man close instruction, and he was turned loose for a trial hop. And what a hop it was.

The supposed learner took off with many bumps, cart wheels, swoops, and what have you, and finally climbed aloft. Then the real fun began. The local boys had almost swallowed their tongues with fear in watching the near crackups as the new man took off. And once up, he began wild sweeps as would become a learner with the worst kind of attack of nervousness. He headed for the knot of people on the ground, and they forthwith and immediately took to the byways and hedges for safety. A bunch of workmen on the field, seeing the learner heading their way, joined the bird gang in a big way.

Back on the ground, after a rough landing, local fliers tried to soothe the new man's ruffled nerves, encouraging him, and offering all kinds of instruction. Off into the air again he was sent, and his actions were so terrifying that Harry Walker decided he had enough and headed for home. The flier spied him on the road in his car, and wangled the plane over Harry, who immediately, and without ceremony, deserted his auto and took refuge in a nearby home. But not feeling safe there, he came out the back door, bringing with him the family who lived there. All were scared out of their wits, and looked every minute to see the newcomer crash, possibly taking with him several "innocent bystanders". They firmly believed that they had seen a miracle when the flier managed to wiggle himself back to earth again safely.

Mr. Allen said the scene was worth real money to watch, and all the local fliers were wearing funny looking smiles on their faces when being jibed about the affair, afterwards. Harry Walker admitted it was no laughing matter, and stated that he would do the same thing all over again, even if he did know it was a joke.

Mr. Allen stated that it would be no trouble for the borders of the field to be enlarged now, as all the wire fences, briar patches, and nearby juniper bushes had been "stomped" down in the melee. He said the workmen as they fled from the scene, were not particular just which way they went, just so long as it took them to other parts. Ditches, bogs, fences briars, bushes, whatever came in their way, were taken with apparent ease. No one seemed to notice any kind of obstacles.

PLEASANT HILL

Everyone seems to be busy planting their crops and picking strawberries. It seems like the berry season will soon be over.

Our Sunday school is still moving along nicely. We had a very good attendance last Sunday, however, there are still a few who do not seem to be interested in church work of any kind. But we are hoping to have them come out and be with us and help us make our church one of the best. Those who failed to get out for our services last Saturday night missed a mighty good sermon. Although our pastor, Rev. Wm. E. Robinson could not be with us, he sent Rev. M. Lockhart to fill his place, and he preached a mighty good sermon Brother Robinson was with us Sunday and he preached another mighty good sermon. Sunday night we organized our B. T. U. again, as the weather has been so rough until we had to stop our B. T. U. through the winter. Nevertheless, we had a large crowd of boys and girls out Sunday night, ready to start it up again.

Misses Lillian Mims, Jessie Meckler spent Sunday with Misses Hazel Sunday dinner guests of Mr .and Mrs. Pate Aldridge.

Misses Minnie Bolton, Odell Ellison, Willie Mae Davis and Lurlene Blow had dinner Sunday with Miss Pearlene Martin.

Miss Central Cost and Dotha Meckler spent Sunday with Miss Hazel and Alta Blow.

FAVORS GLASS AND HUBBARD

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me space in your paper for a few lines in behalf of Mr. Gerald Hubbard and Mr. Ben Glass in their political aspirations.

First, Mr. Hubbard is well and favorably known over the county. I have known him all of his life. There is no doubt that he is able to fill the office of County Treasurer satisfactorily. As to his party loyalty, he is a staunch Republican, one that would be loyal to the party at all times, and that is what we want and must have.

We have no reason to doubt but that Mr. Hubbard would do his duty in the office and be loyal to his friends, as his beloved father, the late R. M. Hubbard was, and if he did as well as our present Treasurer, we would be indeed fortunate. I regard Mrs. Calloway as the best of treasurers, and equal or superior to any of our other officials in loyalty, kindness, efficiency and otherwise.

Mr. Ben Glass, for commissioner, is a fine young man, loyal, honest and true. I have known him all of his life. I knew his parents. They were really good people. Yes, Mr. Glass is an honest man, and we do not believe he ever has or ever would scratch his ticket. That is the kind we want.

Mr. Glass is a temperate man, and we believe he would look after the peopje's interest and save the taxpayers' money. We know his early training was in the way of economy, temporate, fair - minded, of good judgment, a friend of the burdened taxpayer, a friend to the poor, in office we would not be uneasy about our county.

We write the foregoing with due respect and good wishes to all the Republican candidates for the party.—Mrs. Belle Hubbard, Jemison, Ala.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS HELD A ROUSING MEETING AT MAPLESVILLE FRIDAY NIGHT

Another really enthusiastic and rousing meeting of the Young Republicans was held at Maplesville schoolhouse Friday night of last week, as per the announcement for the past two weeks. The attendance was not so large, but by far the biggest part of those in attendance were within the age limits of eligible members of the club. Everybody was intensely interested in learning about the work, and were anxious to get into harness and really get things humming for the Republican party in Chilton county.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Reuben Bearden, who spoke a few words, and turned the meeting over to the county chairman, T. E. Wyatt. After a brief summary of the purposes of the Young Republicans movement, election of Beat officers was gone into; the result was that Mr. Elvin Atchison was chosen as chairman, and Mrs. S. D. McCary was chosen as secretary.

There were three candidates present—Messrs. J. C. Atchison, Ben Glasscock and E. H. Littlejohn; all three were called upon to make short speeches, and all responded with some fitting remarks of encouragement to the young people in their work.

Next Meeting At Pleasant Grove

It was decided upon and announced that the next meeting of the Beat 7 unit would be held at Pleasant Grove church, Shoults, on Tuesday night, April 28th. Most of the young people present said that they were going to see to it that a good crowd was present at that next meeting. A good speaker will be provided for that meeting, if it is possible to get one.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS ORGANIZE IN BEAT ONE LAST WEDNESDAY

An organization meeting was held at Mullins Academy on Wednesday night, April 15, for the young Republicans of Beat 1. A good crowd was in attendance, and a good meeting was enjoyed.

The order of business for this meeting was as follows:

Prayer, by F. L. Martin.

Reading of organization authority and credentials, by the unit organizer, Paul C. Mims.

In the election of unit officers, Miss Gertie Mae Brand was elected Chairman, and Miss Ressie Ellison elected Secretary. Both these young ladies, as well as the other young people of the Beat seemed very much interested in the movement, and much good work is expected in Beat 1.

Following organization, an explanation of the aims and purposes of the Young Republicans was made by the unit organizer. These remarks were followed by talks by Ellis Ellison, J. F. Jones, F. L. Martin.

When membership cards were distributed, several members signed, and reports were given of a number of other young people of the Beat who are expected to sign cards.

The next meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m., on Wednesday night, April 29th, again at the Mullins Academy school building. Everyone, both young and old, is invited to attend.—Gertie Mae Brand, Chairman; Ressie Ellison, Secretary.

BEN G. GLASSCOCK APPEALS TO VOTERS

Dear voters:

Due to the uncertainty as to what would be done with the Commissioners Court, I have done very little canvassing. In the short time which I have left it will be impossible for me to see all the voters, but I will see as many as I can between now and May 5th. If I should fail to see you, I take this opportunity of soliciting your vote for me for commissioner from the Third District. I will appreciate your vote [illegible] influence.

I believe in the principles of the Republican party. I believe in the Republican Party and have always voted the straight Republican ticket. I stand for economy in the affairs of the county and believe that the people's money should be handled in such a way as to get full value for every dollar spent, and the people who bear the burden of taxes should be given a chance to do as much work as possible.

If I am the nominee in the primary, I will put forth every effort to be elected in November, and if I should win out then I will do my best to serve the people in a way that they will have no cause to regret voting for me. And if someone else is the nominee, I will fall in line with the majority and do what I can to elect our ticket in full in the November election.—Ben G. Glass.

At a meeting of the young Republicans of Beat 2 at Jemison Monday night of this week, a unit of the Federation was organized for that Beat. Lloyd Edwards was elected chairman and Allen Waldrup was chosen as secretary.

Following the work of organizing, in which T. E. Wyatt served as chairman and Grover Bice as secretary, an interesting speech was made by a young man, Mr. Clifford Manning, of Isabella community. Mr. Manning volunteered himself and his services to any young Republican units in the county, and said that if the young Democrats would agree, he would be glad to meet one of their number in a joint debate on the issues of the two parties.

Prayer by P. M. Martin.

CARD OF THANKS FROM SHILOH BAPTIST CHURCH

We, the people of Shiloh church and community, decided on August 10th, 1935, to build a new church, as our old house was not large enough to take care of our people. We now have our new house ready for use, but it is not completed yet. We hope to complete it without making a debt on it. We want to thank each and everyone that has had a part in any way in helping us build.

Having our own timber we only had to raise about five hundred dollars in money, to this amount people from all over the county have donated liberally. Some giving from a small amount up to as high as twenty-five dollars, for which we are very thankful.

We are planning to have a dedication and home-coming service the fifth Sunday in May. All that have had a part in helping build this church, as well as former pastors and members, have a special invitation to come and spend the day with us. We are working out a program for that day so watch the paper for the program.—L. C. Keen, J. I. Bice, Minnie Mullins, Committee.

The ELECTROLUX on display at Wingard Bros. Operates on Kerosene. Call by and see it operate. The local agent for your county may have missed you. Write for folder and other information.—P. R. King, Clanton, Ala.

Lesson for April 26

JESUS LOOKS AT WEALTH AND POVERTY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 16:19-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—The rich and poor meet together: the Lord is the maker of them all.—Proverbs 22:2.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Story of a Beggar Man.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Which Was the Rich Man?
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Money Cannot Buy.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Can We Make Our Social Order Christian?

The topic as given by the Lesson committee is hardly a fair statement. The supreme message is the presentation of contrasted lives and destinies as expressed through the accidents of wealth and poverty. Lazarus was not entitled to heaven because he was poor, neither did the rich man reach the place of torment because he was rich. In this lesson two worlds are unveiled before us, disclosing extremes of character and conditions of persons. In this world we see a rich man reveling in luxury and a poor man in sore affliction begging at the rich man's gate. In the other world we see the same men in reversed positions. These lives were intended to be representive.

I. The Contrasted Lives (vv. 19-21).

1. The rich man (v. 19). He seeems to have lived in a mansion secluded from the common people. He was clothed in costly raiment. He was served the richest food that could be provided. His sin was selfishly to indulge his appetites without consideration for others.

2. The beggar (vv. 20, 21). He was laid at the rich man's gate with the hope of getting at least the crumbs from his table. The rich man gave him no consideration. The dogs of the street were more kind to him than the rich man. Though destitute and helpless, the man's name is most suggestive. "Lazarus" means "God is a help," indicating that a godly life shone through his poverty. Worldly condition is not a sure test of a man's position in the sight of God. All rich men are not wicked and selfish, neither are all poor men godly.

II. Their Contrasted Deaths and Burials (v. 22).

1. The beggar. He was found dead and his body was hurried off to a pauper's grave. No notice was taken of his death by the world. Doubtless the only loss to the world was that he was no longer to be seen at the rich man's gate.

2. The rich man. He also died. His gold could not bribe the messenger of death. Doubtless a costly funeral was held, attended by those who moved in his social class, the officiating priest pronouncing great eulogies over him.

III. Their Contrasted Destinies (v. 23).

1. The beggar. He was at once carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom. Te souls of believers are especially cared for at the hour of death (Phil. 1:23). They go immediately to be with the Lord.

2. The rich man. Though he had an elaborate burial, he lifted up his eyes in hell being in torment. When the veil of futurity is lifted, we see the positions of these men are reversed. The poor man is in the company of just men made perfect because of his life of godliness on the earth, and the rich man is stripped of his purple and fine linen and cast into hell with all wicked men, because while on earth he lived only for selfish ends.

IV. The Reality and Fixedness of Life Beyond the Grave (vv. 24-31).

1. The cry for mercy (v. 24). Dives, which is the Latin name for "rich man," was now willing to claim relationship to Abraham. He was keenly conscious and the appetites which controlled him while on earth were still with him. Part of the torment of hell will be the cravings of appetite and lust with no means of their gratification.

2. Abraham's reply (v. 25). This reply cast the matter back upon the man's memory. He said, "Son, remember." The lashings of a guilty conscience will be most real in hell.

3. Their fixedness. Human destinies are fixed during this life. When one passes out of this life he enters into a condition unchangeable.

4. God's Word is the all-sufficient light (vv. 27-31). Dives now requested that Lazarus go on an errand of mercy to his brethren. He regarded the testimony of a spirit of more value than the Word of God. Many today are more willing to trust the rappings of a ghost than the sure Word of God. Abraham declared that God's Word is sufficient, that those who rejected Moses and the prophets would not repent though visited by one who had risen from the dead.

Hope

Every blade of grass, each leaf, each separate floret and petal, is an inscription speaking of Hope. Consider the grasses and the oaks, the swallows, the sweet blue butterfly—they are one and all a sign and token showing before our eyes earth made into life.—R. Jeffries.

Our Face Values

We stamp our own value upon ourselves, and cannot expect to pass for more.—Marden.

Mr. and Mrs. Matt Barnes of Prattville were guests of Clanton friends Sunday.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Every few days we read in the paper where some high school students are on a strike. This matter should not be treated lightly. It is serious business. If this country is to be dominated by the mob impulse of youth and if young people feel that they can have what they wish by going on a strike, we will produce a nation of lawbreakers.

Sometimes school boards do not do the right thing. Sometimes any course which young people pursue that is contrary to the laws which govern an institution reacts upon these young people and creates in their hearts a spirit of lawlessness and a spirit of rebellion against constituted authority. These young mobs should never be permitted to win. Parents should never want their children to win when they join a mob. There may be justifiable school strikes but the writer, from his personal knowledge, has never known a school strike that was justifiable.

Jesus told about a widow who was persistent in her demands that a judge in the town avenge her adversaries. The editor has seen many women and men similar to this widow. Wherever the judge went the widow was there. She met him on the street and said, "When are you going to avenge my adversaries?" She was waiting for him in the courtroom with the same inquiry. Jesus said the judge granted the widow's request, not because he was interested in the woman or wanted to do right, but because of her persistency. He had to grant what she requested or he could find no time to eat or sleep. The widow was a nuisance to the judge, but she had determination and I admire her persistency. Here is the lesson: "If the judge did grant the woman's request because of her persistency, certainly God, who loves us, will grant our requests." It is the law of life that those who fight hardest for anything appreciate it most when they get it. God who made us, knows that when he commits blessings to persistent people, that they will hold on to these blessings and use them when they get them. The Bible teaches that God does not give things to wavering people. There is a reason. A wavering man would not even keep a special gift from God. The men who have moved the world have been men with indomitable spirits. Nothing could stop Paul—prisons, dungeons, courthouses, stones—nothing interferred with his purpose. It was always with Paul, "this one thing I do." A few thousand uncompromising, consecrated Christians in America at this time could turn the tide and save our government, and by the help of God, bring a great revival to America.

BEELAND SAYS THAT COX VOTED FOR STATE SALES TAX

Montgomery, Ala., April 20.—"It is important that the citizens of Chilton County know that their Representative Mr. Chas. B. Cox, voted to place a ten million dollar sales tax upon the people of Alabama," Jeff P. Beeland, Campaign Manager of the Consumer's Anti-Sales Tax Association, said in a statement issued here this week.

"We feel that it is the duty of the Consumer's Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama to advise the people of the various counties how their Representatives voted on the sales tax measure in order that they might express their disapproval of such action," Beeland said.

"While the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association is non-political and has no political ambitions, its sole duty is to keep the citizens of the state advised as to the activities of their Representatives here at Montgomery," the campaign manager said.

"There is no doubt in our minds but that the governor will soon call another session of the legislature, and that the sales tax issue and other revenue measures will be presented. And we suggest that the people of Chilton County get in touch with their Legislative Representatives and urge that in the future they vote against additional tax measures," Beeland added.

The anti-sales tax official said that the present organization would be developed into a permanent taxpayer's organization, opposed to any extra taxation until the state administration convinced its auditors and financial experts that more taxes were necessary.

You Don't Have to Be A College Graduate to Understand This

THE TVA had in its control 250 million dollars worth of property during the years 1934 and 1935, on which, according to its own annual report, it paid during the year 1935 a mere $16,900 in taxes.

The property of Alabama Power Company and of the Tennessee Electric Power Company equal about the same figure, namely, about 250 million dollars. During 1935 they paid 4½ million dollars out in taxes.

Utility Companies Pay 270 Times More Taxes Than TVA!

In other words, the utility companies paid taxes 270 times as great as the TVA on the same property valuation.

And yet the TVA claims that it pays taxes on the same basis as private companies. You don't have to be a college graduate to understand the error of that statement.

NEW FEED HELPS MILK PRODUCTION AND COW HEALTH

The cow to be a money-maker at her best must freshen and refreshen within 52 weeks of the year, according to Van Pelt, dairy authority of the Purina Mills. When the cow is allowed longer than 12 months for the completed cycle of her yearly work, she automatically sinks to a lower level of profit making, Van Pelt claims. To make a cow's year the most efficient with the greatest returns on the energy expended, the dairyman must take into account the natural characteristics of the cow herself and play them up to the fullest advantage.

Danger at Freshening Period

"There is no time that a cow is more susceptible to costly cow troubles," says Van Pelt, "than at the time immediately following freshening. This particular period easily can be termed a period of susceptibility. Susceptible because she hasn't the strength and the vitality to build up resistance. It is in this particular period when the cow finds herself an easy victim to the disease carrier in the herd whether it be tuberculosis, Bang's disease, mastitis, or any of those troubles that are so malignant in their influence in the dairy herd.

"A cow in calving shrinks herself 130 to 150 pounds. This includes the calf, the placenta, and the water expelled. Following this loss at calving time, finds a slight fill-up or return in weight for the next three days of 12 to 15 pounds. Then, unless the dairyman guards against it by proper methods, he finds a still further shrink of 70 to as high as 90 pounds through the next three months.

Special Feed Required

"In the past dairymen have been inclined to think of holding up on the feed immediately following freshening because they didn't feel that the cow's digestive tract should be overtaxed. But science now makes it possible to start feeding immediately after freshening. Years of experimenting at the Purina Research Farm have resulted in the development of a special feed that is light, easy to digest, cooling in its nature, laxative and building in tissue and bone. With this new feed for the cow two months' before freshening and one month after freshening, the dairyman need not be afraid of overtaxing the cow, because it has been developed especially to fit the cow's digestive and body condition during those periods."

In explaining the result, Van Pelt says, "Everything that the cow lost isn't gained but a refill takes place that guards against any drastic shrink that carries with it so much of the cow's vitality. The results show in a stronger herd, greater foundation, and over a year's time stepped-up milk production. There are fewer replacements to contend with, better quality of udders, greater percentage of conception at breeding time and greater return of net profit in dollars and cents."

RESEARCH FULFILLS COW'S MILK NEEDS

Experimental Farm Lets Dairy Herd Determine What's Needed for Production.

Quite frequently the housewife is heard to say, "This milk is mostly water." Strange to say, the cow that gave the milk will agree with her. As a matter of fact, water is the principal ingredient in milk. As W. R. Arends, well-known dairy authority points out, "The cow needs about 7 times as much water every day as she produces milk. That means a 4 gallon cow should drink about 20 gallons of water daily. Of course, in the winter a cow's water requirements may be a trifle less."

Other important materials in milk are the milk sugars, butterfat, minerals and proteins. According to Arends, the place where dairymen can give their cows the most help in making milk is in a true balance of proteins.

"Some dairymen," says Arends, "feed that protein is protein and that by simply mixing a lot of some protein carrier with grain, the cow gets all she needs in milk making. This is far from the truth, for the proteins in milk are complicated. It takes a combination of different protein feeds to supply all of the elements needed for best milk making.

"Linseed oil meal, cottonseed meal, gluten feed, soybean meal and alfalfa meal are all excellent sources of protein, but anyone of them alone doesn't give a cow all the proteins needed for milk at her best. It takes a carefully blended combination of such feeds to give the cow what she needs in milk-making proteins. Certain high protein concentrates, such as cottonseed meal, are very forcing, and when fed to excess, may cause unlimited cow troubles."

Arends says that a good part of the research work at the Purina Research Farm has been given over to finding out just how much of one and how little of another ingredient is needed to do the best job of making milk at the lowest cost to the dairyman. "Taking nothing for granted and letting the cows themselves determine what's best for milk at the lowest cost, the Purina Research Farm has been able to develop dairy concentrates that are far more profitable for dairymen than those of a few years back. Today a cow can get exactly what she needs without any waste of feed and the dairyman can make more money giving her that kind of feed."

Mr. and Mrs. J. Q. Wade and Mrs. James Wade motored to Birmingham on business Monday.

METHODIST HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN MEETINGS

Montgomery, Ala., April 29.—A plea to all Methodist pastors, laymen and friends of churches in seven districts of the Alabama Conference to attend territorial group meetings to be held in interest of the Methodist Hospital campaign at various points within the next two weeks, was issued from campaign headquarters here this week. The exact dates will be announced later by the presiding elders in the respective districts.

The purpose of these territorial group meetings will be to explain the aims and purposes of the campaign, assign a definite amount to each church and ask for cooperation. Charges will be divided into units of four or five churches and a rally will be held at a particular place with members of the four or five churches attending. Immediately thereafter the active solicitation will be launched in that territory.

Staff assistants from the Montgomery headquarters will attend these meetings and assist the presiding elders and pastors in organization.

PURPLE AND WHITE CAR TAGS FOR 1937

The color scheme used on Alabama's automobile license tags for 1937 will be purple and white—the colors of Spring Hill College, at Mobile, it was announced yesterday by President Cleon B. Rogers of the State Board of Administration. The University of Alabama's official colors represented on this year's tags and Auburn's reproduced a year or so ago.

The exact arrangement of the purple and white combination has not yet been decided on and will not be until advice is received from Probate Judge Matt Boykin, of Mobile, who has been requested to find out from Spring Hill College officials whether they prefer purple figures and letters on a white background, or have the background purple with letters and figures in white.

It will require about 600,000 tags to supply the 1937 demand for licenses, it is understood, because of the provision of an act of the pa Legislature, making it compu for motorists to have a license on both the front and rear of car. No additional charge wi made for the extra plate. The law makes no change in the date of automobile license—Oct. 1, d delinquent date, Nov. 15.

Gov. Graves To Ask For Tax Increases

Plans To Call Another Special Session of Legislature In July

Montgomery, Ala., April 24.—With the news leaking out of the statehouse that Governor Bibb Graves plans to stage a campaign, along with educational leaders, for more taxes in Alabama and that present plans call for another special session of the legislature in July, the people of the state should continue their campaign in the interest of economy, Jeff P. Beeland, campaign manager of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama, said this week on one of his trips to the Capitol City.

"We know that the educational forces, not satisfied with mandate of the people, started an active campaign on the day this past special session of the legislature closed," Beeland said. "However, it will be recalled that while administration forces pounded out the doom of the parity bill in the senate, these same forces were not there to oppose the action of the politicians."

"Our organization has maintained from the first that parity was the only method whereby our schools could get a square deal and our state superintendent, Dr. J. A. Keller, stood up in Birmingham and urged parity, but why didn't the state superintendent fight for the bill in the senate after it had passed the house by a big majority," Beeland added.

"Any effort to force more taxes upon the people of Alabama before economy is practiced will be met by unanimous opposition from an organized citizenship and any call for another special session of the legislature must be broad enough to cover all phases of economy legislation," Beeland said.

"If the politicians go to the people with a campaign based upon camaflauge, we shall go to the people and tell them the truth," the anti-tax official said.

"We are told by some political writers that Governor Graves is planning a gross receipts levy, which is no more nor less than just an ordinary sales tax.

"The governor and the educational forces can get enough money to operate the state government and the schools through economy and we see no reason why they should continue to insist upon more taxes," he added.

Beeland said that the anti-sales tax organization would be held intact as a protective agency for the taxpayers of the state.

COMMUNITY WORKER HERE THREE DAYS THIS MONTH

Miss Margaret Hodo, the community worker for four counties in this area of the state, visited in Chilton county on April 21, 22, 23 and 24. As was stated in an earlier issue of this paper the program of community work is being sponsored by the State Department of Public Welfare in cooperation with the United States Children's Bureau. The purpose of the program is to develop community recreation.

For the present the work will be limited to five selected communities in the county—Clanton, Jemison, Thorsby, Mountain Creek and Stanton—but as the work progresses other communities will be added to this list. In each of the above mentioned towns Miss Hodo has talked with interested individuals and groups and in some instances definite plans have been made to increase the recreational opportunities of the commounities.

The program does not supply any money for recreational equipment or leadership but the services of the community worker are available to any organization which would like help in planning a community project which they, as a group, might undertake.

LOCAL C. C. C. NINE TO PLAY ALABAMA MILL SATURDAY

The local CCC baseball team will engage the strong Cotton Millers Saturday afternoon at the High School diamond at 2:30. The boys from both places have been going strong for a contender for the county championship.

The CCC boys lost to the Millers last Wednesday and are out for revenge. They came back Saturday and handed the New Cedron nine a licking by a score of 3 to 0. Buster Rose for the CCC boys pitched a good game, giving up six hits. Smith for New Cedron got two hits and gave up only three hits.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Glasscock and daughter, Anne, spent Thursday in Montgomery.

CITY BUYS SERVICE CAR

We are informed by the mayor of Clanton that at a recent meeting of the city council, he was instructed to buy an automobile for the use of the city officials and heads of the several city departments in the execution of their official duties.

Accordingly, bids were asked of all local car dealers. These bids were opened last Saturday morning, and as that of Hayes Chevrolet Company was lowest, the car was bought from them—a new Chevrolet Coach. The car has been delivered and paid for, and will be kept at the city hall for official use.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS HOLD FINE MEET AT THOMAS FRIDAY NIGHT

A very interesting and enthusiastic meeting of the young Republicans was held at Thomas High School building last Friday night. It was a joint meeting of Beats 4, 6 and 10, all of which were represented.

Mr. C. D. Hughes, chairman of Beat 10 unit, presided, and L. A. Calloway secretary of the same unit, served as secretary. T. E. Wyatt spoke first, followed by Percy M. Pitts. Mr. W. A. Reynolds spoke to the gathering briefly but most interestingly.

The sprincipal speaker for the evening was Judge J. Osmond Middleton, who was evidently full of the good old Republican spirit, and did not fail to give vent to a great portion of his feelings to the listeners. Dwelling first on national affairs, Judge Middleton came on down to State and county politics, making a most masterful appeal to all to support the party that has meant most to the building and advancement of our great nation.

This meeting at Thomas was one of the best the young Republicans have held in the county.

The recital will include selections from such masters as Verdi, Weber, Beethoven, Tschaikowsky and others. Mary Louise Reinhardt, a senior at the Institute, will assist Peggy in her recital. The public is cordially invited.

WHOPPER SINGING HELD HERE AT COURTHOUSE LAST SUNDAY

The biggest singing, from the standpoint of attendance, that has ever been held in the county was held at the courthouse last Sunday, it being the spring session of the county convention. There were at least three or probably four thousand people at the courthouse and in Clanton for the event. The loud speaker of Mr. Hollis Hiten permitted many people to hear the singing who otherwise would not have heard any of it.

Prof. W. M. Devaughn, the chairman, did an excellent job of handling the situation; but even with his good management, the whole thing was so congested that this condition greatly detracted from the value of the singing.

This gathering demonstrated more than any in the past that Clanton must have a larger auditorium for such functions. We need a place to accommodate at least 2,500, and unless some arrangements can be made for such a building, gatherings like the one last Sunday will have to be abandoned.

COUNTY TO HAVE CHEST CLINIC

The traveling chest clinic, operated by the State Health Department, will be in the offices of the local health unit on Thursday and Friday, April 30th and May 1st.

The purpose of this clinic is to aid the physicians of the county, by means of X-rays and physical examinations, in the early diagnosis of tuberculosis.

It is now recognized that hrough early diagnosis and proper isolation and treatment tuberculosis can be controlled, and eventually eradicated.

Only patients referred by a physician will be examined. but it is hoped that those needing examinations will talk the matter over with their physician, and if he thinks it necessary they can then be referred to the clinic.

This young man is a genial sort of chap, and is well liked by lots of people in Chilton county, both Republicans and Democrats.

Mrs. Dewey Rockett is recovering at her home here, from a recent operation for apendicitis.

Republicans Should Vote In Primary

[EDITORIAL]

The Union-Banner appeals to the Republican voters of Chilont county to go to the polls next Tuesday and exercise your franchise by voting in the primary election. Some may think it not necessary to vote in the primary—that everything will come out all right without you going; but everything may not come out all right. If everybody looks at it that way, you can readily see that most anything would be likely to happen. Any way, a citizen should take enough interest in his county's affairs to take an hour or so off and go to the polls and vote in his primary election.

This primary is not an unimportant one to the county. The Union-Banner wants the Republican party to nominate the men best qualified for the offices to be filled; this will more likely be done if a large crowd of voters take part in the primary than if most of them stay at home and let the other fellow say who will bear the standards of the party in November. And, too, it will show up much better for the party if most of its members will register their choice in this primary election.

Therefore, let us urge everybody to vote in the primary election next Tuesday. We want it definitely and unindelibly registered that the Republican party of Chilton county is a moving, militant affair, and this can best be done by the voters of that preference exercising their suffrage at the polls.

J. Z. MIMS URGES VOTERS TO COME OUT IN PRIMARY

This being the last issue of your paper before the Primary next Tuesday, May 5th, I would like to take this opportunity to appeal to the voters of Chilton county to go to the polls and vote.

No doubt it will be convenient for many of our voters to plow or do some other necessary work, but my friends, you can do this work some other day; you cannot speak with your vote on May 5th on any other day. The tendency of the American people is to neglect their franchise as a citizen, and as this tendency grows also grows the tendency to centralize the powers of government in the county, state and nation.

My fellow citizens, this centralization tendency has already grown to such an extent until, confusion, chaos, and dissatisfaction is rampant throughout the nation. The only remedy is the exercising of our franchise to vote. This is a solemn obligation that every citizen should assume.

May I especially appeal to every Republican to take the time to vote next Tuesday. Go vote for the candidate of your choice and let us nominate a good strong loyal ticket that we may march to victory in November, thereby returning the government of our county to the hands of the people. Yours for good clean government.—J. Z. Mims.

PILOT CLUB WILL SPONSOR GIRL SCOUTS ORGANIZATION

At a meeting of the Pilot Club last Tuesday night, President Mamie C. Smith appointed Irene Smitherman, Gertie Mae Fiquette, and Laura Littleton as a committee to attend to publicity relative to organization of a Girls Scout club, to be sponsored by the Pilot Club.

An organization meeting will be held at the city auditorium Monday night, May 4, at 7:00 o'clock. Miss Margaret Hodo, comumnity worker for Shelby and Chilton counties, as well as Girl Scouts officers will be present at this meeting to assist in organization.

All girls 13 years of age and up are invited to attend this meeting. We will be glad to have their mothers accompany them also.

DR. EDGAR OUT OF OFFICE

Dr. Edgar wishes the announcement published that he will be out of his office from April 26th until May 11th.

J. N. DENNIS URGES VOTERS TO TURN OUT FOR PRIMARY

If you will permit me space, Mr. Editor, I would like to say a word to the Republican voters of the county. As you know, next Tuesday, May 5th, is the primary election, in which you will choose nominees to fill the various offices in the county which become vacant the first of next year. Let us not consider this primary lightly, but let me urge every Republican voter to go to the polls and cast his or her ballot. It may mean much to the party and to the county for you to vote in this election.

It is my sincere hope that we make a fine showing in this primary, by registering a large vote. We have a list of fine men for the offices to be filled—men whom it is an honor for any citizen to vote for. Therefore, let me urge you to forego your daily duties next Tuesday long enough to go to your Beat voting place and exercise your suffrage. Yours for a large Republican vote next Tuesday. —J. N. Dennis, Chairman Chilton county Republican Executive Committee.

"SLOW UP EDDIE" TO BE PRESENTED AT C. C. H. S.

Presented by Senior II and III Classes C. C. H. S. Friday Night May 1st, at 8:00

How would you like to earn a fortune of $50,000 by going to bed at 8:00 o'clock every night for three months? Such is Eddie's chore, according to the terms of his adopted father's freak will. And for a fast-stepping nightbird like Eddie, who frequently neglected to go to bed at all, it is some chore. In case Eddie falls down on the job, the money goes to his relatives.

Some of these scheming kinsmen are a crafty city slicker, a hick widow, her nitwit son, an ex-prize fighter, a typical old-time "b-gash farmer" and two flirtatious flappers. Come, join the crowd and see whether Eddie or the relatives win out in the end.

Those playing the parts are: Della, Edith Parrish; Judy, Mary Newell; Danny Murphy, Jack Gillespie; Patricia Gilden, Thelma Arant; Eve Martin, June Cox; Eddie, Morgan Reynolds; Jake Peters, Quinten Kelly; Prue, Mary Armstrong; Charlie Benton, Emmett Parrish; Trout, John McNair; Seth, John Higgins; Mose, John D. Thomas.

The many friends of Mrs. Jean Wyatt regret to know that she underwent an operation for appendicitis in Birmingham last week.

In addition, there were a number of minor traffic cases, such as improper parking, etc. We were advised that in most cases where first offenses were recorded, offenders were relased with a warning, but in every case where officers warnings were not heeded, fines were assessed.

TO THE CITIZENS OF THE 6th CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

It has been my intention and keen desire to see personally every voter in the Sixth Congressional District, not only to express the appreciation I sincerely feel for your wholehearted and virtually unanimous support, not only because I so thoroughly enjoy doing so, but also because these personal contacts more accurately inform me of the needs and wishes of our people.

Mere words are inadequate to impart to you the depth of my appreciation for your magnificent support. The overwhelming majority with which I feel sure you will see fit to favor me on May 5th strengthens my desire to make you a good Congressman, worthy of the confidence and friendship you have so generously bestowed upon me.

I have conducted no speaking campaign, nor have I appointed any managers, depending on all of my friends, in every county, to constitute themselves my managers in their own sphere of influence. I have preferred to visit you personally, taking leave of absence without pay from my duties on March 1, to indulge in a thorough contact campaign. I have attempted to cement our relationship with a universal bond to organize our future work toward our common welfare. That is the goal toward which we strive. Although it has been a physical impossibility to see each voter personally, I hope to be afforded that opportunity soon, and I anticipate with genuine pleasure the occasion of seeing you all in the future.

I urge all of my many thousands of good friends not to let overconfidence prevent us from obtaining an overwhelming victory, thereby sending me to Washington under the auspicious circumstances of your concerted effort and your solid support. A commanding majority will add greatly to my influence in your behalf in Congress. I trust that every qualified elector will exercise his inheritance and cast a vote on May 5th.

I take this opportunity to reiterate my pledge to work unceasingly for the people of this District. I shall ever hold the duties of office as an avowed public trust, with a cooperative attitude toward all. I thank you again from the bottom of my heart.

Sinecerely your friend,
PETE B. JARMAN, Jr.

FROM J. W. MITCHELL, JUDGE OF HENRY COUNTY

Abbeville, Ala., March 30, 1936.

Hon. Charlie Cox,
c|o Chilton County News,
Clanton,Alabama.

Dear Mr. Cox:

You were asking me the other day about some of the results of the Road Supervisor Law of Henry County.

This local law became effective on January 1, 1933. At that time it was known that the affairs of this county were in bad shape, but the true condition was hardly appreciated by the Commissioners themselves.

We had a sytem down here under which each of our four Commissioners operated his own District. This meant four road crew, four foremen and four different pay rolls. The commissioners went on the theory that each one of them was entitled to one-fourth of the gasoline money, whether it was needed in his district or not.

When the gasoline money began to run into large figures our Commissioners, with no well laid county-wide plan for improving our roads, went on a spending spree. Those Commissioners that represented the smaller districts were determined to "bore with as big an auger" as the ones that represented the more populous districts.

The Commissioners permitted their road foremen to do most of the purchasing of materials, while they themselves looked after the purchasing of the heavy equipment. This means that there were never less than four. and sometimes as many as eight, purchasing agents in one little county. You can imagine the result.

When the Road Supervisor took the oath of office in January, 1933, not only the General Fund, with which the gasoline taxes had nothing to do, but the Gasoline Fund as well, was found to be deeply, almost hopelessly, it seemed, in debt. The Commissioners had not only spent all the gasoline money that came into their hands, but they had let bills pile up on them, had neglected the roads and bridges, and were not replacing equipment as it wore out.

In January of the year mentioned the Road Supervisor "inherited" current debts amounting to more than $15,000, along with some antiquated and worn out road building machinery.

On January 1 of this year all those debts had been paid off and all the old machinery discarded and new machinery bought an paid for. I believe we are still paying on one patrol grader. The state engineers tell us that we are better equipped to build and maintain roads than almost any other county in Alabama. At this moment the Road Supervisor has a balance of over $8,000 to his credit in the depository.

The Commissioners were using both the two-cent and the one-cent gasoline tax moneys, and were unable to make both ends meet. Under our present system the Road Supervisor uses only the two-cent tax money, and we keep the one-cent money, amounting to more than $2,000 per month, for special or unusual road and bridge purposes. We now have on deposit in this money approximately $25,000. Not counting $30,000 of the one-cent money spent in paving, the Road Supervisor has turned into the Commissioners Court $29,000 since he has been in office. Until a recent act of the Legislature ruled us out, we were applying this surplus to our Road and Bridge Bonded debt, with results that speak for themselves.

In January, 1933, interest on all of these bonds had lapsed and some of the bonds had matured and had not been redeemed. There was at that time among the holders talk of coming together and asking the Federal Courts for relief. With the help of the one-cent money we paid up all the past due interest, retired the bonds that had matured, and went into the market and bought additional bonds at consierably less than par. When the Road Supervisor law went into effect our Road and Bridge Bonds were quoted at around 55, with no takers. Today they are quoted at around 104 but cannot be bought at that figure.

Recently, in order to secure some hard surfacing on an important State road which traverses this county, we were able to pledge in excess of $75,000 of the incoming gasoline money to the State Highway Department. We could not have thought of doing that three or even two years ago.

Men who travel a good deal over Alabama say that our county roads are among the best sand-clay roads in the State. Our Road Supervisor gets $100 per month and expenses, and beginning next January will get $125. Commissioners get $30.00 per month, each.

In my opinion, the Road Supervisor's office in this county should pay not less than $200.00 per month. It has proved the best piece of local legislation passed in a generation. If your county contemplates similar legislation, I can assure you that you should have no difficulty in justifying the change. Down here, we would not care to go back to the old system.

With best regards, I am sinecerely yours, J. W. Mitchell, Judge of Probate.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala.—Appointment of student publications officials at the University of Alabama was completed this week by the Board of Publications with the selection of Ben Fuller, Tuscaloosa, as Business Manager of the Corolla, University yearbook, and three men to direct the work of the Rammer-Jammer, monthly student magazine.

Hadley Howard, Fort Benning, Ga., was named editor of the Rammer-Jammer, which is to be converted into a semi-literary magazine. Peyton Williams, Jr., Clio, will be Literary Editor and Graduate Advisor; and Oliver W. Brantley, Troy, will be business manager.

Wilbert Jordan, Robertsdale, was elected president of the student Y. M. C. A. at the University in elections just voted. Richard Mansfield-Jones, Wilson Dam, was victorious in the race for vice-president, as was Robert Stripling, Montgomery, in that for the position of secretary-treasurer.

A bust of Dean Albert J. Farrah, Dean of the School of Law here, was presented to the Law School recently by the members of the law student body. The presentation was made by Luther Hearn, Birmingham, a student, on behalf of the students, and was accepted by Dr. George H. Denny on behalf of the University.

Hon. Cary D. Landis, Attorney-General of Florida and a life-long friend of Dean Farrah, delivered the principal address at the ceremony, which was held in the conjunction with the school's Class Day Exercises.

A plea for a four-year medical school at the University was made by Dean Stuart Graves, of the School of Medicine, in a talk this week before Alabama Medical Alumni, at the banquet held in their honor at the meeting of the Alabama Medical Association.

The chief reason for the need for a full-time medical school here, stated Dr. Graves, is the fact that students of medicine from Alabama are forced to go elsewhere to finish their courses, and are reluctant to return to the station where they are badly needed afterward.

THOMAS H. MAXWELL FOR
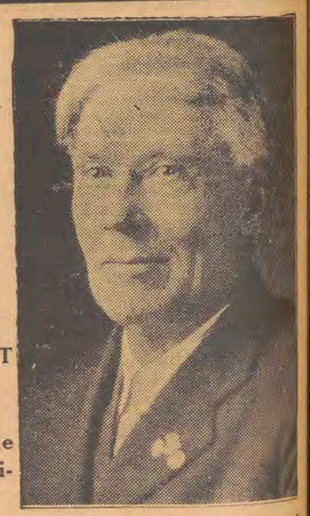
TO REPRESENT
ALABAMA'S 6th DISTRICT

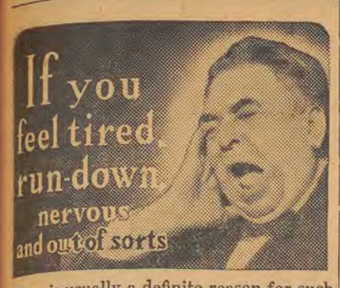


Subject to the action of the May 5th Democratic Primary.

He is a native son of Tuscaloosa County, Route 1, and campaigns in the district of his residence. He is not on the payroll of any state or corporation and therefore, shall work to enact his platform:

1.—Collective bargaining for the organized farmer and organized industrial labor.
2.—A wholly Federal pension for the aged of $30.00 per month to all whose incomes fall below $1,000.00 per year, administered by States.
3.—A sufficiency of Constitutional money for conducting the nation's business without borrowing.
4.—Federal loans to sovereign states at one-half of one per cent interest per annum for use in schools, other institutions, and to liquidate bonded indebtedneess.
5.—Erosion and flood control of rivers with conservation and development of power for electrifying the most humble home.

Mr. Maxwell is a farmer, member of the American Farm Bureau Federation, a Legionnaire of 17 months' service in France, and a Spanish War Veteran.



There is usually a definite reason for such complaints...so, now let's reason sensibly.

Don't try to get well in a day...this is asking too much of Nature. Remember, she has certain natural processes that just cannot be hurried.

But there is a certain scientific way you can assist by starting those digestive juices in the stomach to flowing more freely and at the same time supply a balanced mineral deficiency the body needs.

Therefore, if you are pale, tired, lack a keen appetite, have lost weight and feel rundown...a frequent sign that your blood-cells are weak, with a tendency towards anemia—then do try in the simple, easy way so many millions approve—by starting a course of S.S.S. Blood Tonic.

Much more could be said—a trial will thoroughly convince you that this way, in the absence of any organic trouble, will start you on the road to feeling like yourself again. © S.S.S. Co.

A. P. VINSON APPEALS TO VOTERS

Edieor Union-Banner:

The campaign is about over and I want to say through your paper to the voters of this county that I have made a clean canvass, but it has been impossible for me to meet all of the Republican voters in person. I have not made any rash promises, I have only made such promises as I thought I could carry out if I am elected. In my announcement and in a former letter, I said to the voters of this county that if I was nominated and elected that I was opposed to the County's buying and operating trucks or any other machinery where the people of the county could furnish their teams and do the work in the place of the machinery, and I promise the taxpayers of the county that if I am elected, that I will be opposed to raising the people's taxes in such depressed times as we are now having. I think that the county should reduce its expenses to meet the depression, and not raise the people's taxes because there are many people in the county that cannot pay the taxes that are already assessed them.

I believe in the rule of the majority of the people and when the recent bills were before the Legislature to abolish the Commissioner's Court, I went to Montgomery and was ready to help and render any services that I could to defeat these bills. While I did not have the influence and did not know how to work this matter like Judge Reynolds and others did, but as I stated, I stood ready to render any services that I could and the people of this County will never be able to repay Judge Reynolds for the services he rendered in this matter and his life work for the people of the County.

In fact, we all should appreciate everybody that helped to defeat these bills, and I do not believe the people will ever forget them.

I hope every Republican voter in the county will go to the primary, leave out their prejudice, and seriously consider the best interest, not only of the Republican Party, but all of the people of the County, considering the the road work to be done, the experience I have had and how I worked and kept up the roads when I was in office, and then vote their honest convictions, and that each voter can console himself on the fact that he voted an honest ballot and what he considered the best interest of all the people of the County. I promise the voters of this county that whatever their verdict is, that I will be satisfied with it, and again say to you that if I am elected, that I will give you the best effort that there is in me to serve you faithfully.—Respectfully,

A. P. VINSON

GERALD HUBBARD MAKES APPEAL TO THE VOTERS

To the voters of Chilton County:

As most of you know, I am one of the candidates for the office of county treasurer, subject to the action of the Republican Primary, to be held next Tuesday, May 5, 1936. Owing to the fact that my duties as a farmer have been unusually heavy recently, I have been prevented from making a thorough canvass and seeing many of you. It is for this reason that I am taking this method to tell you who I am and what my qualifications are and asking you for your vote and influence.

I desire to state that I reside in Beant 9, Collins Chapel community, and that I am engaged in farming. I am the oldest son of Monroe Hubbard and Fannie Bell Rasberry Hubbard, both deceased. I am also the grandson of Tom J. Hubbard, a former Tax Collector of this county and a lifelong Republican. This also applies not only to my grandfather but to my father and to me. I have always believed in the principles of the Republican party and have never seen fit to cast my ballot any other way than for the Republican ticket. Ever since I became 21 years of age, I have voted the Republican ticket and have worked unhesitatingly in its behalf.

I received my education at Jemison High School and then became engaged in the mercantile business with my father in the town of Jemison. I remained there for about 14 years. During this time I had a great deal of business experience, also bookkeeping experience, which I feel would qualify me to efficiently do the work in the treasurer's office should the voters see fit to nominate and elect me to that office.

If I am nominated and elected to the office as treasurer, I will devote all the time that I can to that work and will give the very best service that I possibly can.

I want to assure you that I will appreciate the nomination in the coming primary. I also want to assure you that if I should be defeated in this primary and that should you see fit to nominate some other candidate that you will always find me on the firing line for the Republican ticket in the future.

Thanking you in advance for any support you might give me, I am respectfully yours.—Gerald Hubbard.

PETE JARMAN VISITS HALE COUNTY AND GREENSBORO

Pete Jarman, candidate for Congress from this district, spent a short while in Greensboro last Saturday. He says he has covered much of Hale county, and hopes to see all the voters before the campaign closes. Pete is highly elated at the reception he receives wherever he goes in the district. "Since the 1st of March," Mr. Jarman said, "I have had a leave of absence without pay from my job in Montgomery and have devoted the time to canvassing." Hale county will give him a large majority in the primary to be held on the 5th of May. —The Greensboro Watchman, April 23rd.

TOP-DRESS with POTASH

Stop rust and get profits

Apply 100 Pounds Muriate of Potash at Chopping Time

RUST IS A SURE SIGN OF POTASH STARVATION. Cotton needs extra potash to prevent rust, reduce wilt, and increase yields. Without sufficient potash, cotton plants become weak and show lack of vigor. Leaves turn yellow and drop off prematurely. Bolls are small, poorly developed, and hard to pick. Yields are low, lint is of poor quality and lacks uniformity.

Southern Experiment Stations have found that where cotton rust appears, a liberal application of muriate of potash per acre should be applied as a top-dresser. This is in addition to the potash in the fertilizer mixtures used at planting.

The Mississippi and Arkansas Experiment Stations have found that the addition of potash will decrease wilt and greatly increase yields.

POTASH SHOULD BE APPLIED TO COTTON AS A TOP DRESSER IMMEDIATELY AFTER CHOPPING. WHERE RUST IS BAD, 100 POUNDS OF MURIATE OF POTASH PER ACRE WILL PAY LARGE DIVIDENDS.

More Potash means More Profit

CONDEMNS STATE DEMOCRATIC HAND-PICKED EXECUTIVE COM.

When the Handpickers on the State Democratic Executive Committee first ravished the principles of the party, and said Democrats should not elect their own representatives in the primary, they did it by a simple resolution which was adopted by a majority of about 32 to 1. The minority on the committee has kept up the fight against handpicking ever since, and now asks the rank and file of the party to go to the polls on May 5th and take advantage of the only means to register their condemnation of the outrageous action of the majority, by voting for Judge Leon McCord and Mrs. A. Y. Malone for National Committeeman and National Committeewoman, both of whom have consistently opposed handpicking from the start. The defeat of these Democrats would indeed be a calamity to the State and the handpicking ringmasters could well construe the election of the candidates opposing McCord and Mrs. Malone as an endorsement by the people of handpicking, and a license to run the State hereafter in their own high-handed way.

The minority has done all it possibly can for the present, and now hopes voters of the rank and file will come to its assistance and elect McCord and Mrs. Malone by the biggest majority ever cast in Alabama.

VOTE FOR McCORD AND MALONE.—David S. Anderson, Member State Democratic Executive Committee, Ninth District of Alabama.

PASTORS CONFERENCE

Thorsby Institute News

Last Saturday night the last open meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society was held. The first number was a musical skit 'The Spanish Cavalier" in which six boys played guitars and sang to a Spanish maiden (Margaret Golson). The operetta "False Fernanda" followed. All the parts were taken by girls. The setting was in Spain. The scenery was very attractive. The major parts were taken by Inez Jackson, Mary Louise Reinhardt, Elizabeth Williams and Lessie Rasco. No one had to be prompted and the operetta moved along very smoothly. Miss Foss played the accompaniment.

Next Saturday afternoon Peggy Franklin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Franklin, is to give a piano recital by herself at 3 o'clock in the Institute auditorium. She is the most advanced of Miss Foss's younger music pupils. Everyone is invited. A week from next Saturday at the same hour the rest of her younger pupils will give a recital.

On the night of May 22 the Senior Class will have its class night exercises. They will also present the play "The Albany Depot", by William Dean Howells. Admission will be charged for this. The amount will be announced later.

On Saturday afternoon, May 23, a music recital of the older music pupils of Miss Foss will be given at 3 o'clock in the auditorium. That night the alumni will have a meeting at 7 o'clock, followed by a party for the seniors.

Sunday morning, May 24th, at 11 o'clock in the auditorium, the Baccalaureate Exercises will take place, at which Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of the Baptist church, will preach.

Monday morning, May 25th, at tenthirty, the Commencement Exercises will take place. There will be special music and two essays will be read by the highest ranking pupils. Rev. Jas. M. Graham, D. D., pastor of the Presbyterian church of Prattville, will give the Commencement Address. Many Thorsby people know Dr. Graham, who used to live at Thorsby. After the address there will be a community dinner on the grounds, to which each family interested in Thorsby Institute is asked to bring a well-filled basket and join in the dinner. After the dinner it is expected to have a base ball game.

As Miss Elizabeth Glasson, who has been commercial teacher and office secretary at Thorsby Insituute for two years, has decided to study at Scarritt College for Christian workers in Nashville, Tenn., next year, her place has recently been filled by the executive committee of Thorsby Institute trustees. Miss Elizabeth Monroe of Flowery Branch, Georgia, has been chosen. Since March, 1935, she has been secretary of the Appointment Bureau of Piedmont College and before that was secretary to the Dean of Piedmont. She is recommended by the college as one of its best students, ranking very high in scholarship, a young woman of culture, high ideals and Christian character. Miss Monroe is well-equipped to teach all the commercial subjects, having had a full year's course in each. She has taught private pupils in Secretarial work, and has had expeprience in teaching other subjects as High school substitute teacher. She has been actively interested in teaching in Vacation Bible School in her home town. We are saorry to lose Miss Glassin as she has taken a real interest in her work and is a tireless worker. Her pupils have enjoyed her classes very much.

We wish to thank publicly Mr. Konrad Carlson for the fine strawberries he has given the dormitory and also Mrs. Stanley for the delicious cakes she sent us last Saturday in memory of her mother's birthday.

Christian Endeavor News

The topic of the Christian Endeavor program for Sunday night was: "Permission to Rob." William Sharp was the leader. Several phases of gambling were presented. A report from the state Christian Endeavor Convention was also given by our delegate, Miss Ruth Higgins.

NEW CEDRON CLUB LOSES 3 TO 0

A pitching duel between Smith and Rose in which Smith struck out 7 and gave 4 hits, and Rose struck out 6 with 6 hits, ended 3 to 0 last Saturday.

One high ball over first with a man on third and an error by Devaughn cost 2 of the three runs for the CCC team. Hits by Traywick and Rose, with a sacrifice by Rutherford in the seventh netted the only earned run for the CCC team.

Hurler Smith was star swatter. He collected one double and one single. Anthony, from the camp, got the second and last double of the game.

Even though the Cubs out-hit the CCC team, Rose kept them so scattered they could not score.

Next game will be next Saturday—Cubs vs. Dobb's on the New Cedron diamond. We cordially invite every one to come and see the game.

(MRS.) CARRIE DORMINEY SHAW MAKES APPEAL TO VOTERS

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

I want to make a last appeal to the voters of Chilton county to give my candidacy for the office of county treasurer a close consideration before casting your vote in the primary on May 5th.

I am making this race wholly on my own merits of the record of my life and upon my fitness to fill this position. To those who are not acquainted with me, I want to insist that you investigate my character, my standing in my community, and my ability to fill this place, and if you find I am capable and worthy to fill this place I most earnestly solicit your vote.

This office is the only elective office in Chilton county ever held by a lady, and it has never been filled by a man since it has been elective. I think that this is the only office that is conceded that a lady can successfully fill, I am the only lady asking for this place, and I conscientiously think this entitles me to a fair claim to the position. However, I am leaving my fate in your hands, and I am wholly submissive to the voice of the people, and your choice on the fifth of May will be my choice in November.

In my closing remarks, permit me to say that I hope every voter, both men and women, will go to the polls on May 5th and let us show our full strength for the old Republican party of Chilton county.

Again let me say this—If you believe me worthy and competent to fill the place to which I aspire I most earnestly solicit your vote and influence, and I can assure you that you can not vote for any one who will appreciate your help more than I will.—Very sincerely, (Mrs.) Carrie Dorminey Shaw.

FAVORS O. L. DEVAUGHN FOR COMMISSIONER 4TH DISTRICT

To the Republican voters of Chilton County:

I take great pleasure in recommending to you Mr. O. L. Devaughn, who is a candidate for commissioner from the 4th District, subject to the action of the Republican primary to be held next Tuesday, May 5th.

I have known Mr. Devauughn practically all of his life, and have lived a neighbor to him for a number of years, and I have always found him to be an upright Christian gentleman of the highest type.

Mr. Devaughn has made a success in managing his own affairs and has always shown interest and taken an active part in public affairs, such as road, church and school matters. I believe that he is fuly qualified to fill the place for which he is asking and if he is nominated and elected he would help to manage the affairs of the county in an economical and progressive manner, with equal justice to all and special favors to none, and that you would never have the first cause to regret having voted for him.

I am not writing this because I have any ill will or ill feeling toward any of the other men in this race, but because I believe Mr. Devaughn is competent fro mevery point of view, and that he is entitled to the nomination and election this time.

I sincerely trust that every voter will give Mr. Devaughn careful consideration and if you can give him your support next Tuesday, May 5th, it will be very greatly appreciated. —Yours very truly,

Elder. A. T. Davis

(Paid pol. adv. by O. L. Devaughn, Clanton, Alabama, Route 2.)

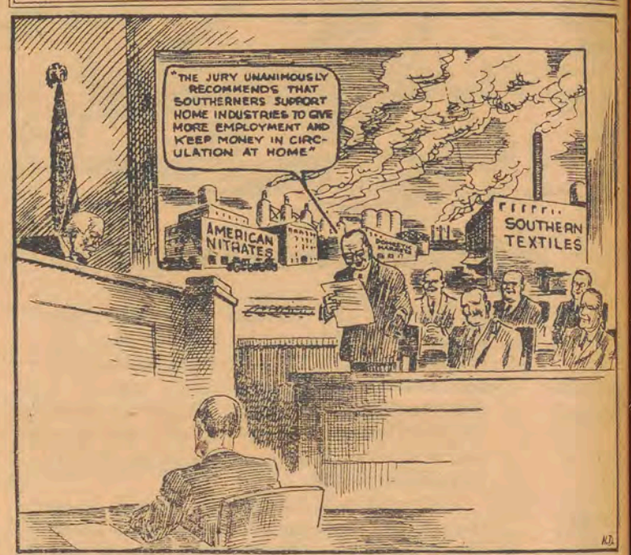
The South's Verdict



Should we purchase goods made in the South, when they are just as cheap and just as good as foreign products, or should we send our money out of the country?

Leading Southerners have given their verdict on this important matter in a booklet being distributed by the Agricultural Development Bureau of The Barrett Company. Speaking of the movement started a year ago by Dr. Charles H. Herty, when he made a plea to support home industries, the Bureau's State Supervisor says that all Southerners "have an unique opportunity to contribute to their own prosperity and that of the entire South by supporting this movement."

Many men prominent in the affairs of the State are quoted, and the weight of their combined opinion should make itself widely felt.

FARMERS AIDED BY PROGRAM

The 1936 crop season is on and 217 of Chilton county's farmers are planting and getting ready for the harvest with the aid of the federal government's rural rehabilitation program, acording to Marvin Durbin, county supervisor for the Resettlement Administration.

Loans to these 217 farm families total $41,181.63. This is an average per family of $189.77, below last year's average of $204.30 by $14.53. The 1935 loans did not include payments to landlords for rent. The loans include $97,773.50 for payment of cash rent. Without this rent the average loan for 1936, would be $144.73 compared with $204.30 in 1935.

This difference reflects a substantial improvement in the economic position of many of the county's farmers in the opinion of Mr. Durbin, who pointed out that the whole benefit never will be told in figures because of the additional values measured only in terms of relief from human suffering and the improved business conditions locally resulted from an increas- payments on the loans advanced to

"Of the total number of farmers on the program this year," Mr. Durbin said, "ninety-five have continued on the program from last year. Their diligence and honest attempts to come back have been demonstrated in their payments on the loans advance to them on that program. Now this year is bringing them as well as others who have been added to the roll new opportunities."

Since the rehabilitation office was established in Chilton county, Mr. Durbin said, 362 farmers have been aided by the program. He said the work of the county advisory committee, composed of J. W. Fant, Ruth Pardue, W. A. Gulledge, Lena Downs, and H. S. Shaw, and C. D. Foshee, E. R. Piper and D. I. Deramus, of the Farm Debt Adjustment committee, of which E. R. Piper is chairman, and of J. W. Fant and Ruth Pardue county agricultural and home demonstration agents, has been invaluable in giving this assistance to these farmers.

Mr. J. W. Hayes was a business visitor in Birmingham last Thursday.

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

"I should like to become a Christian, but I have been mistreated so many times by church people". The writer has heard that many times in his evangelistic campaigns. Here is the answer. I walk down the street, and a man hits me in the face. "Why do you hit me?" I ask. "A man in the next block hit me in the face," the stranger answers. "I didn't hit you. You have no right to hit me because some other man hit you." That is my reply. Jesus Christ hasn't done a sinner any harm. He loved and died for the vilest sinner. About the meanest man I know is the man who walks up and hits Jesus Christ in the face and then explains that the reason he dit it was because some body hit him. If a man wishes to hit the man that hit him, it might not be altogether Christian, but anybody could understand that. Think of a man hitting an innocent party because some guilty party hit him. This shows just about how much common sense the average man has when it comes to religion.

"God loves me too much to send me to hell, therefore, I will not become a Christian". The writer has heard that, too. Here is a good illustration I heard one time. A little boy has typhoid fever. His mother nurses him for weeks. She watches by his bed at night. He eventually gets well, but his mother is left weak from the strain of nursing her boy. She goes to bed with typhoid fever. The doctor comes to see her and tells the family the mother cannot live. One day the little boy is out in the yard with his little sister. They are paying around among the flowers their mother had planted. "I am going to pull up the flowers," the little boy says to his sister. "You mustn't pull up these flowers. Mama wouldn't like it. She planted them and she said to take care of them." The boy begins to pull up the flowers as he says, "I don't care what mother said. She is sick and she couldn't whip me anyhow. If she could whip me, she wouldn't because she loves me so much. She nursed me when I was sick and wore herself out for me Now, she has typhoid fever. She is weak and she is going to die. She is so weak from nursing me the doctor says she has no resistance and she is going to die, so because mother loves me, I am going to pull up all the flowers." That little boy is a Christian gentleman compared with any man that lives in rebellion against God, refuses to become a Christian, and gives as an excuse that God loves him too much to damn him.

DEMOCRATS CHEER NEGRO CONGRESSMAN'S WARNING

House democrats gave a standing ovation to Representative Mitchell, (D), Illinois, only negro member at the conclusion of a speech in Washington, April 22, warning the Republican party it "no longer" had the negro vote "in its vest pocket." A half dozen times through the 20-minute speech, democrats applauded loudly. "Only during the last four or five years have negroes felt the Democratic party was a safe place to live and vote," he said. Mitchell cited the Illinois primary demonstration for President Roosevelt as indicative of change.

In the face of continued bombardment with high explosive legislative shells, along with the political poisonings of exaggeration, misstatement, and half-truths, is it any wonder that business is not expanding, investing money, and employing labor in a normal manner?

It seems about as difficult to vote the Democratic ticket in Germany as it is to vote the Republican ticket in Mississippi.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

One fact which is now becoming apparent is that in the coming political campaign, President Roosevelt will not remain idle in the task of the Democratic National Committee to line up the voters of the country in support of the New Deal. The speech before the Young Democrats at Baltimore recently was only a beginner. The President will speak, between now and November to many more organizations and will be seen in different parts of the country, probably all the way from Boston to Dallas. It will be no front porch campaign so far as the Democratic strategy is concerned.

There may be more than one reason for this. In the first place, admirers of the President continue to assert that he is much stronger with the people than is his party—even sronger than the acts of the New Deal which have come in for such abundant criticism during the past few months. Again, there are not so many Democratic spell-binders available for the New Deal as one might think without examining the situation. Perhaps the two most outstanding are Secretary Wallace and Secretary Ickes. These two men, however, do not have a long record as Democrats and there can be some doubt as to how much appeal they would have with the rank and file of the "Jeffersonian" party. But it will probably be difficult to get such old line Democrats as Al Smith and John W. Davis, enthusiastic about the success of the New Deal in 1936 so that after all, it is sound Democratic strategy to have the President himself make as many personal appearances as possible during the campaign.

The dearth of regular Democratic speakers of the first rank for the campaign might seem more serious to the Democratic strategists in the campaign were it not for two things. First, is what they claim as the unusually strong, strategists more worried than anything the voters. Second is the fact that just about the time the campaign gets hot there will be an apparently unending stream of government checks flowing to all parts of the country, and especially into farm states, to say nothing of the regular governmental-relief expenditures.

It is the traditional pulling power of Federal money which has the Republican strategists more worried than anything else at this time. If they can find a way to counteract it with argument or other persuasion they feel that they have an excellent chance to win.

It may be stated also that in this year of 1936 the Republicans are going to make an unusual effort to elect members to Congress. The wisdom of this strategy is clear. Even if the Republicans were to win the presidency they would be faced by a hostile Senate which might be counted on to block as many moves as possible designed by the new administration. A friendly House of Representatives would be fine, but even this could have no effect on the Senate.

Yet if the New Deal wins the presidency and the Republicans can gain even a slender majority in the House, or so large a minority that it might control things in Congress by uniting with anti New Deal Democrats, of which there are bound to be a few, then the G. O. P. might hope to block the Brain Trust in carrying some of its theories into action and lay the foundation for a successful national campaign in 1940. Many political experts of both parties agree privately that the next four years are going to furnish tough sledding for the next President no matter who he may happen to be. They point out that axes will have to be raised and expenses reduced and they are of the opinion that this might not be a pleasant time to live around Washington.

Be this as it may the Republicans undoubtedly have their eye on Congress this year. They have a smooth-running and efficient Congressional Committee in the Press club building in Washington, and are all set to put up a real campaign.

THE ROAD TO INFLATION

The danger of inflation in the United States continues in spite of the fact that we do not hear so much about it now as formally. The people seem less concerned, perhaps for the very reason they have heard so much about a peril, which up to this time has not become noticeable. It is said that soldiers in the trenches became less concerned over the danger of bombshells after they have heard the accompanying noisy threat a great many times without disastrous personal results.

Yet so long as the present fiscal policy of the national government continues it cannot be said that we are entirely outside the probability of inflation.

Inflation, the experts have told us time and again, may be due to expansion of currency or of credit. In spite of the devaluation of the dollar it does not seem likely now that we will have outright currency inflation as was the case in post-war Germany. The conditions are entirely different. Neither does there seem to be much prospect of credit inflation through loans to industry in greater amount than the industries can stand, nor through a runaway stock market. The real danger of inflation, if we are really to enter into it in a big way, comes from greatly expanded government borrowing with an all-time high and steadily increasing national debt. This is due, of course, to the present spending policies of Washington.

After dismissing other possibilities of national debt. This is due, of course, to the present spending policies of Washington.

After dismissing other possibilities of national inflation as not now imminent, Orrin G. Wood, president of the Investment Bankers Association of America said recently in an address in New York:

"The third and last lane leading to the road of inflation is governmental borrowing due to large, unbalanced budgets. If inflation comes I am certain that it will march down this lane. In fact I think it is slowly marching down this lane today.

"Four years of heavy deficits have passed and each year we have hope for a definite trend toward a balanced budget. Each year we have been disappointed. This coming year, due to a large increase in the ordinary expenses of the government, invalidation of the processing taxes and the bonus, the Federal deficit bids fair to be the largest of the depression, by very substantial figures."

Mr. Wood has called attention to an important fact and one which the American people would do well to consider. If we are to have real inflation, which does not seem to be at all impossible, it is very likely that it will be forced on us primarily by unbalanced budgets and greater Federal borrowing because of the inability of the government to find revenues, through taxation, to balance the budget, without assessments which would have violent political repercussions.

If we really want to avoid inflation, which would be nothing short of a national calamity, let us lift our voices in favor of decreased Federal expenditure, and a balanced budget.

AT LEAST HAVE OUR WARNING

After the President's speech in Baltimore last evening, a speech that is regarded generally as the opening gun of the 1936 political campaign, it can at least be said that the American people have been fully warned as to what will happen if they give Mr. Roosevelt a re-election. There will be more "social pioneering," more costly experimentation, more demands upon industry in the form not only of higher taxes but of calls for additional jobs and increased wages, more derision for those who believe in a stabilized currency and more contempt for the attitude of those individuals who are so old fashioned as to think that the nation should put its financial house in order.

This, then, is the Roosevelt program. Doubtless, it is only part of it, because as the campaign progresses and as the necessity arises for corralling votes here, there and everywhere, bait of another kind probably will be offered to the bewildered voters. On one point, however, there seems to be no room for a difference of opinion. The capitalist system and employers individually are to be made the cause of the depression and the enemies of prosperity. "It seems reasonable," says the President, "that industry can contribute in great measure to the increase of employment if industry as a whole will undertake reasonable reductions of hours of work per week, while, at the same time, they keep the average individual's pay envelope at least as large as it is today.

Here, in essence, is a proposal for the revival of one of the features of the NRA but amended in such a way as to put all instead of part of the burden on industry. Employers whose businesses sufferend so severely under the restrictions of the Recovery Act and who did not begin to get on their feet until the act was declared invalid, are now asked not only to reduce the hours which their men shall work but to pay them at least as much as they are paid today. This may be "social pioneering" but it is likewise a step toward industrial bankruptcy.

In suggesting that the working-age limits of American citizens should be from eighteen to sixty-five, the President has taken a thin leaf from the notebook of the Townsendites. He does not, to be sure, ask the creation of a revolving fund or a special Government monthly grant to the aged but he does adopt the argument that the elimination from industry of all above a certain age would make more jobs for the young. The reasoning is clear enough, of course. The only question is how to provide the funds required to put the plan in effect. Certainly the social security law passed by the present Congress will not do it, even though it does impose levies on business and the Federal Treasury that promise eventually to overwhelm both. Certainly industry, faced with ever-growing taxes by national, state and local governments, cannot reasonably be called upon for further contributions. Certainly the individual worker will object to any effort to make him pay still more now for later security. With these three sources of revenue closed, in what direction does the President propose to turn for help?

Such things as a definite gold content in the monetary unit, restoration of private ownership of gold, and putting Federal finances in order are dismissed by Mr. Roosevelt as "panaceas." But they did work once. It is just possible that they might work again, especially the last of the three.—Boston Transcript.

With the great increase in the consumption of peanuts, walnuts and pecans, the experts tell us the nation is becoming nut conscious. It's too bad our nut consciousness doesn't get around to some of our economic theorists, too.

Secretary Ickes charges that President Hoover let the needy "starve". So when the New Dealers came in they sought to remedy this by hiring the farmers not to raise so many hogs and so much wheat.

MAN IN THE MOON

OUR NEXT LEGISLATORS

When the time comes for us to pick our next legislators, the people are going to be careful. Not that we haven't exercised some care in the past, but now that our people have come to understand just how far-reaching is the power of these representatives, John Public is going to attach much more importance to these jobs, and, likewise, will pay much more attention to "the man" he is voting for in those positions.

The next representative from this county, and the next senator from this district is going to have to be plenty good. In the first place, he must preface his announcement for the job with at least one promise—that he will recognize the desire of the people. But a promise will not be enough—we had promises, you will remember, from the present incumbents. He will have to have a personality and an appeal that will register with the rank and file of voters, that he may be able to impress upon them his sincerity of purpose in making his promises. Further than that, he will have to be able to show a record, wherein he has respected the will of the people in the past. The last named attribute will be the most valuable asset any candidate for either of these offices can possess.

No Jack-in-the-box can jump up with a lot of promises of intended legislation, and register applause with the public. The public has been fooled so often and so effectively that it is getting old to them. Most people have an idea (and very probably a correct one) that we already have too many laws. Perhaps candidates for these offices in the next campaign might do better on a platform of trying to do away with a few laws. People have grown tired of restrictions. The time has come when people can hardly call their souls their own, and it doesn't set so well. There may come a time when America can be successfully regimented, when our people will give in passively to being told what they can or cannot do, but that time is not yet here.

What our people want is true representation in the legislative bodies. They want men there who will determine their desires, and be guided thereby. They are not interested in people who have ideas in what is best for the people—they want people who will try to get for them the measures which they (the people) want. Our next legislators will have to sell themselves to our voters along these lines.

A MESS OF POTTAGE

You will remember the first man who sold his birthright for a mess of pottage.

As this column has stated on so many occasions, we are as glad as anyone to see the needs of unfortunates filled, but we can't help but look upon the Roosevelt "give-away" idea as another nation-wide idea of buying birthrights for pottage—only in this case, it is not birthrights that are being bought, but votes. In modern times it all amounts to the same thing.

Mr. Roosevelt has sought to buy the political good will of big industry by allowing vast sums alloted to them for various causes, later trying to levy prohibitive taxes, which offset the good he had already tried to do. He has passed his NRA as a sop to industrial workers, and when this failed, retaliated by passing another tax that takes away a certain per cent of the wages of these workers. The AAA purported to help farmers, and wound up by cutting down production in such degree that farmers could not keep going; on top of this farmers found that they were paying their part of the processing taxes. And when relief measures were passed, a great group came to rely on this type of help, so that now, when it is cut off, they find themselves in worse shape than at the begining.

The final result of all this restrictive legislation is that all classes have decided that they sold their support and self-respect to the president at a price. Later, when reverse measures have been effected, they feel they have been double-crossed. This sums down to a condition where all classes are in some degree resentful.

Big business feels that it sold out, and that now the government is trying to get its money back through prohibitive taxation. Industrial workers resent the tax on their earnings, and feel that they are, after all, paying dearly for the help given them—after they had sold their support. Farmers feel that they would have been better off if left alone, since they are paying, with interest, for all aid given them. And the reliefers are sore because Santa Claus has gone on strike. Its another case of a birthright that was sold.

THEY'RE AT IT AGAIN

If there is one thing that Democrats, as a rule, are more fond of than anything else, it is fighting. And now they're at it again. It is true that we have a right hard time getting the animosity of our local bunch up, but just the same, they like the scrap, even if they have to stir something up among themselves. All of which tickles us pink. If we can't stir up a scrap with them ourselves, and have some fun, then I suppose the next best thing is to take a ring-side seat at their own private scrap, and watch the old rooster feathers fly.

Right here in the county there are warning rumbles of a scrap that promises to be a peach a little later on, now that the skirmishing has died down a bit about the local bills. And when our general campaign comes along, I'm promising you there are some real revelations to be made. When the proper time comes, we'll "bust the watermelon" and watch the juice fly. And just as a hint, the seeds from which this melon grew came right out of the old Demmy patch. Yes sir, the old melon is growing right now, in the Democratic patch, and watch my prediction—when that melon is cracked, I promise you we'll throw the meat at 'em, thump the seeds down their backs, squirt the juice in their eyes, and cap the rind over their heads.

But getting back to their scraps. Aside from the county affair, the Democratic papers of the state are limbering up their campaign guns by taking quite a few practice shots at members of our late legislature. They have called them everything in the catalog, and even started in on the almanac. The legislators have been called "do-nothings, pussy-footers, punk-knots, blatherskites, poodle-pups" and what have you, and the end is not yet. When the legislature changed the state flower from the goldenrod to the azalea, one "good Democrat" suggested that "when our august gentlemen in the legislature have sufficiently recovered from their ardous labors in the flower business, they might take up the matter of changing the state bird, too; and when and if they do, I would like to suggest that it be changed to the sap-sucker, for those members of the legislature are generally regarded as saps, and if the people of Alabama stand for their nonsense, they must surely be the greatest of suckers."

But that is only the beginning. Last Friday afternoon, The Birmingham News, not content with swarming all over Alabama gress—Rep. Zioncheck of Washington, and Democrats in the legislative bodies, went out into taller timber and paid its respects to two Democratic members of the national congress—Rep. Zioncheck of Washington, and Rep. Blanton of Texas. Listen to what The News had to say of these two ring-necked members of the Sacred Order of the Jackass and Rooster:

"Rep. Zioncheck . . . his doings in the last few days in the House have entitled him to the distinction of being the biggest nitwit and blatherskite in Congress . . . He must be put down as an irresponsible, reckless, scatter-brained person who is unfit to hold a seat in the Houes of Representatives".

"Rep. Blanton . . . the windy, verbose, inconsequential Blanton is no prize specimen as a congressman . . . .".

And remember, all of this is coming from Democratic newspapers, and referring to Democrats—members of their own party, whom their fellow-partisans have considered the cream of their crop of statesmen. If they can afford to trade brick-bats at one another, what will they expect us to do when we open up on them. But, on second thought, maybe we could let them pick out all the epithets for each other—they seem to know their fellows better than anyone else—and if you ask me, they are just about voicing our own opinion of the whole gang of them.

These Democrats—they give me a laugh.—Man in the Moon.

UNEMPLOYMENT ABROAD

One of the theme songs of New Deal orators is that under the present theory of government with its enormous outlays of money and unbalanced budgets—conditions which the New Dealers themselves rarely mention—the country is being returned to great prosperity.

Without going into the question of increased wages and the increased cost of living with the gain in the business of certain great corporations, a gain which has not continued on down to the little fellow, the fact must not be lost sight of that in spite of our so-called prosperity reliable estimates are now more than 12,000,000 unemployed in the United States with 20 million people still dependent on relief. That is the reason for increased appropriations for relief and the mounting of the national debt with no balancing of the Federal budget in sight.

Aside from this, however, in measuring the extent of our new prosperity for which the New Dealers claim credit, it may be well to compare American conditions with those now apparent in Europe where the progress has been made without restorting to regimentation and lavish expenditure of money to "prime the pump."

Our reduction of unemployment despite the expenditure of ten billion dollars in government relief and experimentation is but 19 per cent, while in Great Britain, where the order of the day has been rigid economy and balanced budgets, unemployment in the same three years period has decreased 24 per cent. In Belgium the decrease has been 27 per cent, in Sweden 36 per cent, and in Canada 42 per cent. Critics of the New Deal are pointing also to the recent quarterly report of the International Labor Office of the League of Nations at Geneva which shows that the total number of the unemployed in the United States is 8,000,000 more than the number of unemployed for all Europe, although Europe has four times the population of the Uinted States.

There is something in the figures on European recovery, just quoted, which are worth some thinking about. If it cost us ten billion dollars to decrease unemployment 19 per cent in three years with a Brain Trust and other nations reduced the number of the idle all the way from 24 to 42 per cent, without a Brain Trust, how much could we have bettered the situation if deprived of the Federal array of caps and gowns?

LIBERATING MONEY

To millions of our citizens, the cost of living is a problem—and constant wrestling with a recalcitrant budget is essential to making both ends meet.

As a consequence, anything that cuts the cost of necessities, and especially foods, to the consumer, is in the interest of everyone and all businesses. Reasonable prices for foods result in larger purchases, and in a wider variety of purchases. When the food item is cut other home budget items may be increased. This "new" money goes to buy automobiles and labor-saving appliances, for savings, for vacations, for education for children, for reading matter and entertainment. That makes better business in the myriad industries affected, and causes them to employ more men, to increase advertising and to expand plants. A great economic circle is started, ever widening, ever touching more industries and individuals.

Considerable progress has already been made in holding down the cost of food, through the simple and effective means of eliminating and reducing "in-between" costs—those expenses which are created along the way as food products are brought from producer to consumer. Scientific distributing methods, coupled with aggressive advertising and selling have made it possible to cut the margin of profit. As a result, the public has been saved millions of dollars, and the great industrial machine which employs men and pays taxes has been stimulated through increased purchasing power.

The movement to still further reduce the spread between producer and consumer continues. And it is in the interest of all that its progress should be uninterrupted.

THE PRESIDENT AT BALTIMORE

There was, however, no lack of vigor and confidence in the President's appeal to the youth of the land. He expects the rising generation today to do as much as any of its predecessors in carying forward the torch of civilization confided to young hands. The nature of the task imposed today differs widely from that of previous crises, but it is to be attacked and achieved in the same spirit of youthful ardor and invincible hopefulness. The President congratulated the youth because, as he said, they dream dreams and see visions. But he would not deny, any more than did the prophet Joel, the right and privilege of 'old men" to dream dreams. One dream which some of them have today is of an oncoming body of American young men and women, not asking to be carried to a social millienium on flowery beds of ease, but ready to endure hardness as good soldiers of our common citizenship, and eager to do their part in building the better America which is to be.—New York Times.

O. L. DEVAUGHN APPEALS TO VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

To the Voters of Chilton County:

As this will be the last issue of the Union-Banner before the Primary election next Tuesday, May 5th, I wish to take this opportunity to express to the people my sicere appreciation for the many words of encouragement and friendly attitude shown toward me in the various communities where I have been in the interest of my candidacy for Commissioner from the Foutr District. Owing to the uncertainty of the local bill to abolish the Commissioners Court, and the short time now before the Primary, it will be impossible for me to see all of you personally. Therefore am taking this opportunity to appeal to you and earnestly solicit your vote and influence for me next Tuesday, May 5th, assuring you that if you can do so it will be highly appreciated.

I am a Republican and have always voted the Republican ticket, because I believe in and stand for the principles of the Republican party. I stand for economy in the administration of county affairs and at the same time I believe in progressive moves that I thought to be to the best interest of the people.

I am opposed to any increase in taxes and believe that some of our people are already over-burdened with taxes, and where evidence could be produced to establish the facts in such cases I would use my influence to adjust same.

I believe that the people in the various communities should be permitted to do the manual labor and the gravel hauling with their teams on the roads in their community. And if elected I will use my influence to that end.

I am not tied or obligated to any clique or group of people more than another and should I be elected I will be Commissioner myself and try at all times to carry out the wishes of the people as a whole.

I believe in local self-government. And it will be my policy to consult the people on all important matters pertaining to county affairs. I assure you I will assume the role of a servant and not a dictator. I stand for and practice good morals and honest clean living.

I have never held public office, however I ran for this place before and am asking you people to give me just consideration before you cast your vote next Tuesday, and if you think that I am entitled to the nomination this time I assure you that your vote and influence in my behalf will be highly appreciated, and that I will conduct myself in such a way that you will never have just cause to regret voting for me.

If, after careful consideration, you think that either of my opponents are entitled to it, and if either of them gets the nomination it is my intention to do all that I can, as I have always done, to help to elect the entire ticket in November. Am yours very truly,—O. L. Devaughn.

BURNETT FOR COMMISSIONER

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

I am a citizen of Beat 7, in the 3rd District, and am writing to you in regard to the selection of a Commissioner for our district.

The people of our district appreciate honest representation in our county government. We like to be represented by a good business man.

When Mr. J. L. Burnett was our commissioner, we had good roads, we were properly represented in the court's council and always felt that our affairs were in good hands. We feel that he made for us the best commissioner we have ever had, and I believe the majority of our people want him to represent us again.

Therefore when you go to the polls next Tuesday as I hope every qualified voter will do we hope you will respect the wishes of the people of this district and help us select Mr. Burnett.—G. C. Latham Lawley, Ala.

MARSHALL MOORE

On March 31, the death angel came into our home and carried from this earth to his heavenly home the tender loving spirit of our dear husband and father, Marshall Moore. He was only 34 years old. He was so kind and loving to us all, and it's so hard to give him up, but we know our loss is heaven's gain.

He was in failing health so long and was in bed for a month. God, in his tender mercy has called him up to those beautiful courts above, where he'll never know sorrow again. We pray to meet daddy in a better world some day.—Mrs. Lula Moore and children, Willie Clyde, Joe Earl and Willodene Moore.

The wife of Dr. C. O. Lawrence is reported to be seriously ill with pneumonia at Highland Avenue Baptist Hospital in Birmingham. She was taken there only a few days ago.

YOUNG REPUBLICAN OF BEATS 10, 4 AND 6

A joint meeting of the young Republicans of Beats 10, 4 and 6 was held at Thomas Jr. school April 24. The meeting was called to order by L. D. Hughes in the absence of the regular chairman, Chester Mims. Mr. Hughes gave everybody a hearty welcome and then called on Mr. T. E. Wyatt as first speaker of the evening. Mr. Wyatt thanked all the young Republicans for the interest shown and also gave a brief report of the work of all the units in Chilton county.

Mr. Percy Pitts was introduced as next speaker of the evening and his chief subject was "United we stand or get under one man rule and fall." Mr. Will Reynolds made a short speech touching on our state and national affairs. The chief speaker of the evening was Hon. J. Osmond Middleton. He discussed the Republican party from A to Z. This party was formed in 1857 by just a few in number in a small town in Michigan. He also compared the parties and showed what they had done for both state and nation. Loyalty was also stressed. This was a speech that was very helpful to both old and new members. There was only one candidate present, this was Mr. W. J. Billingsley, who made a very impressive talk, giving his ideas and also stressing loyalty to party. The chairman called for announcements, and meeting at Cooper school building was announced for Saturday night, May 2nd. Mr. Middleton speaker. Mr. W. J. Billingsley dismissed with a short word of prayer.—L. A. Calloway, secretary, L. D. Hughes, chairman.

J. L. BURNETT

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words to the voters before the election, which will be held May 5th.

I am a candidate for the office of County Commissioner from the Third District of Chilton County. The people of our county have honored me with two terms to this office, but four years have elapsed since I last served. During the time I was Commissioner I gave the very best service that I possibly could.

When I came into office the County owed $200,000 outstanding bonds which were bearing interest, together with several thousand dollars of interest bearing certificates. During my term of office we redeemed $103,000 of these oustanding bonds and all of the outstanding interest bearing warrants except $1,000. In addition to this payment on the debts we put aside a sinking fund of $25,000 to be used to purchase the outstanding bonds when they could be located and bought from the owners.

Since I have been out of office the present Commissioners have only purchased $15,000 of these bonds and they paid for them out of the sinking fund which we left. They have also purchased the $1,000 in interest bearing warrants but they also paid for it out of the funds we had placed aside for that purpose. Since I have been out of office not one cent has been paid on the old debt except when it was paid out of the fund we had saved and placed aside for that purpose.

It is my intention that if I am nominated and elected that I will help manage in such a way that when my term is out in four years that the county will be completely out of debt without taxes being raised in any way.

If I am elected as Commissioner I promise to use the people's money economically and to give the work in the county to Chilton county citizens instead of sending so much of it away for road machinery, as I believe the people are entitled to this work and that it will be much better for them to have it for work than to spend it for machinery to do the work.

It has not ben possible for me to see all of the voters, so I am asking that you take this as a personal massage that I am anxious for your vote and influence and I hope that you will go into the Republican Primary on May 5th and cast your ballot for me.

I have conducted my campaign fair and honorably and whether or not I am the nominee, I will remain true to the Republican party.

Respectfully,
J. L. BURNETT.

Paul C. Mims Makes Final Appeal To Voters

To the Republican voters of Chilton County:

When I announced my candidacy for the office of County Treasurer, I realized that I was at a disadvantage. All three of my opponents come from families which have been long known in political circles. The Hubbards have a long and honorable record to point to. The Dormineys have the same. Mr. Billingsley can point to his own political record. But I realized that if I had a show, I would have to get out and dig for votes.

Therefore, I have tried to go into every Beat and see every voter. Of course, I have been unable to see everyone, but it has been my firm intention to do so. I have canvassed Beats 1, 2, 5, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, and 15. That leaves at this writing, only Beats 3, 4, 7, 8, and 16, and I have done some work in them. In the three days that remain before election I expect to make every minute count. If for any reason I may fail to see you and solicit your vote and influence personally, I want you to know that lack of time alone is the reason.

I have assumed that I am better known in my own Beat 4 and in Beat 16 than in any others—therefore I have left them to the last, believing it the best policy to go to the Beats where I am least known first, and if I must miss canvassing any Beats for lack of time, it will be these "home" beats. Illness and bad weather have hampered my intended house to house campaign in great degree. Too, I have been quite busy in helping Mr. Wyatt in organization of the several units of the Young Republicans Clubs in various parts of the county; in this work I look forward to the good of our party in the future, even more than I value personal contact with voters with a selfish view of securing an office. I hope you will understand my action in this regard, by considering that possibly I have been of some small service to my party, even at the risk of a loss in my own political aspirations.

In my campaign, I have at all times attended strictly to my own affairs, putting forward my own campaign, rather than throwing stumbling blocks in the paths of my opponents. I challenge any person to repeat one ill word I have spoken of any of my opponents. I know nothing against any of them, nor am I trying to find out anything against them. In the beginning I pledged a clean campaign, and I have kept my word. I challenge anyone to bring evidence of one instance where I have sought to obtain support by any other means than the most honorable methods.

I believe I am competent to care for the affairs of the office I ask for, if you see fit to allow me to have it, I have a fair education and a fair amount of experience.

Readers of The Union-Banner know that for the past several years I have done my best to keep the banner of the Republican party floating. My fight has been an unceasing one. Through my column, "The Man in the Moon," I have been embroiled in numberless battles with our political opponents, and you readers of The Union-Banner know what has been the result. Together with the editor, we have succeeding in completely silencing the guns of our enemy on every occasion. So completely has been our victory that our opponents cannot be teased, cajoled or dragged into a political fight with us any more. You know this is true.

Our fight in this regard has not been one for personal gain. True, we have enjoyed the plaudits of our fellows when time after time we have completely anihilated our opponents. The editor has been good enough to allow me limitless space in which to wage this battle over a number of years. I have been warned numbers of times that I was getting into "deep water", but I am not ashamed of my record of victories. I had no idea of ever being in politics when these battles were hottest. I looked forward to the good of my party, the principles of which I believe in with all my heart, and in the defense of which I stand ready to fight on any and every occasion. And I think it needless that I state that no matter what the outcome of this race that I am in now, that loyalty shall not waver, but shall continue to grow, I trust, as other chances to be of service present themselves.

I ask that you weigh all these things. If you value the services of one who has waged this fight—if you feel that I have been of service to our party—then I ask that you consider my solicitation of your vote and influence. But whether you vote for me or not, please remember that you will always find me on the firing line, giving the best that I know how to give for my party, its principles, and its people.—Paul C. Mims.

(Paid pol. adv. by Paul C. Mims, Clanton, Alabama.)

IN MEMORY OF AUSTIN BAKER

The death angel visited the Central Alabama Hospital on April 14th, and took away the loving spirit of James Austin Baker. He was sick only a few days. He cannot come back to us but we can go to him, for his dying words were that he was ready to go. He was so good and kind and was loved by all those that knew him.

He leaves to mourn his loss Mrs. Myrtle Cox Baker, One small son, James Aaron Baker, parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Baker; two brothers, Aubrey and Julian; one sister, Turner Bell Cleckler, all of near Pletcher, and a host of relatives and friends.

The funeral was held at the Temple with Bro. J. J. DuBose, Bro. Parker and Bro. Orange officiating. Burial was in the adjoining cemetery. Pallbearers were Earl, Arnold and Joe Cox, Leon Minor, Dewey Cleckley, Henry Foshee, Willie Littleton and Cleveland Driver.

FAVORS O. L. DEVAUGHN FOR COMMISSIONER, 4TH DISTRICT

Many good things have been said about candidates. I have a few things that I wish to say to the voters of Chilton County about Mr. O. L. Devaughn, who is offering himself again as a candidate for Commissioner from the fourth district.

First, I wish to say that I believe I am in a position that I can give you as much information about him as anyone else, and in giving you these facts, I am glad to say that these facts are my own personal experience and knowledge of him, his life and his business ability.

I have known him from boyhood, been with him a few hours almost every week for the past 40 years. O. L. Devaughn is a true gentleman from every angle. He is known to be a successful farmer and business man. He is very familiar with road construction and supervision, and familiar with all things that deal with a Commissioner's work. He is fully capable of carrying on the work that may be entrusted to his care.

He is the same honest, fair and sturdy gentleman wherever you meet him, he is always willing to be fair with his fellowman. He is a man of the highest moral standards. I have all evidence and reason to believe that he will be honorable to the trust that is given him, and will not do anything to cause the voters to regret supporting him.

He has asked for this place before and was defeated. He took his defeat like a man, and now he is asking again.

It is with pleasure I write these few lines for his support.

O. H. McDOWELL.

ENDORSES CHESTER MIMS FOR COUNTY TREASURER

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your valuable paper to say a few words in behalf of Mr. Chester Mims, candidate for the office of county treasurer. He is a young man of the highest [illegible] and I feel sure if he is the choice the people he can fill the office and efficiently. He is a loyal Republican, fearless and outspoken in rense of the people's rights.

Now in conclusion I urge every publican voter to go to the polls support Mr. Mims. — (Mrs.) Jones.

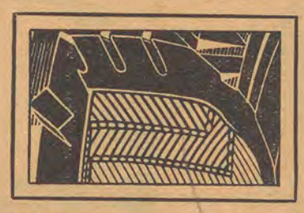
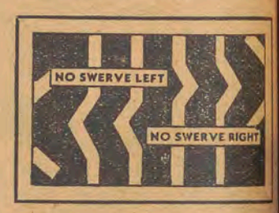
End of cord in Gum-Dipped Tire showing every fiber insulated with liquid rubber

End of cord from ordinary tire showing unprotected cotton fibers inside cord

The body of the New Firestone High Speed Tire is made from selected long-staple cotton dipped in liquid rubber, absorbing eight pounds of rubber in every hundred pounds of cotton. This patented Gum-Dipping process insulates every fiber in every cotton cord, preventing internal friction which creates the heat so destructive to tire life, and giving to the tire added strength.



This heavy, broad, traction and non-skid tread is held to the cord body of the tire with Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped Cords, a patented construction, making the cord body and tread an inseparable unit.



A leading university in 2350 tire tests has found that the new, scientifically designed Firestone High Speed tread stops a car up to 25% quicker. Its super-traction and non-skid efficiency have also been proved in the famous Pike's Peak Race where for eight consecutive years it has been used on the winning cars.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

SIDE DRESS COTTON TO PREVENT RUST AND RAISE YIELDS

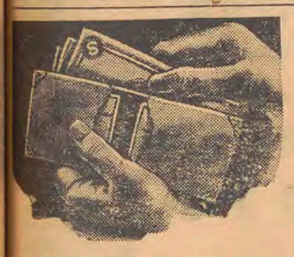
The Alabama Experiment Station recommends that fertilizer analyzing 8-8-4 be used for cotton this year throughout the state. This advice is the result of experiments conducted at eight points in which the principal soil types were included, and the analysis suggested is the formula that has given the most profitable yields on the average at the places where tests have been made.

While the state experiment station recommends that 600 pounds of fertilizer per acre be applied, the indications are that the average for the state will be much less than this amount. However, experiments have shown that the planting application may be supplemented with additional plant food in the form of a side dresser with entirely satisfactory results.

For instance, the Alabama Experiment Station recommends that the equivalent of 48 pounds per acre of muriate of potash be used for most profitable yields. If this amount was not applied at planting it can easily be added as a side dressing, the quantity depending upon the potash content of the initial application and also whether cotton on the area planted has shown a tendency to rust in past years.

If, for example, 300 pounds per acre of a fertilizer analyzing four per cent potash was applied at planting time, then at least 25 pounds should be applied as a side dresser. However, since many soils of the state are inclined to rust and show evidence of potash starvation, it is considered advisable by many research officials and farmers to apply from 50 to 100 pounds per acre of muriate of potash to guard against disease and provide sufficient plant food for proper development of the cotton plants.

Experimental results show that cotton should be given the side application of fertilizer about 35 days after planting for best results.



Put this extra money in your own pocket!

Every Southern farmer knows that ARCADIAN, THE AMERICAN NITRATE OF SODA increases yields of cotton, corn and all other crops. But not all know about the Extra NITROGEN in "Arcadian". And that Extra Nitrogen is something really worth knowing about.

In cash value the Extra Nitrogen over the 16% guaranteed, runs as high as 88c per ton. This is reported by the Department of Agriculture and Immigration of the State of Virginia.

Everytime you buy "ARCADIAN", you are sure of two things: 1—superior crop-growing value as proved by many tests; 2—Extra Nitrogen which does not cost you one extra cent.

When you buy ARCADIAN, THE AMERICAN NITRATE OF SODA you get extra cash value which is just like putting money right in your own pocket.

Lesson for May 3

JESUS TEACHES FORGIVENESS, HUMILITY AND GRATITUDE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 17:1-19.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—Ephesians 4:32.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Man Who Said Thank You.

JUNIOR TOPIC — The Man Who Thanked Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC — Three Marks of Christian Strength.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC. — Three Marks of Christian Strength.

I. Forgiveness, a Christian Obligation (vv. 1-4).

Owing to the fundamental fact of human individuality, the perversion by sin, and the power and wickedness of the devil, offenses, or occasions of stumbling, are bound to come. Because mankind is fallen and sin reigns in individual hearts, the results are bound to reveal themselves, but Jesus pronounces "woe" upon those whose evil deeds become a stumbling stone in the way of others, especially "one of these little ones."

The follower of Christ is to take heed that his life be not injurious, but that it be exemplary. The believer is to cultivate the forgiving spirit toward the wrongdoer, while rebuking the wrong. Great skill and grace are required to rebuke one for wrongdoing, revealing at the same time the forgiving spirit, so as to win him instead of exasperating him.

II. Humility, a Christian Quality (vv. 5-10).

Humility is at the heart of this trio of Christian graces. Much faith is required to establish and maintain humility. Human nature impels one to push others aside, to struggle for supremacy, to reach the exalted positions in life. Humility moves one to seek the lowly place, while giving places of honor to others, and being sincerely happy when others are granted the preferred positions. Surely, for this one must have faith in God.

III. Gratitude, an Uncommon Grace (vv. 11-19).

The account of the ten lepers is perhaps the most used Bible portion in enforcing the lesson of gratitude as against ingratitude. There are a number of things to be considered, if we are fully to understand the call for gratitude.

1. Their awful affliction (v. 12).

They were lepers. In that day no greater tragedy could befall one than to be thus afflicted. It was regarded as contagious and incurable. The afflicted person became a social outcast, and was avoided and neglected. The Mosaic law provided for segregation (Lev. 13:46).

Leprosy has always been regarded as typical of sin, and at times as visited upon individuals because of sin. Examples: the leprosy of Naaman (II Kings 5); Gehazi (II Kings 5); Miriam (Num. 12); Uzziah (II Kings 15:5).

Leprosy may lay long dormant, and then make a sudden appearance; so with sin. Leprosy waxes worse and worse; so with sin. And the end of sin is death.

2. Their cry for mercy (v. 13). The ten recognized their great need, and that no human help was available. Testimonies that had floated to their hearing told of a great Healer, and when He came their way they were not slow to make their prayer to him.

The faith of the lepers immediately revealed itself in acting upon the instructions of Jesus that they go and show themselves to the priest. While they went they were cleansed. They were to obey the Old Testament requirement for the recording of their cleansing, that they need no longer be outcasts. The sinner may find salvation along the path of daily duty, if he will but believe.

3. Their differing attitudes following healing (vv. 15-19).

a. The gratitude of the one (vv. 15, 16) is beautiful and inspiring. He is referred to as "this stranger," evidently a Gentile, but so deep was his gratitude he hastened back to Jesus to give thanks. The one who might be least expected to show gratitude was the one who sincerely expressed it.

b. The nine who neglected (vv. 17-19), who failed to give thanks, have through the centuries been charged with ingratitude. Their healing was as complete; they had as much reason to recognize Jesus as their healer as had "this stranger." Perhaps, as is true of so many believers of today, they took their benefits for granted and were indifferent rather than ungrateful. Many nowadays take all they can get from Christ and give nothing in return. The noblest blessings of civilization are ours through Christ, yet how few thank him for them.

Religion Must Come First

John Ruskin's emphatic words cannot be too often repeated: "Anything which makes religion its second object, makes religion no object. God will put up with a great many things in the human heart, but there is one thing he will not put up with in it—a second place. He who offers God a second place, offers him no place."

Loyalty

With malice towards none, with charity for all, and firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right.

COTTON PRICE CHECKS GOING STATE GROWERS

Auburn, Ala.—Cotton price adjustment payment checks are being released to Alabama farmers almost daily, advises Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the State extension service.

"All growers may rest assured that they will be notified by the county agent when their checks arrive," he said.

Last year congress made an appropriation for paying cooperating farmers the difference between the average price of cotton on the 10 designated spot markets and 12 cents per pound on the day the cotton was sold. These are the payments which are at present rolling into the pockets of Alabama cotton growers.

At the same time that Dr. Duncan announced release of the first price adjustment checks, W. H. Robertson, member of the State soil conservation committee, reported that about 65,000 applications for adjustment payments have been received to date and that they continued to arrive from county offices at the rate of 2,000 to 3,000 daily.

"Farmers who have not already filed their applications for these payments should do so immediately," Robertson said. " We have received notice from Washington stating that there will be an indefinite delay in payments on applications filed after May 15 on cotton sold prior to May 15th."

LIVESTOCK GROWERS ENDORSE NEW SOIL BUILDING PROGRAM

Auburn, Ala.—Under the new $470,000,000 national soil conservation program, farmers and livestock producers have an excellent opportunity to balance their crop and livestock farming, according to a resolution passed by livestock producers of Alabama, Georgia, Florida, and Mississippi, at the annual meeting of the Southeastern Livestock Producers Association in Montgomery.

"Whereas, livestock has always been a vital part in a safe farming program and since the proper livestock development and adjustment in the South has been neglected, we recommend that livestock producers of the Southeast make a special effort to obtain the cooperation of all livestock interest with the new National Soil Conservation program, looking forward to a realization of a better-balanced farm program in which livestock will have its rightful place," said the resolution.

FARM PROGRAM CHANGE HELPS GROWERS QUALIFY

Auburn, Ala.—Plans have been made for producers who may fall short of the minimum acreage in soil-conserving-and-building crops necessary for full payment under the new national soil conservation program to still qualify to receive partial payments, acording to information received here by Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the state extension service.

"It had previously been provided," said Dr. Duncan, "that to be eligible for payments farmers must have in 1936 at least 159 per cent as much crop land in soil-conserving crops as in their soil-depleting bases, or 20 per cent in the case of cotton."

"In the case of growers whose soil-conserving crop acreage is less than that required for full payment," says the announcement, "deductions will be made from payments. These deductions will be based upon the number of acres by which the grower fails to achieve full performance. The deduction for each excess acre of soil-depleting crops will be one and one-half times the per acre rate of Class 1, or soil-conserving payment. If the Class 1 payment for any farm is $8 per acre, the deduction rate for that farm would be $12 per acre.

"This modification has been made to permit increased participation by growers and to avoid penalizing by forfeiture of the entire payment those producers who were slightly deficient in soil-conserving crops because of oversight or error. The deduction will make it to the advantage of the farmers to cooperate as fully as possible in the program."

$37,000,000 FOR CROP LOANS NOW AVAILABLE TO FARMERS

Good news for farmers was contained in the recent disclosure that the President has raised the $30,000,000 crop loan fund to $37,000,000. These loans, which are now available are limited to the borower's immediate needs and, in all cases, to $200 per person. Interest will be charged at five and one-half per cent and the loan will constitute a first lien on the crop financed by it.

The loan regulations contain two features which all farmers should heed, regardless of whether or not they are borrowers. Applicants must plant a garden for home use. Although the soundness of this is widely recognized, there are still far too many farmers who buy for cash what they could grow at home.

Along the same lines, the regulations suggest that American made supplies be used. Just as when a farmer has a home garden he keeps money at home, when he buys goods made in America he keeps money circulating at home where it can do him further good. All the farm equipment and fertilizer the farmer needs is now made in America, and much of it is made right in the South. In suggesting that these domestic materials be used, Uncle Sam is pointing out a sound economic principle.

IN MEMORY

Early in the morning of February 29, 1936, God called to her reward our beloved sister and co-worker, Mrs. M. L. Billingsley. Sister Billingsley's faith in Jesus Christ as her saviour was strong and steadfast, her loyalty to her church was an unwavering loyalty, and her love for God's people great, always interested in the spiritual things of life. She could say as Paul said, "For Me to Live is Christ and to Die is Gain."

The influence of her happy Christian life will remain with us as long as our memories shall last. Sister Billingsley was 68 years of age. She leaves to mourn her loss one brother and sister and a host of relatives and friends.—Mrs. L. M. Gray, Mrs. A. L. Bearden, Committee Bethsalem Baptist Church.

MILFORD MURR

The death angel visited our home and carried away our only boy at 12:50 a.m. Monday, April 20. All was done for little Milford that human hands could do, but God, in His loving kindness saw fit to carry him home to be with Him, but we miss him, oh, we miss him, but our loss is heaven's gain.

He was laid to rest at Mt. Springs cemetery with J. J. DuBose officiating. We do thank the people for their kindness during his sickness and death. Especially do we thank the nurse, Miss Aldridge, and Dr. Gragg for their help; also Oren Popwell for his aid. And the beautiful floral offering that the good people give the fering that the good people gave.

Pallbearers were Arthur Mims, Thomas Moats, Elijah Wilson, Ottis Wilson, Ollie Minor and Leon Easterling. May God's blessings be with you all is our prayer.—Written by his Father and Mother, Henry and Leila Murr.

Miss Avaline Jones, of Clanton, is spending several weeks in Birmingham with friends and relatives.

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons

DO you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination, backache, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, leg pains, swellings and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unstrung and don't know what is wrong?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.

ENDORSES PAUL C. MIMS FOR COUNTY TREASURER

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your valuable paper to say a few words in regard to our candidates for treasurer running on the Republican ticket this time. Ye have several to choose from, all of whom we think would "fill the bill" all right if elected; but I feel that Mr. Paul C. Mims is fully qualified for the office, and I would like for the voters to consider him in the coming primary.

Mr. Mims is a full-fledged Republican, an untiring worker for our party and all its interests. He is well informed, I am sure, as to the county's affairs and is fully eligible for the office. He is a man who stands "pat" for what he believes, and is frank and open in his efforts in behalf of his party.

Let me urge all qualified voters to go to the polls on May 5th and vote according to your honest convictions, and should Mr. Mims be your choice, I am sure he will be grateful; if he should be defeated, I am just as loyal to our party, and just just as he would be

Yours for the betterment of our county affairs and the Republican Party.—C. B. Huett.

CORRECTION IN REPORT OF DR. CONWAY ACCIDENT

The Union-Banner is in receipt of the following letter from Birmingham calling our attention to what is said to be an error in the report we carried in last week's paper about Dr. Conway getting injured in an auto truck accident. The letter reads:

I noticed an item in your paper of last week's issue stating that I wrecked Dr. Conway's car at Jemison, Alabama, the Sunday previous. I wish to call your attention to this error and ask that you make the necessary correction.

In the first place, I never drove a truck as I am a furniture salesman connected with the F. C. Calder Furniture Company; and I passed the scene of the accident probably within thirty minutes of the time it occured, my family was with me, and I was driving a Ford V-8 passenger car and, I certainly had no accident. I am inclined to think that this is another Blackmon that is in the produce business.

Will you be so kind as to correct this statement, as I have numerous friends in your community and am acquainted with Dr. Conway and his family. Very truly yours.—T. E. (Tim) Blackmon.

ANNUAL FOURTH SUNDAY IN MAY SINGING AT PROVIDENCE

LETTER FROM W. J. EASTERLING ABOUT RACE FOR COMMISSIONER

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I am making this my final appeal to you, in behalf of my candidacy for Commissioner from the Fourth District. I am sure that I will not be able to see anything like all the voters; but I have not intended to slight anyone. If I have not seen you personally, please take this letter to the paper as my appeal to you for your vote and support.

Should I be your choice, I shall use my influence in the Court toward keeping as much of the county's money at home as possible. I shall buy only the machinery that is absolutely necesary, but will give as much of the work to the people who need it as possible.

I believe in paying the county out of debt just as rapidly as possible, and to keep the county running within its income.

I believe that my experience in business affairs and on my farm will make me capable of handling the business of county commissioner. I promise the people that I will use every effort to fill the duties of the office according to the wishes of the people of the District and of the county.

Again I appeal to you for your vote and influence, both ladies and men.—W. J. Easterling.

(Pail pol. adv. by W. J. Easterling, Clanton, Ala., Rte. 1.)

J. C. Atchison Makes Appeal

To Voters of Chilton County:

During the past three years it has been my pleasure to serve you as Commissioner of the Third District, and I am again asking that you give me your vote and influence next Tuesday, May 5th, 1936, in the Primary for the same place.

Since I have been Commissioner I have served the county to the very best of my ability. Many important questions have arisen, but I would carefully consider them, then vote the way that I conscientiously thought was right.

Due to the depression, many people were unemployed and many without food. This necessitated our cooperating with the Federal Government in its program. By doing this over 75 per cent more money has been sent into the county than Chilton county spent, thus aiding recovery to the businesses and to the individuals, rather than to the hording of money in the county treasury, or to the payment of debts that were not due for several years. However, after business had improved sufficiently, so that we felt that we could save to pay on the bonds, which will be due in 1947, we placed aside, out of your Road and Bridge Fund, last year, the sum of $10,000 to be expended for the purchase of these bonds. If I am nominated and re-elected it is my intention for at least a like sum to be set aside each year for the redemption of the outstanding bonds, and if possible to set aside a greater sum.

In my work as Commissioner, I have always voted to make appropriations to lengthen terms and to aid with the building and repair of school houses. By doing this, I felt that we were helping our youths to become prepared to meet the battles which will face them in later life.

I feel that one of the greatest privileges and pleasures I have had accorded me, has been to reduce taxes. I cannot recall any person ever making application for his taxes to be reduced that I did not vote for a reduction. This naturally decreases the income of the county and helps the individual who so sorely needed it, and after all, the indiviuals make our county.

During my term as Commissioner I have given special attention to the roads and bridges in my District. I had the opportunity to have several years experience in road work before I became Commissioner and I have tried to put this experience into practice. I feel that the roads and bridges in the Third District will compare favorably with any in the county or with any in any other county. This work was not all done by machinery as some would have you believe, but I tried to divide the work among the citizens and tax payers and much of it was done by laborers with hand implements.

Recently when the bill to abolish the Commissioners Court was introduced in the Senate and Legislature, I devoted my entire time, at my own expense, to help defeat this bill. By defeating this bill you were given the privilege of selecting your Commissioner, the place for which I am now asking.

After you have carefully considered my work as Commissioner for the past three years, I hope that you will see fit to give me the nomination and if I am given it, I will do everyhting in my power to be elected, but if I am not your choice and you see fit to nominate one of my opponents I assure you that I will do everything I can to elect our ticket in the General election. Respectfully.—J. C. Atchison, Maplesville, Ala.

(Paid pol. adv. by J. C. Atchison, Maplesville, Alabama.)

Billingsley And Mims Will Be In Second Republican Primary

Incomplete Returns Indicate That Devaughn Will Have Majority of Votes Cast For Fourth District Commissioner

ATCHISON AND BURNETT BE IN RUN-OFF

Incomplete unofficial returns from Tuesday's Republican primary pointed to sure run-offs in two races, with the Fourth District Commissioner race hanging in the balance, depending on complete returns to show whether there will be a run-off between Devaughn and Vinson or whether Devaughn will be nominated; the latter seems likely from the returns listed below.

In the Third District race, J. C. Atchison was leading Burnett by a comfortable margin, but could not gather enough votes for nomination.

In the Treasurer's race, a nip and tuck fight between W. J. Billingsley and Paul C. Mims found Mims leading Billingsley by one lone vote, with 5 boxes to be heard from. Gerald Hubbard was in third place, with Mrs. Shaw polling the lowest vote in the race.

The vote was one of the lightest in the county's history, due to pretty farming weather, which kept hundreds of voters in the rural districts away from the polls.

Martin, for the school board, and unopposed, had 1,017 votes to his credit, from unofficial returns.

Below are given returns, as best as could be gathered from meager returns given in:

CLANTON PARTY FISHING AT BEAR POINT, PERDIDO BAY

Already the annual pilgrimage of Clanton sportsmen and sportswomen has started to Camp Bear Point on Perdido Bay, where Bill Morrill's camp constitutes the mecca of every fisherman around here who has graduated from the doodler class and found the greater glory that awaits those who would ply the salty surf of the Gulf of Mexico in quest of the prize king mackerel, ling, cavalla, red fish, bonita, and what have you, Bill?

Within the past few days Dr. and Mrs. Joe Edgar, Dr. and Mrs. Sie Hayes, and Miss Ruth Edgar formed a party fishing with Bill Morrill on the Gulf out from his Bear Point Camp, Caswell. The first day out on this trip they brought the first king mackerel of the season over the bar. It weighed ten pounds, and was caught by Mrs. Hayes. Bill Morrill says "she landed him like a veteran should," and even Doctor Sie will concede that when she gets such a stamp of approval from Bill, he knows the madam is no longer a doodler.

The two doctors, Sie and Joe, hooked a double of ling. Joe was successful in bringing his fifteen-pounder to gaff. Dr. Hayes lost his (which he avers was much the bigger of the two) and it is whispered that he was powerfully cross for a short while with his boatman, Bill. But he didn't have much time to fuss about his loss, for presently he hooked another ling, a twenty-three pounder, and he was ready enough to dismiss all differences with Bill. For some unknown reason, these big fish just naturally make you get friendly with your guide.

Mrs. Edgar caught three nice early Spanish mackerel. Miss Ruth Edgar, while not reported as catching fish, is however, credited with being a most successful cheer leader for the party.

Many Clanton people will fish on the Gulf between now and November. All who have ever fished with Bill Morrill will go back to Bear Point again. With due credit to every good guide on the Gulf, it must be said that there are none better than Bill—and we would venture the further statement that there are very few as good. When you hook one big fish and he has worn you to a frazzle and you are just about ready to wish there were no big fish, then Bill, with his keen eye sees the psychological moment arrive, comes to the rescue. Then, oh then, how you do love Bill, and you will always crave more punishment. Bill Morrill is the answer to the prayer of every fisherman whose heart seeks the truest atmosphere of the sport.

"A feller isn't thinking mean,
Out fishin,'
His thoughts are mostly good and clean,
Out fishin',
He doesn't knock his fellowmen,
Or harbor any grudges then;
A feller's at his finest, when
Out fishin'."

Girl Scouts Hold Meeting May 4th

The Girl Scouts met at the City Hall last Monday night, May 4th at 7 o'clock to organize a troop in Clanton. Miss Margaret Hodo, Community Worker for Chilton County met with them and gave a most interesting talk on the work, and other interesting features about being a Girl Scout of America. She also gave the history of the Girl Scouts of America. The Clanton Pilot Club is sponsoring the Girl Scouts, and a committee of three, consisting of Miss Irene Smitherman, Mrs. Zora Guy Smith, and Miss Nolan Meroney met with them. Also Miss Gertie Fiquette, who presided over the meeting. There were seventeen girls at this organization, between the Girls Scouts ages from ten to eighteen years of age. The committee got together after the girls had nominated several prospective captains in Clanton, and decided upon Miss Gertie Fiquette as their captain and Mrs. Sam Martin and Mrs. Otto Jones as lieutenants. Several of the mothers were there also.

The Girl Scouts decided to meet every Monday night at the City Hall at 7 p.m., and request that all girls who are eligible, or are between the ages of ten and eighteen years to join. On account of some graduation exercises in town, some of the girls requested that they meet next week on Wednesday night, and Monday night thereafter.

Miss Irene Smitherman, county health nurse, has offered to give instructions in first aid to the Girl Scouts of Clanton.

Before becoming a Girl Scout and making the promise, a girl must be ten years old, have attended at least four meetings covering at least one month in time, and must

1. Know the Girl Scout promise, laws, motto, sign and salute.

2. Give the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Show how the flag should be used.

3. Know four woodcraft signs.

4. Tell the story of one animal pet (If you have not an animal pet, tell the story of any live thing you have watched.)

5. Be sure you know bowline, clove hitch, sheepshank and sheetbend knots.

5. Tie the square know, bowline, clove hitch, sheepshank and sheepbend knots.

We urge that you join the Girl Scout Troop of Clanton.

PAROLES GIVEN 47 BY GRAVES

Governor Silent on Rumors of New Special Session on Return From Gulf

Governor Bibb Graves returned Monday from a ten-day fishing trip at his cottage near Foley, Ala., with no comments on reports of another special session of the legislature. He revealed that he had granted 47 paroles.

He waved aside questions concerning the reported session, and education's recent announcement that its fight for a parity amendment had been discarded.

Fishing, he said, was "mighty good."

A huge stack of convict department records which the chief executive brought back with him showed that he had not been idle during his vacation.

Nearly 200 files were taken with him. He reported Monday that he had granted 47 paroles, denied the applications of 120 and was holding others for additional study or infirmation. There was only one from Chilton County, William Darby.

County Health Unit Increase Personnel

Mr. Floyd Smith, who was formerly in charge of the W. P. A. office in Chilton county, has returned to the county as County Sanitation Officer, and as such becomes a member of the local health unit. For the past six weeks Mr. Smith has been attending the Training School for Sanitation Officers maintained by the State Health Department, where he received intensive training in this type of work. The services of a Sanitation Officer were assured the county with the recent increase in appropriation to health work made by the Commissioners Court.

The duties of the Sanitation Officer will be along general health lines, and will include inspection of all cafes, soda founts, road-side stands, tourist camps, and all food handling establishments. In addition, he will promote sanitation of private and public premises through education and demonstration. Malaria control through control of mosquito breeding areas, will be another major function of the Sanitation Officer.

With this addition, the local health unit is brought to full strength, and now becomes a four-piece unit, which is considered the minimum for a well-rounded health program.

JENKINS BRICK COMPANY RUNNING SERIES OF ADVS.

Beginning this week the Jenkins Brick Company, of Montgomery is running a series of advertisements dealing with modern building problems and their solution.

This well known company is almost a family by-word among the carpenters of Chilton county. They all know about Jenkins brick. There are numbers of buildings in our county, the material for which was furnished by Jenkins, and they stand as a lasting testimonial to the quality of the material which they turn out.

Make it a habit and read every one of these advs. of the Jenkins Brick Company, the first one appearing this week. You will no doubt receive some worth-while pointers on the building business from their messages.

SINGING AT FRIENDSHIP FRIDAY NIGHT THIS WEEK

There will be singing at Friendship church, one and one-half miles north of Clanton, Friday night of this week, May 8th, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Everybody is invited, especially those who direct and those who engage in class singing. The Friendship people want to make a success of this singing, and the help of visitors is urgently solicited.—Jim Parrish.

TUNE WRANGLERS ARE COMING TO CLANTON

The Tune Wranglers will present an entirely new program at the courthouse an Saturday, May 16, at 3:00 o'clock and 8:00 o'clock p.m. These entertainers are among the greatest who have ever performed in Clanton. Don't fail to hear them. Benefit of the Concord Public school.

BUSINESS FIRMS OF CLANTON WILL GIVE EMPLOYEES HALF-HOLIDAY DURING SUMMER

Again this year business firms of Clanton have joined together in a plan to give their employees a half holiday beginning next Wednesday, May 13, and continuing through the last Wednesday in August. The following is a copy of the agreement among the forms and the names of those cooperating:

"We, the following business firms of Clanton, Ala., hereby agree to close our respective places of business each Wednesday at 12:00 o'clock noon, beginning Wednesday, May 13, and continuing through Wednesday, August 26, 1936:

"E. L. Klinner Furniture Co., J. R. Kemp, Julian Evans, Yellow Front Store, The Klinner Furniture Co., Watts Hat Shoppe, The Dollar Store, Clanton Postoffice, by H. F. Downs, Postmaster, Tiffin Furniture Co., J. H. Broadhead, Alabama Harness & Shoe Shop, Bean & Taylor Grocery Co., Peoples Cash Store.

"Clanton Shoe Shop, Rockett Dry Goods Co., Clanton Building Supply Co., John Schmith, Wade's Grocery & Market, "Ben's" by Ben Margolis, A & P. Tea Co., Taylor Grocery & Market, Alabama Power Co., office, J. R. Mullins & Sons, Wingard Bros., Hill Grocery Co., Mazer's, by I. S. Levine, Murray-Bell Hardware Co., by J. D. Bell, Big Four Hardware Co., Bradberry Furniture Co., Foshee Furniture Co., Clanton Cash Store, V. J. Elmore 5c, 10c & $1 Store.

The Artistic Beauty Shoppe, Mrs. Claud Goodman's Beauty Shoppe, The Marinello Beauty Shoppe, Louise Higgins Beauty Shoppe, Helene Curtiss Beauty Shoppe, Eloyse's Beauty Shoppe, Lou Beth Beauty Shoppe, and J. D. Broadhead's Market.

By virtue of the fact that Wednesday is press day for the Union-Banner and The News, these two places have reached an agreement to give their employees a half-holiday on Saturday instead of Wednesday.

Those who carried the agreement around for signatures wish to state that if any person who might be interested was not called on that it was an oversight and not intentional, and that if they will close their place of business the invitation is open to join the above group of business concerns.

J. CHAP HODGES

President Cosby-Hodges Milling Co., Birmingham, Ala.

Mr. Hodges, long identified as one of the retailer's best friends and who has been on the firing line for many years in cooperation with the Alabama Independent Merchants' Association, rejoiced in the defeat of the consumers sales tax by the recent special session of the legislature. Although we have won a victory, Mr. Hodges thinks it is only temporary and warns all association groups to continue activities in county units. He also praised the house members who stood steadfast against increased taxation.

WORK SHEETS MUST BE FILED BY MAY 15th

Auburn, Ala.—May 15 is an important date for all Alabama farmers.

The State Soil Conservation Committee has set it as the final date for farmers of the State to file work sheets with county agents for participation in the new $470,000,000 national soil conservation program this year.

CLANTON BUSINESS MEN WILL GIVE AWAY $25 EACH SATURDAY

An exceptionally attractive offer is being made by a group of business and professional men of Clanton to their customers during the coming several weeks. During the life of this trade-building campaign $25.00 in cash will be awarded each Saturday morning at 10:00 o'clock.

Large conspicuous signs appear in the windows of those stores and business houses that participate in the event. Full particulars may be obtained at either of these concerns.

The main purpose of this special attraction to the people of Chilton county is to create and maintain the habit of doing your trading at home. All the money that is kept at home will remain in circulation in our county, and thus, everybody will have a better chance of feeling some of this loose change pass through his hands. It is calculated that this arrangement will create considerable interest before it remains in operation long.

G. O. P. Keynoter Flays Newdealers

Senator Steiwer Urges Followers To "Unfetter American Economic System"

Jamaica, Long Island, May 2.—The Republican choice for convention keynoter—Senator Steiwer, of Oregon—tonight called the new deal "contradiction confounded with confusion" and said "we will unfetter the American economic system."

Speaking before the Queens County Republican club, Steiwer criticized economic policies of the administration and made repeated references to the remarks last Saturday night by President Roosevelt in New York.

"There is only one conclusion," he said, "and that is that the untrained and immature manipulators of the new deal administration are not competent to administer the governmental affairs of the American people."

"Most numerous remedies will be suggested," he asserted. "A budget balance is imperatively needed, but equally important is restoration of sanity in government. The American people have a right to expect a sense of responsibility in all government officials.

"We must go back to the civil service. We will go forward to a new understanding of our practical problems, and, if I estimate correctly the temper of the American people, we will establish in this nation, government by law in lieu of the present system of personal government, based on executive discretion."

He said the new deal has degenerated from bad administration of the NRA to bad thinking with respect to present economic objectives."

Steiwer recalled the words of the President that "wages ought to and must go up with prices" and replied that 'while wages were increasing 8 per cent the cost of living has increased approximately 20 per cent.'

"The President coupled higher wages for workers with more income for farmers," the Oregon senator said. "Both are desirable, but the increased income for farmers, if accomplished by a program of scarcity or by a processing tax, means higher living costs for the consumer and a decrease in real wages for those who work in the cities."

TIME LIMIT FOR PAYING TAXES ABOUT REACHED

Tax Collector T. L. McKee announces that the extra extension of time of payment o ftaxes, in order that strawberry money might come in has about been reached, May 15th being the dead line. Mr. McKee explains that his report to the state must be made shortly after the above date, and no further extension of time can be made.

CHIEF CULVER RESIGNS CITY POLICE POSITION

Police Chief Culver, recently appointed to that position by the city authorities, turned in his badge and resigned his place Tuesday to take a position with the A. G. S. Railway Company, in Birmingham. Mr. Culver will make his train runs out of Birmingham.

Mr. Culver has been on the Clanton Police force for several months, first on the night shift, and later as day oficer, and has made an enviable reputation here. He is regarded as one of the best and most courteous officers the city has ever had. While courteous to a fault, Mr. Culver has been firm in the execution of his duties.

The citizens of Clanton regret to lose the services of a man like Mr. Culver, but are glad that he goes to a better position, and hope for him all success.

All citizens of Beat 5 are invited, and especially those between the ages of 20 and 40. The older citizens, both men and women, are cordially invited to attend.

There is usually a definite reason for such complaints...so,now let's reason sensibly.

Don't try to get well in a day...this is asking too much of Nature. Remember, she has certain natural processes that just cannot be hurried.

But there is a certain scientific way you can assist by starting those digestive juices in the stomach to flowing more freely and at the same time supply a balanced mineral deficiency the body needs.

Therefore, if you are pale, tired, lack a keen appetite, have lost weight and feel rundown...a frequent sign that your blood-cells are weak, with a tendency towards anemia—then do try in the simple, easy way so many millions approve—by starting a course of S.S.S. Blood Tonic.

Much more could be said—a trial will thoroughly convince you that this way, in the absence of any organic trouble, will start you on the road to feeling like yourself again. © S.S.S. Co.

STATE GAME NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., May 6.—Only 15 hunting accidents marred the 1935-36 hunting season in Alabama. Nine of those, however proved fatal to the victims.

Nevertheless this record is remarkable when it is compared with those of 1933-34 and 1934-36 and it is taken into consideration that there were probably as many as 200,000 guns in the field at one time or another during the season.

The 1933-34 hunting season produced 31 hunting accidents, of which 17 were fatal. The following year, 1934-35, saw a drop to 23 accidents and 13 fatalities.

This steady decline has been due, in part, to a vigorous campaign by sportsmen's clubs and the state conservation department against carelessness in the handling of firearms.

The last accident reported to the department during the 1935-36 season was the wounding of Jim Williams while he was hunting turkeys on the Bull Pen preserve near Sunflower early in April. Details of how the accident occurred were lacking, but Williams was said to have suffered the loss of one eye as a result.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the people of this community for their kindness and help during the sickness and death of our dear husband and father. We also especially thank Dr. Josnson, Dr. Hayes and Brown Funeral Home for their help and kindness.—Mrs. J. H. Moore and family.

The paper says that WPA workers are striking for higher wages. Next thing we know the kids will strike against Santa Claus.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS OF BEAT 2 MET OAK GROVE FRIDAY NIGHT

The young Republican unit of Beat 2 held its second meeting at Oak Grove last Friday night. For introduction a song was sung, followed with prayer by Rev. E. H. Littlejohn. The meeting was called to order by the unit chairman, Loyd Edwards. The unit secretary, Allen Waldrop, was stationed at his post. A short talk was made by Mr. W. J. Northcutt, and the chairman called on T. E. Wyatt, the county chairman, to take charge of the meeting, who came forward and made a few preliminary remarks. The matter of electing a vice chairman was taken up, which resulted in the election of Sam Collins for this place.

Short but inspiring talks were made by the two candidates present, Messrs. W. J. Billingsley and E. H. Littlejohn, after which the crowd was greeted with three musical selections from Mr. Loyd Howard on his accordion. These numbers were greatly enjoyed.

The principal speaker for the evening was then introduced, in the person of Judge J. Osmond Middleton. This favorite Republican son of Chilton county responded with a very fitting and inspiring address. After making some very encouraging remarks about the young Republican movement, Judge Middleton proceeded to discuss political issues from national, State and county viewpoints. His inspiring discourse was often interrupted with outbursts of applause from the gathering of citizens. This speech was proclaimed one of the best Judge Middleton has ever made.

This young Republican meeting was the largest attended and one of the best meetings that has been held. There were about 125 present. The response strongly manifested that the Republicans of Beat 2 are intensely interested in the affairs of their party, and that they believe in making a real showing in whatever undertaking they assume. Much credit is due the unit officers of that Beat, Messrs. Edwards and Waldrop, for their splendid work.

Quintuplets were born to a Rumanian woman soon after she went to work in the field. Maybe that's why we're having so much trouble getting Americans back on the farm.

Anti - Sales Tax Men Boost Beeland For Gov.

Montgomery, Ala., May 2.—Politicians returning to the capitol following the last special session of the State Legislature have all agreed on one thing—and it's not how to get more taxes, reported F. W. Stanley, editor of the Greenville Advocate, on a visit here.

"After checking up on the sentiment in the state, the political chiefs, in their conferences here, have agreed that they have one job ahead and that is to stop a "Beeland for governor" wave that is sweeping the four corners of the state.

"Bib wigs, of the political tepee, called here to revamp plans for more taxes, since their utter failure during the last session, came back with reports that the name of the fiery little fighter from Greenville has caught the public fancy and that there is a movement on foot in many counties to draft Jeff P. Beeland, campaign manager of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama, for a candidate for governor at the next election," said Stanley.

"In fact, political observers at the capitol point out that the politicians are so anxious to stop this public clamour for a man for governor who is opposed to more taxes and who demands economy, that they have forgotten their prive for more tax money and that some economies will be effected in the state government to offset the growing demand for an economy government," Stanley added.

'Beeland, successful farmer, merchant and business man of Butler county, has never been a candidate for office. Although he always has been a fighter for civic betterment and for economic business principles in government, his large business connections have been so that he has made many financial sacrifices in his effort to aid the cause of the people.

"In the recent campaign staged by the anti-sales tax organization, he devoted much time to the fight and answered calls from his Greenville home near midnight to rush to Montgomery for conferences before legislature days.

"Beeland, polished southern gentleman, is soft spoken, but when irked at political tactics draws no words in explaining his reaction to the public," Stanley said.

"The Greenville planter, his close associates say, does not covet any political office, yet they are of the opinion that should the public and voters in general draft him for a candidate, he would accept", added the editor.

"They point out that he would not become attached to any political machine for election."

Mr. J. B. Gaines, of Birmingham, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Jones of Clanton.

Sunday Is Mothers Day

But We're Talking to Fathers and Husbands

AND WE'RE SAYING

Don't make a wash-woman of the Mother in your home. Remember the value of her health. Remember her beauty, and keep the lines of fatigue from her face. Don't allow her shoulders to sag from the drudgery of washing clothes. Tell her to call 119. Tell her that the cost is no more, that the clothes will last longer, and that her health and happiness mean a lot to you.

GRASS IS NATURE'S MILK-MAKING GIFT

"Milk-making pasture is nature's gift to the dairymen," says W. R Arends, well-known Purina dairy authority. Dairymen are always anxious to see spring grass, for they know they will see its effect in a fuller milk pail

"Frequently, though, pasture gets dairymen into trouble," Arends points out. "They expect too much of it. As a matter of fact, they depend on grass to do the entire job of feeding cows. For a while, they get plenty of milk but as the pasture season goes on the cows gradually become run-down in condition. The result is that when fall rolls around the cows are not only down in flesh but off in milk production. It usually requires double the amount of grain to get them built up again.

"There is, however, a right way to take advantage of Nature's gift. First of all, cows should not be turned out on the young grass too soon. Give the grass a fair chance to get well rooted to withstand the trampling of the cows and furnish an abundance of nutrients for a longer stretch of time.

Keep Up Body Weight

"Another thing," says Arends, "with his cows on pasture the wise dairyman feeds just enough of a balanced grain ration to keep up the body weight of his cows. Usually the amount is only one-half the amount fed in winter with dry roughage. Handling cows this way keeps them up in body weight and assures good milk production in the fall when prices are highest."

In talking about actual tests of feeding cows on pastures, Arends cites research work done at the Purina Experimental Farm in Gray Summit, Mo. He tells of cows eating 40 to 50 lbs. of green grass daily, but getting no grain, losing 200 lbs. of body weight in 3 months' time. On the other hand. cows given a balanced grain ration to supplement their pasture actually gained in weight and held up in milk production."

While on pasture, light breeds such as the Jersey and Guernsey, should get 1 lb. of grain for each 6 lbs. of milk and the larger breeds should get a pound of the grain ration for each 7 to 8 lbs. of milk, according to Arends. He points out that as the pasture gets shorter the grain ration should be stepped up.

Dry Pastures Need Help

"During hot weather or severe drouth, cows should be given a gallon of bulky-las night and morning, in addition to their grain ration." He says soaking it increases its succulence and advises the adding of 1 gallon of water to each gallon of bulky-las.

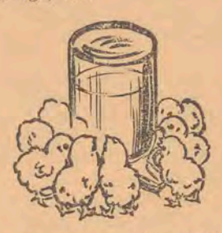
"In looking forward to the pasture season," Arends says, "Dairymen should keep in mind that pasture is either grass plus a balanced grain feed or grass plus cow flesh. It's far cheaper and safer to give cows a grain ration on grass right from the start than try to make up for the mistake later on when the cows become run down in condition."

PLENTY OF WATER NEEDED BY CHICKS

Poultry Authority Advises Ample Hopper and Fountain Space for Results.

"Chicks need plenty of fresh, clean water," advises C. S. Johnson, head of the Poultry Department of the Purina Mills. "Provide a one-gallon drinking fountain for each 50 chicks. Keep the fountains filled at all times. To aid in preventing disease, add to each gallon of drinking water, one-half level teaspoon of Chlorena Powder, obtainable wherever Checkerboard feeds are sold.

"When chicks are 3 or 4 weeks old, they outgrow the chick size feed hoppers. These should be replaced with larger hoppers and more of them. A 4 weeks old chick is more than twice as broad as a baby chick, therefore it needs more than twice as much room. They need extra watering space at this age, too.



Provide a one-gallon drinking fountain for each 50 chicks. Keep fountains filled at all times.

"Keep feed hoppers and drinking fountains clean. Disinfect daily with a solution of 2 level measuring spoons of Chlorena Powder to 3 gallons of water. Lift the litter lightly with a fork at intervals during the brooding period so that dropings will sift to the bottom."

"Old litter should always be removed and the brooder house cleaned and disinfected with cre-so-fec solution before brooding a second lot of chicks in the same quarters."

ALABAMA BAPTISTS END BANNER YEAR

Willi Carry Glowing Report To The Southern Convention At St. Louis On May 14th

Annual meetings of the Southern and Northern Baptist Conventions will be held this month in St. Louis, the Southern group convening May 14 and closing May 19 with a joint session with their Northern brethren. The Northern Baptists will hold their regular meeting imediately following this joint program. Nearly 10,000 mesengers from the two conventions are expected to attend the sessions.

Dr. F. M. Barnes, secretary-treasurer of the Alabama Baptists Convention, announced yesterday that total receipts for the fiscal year just ended showed an increase of $28,802,-77 over the preceding year. Secretary Barnes's books closed on April 30 with receipts of $119,042.15 for the cooperative program and $85,338.80 as designated gifts, making a total for the year by Alabama Baptists of $204,-380.95. The increase in receipts to the cooperative program over 1934-35 was $13,878.28 and in designated gifts $14,924.49.

Dr. Barnes announced with satisfaction that this was the first time in several years that Baptists of the State had contributed upwards of $200,000 to the various denomination agencies. "But we made a decided climb during the Southern Baptist Convention year just ended," he stated.

Baptisms throughout the State are also said to have been very gratifying, although no figures on new members were included in Dr. Barnes's report made public Tuesday.

He predicted that between 5,000 and 6,000 ministers, missionaries, laymen and women would attend the Southern Baptist Convention, which has a constituency of some 5,000,000 members. The Northern Convention, it is understood, is not quite as large as the Southern body. The two organizations embrace the entire United States.

Dr. Barnes said a large delegation would go to St. Louis from Alabama. The railroads, he said had granted special rates from all sections.

Dr. Barnes will go to St. Louis in advance of the opening of the convention a week from tomorow to attend pre-convention meetings. One of these will be the conference of State convention secretaries, and officers of the Southern Baptist Convention. The executive board will meet the night of May 13. Dr. J. E. Dilliard, of Birmingham, is one of the Alabama members of the board.

Governor Graves has instructed the State Highway Department to advertise for bids on the Decatur-Somerville road extentsion from Somerville toward Arab, a distance of 12 miles. Cost of the extension is estimated as high as $175,000.

North Birmingham Merchants Association has appointed Harry Chambers and Robert Gandy to confer with the City Commission and officials of WPA on feasibility of erecting a training center for white youths in North Birmingham Park.

Four generations attended the dinner and reception recently at the home of H. O. Varnon, three miles north of Millport in honor of the ninety-fifth birthday anniversary of his father, F. M. Varnon, one of the two remaining Confederate veterans in Lamar County.

Twelve Alabama farm women who attended the recent Chicago convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation sold $90 worth of home-made articles at their booth in the home industries display.

Mrs. Jean Wyatt returned home last Friday from Birmingham, where she had undergone an appendix operation eight days before.

Democratic Retnrns In Tuesday's Vote

With only one box, Beat 12—Box 2, uncounted, Democratic returns from Tuesday's primary pointed to one run-off, that of Commissioner in the Third District.

For U. S. Senator, Bankhead led Anderton, 1,098 to 222, and was reported to have a wide margin in the State.

For District Representative, Pete B. Harman was leading Maxwell 1,307 to 936, and was assured of nomination.

For County Treasurer, J. E. Easterling led B. M. Killingsworth 978 to 824.

For Commissioner, Third District, it appeared that there would be a run-off between R. L. Ousley and Dr. C. N. Parnell. The unofficial count was Crane, 188; C. J. (Jeff) Cobern, 90; A. T. Dawson, 114; R. L. Ousley, 477; Dr. C. N. Parnell, 371; E. N. Shanks, 199.

For Commissioner, Fourth District, it appeared from reports that actual count would indicate a run-off between Parrish and Deramus, although it was rumored that Deramus would withdraw. Officials were not sure if this would bring the next candidate, J. T. Thompson, into line for the run-off, or whether this would indicate a nomination for Parrish. An opinion had been asked, and on Wednesday morning no reply had been received.

For Education Board Member, Dr. W. L. Parrish led Mrs. Gladys Deramus 917 to 607.

GROWING... to serve the growing South

More than $38,200,000 was spent by the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company in 1935 in taxes, wages and plant additions, improvements and replacements to meet the demands for high grade telephone service in the section it serves.

Most of the thirty-eight million dollars found its way back into the avenues of trade in the South.

To care for the 55,950 new telephones added and the eight per cent increase in the volume of traffic, the Company increased its personnel, expanded its plant and made a substantial improvement in the quality of its service.

Over 1,200 people were added to the payroll, making a total of seventeen thousand now employed by the Company. These additional people are all residents of towns and cities in this section. The annual payroll was nineteen million dollars, an increase of almost seven per cent over the previous year.

Taxes paid to federal, state, county and municipal agencies totalled over six and one-half million dollars, or about one-eighth of the total revenues received from telephone users.

Having maintained the service and met every responsibility cheerfully during the depression, telephone men and women are continuing their efforts to provide more and better service at the lowest possible cost during 1936.

GROWING RELIEF COSTS

Many persons used to think that the only cure for alarming relief costs was an improvement in business conditions. Many still cling to that belief. But while business conditions have been improving in numerous fields, relief rolls have been rising instead of decreasing. In this state, relief outlays for the first months of 1936 were larger than ever before.

Nearly everybody can point out some factors responsible for it. The "relief habit' is contagious; many family reserves have been exhausted at last; some have tired of it or grown unable longer to carry relatives and friends in addition to their own expenses. It provides cheap campaigning, cheap to the campaigners. But one influence which has been pointed out in these columns several times of late as a powerful force in building relief rolls, or, inversely, in preventing their curtailment, is called in the New York Times the one which, "more than any other factor accounts for the rise in relief rolls, even though business conditions continue to improve." That is the weakness of local responsibility.—New Haven Conn. Register.

The country is eating more eggs than ever before, announces somebody who finds out how many eggs the country is eating. They are scrambled, no doubt.—Boston Transcript.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

This is the era of regimentation and regulation. The practice is in effect not only in Russia, Germany and Italy which are usually cited as examples of Government interfereence carried to the nth degree, but it has become pretty apparent in the United States, which we have called in the past the land of the free.

Regimentation and regulation were the backbone of the N. R. A. and the A. A. A. which were put out of commission by the United States Supreme Court. But the flair for regulation is not over, even yet. For example one of the latest proposals of some of the Brain Trusters at Washington is that we have a Federal Motion Picture Commission. It is said that the proposal comes to us from the research department of the N. R. A. of late memory. So the N. R. A. may be dead but its soul (if any) goes marching on.

Americans have seen so much of regulation and censorship abroad that they are a trifle suspicious when more of the same kind is suggested for the United States. True it is that the purpose of the proposed commission as announced, would be to ferret out and cure or prevent "monoply" among the motion picture producers. But it is not difficult to see that with the characteristic zeal of bureaucrats it wouldn't be long until the commissions might be selecting the kind of pictures they think we ought to see, and putting the others out of the limelight. And it is difficult for others to see why a censorship of motion pictures could not easily and logically be followed by a censorship of the radio, the newspaper, the magazine and perhaps the spoken word.

Anyhow it is not to be forgotten that Uncle Sam already has a instrument which is designed to search out unfair trade practices and prevent monoply. That is the Federal Trade Commission which has been busy at its job for several years now. Of course the good American shudders at the word "monoply," yet it is not to be forgotten that the N. R. A. which is said to have hatched this proposal to prevent motion picture monoply, seemed to have for one of its most important purposes getting business out from under the restrictions of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The truth is, of course, that the impelling motive behind the suggestion for a Motion Picture Commission is not to protect the publict against monoply and unfair practices but to form another commission which would find comfortable quarters in Washington and furnish jobs for a few scores of deserving ones who may not now be on the Federal pay roll or who are suffering from an impending imminent casting adrift. It is also barely possible of course, that the tempting idea that it might be practicable later on to censor the movies and mould the motion pictures mind of the nation according to the will of the bureaucrats, may not be entirely absent.

At any rate the American people are getting fed up with the idea of new commissions and new bureaus at Washington. They do not believe that it is the duty of the powers on the Potomac to regulate the life of the people of the nation from the time they arise in the morning and turn on the radio for the setting up exercises until they return from their favorite movie at night. In the good old days our best known liberals expressed the opinion that the happiest and best governed people were those that were least governed. Such does not seem to be the opinion of those who count themselves "advanced" thinkers today. It only goes to show that the tory of one generation may become the liberal of tomorraw, and vice versa. At any rate it is about time that the American people become "bureau conscious" and get rid of some of the old furniture without taking on any of the 1936 period.

YOUR MOVE, MR. PRESIDENT

Five thousand men are still at work making a bigger and bigger ditch out of what was to have been the trans-Florida ship canal.

And about half as many are still busy up a Cobscook Bay doing whatever men do on a grandiose undertaking to harness the tides.

Yet officially it is not intended that either of these projects shall ever be completed. Indeed, 19 days ago President Roosevelt announced that he would allot no more money to either the canal or Passamaquoddy unless Congress directed him to do so. Congress, which had before frowned upon both projects, has in the 19 days shown no desire whatever to continue them.

The Army engineers in charge of the two projects say they have no orders to stop. They indicate that unless they receive orders to the contrary they will carry on until July 1 and the last dollar of allotted money is spent.

It is President Roosevelt's responsibility that the taxpayers' money is being thrown away on these two "abondoned" projects. He started both of them, without asking the consent of Congress, and against the advice of Administration experts. More than $9,000,000 has already been wasted. The least the President could do is to withdraw, forthwith, the unexpended balances of the allotments and put those 7,500 men to work on projects that will be completed.

In no part of his whole spending program is the President so vulnerable as in these two haphazard ventures.—Birmingham Post.

TAKING STOCK OF OURSELVES

Travelers who spend any time at all in Europe and then return to the United States generally remark that in spite of six years of depression the United States continues to be the envy and admiration of the people of other countries. The fact that the lot of the average citizen in the United States is much better than the circumstances of people in other countries is generally recognized in other lands whether it is so recognized in the United States or not. Of course the great majority of Americans are patriotic citizens who have a proper love and regard for their own country and the unexampled opportunities which it affords them and their children.

There has been in the United States during the past few years, however, so much complaint and criticism, coming nit only from the communists—who goodness knows are bad enough—but from a great many people who ought to know better. They prattle about the old canard that ten per cent of the people in America own ninety per cent of the wealth, that the rich are growing richer and the poor poorer, that the Government owes everybody a living, a living which cannot be obtained without regimented economy and the "production for use instead of profit."

Yet what about this country of ours as compared with the rest of the world? Just where do we stand as likened to other people anyhow? By way of beginning it may be observed that the United States has only six per cent of the land area of the world and but seven per cent of the world's population. With that modest showing of land and numbers, however, we are sitting on top of the world so far as the comforts and conveniences, which our people enjoy, are concerned.

The proof is not hard to find. We have 32 per cent of the railroads, 58 per cent of the telephone and telegraph facilities, 76 per cent of the automobiles, one third of the world's radio broadcasting stations and 44 per cent of the world's broadcasting sets. Our people are better fed and better clothed than those of any other nation in the world. In no European nation do we see factories which are hemmed in by the automobiles of the working men who have driven to their work!

And the rich have not been growing richer while the poor were growing poorer. In 1850 in the United States, the worker's share of national income was 38 per cent. In 1929 it was 65 per cent and there has been no change in this respect during the depression. In 1930, no less than 14,000,000 families owned their own homes and since then the Government—whether its efforts have been efficient or not—has been spending hundreds of millions in an effort to increase the number. More than half of the farmers of the United States own their own farms, and on more than half of the farms there are no mortgages, despite all the wailing about the poor farmer—some of which may be justified.

This is not all of it. Less than two years ago there were 38 million savings accounts in our banks and the number has increased since then. There were life insurance policies in force to the face value of seventy billions and the life insurance business is picking up. All this is in addition to the 888,000,000 industral policies with a face value of over eighteen billions.

Compare this record with any you can find in Europe. Compare it with Soviet Russia, the land where the leftist system is being worked out. Things are so bad there as to justify a real complaint but in "free Russia" one cannot complain without risking firing squad or exile ot Siberia.

None of us is as well off as he would like to be. But before we "run down" Uncle Sam let us consider the state of peoples in other lands. The folks "over there' realize how much better off we are. That is why so many of them would like to come here if granted the opportunity.

Remember the good old days when mother only stayed up until dawn when she was cooking apple butter?

Very few fellows are ever arrested for speeding when they are driving to work.

A man is "pie-eyed" to drive a car safely after he has had three drinks of whiskey, according to the Illinois Society of Optometry. In the good old days after he had three drinks he couldn't even shift gears.

A communist is not necesary against capital. He is just against the other fellow having any capital.

Uncle Sam ought not merely keep out of membership in the League of Nations. He ought to refuse a guest card.

MAN IN THE MOON

TORNADO THREAT

Of late years it seems that the tornado threat is a regular annual affair. Along about the middle of February is the time when they begin. Usually the first one is heard from a bit south of us, then the prosession moves northward, as spring opens up. The scientists and weather men tell us that the cause of a tornado is that the warm winds from the south and the cooler winds from the north get together and produce a whirling effect which moves in an east or northeast direction; that this is the reason that nearly all tornados come from the southwest.

I don't think I ever paid much attention to news of tornadoes until 1932, but since that time have watched them closely. And I have a perfectly good reason for that, too—I'm afraid of those twisters, and not in the least ashamed to admit it.

I have noticed that each succeeding tornado crosses the country a little further north. This year, the first one I heard of was south of us—a small one; then the big boy that hit Tupelo, Miss., and Gainesville, Ga.; the next one was up in Tennessee; and now comes news of two more, both of them still further north. For that reason, I believe the real threat of tornadoes for this section this year is about over.

Maybe this will be cheering news for many people in Chilton County. But this is not hard to understand, if you have ever traveled through a tornado region just after one. Dead and dying people, painful injuries, homes crushed or blown to bits, group funerals, etc., all this is hard to forget. If the scinetists are right in their deductions, as they are much of the time, then we have no reason for much further fear of the deadly twister in this section this year. I might ought to knock on wood when I write this, but here's hoping the prediction pans out true, any way.

ETERNAL GAMBLE

The will to gamble is as old as the race, itself. People have gambled ever since the Garden of Eden; sometimes they have lost, sometimes won, but win or lose, they always come back for more.

Adam and Eve gambled the future happiness of themselves and the human race for all time to come against the forbidden fruit, and they and their children have continued to suffer their loss all down through the ages.

The colonists gambled their lives against freedom beyond the seas in a land untouched so far as they knew. They suffered untold hardships, many of them lost their lives, yet in the end they won, and from hazardous gamble, and their indomitable will to win, has arisen the most powerful nation to ever grace the face of the earth.

American pioneers gambled their lives and fortunes against the hardships of frontier perseverance. Again some of these paid with their lives, but after all the "golden West" was opened up and some of the finest land and resources of the continent added to the already existing nation.

Along other lines the gamble has gone on, too. In the medical profession, devoted people have believed in their discoveries to overcome different diseases so strongly that they have gambled their lives to test them. Some of them failed—martyrs in an honest gamble to aid suffering humanity. Others have been more successful, and have felt the thrill of real pioneers, in hearing the praises of their fellow men.

And so it goes. Not all gambling is bad, nor vicious. Some of it is quite necessary. The farmer gambles the cost of his seeds, his fertilizer, and his labor, against a chance of profit. Without righteous gambling, the world would still be a wilderness, and the world's people unlearned. And even as gambling of a sort has always existed, so it will continue. New discoveries will be made, new feats accomplished, new and useful inventions brought forth, solely on the inherent desire of the human race to take a chance—to gamble.

COL. MIDDLETON AT COOPERS

I wish all of our readers could have been present at Coopers last Saturday night to hear Col. J. Osmond Middleton's speech to the Young Republicans. Unfortunately, only a few were present, but the eloquent Middleton "turned on the heat" in no uncertain manner. I wish that both Republicans and Democrats could have heard. Republicans would have been convinced anew that the principles of their party are right, and Democrats would have listened to unimpeachable evidence, supported by facts apparent to themselves, that their party has dragged the nation into a slough of autocracy the like of which has not heretofore occurred in its history.

Col. Middleton began with the formation of the present Republican party in 1854, and traced the principles of that party—"personal liberty, material progress, and preservation of the Constitution and the Union" — all through the years to the present time. He showed unmistakably that the observance of these principles in our government has been the mainspring of the nation's rapid progress. He averred that not once has the Republican party wavered from these principles, and that it has had the pleasure of watching the country grow and prosper under the guidance of its administration.

In like manner he brought out the Democratic policies of government, and proved beyond doubt that the party is misnamed—that it should be called the "Autocratic" or "Bureaucratic" party. Vividly portraying the complete departure from stated Democratic platform promises and the substitution of autocratic methods by the present administration, Col. Middleton traced this departure to the "red" influence of Communistic officials who CONFESS allegiance to the "red" octopus at Moscow. He traced the will to rule with an iron hand, from Moscow to Washington, from Washington to Montgomery, and finally to Chilton County. He warned that if the head of this departure from the American style of government should be returned to the presidency for another four years, Americans can well bid adieu to their rights of liberty, expressing a doubt that the people of the country could hold against another term under such autocratic conditions.

In conclusion, Col. Middleton urged Republicans, young and old, to hold firmly to their faith in their party, which has built the nation, and which will have to save it if it is to be saved. He urged them to bestir themselves to interest all people of our faith in the duty that is theirs in trying to thwart the un-American attempts upon our government by autocratic impulses.

He voiced a lack of belief that the present administration is a Democratic one, but rather a Communistic movement. In burning terms he denounced the administration's late attacks against the Supreme Court and the Constitution, both of which have always been closely guarded by all previous administrations, whether Democratic or Republican. He pictured President Roosevelt as a spoiled child, fretting against the Constitution (which he has sworn to uphold) and the Supreme Court (whose decisions he is obligated to respect), as would a child who has lost a toy.

In short, Col. Middleton's speech was one of the best espousals of Americanism it would be possible to imagine. He is an honorable gentleman, a staunch believer in the rights of the American people, an eloquent speaker, and he used every ounce of that eloquence in putting before this audinece the present threat against their government, the exposure of the personnel of those to blame for their threat, and in voicing a plea for a return to safe and sane principles of Americanism before it is too late. It was a great speech—you should have heard it, whether you be Democrat or Republican.—Man in the Moon.

AAA'S MILLION DOLLAR CHECKS

As for the public which footed last year's bill if $580,821,000 and read from time to time that the average payment on this or that crop was only a few hundred dollars, the disclosures of million-dollar payments to two-sugar-producing companies, $961,000 to a third, and $84,000 check to an Arkansas cotton grower and $150,000 to a hog-raising concern ought to have hit its pocketbook nerve with a bang.

The shocking thing about these and other payments, is that they were made as a reward for not growing crops in accordance with the New Deal's economy of scarcity.

According to Professor Boyle of the Cornell Agricultural Station, the A.A.A. added at least 2,000,000 to the number of American unemployed. "American" is used advisedly, for the A.A.A. was as manna from the skies to the unemployed farm worker of other countries. When our cotton acreage was cut 40 per cent, other countries hastened to increase their production. The same was true of other crops. When had America ever before invited other nations to get busy and capture her world markets?

Here at home hundreds of thousands of workers in stockyards and packing houses, in cotton gins and an army of sharecroppers were made idle by the A. A. A. and thrown upon the relief rolls. Many of them had to be fed with meat and grain imported from foreign countries.

The A. A. A., with its checks from a million dollars down, was designed to "create increased farm purchasing power." It might as logically have been entitled an act to decrease the purchasing power of everybody else.

In the light of the information wrung from Mr. Wallace, which has given the American people a new and clearer, if startling picture of the manner in which the A. A. A. distributed their money, the country may well ask whether the substitute farm scheme that has been rushed through Congress in this election year is to be essentially any different in its injurious effects.

Its main objects, the New Dealers soothingly say, are to be soil conservation and 'maintenance of adequate farm income." Those last five words have their grim meaning for the taxpayers. That was the purpose of the $580,000,000 distributed last year by Prince Bountiful Wallace. He is to have a half billion for precisely the same purpose this year. And there are no strings tied to his discretion. Every farmer who, in Mr. Wallace's opinion, "co-operates" by withdrawing the prescribed amount of acreage and devoting it to the ordained purposes will get in cash whatever Mr. Wallace decides to give him.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

THE OPENING BLAST

"The Trumpeter" makes its first appearance as a Young Republicans' periodical devoted to satirization of the New Deal. However, along with the jibes and cartoons, serious articles on national affairs by Republican leaders are used.

SPEAKING OF ELEPHANTS

New Deal political dealers fondly boast that they are going to cage the G. O. P. elephant in November. Whether or not this prediction will turn out to be true, some political observers in Washington are of the opinion that the New Deal already has a great many elephants on hand. The unfortunate part of this, from the standpoint of the American taxpayer, is that these pachyderms are all of the bleached color that entitles them to be called White Elephants. And White Elephants have never been regarded as the right sort of animals to have on hand.

Three White Elephants which seem to be in the Federal jumbo class are the Quoddy harness-the-tides project in Maine, the Florida ship canal which was to traverse the state, and last but not least the Grand Coulee project in the State of Washington. It may be remarked in passing that this latter named project has up to this time cost the taxpayers something like $35,000,000 and another big appropriation will be needed to complete it. Whether Congress will pass this appropriation remains to be seen.

There has been a great deal in the newspapers of late about the Quoddy and the Florida ship canal project. Although millions of dollars have been spent on the working out of these two brain trust ideas, several more millions of the taxpayers money will be necessary if they are to be completed. Just now the pouring out of this additional money from the Federal Treasury seems somewhat doubtful, although none can even tell what will become necessary before November.

In addition to these expensive projects, moreover, there are a number of small boondoggling plans which may well turn out to be little White Elephants rather than boondoggies. These are so numerous that their naming and description would require a pamphlet rather than editorial comment.

While the large projects mentioned have cost the taxpayers more than a hundred million dollars, it is not to be forgotten that their practicability has been questioned by a great many engineers, some of whom have qualified as the Government's own engineering experts. But the practicability of spending the money and working on the projects, from a political standpoint, has never been doubted. White Elephants may be expensive to rear but when they are supported by Federal money they seem to have quite a little political weight in the communities in which they are quartered.

An optimist is a fellow who still thinks the tax on beer will pay the running expenses of the government.

When it comes to getting the most mileage out of a gallon of gas how about the noisy politicians?

Probably it won't be long now until the taxpayer gets a break. He will be entitled to a relief check.

Remember the good old days when most of the bank robbing was an inside job?

INFLATION LOOMS

Out of Washington comes the rumbling of inflation like distant thunderclaps preceding a storm.

The treasury of the United States is the strongest in the world, but it is being depleted at a rate so fast that it cannot be replenished by any honest means. Relief spending is only one of the major causes. Others include indirect expenditures, alleged but not proved, to have the effect of direct relief and increases in the regular budget items, such as Army, Navy and the departments. Social security, farm relief and the bonus are setting up vested interests which amount to valves. The flow will increase with the years.

How long can the borrowing continue? Until the banks can no longer buy Government I. O. U.'s. And when will that be? No one knows exactly, but there have already been signs of financial regurgitation as banks have tried to swallow the vast and frequent offerings. Whether the bonus and Security Act borrowings can be downed without throwing them back on Washington remains to be seen.

There is the issue. It must be faced. Curb the excess spending or squander the country into squallor. Cease piling up an unpayable debt or—inflation looms.—St. Louis, Mo., Star-Times.

TRADE FROM LATIN - AMERICA

According to the survey made by the Alexander Hamilton Institute, it is announced that our foreign trade with Latin-America increased definitely during the year 1935. But while our imports from Latin-America were 24.3 per cent greater in 1935 than the year previous, it is a significant fact that our exports to the same nations showed an increase of only 12 per cent.

It is true that the improvement in business conditions in certain lines in the United States have called for greater imports of raw materials from Latin-America. But it must be taken into consideration also that the A. A. A. farm program of reducing agricultural production in the United States, coupled with the drought, greatly increased our importation of alien farm products to the benefit of foreign agriculturists and to the detriment of the farmers of the United States and the consumers who footed the bill.

Just how much the reciprocal tariff agreements have had to do with the increase in foreign trade, can hardly be estimated. Since, however, under the reciprocal agreement with Cuba our imports from that country increased much more in value than our exports to the island, its is very likely that the increase of imports over exports was affected in some degree by our reciprocal tariff treaties. When duties are lowered, more imports come in because they take the place of American goods which are produced at higher prices under a better standard of living. But when we export the shoe is on the other foot. Our produce, which costs more to raise or manufacture, comes in competition with cheaper goods made elsewhere, and the business man in the importing country, buys where he can get the goods the cheapest. That helps to explain why the United States gets the worst of it every time one of those reciprocal tariff treaties is entered into.

The Dionne quintuplets are now in the movies which proves that there is prosperity as well as safety in numbers.

If Uncle Sam belonged to the World Court now it would be possible to get a decision against Mussolini and then they would want the old boy to send an army to Africa to enforce it.

If the European powers could cancel the Ethiopian war like they did the debt which they owed us, then all might be made lovely.

BEAUTIFUL, BEAUTIFUL HANDS

Such beautiful, beautiful hands!
They're neither white nor small,
And you, I know, would scarcely think,
That they are fair at all.

I've looked on hands whose form and hue,
A sculptor's dream might be;
Yet are those aged, wrinkled hands,
More beautiful to me.

Such beautiful, beautiful hands!
Though hearts were wearly and sad;
Those patient hands kept toiling on,
That the children might be glad.

I always weep, as, looking back,
To childhood's distant day;
I think how those hands rested not
When mine were at their play.

Such beautiful, beautiful hands!
They're growing feeble now;
For time and pain have left their mark
On hands, and heart and brow.

Alas! Alas! The nearing time,
And the sad, sad day to me
When 'neath the daisies out of sight;
These hands will folded be.

But oh! Beyond this shadow-land,
Where all is bright and fair,
I know full well these dear old hands
Will palms of victory wear.

Where crystal streams, through endless years;
Flow over golden sands;
And where the old grow young again,
I'll clasp my mother's hands.

County Farm Agent's Notes

CULTIVATE NEW KUDZU PLANTS

Aubrn, Ala.—To control erosion on Alabama farms, 3,845,000 kuzdu plants have been set during the past planting season, R. Y. Bailey, State Coordinator of the Soil Conservation Service reports. Clean cultivation of the kudzu during the first year will permit the plants to spread like a suge net over eroding fields.

From the points on the vines, the plants send their roots down into the soil and weave a complete luxurant cover. Before a kudzu field may be used for hay and pasture there must be many more rooted plants than were originally set out. These new plants will develop of their own accord if the soil is cultivated during the first year or two.

Cultivation controls weeds, gives runners a chance to take hold in the soil, and does away with the competition of weeds for moisture. Broomsedge is one of the worst enemies of kudzu. Plow it out then go over the field with a hoe and dig out remaining plants in the rows, says Bailey.

The practice of clean cultivation will keep the soil in good shape, permitting the kudzu crowns to send roots down into moist soil until there are three or four plants to every square yard of surface. This number must come from the joints which cannot root unless they lie on moist clean cultivated ground.

POTASH WORLD'S LOWEST PRICED FERTILIZER NOW

From the world's highest priced fertilizer twenty years ago to what is now the cheapest essential commercial plant food available, is a brief history of the trend in the price of potash during the past two decades.

Many farmers recal that following the outbreak of the World War the price of potash rose rapidly, the quotation mounting to more than a hundred dollars per ton for the few small lots remaining when shipments were cut of from abroad. Then followed a period when mixed fertilizers contained no potash—only phosphate and nitrogen—because potash was not available at any price.

Well remembered also is the ravages caused by rust in thousands of cot on fields throughout the South because of potash starvation. Many farmers will recall that yields were cut in half or more because of the inability of cotton plants to resist disease.

Today, however, potash is recognized as the cheapest fertilizer material available. As a consequence fertilizers containing less than four per cent of potash are becoming almost unknown, while mixtures analyzing from seven to ten per cent are growing rapidly in popularity. Side dressing with potash—which was almost unknown a few years ago—has now become a common practice throuhgout the cotton states.

Leading authorities on the use of fertilizer now recommend that cotton be supplied with at least 50 pounds of muriate of potash per acre or its equivalent in some other form of potash, and that where rust is prevalent that a side application of from 50 to 100 pounds per acre be made.

Experiment station officials recommend that cotton be side dressed about 35 days after planting.

STATE FARMERS HAVE 715 TRENCH SILOS

Auburn, Ala. — Alabama farmers have 715 trench silos which hold an average of 59 tons each to be filled this fall.

Reports show that last year the farmers grew and stored the silage at an average cost of $2.30 per ton. Most of the silos are filled with Gooseneck sorghum, sometimes called Texas seeded ribbon cane, planted at the rate of one peck of seed per acre in 3½ foot rows on bottom land with plenty of available moisture.

Sorghum for silage is usually planted the first half of May and is cultivated like corn. If available, barnyard manure is excellent for the cane. It has also been found that 200 to 400 pounds of nitrogenous fertilizer applied at the time of second cultivation gives good results.

ELEVEN MILLION TREES, SHRUBS SET IN ALABAMA

Auburn, Ala.—More than 11,000,000 trees and shrubs have been planted during the past season on badly eroded areas in Alabama by the Soil Conservation Service and Extension Service.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for May 10

EFFECTUAL PRAYER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 18:1-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—God be merciful to me a sinner.—Luke 18:13.
PRIMARY TOPIC — How Two Men Prayed.
JUNIOR TOPIC — When Prayer Changes Things.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Should I Pray?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Shall We Pray Effectively?

From first to last the books of the Bible teem with the language and spirit of prayer. Prayers of every type are found in the Old Testament—personal confession and petition, intercession, and especially praise to Jehovah voiced in private and public prayers.

The present lesson offers definite instruction by a great Teacher.

I. "Men Ought Always to Pray" (v. 1).

Prayer is necessary to spiritual life. What breathing is to the physical body prayer is to the spiritual existence. Men ought to pray under every variety of circumstance; in time of sorrow and burden, for strength to endure; in time of joy and success, for grace to behave aright.

Prayer ought to be persistent even when the answer is not immediately recognized. "All men pray at times," we are told. To the Christian alone belongs the faith-filled and persistent prayer. God hears and answers prayer, even when we do not understand the mysteries of delay.

II. The Urgent Prayer of a Widow (vv. 2-8).

The picture here is of a helpless widow who was being cheated out of her property rights, coming to a godless judge for redress. Her only means of getting help was persistently to declare the justice of her claim. He complied with her urgent request, not because he feared God or man, but to get rid of her. The point here is not that God is like this unjust judge, that he can be teased into compliance, but rather the teaching is by contrast. If through persistence the judge yields, how much surer is the help of a merciful God for the elect who cry unto him day and night. The believer's prayer is to a covenant keeping God. This is why the truth concerning the coming of Christ is of such meaning. The church should pray for the fulfillment of God's promise, and not be disheartened and discouraged, as are some (II Pet. 3:4). Though many may despair, we should be assured that genuine faith will abide and that the divine promise concerning the coming of Christ will be fulfilled.

III. The Prayer of the Proud Pharisee (vv. 9-12).

1 He took a striking attitude (v. 11). The Jewish custom was to stand while praying, but the word "stood" implies the assumption of ostentation. He was self-righteous and trusted in himself.

2. He prayed with himself (vv. 11, 12). He was merely soliloquizing, pretending to thank God, while really complimenting himself. He congratulated himself upon his morality (v. 11). He claimed to thank God that he was not as other men: extortioners, adulterers, unjust, or even as the publican standing afar off. One who has been kept from the grosser sins ought to thank God, but should not set himself above his fellow men, as though the virtue were his own. He congratulated himself for his religious merit (v. 12) He fasted twice a week and gave tithes of all he possessed. He thus informed God that he did even more than was required.

IV. The Prayer of the Humble Publican (v. 13).

How great the contrast in the prayer and spirit of the publican! He did not stand with ostentation, but for very shame could not so much as lift up his face to heaven, but smote upon his breast, a sign of anguish and despair, and cried "God be merciful to me a sinner." That this heart-cry is indeed the heart of the lesson is indicated from the fact that it is cited as the golden text.

V. Christ's Testimony (v. 14).

Christ makes it unmistakably evident that the attitude and petition of the publican meets with his favor. Pharisees of every age, for their pride and self-righteousness are rejected of God. The spirit of the publican expressing itself in the prayer of a penitent, will today meet with the commendation, "This man went down to his house justified."

The believer who weighs thoughtfully the meaning of this lesson will find much encouragement to prayer. He must be justified, knowing his sins forgiven in answer to penitential prayer. He must pray in spite of a natural impulse to faint, to neglect the practice of prayer; he ought always to pray, and not faint.

A Harsh Word

To be silent, to suffer, to pray when we cannot act, is acceptable to God. A disappointment, a contradiction, a harsh word received and endured in his presence, is worth more than a long prayer.—Fenelon.

Ennobling Our Work

Our daily life should be sanctified by doing common things in a religious way. There is no action so slight or so humble but it might be done to a great purpose or ennobled thereby.—G. MacDonald.

Mrs. James Wade and Miss Alice Brooks motored to Montgomery Sunday afternoon.

WORK SHEETS MUST BE FILED BY MAY 15th

Auburn, Ala.—May 15 is an important date for all Alabama farmers.

The State Soil Conservation Committee has set it as the final date for farmers of the State to file work sheets with county agents for participation in the new $470,000,000 national soil conservation program this year.

Information also has been received from Washington stating that there may be an indefinite delay in the price adjustment checks unless applications are filed for the payments before May 15 on cotton sold prior to May 15.

"Farmers who have not already filled out work sheets or made application for cotton price adjustment payment are urged to do so immediately," advises Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the State extension service, and W. H. Robertson, member of the State soil conservation committee.

In calling attention to the fact that all work sheets must be filed with county agents by May 15, the agricultural leaders advised all producers, whether or not they expect to apply for grants this fall, to fill out work sheets, as this in no way obligates the producer to cooperate or to apply for a grant. "Under present regulations there is no way a farmer can obtain a grant this fall without filling out a work sheet this spring prior to the final date set by the State committee."

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

We live in an imperfect world. There are very few things that are exactly right. Paul taught tha the curse of sin is on all creation. Some musician observed that every chord in nature is in the minor key. The wind sighs and the sea moans. Not only is the physical world imperfect—all human government is imperfect. Man has never been able to build a government that would stand permanently. All human government is merely an experiment. The curse of sin has affected human judgment. It is impossible for man to think clearly. If man had never sinned, he probably would have intuitively reached the right conclusion. The only explanation for world conditions is the Bible explanations. Sin entered the universe. One-third of the angels were cast out of heaven. The earth is now the stage of the operations of evil spirits. Jesus Christ came to bring to naught the works of the devil. There is a golden day coming when our mortal bodies will put on immortality, when the curse of sin will be lifted from creation and the universe will be restored to its original purity.

There are as many evidences of the personal devil as there are evidences of a personal God. If there isn't a devil, who is responsible for the devilment? As some one has said, "who's to blame for the cultivating row?" Men and women who have been saved by simple faith in Jesus Christ and who know the joy of fellowship with the Lord are conscious of a peculiar, satanic, unseen influence that operates in this world. A personal devil is responsible for this influence which men feel and which affects the entire world. The devil is called the "prince of the power of the air". We wrestle not with flesh and blood, but with principalities and powers in the heavenlies". There is one devil but there are many demons. The devil is the great general who directs the activities of an army of evil spirits. The devil is not omni-present. The devil cannot be every where at the same time, but he has enough soldiers in his army to make him practically omnipresent as far as this world is concerned. The only person who is safe is the Christian who recognizes the existence of the devil and who is not ignirant of his devices and who is not ignorant of his devices conquering Christ to overcome his satanic majesty. Remember, if there is not a personal devil, then Jesus Christ was tempted by a sin principle in His own nature. We must either believe in a personal devil or a sinful Christ. The Bible teaches that there is a personal devil and that Jesus Christ was the sinless Son of God.

EARMARKED FUND FOR SCHOOLS

Montgomery, Ala., May 1.—The school leaders of Alabama will no longer fight for a parity constitutional amendment according to Garland S. Smith, of Vernon, president of the Alabama Education Association. Instead, they will launch a drive to have all school revenues, including those for higher institutions, placed in one educational fund, this fund to be maintained by revenue especially earmarked for education.

The new plan was agreed on at a special meeting of the executive boards of the Alabama Education Association and the Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers, Mr. Smith explained. School leaders concluded that it is practically impossible to get the right kind of a parity amendment passed at the present time. The Harrison bill, passed by both houses on the last day of the recent legislative session, but which died in conference committee, abolished the Special Educational Trust Fund and exempted highway funds in full, as well as appropriations for the judiciary of the state.

"By getting parity through earmarked funds", Mr. Smith said, "the schools will be able to stand on their own bottom and it can no longer be said that schools will not get the taxes levied in their behalf. Under our proposed new program funds can be voted for education with the absolute assurance that they will go for the purpose intended.

"We want it understood", Mr. Smith declared, "that we are continuing our fight for parity for education, but we shall try to get real parity this time and in a different way."

FRANK NELSON, JR., WRITES FROM MIAMI, FLORIDA

Miami, Fla., April 27, 1936.
The Union-Banner,
Clanton, Alabama.

I am enclosing one dollar for a year's subscription to your very big little paper. Chilton county seems to be well represented down here, and it will seem almost like home after The Union-Banner starts coming every week.

If any of you folks feel like you need a good sun tan this is the real place to get it. The weather is fine and the fishing can't be beat. It has been only a couple of weeks since they had to stop the traffic on one of the causeways so some lucky fellow could have plenty of elbow room to land a big one. You can figure for yourself what you could do out in a small yacht if he could catch them that way from the causeways. Now these are real facts, too, as I am not much of a fisherman and I wouldn't know how to begin a real good fish story. Yours truly,—Frank Nelson, Jr., 7624 N. Miami Ave., Miami, Fla.

DR. HAYES CAUGHT BIG FISH

On a recent fishing trip to Perdido Bay, at Foley, Ala., Dr. J. P. Hayes hooked a 58-pound ling, and after a thrilling 30-minute fight, managed to land the big fellow.

The big fish, which closely resembled a blue cat, was being dressed at Broadhead's market Tuesday morning. The catch was made last Tuesday. Several smaller fish were caught on the trip, also.

With Dr. Hayes on this trip were: Mrs. Hayes, Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Edgar, and Miss Ruth Edgar, all reporting a great time.

Party Politics Aim Of AAA Say Foes

Washington, April 27.—The long smouldering political row over AAA benefit payments burst into the open today as the Senate met to pass upon the Vandenberg resolution calling for publication of all payments in excess of $10,000.

While Republicans charged the administration used AAA payments to build up a huge political organization, Democrats reported the A A A program had been the salvation of American agriculture in the last three years. They were willing to permit publication of all large AAA benefits, but insisted upon giving Secretary of Agriculture Wallace a chance to defend his program.

Senator Robinson, (Democrat), of Arkansas, majority leader, angrily denounced the resolution as a political gesture.

Senator Vandenberg denied this and declared he sought information about the expenditure of a billion dollars, which "Secretary of Agriculture Wallace spent how he pleased, when he pleasde and where he pleased."

Wallace, in an informal report, already has announced there were 6,900,000 benefit payments under all AAA contracts in the last three years. This covered agreements to slash production in sugar, cotton, wheat, corn and hogs, tobacco and rice in return for benefit payments from the AAA.

Payments Cited

There were payments in excess of $10,000 in every one of these crop-reduction programs, Wallace admitted. The highest payments included $1,021,037 to a Hawaiin sugar concern, $961,054 to a Puerta Rican Sugar concern, $256,010 to a Louisiana sugar concern, 46 cotton payments in excess to $10,000, eight hog contracts in excess of $16,000, 11 more hog contracts between $10,000 and $16,000, including one $157,000 payment to a California concern; one cotton payment of $84,000 to an Arkansas concern and one tobacco payment of $41,454 to a Florida outfit.

One of the highest wheat payments already revealed was $22,325 to Pat Campbell, Montana wheat king who leased Indian lands on which he contracted with the government not to grow wheat."

The Campbell episode may become a major issue in the West in the coming campaign. Republicans charged he leased Indian lands at a ridiculously low figure and then was paid AAA wheat benefits far in excess of his rental costs.

Senator Vandenberg, (Republican), of Michigan, who sponsored the resolution calling for publication of AAA payments said:

"Mr. Campbell leased Idian lands at a comparatively small cost. I am told that it was a rental of 50 cents an acre. Then he collected a much higher benefit payment per acre from Mr. Wallace for not growing wheat on the lands he had just leased from the Indian Bureau. We are hoping to get all the facts about the strange transaction."

Industry Accepts F.D.R.'s Challenge

To See Millions Still Out Of Work After Billions Have Been Spent

Washington, May 9.—Organized representatives of business, labor and the federal government are uniting to find out why millions of men are out of jobs despite the government's stupendous relief program.

President Roosevelt started the ball rolling in his Baltimore speech, where he charged that industry itself was largely responsible for the fact that the New Deal had failed to put 11 million unemployed persons back to work.

The United States Chamber of Commerce has accepted the challenge of the President, and, with the declaration that it will not accept responsibility, has asked the American Federation of Labor to join it in an impartial survey of employment problems.

Experts To Assist

With labor and industry thus united in a study of the "New Deal" as it affects normal life, the government has joined by assigning Department of Labor experts to assist.

John W. O'Leary, president of the Machinery and Allied Products Institute, has been named chairman of the Chamber's investigating committee. He said today:

"We will make periodical reports. They will not be intended to have any relation to politics. But, they will come quickly and they will be made public whether they favor or oppose the programs of President Roosevelt."

Emphasizing that the employment study would reach into every phase of business, O'Leary continued:

Positive Action

"We realize that there is not just one unemployment problem, and that the solution is not in one prescription, but in many, to meet widely different conditions. Action must be positive, not negative—that is, it must provide for creation of new wealth and new jobs to furnish the unemployed with income.

"One of the most important requisites of an intelligent approach to unemployment problems is knowledge of the specific places where employment has declined and where it can be increased. What we need is a broad national survey of re-employment possibilities.

"Business and industry, through Chambers of Commerce, trade associations and individual merchants, stores, services and professions throughout the country can determine our re-employment possibilities with a degree of accuracy which cannot be equaled in any other way. We should proceed to piece together the many threads of information and then make available to all a concentrated, exhaustive knowledge of re-employment possibilities."

CAUGHT FISH THAT HAD SWALLOWED HOOK

Mrs. W. G. Culp was fishing in Walnut creek recently, when she caught a four-pound trout. It was found that the fish had a hook and short line in his throat; and the hook and short line were recognized as that lost by Dolphus Payton only a few days previously.

EDUCATIONAL FILM IS BEING MADE BY FORD MOTOR COMPANY

Recent progress in methods of producing, casting, and machining steel are pictured in a new educational film produced under the supervision of the United States Bureau of Mines and now available from the bureau's experiment station in Pittsburgh, Pa. The film has its setting in the Rouge plant of the Ford Motor Company at Dearborn, Mich., and is entitled "Making a V-Type Motor."

While the title indicates a study of the technique which permits the casting of the eight-cylinder V-type block as a single unit, the film is more comprehensive in scope. Beginning with an airplane view of the 1,096 acre plant, the pictorial story traces the manufacturing process from the arrival of the ore to final tests on the completed engine, with special emphasis on modern methods.

Steel treating processes requiring temperatures ranging from 310 degrees (Fahrenheit) below zero to 900 degrees above zero, precision inspection to an accuracy of three ten-thousandths of an inch, and inspection of a rapidly rotating parts in the completed motor are among the operations shown.

Following the ore through the plant, the pictures start with the unloading by the freighters at the boat slip into large storage bins. The blast furnaces are presented next. Then the electric and air furnaces, the foundry, and the control laboratories are visited with intimate views of what goes on at each stage of production. Machine shops, constant temperature inspection rooms, the manufacture of parts made from special steels, and the assembly operations are presented in order.

Practically every scene represents some achievement in metallurgical research, presented, however, in pictures which clearly reveal the processes used. The film is one of a series prepared by the U. S. Bureau to illustrate activities in the mineral and metal industries and is available to schools, educational societies, and other interested groups.

LUSCIOUS FRESH BERRIES

The columnist is in receipt of a create of fresh, firm and delicious strawberries springing from the ideal strawberry soil of Chilton County. And if there are any more like them up there this year, and we believe there are carloads, we expect to pay a visit that way and see the shipping operation for ourselves.

The berries were grown by J. N. Dennis and as L. E. Diefenderfer says "He is one of our most up-to-date and progressive farmers—and while we do not say all of the strawberries are as nice as these we do say that the Clanton Berry Growers Association ships quality berries." W. T. Bean is the president of the association, J. N. Dennis, secretary-treasurer and L. E. Diefenderfer business manager.

Talking of a crate of berries recently sent us by Judge Adams of Brewton, Escambia County, Mr. Diefenderfer said "Sometime back, we do not recall who sent them, you were the recipient of a crate of strawberries from south Alabama. We do not want anyone to get the impression that any better things come from south Alabama than central Alabama and Clanton in particular." The berries were merrily and thankfully received, thank you.—The Passing Throng, Atticus Mullin in Montgomery Advertiser.

HAS BEAUTY SHOPPE IN CALERA

Miss Roma Lee Pate, of Thorsby, has recently installed a beauty shoppe in Calera. Miss Pate graduated from the Modern School of Beauty in Clanton a few weeks ago. She is the daughter of Mr. J. E. Gov.'s Sales Tax Legislators Call

Solons Visit State Capitol To Talk Tax Measures With Bibb Graves

Montgomery, Ala., May 11.—It looked like "old home week" at the capital last week when Governor Graves visited by his legislative sales tax advocates, many of them here to obtain paroles for clients, B. C. Apperson, executive secretary of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama, said in a statement released here.

"At least a dozen of the governor's sales tax legislators called upon the Governor and while some were interested in obtaining paroles, many were interested in getting back on the payroll," Apperson said.

"And according to advice from the state capitol, when the checks are handed out again, many familiar names will be typed in on them," Apperson added.

"It appears that the governor is going to put his boys back on the payroll, even though they were not successful in getting a sales tax bill through the legislature," the executive secretary said.

"This can mean but one thing—that the governor is going to call another special session of the legislature when he thinks the educational crowd has cornered enough votes to put a big tax bill through the lower house."

Dave Birmingham, of the convict department, threw a wrench in the "parole racket" last week in a speech he made to members of the Montgomery Exchange Club.

Birmingham, who politicians say 'talked out of school," told of what he termed a "racket" of certain senators and legislators who deal in paroles.

"It is a safe bet Birmingham will not be permitted to make that speech again while he is on the state payroll," Apperson added.

"For many of the senators and representatives, in fact about all, who are acting as parole attorneys, voted with the administration on its tax measures," Apperson said.

REPUBLICANS, STAND BY YOUR GUNS

[AN EDITORIAL]

The Republican party of Chilton county has passed the first mile-post in this year's campaign. In the primary election held on May 5th, part of our nominees were named; part of them will be in the run-off primary on June 9th.

So far as the party has spoken, no reason has been given anyone for dissatisfaction as to the results. The thing for us to do now is to take the results as they were expressed by a majority of our Republican voters, and all of us be guided by this expressed voice of the majority. Let the defeated candidates, as well as all those who did not get all of their choice, fall in line behind the winners and let's put them over in November.

The issues and questions at stake are entirely too big for us to kick out of the harness and vote for any Democrats in the general election. The Democrats have nominated good men, but Democrats are Democrats; and if they are loyal to their party they will stay with their party leaders. You know what the Democraic leaders in Alabama and the nation stand for. We have had it demonstrated to us in Chilton county during the past month or so what methods the Democratic leaders resort to to carry their points in legislative and political matters.

Republicans of Chilton county cannot afford to be blinded against their own interests and fooled into voting either directly or indirectly for the bureaucratic, socialistic, dictatorial and strangle-rule methods employed by those who really have charge of the Democratic party.

If you vote Democratic, you endorse what the Democrats are doing. You endorse the 32 billion dollar debt they have placed upon the backs of the taxpayers. You endorse the methods they have resorted to in belittling and ridiculing the Constitution of the United States; destroying in the face of want; and hundreds of other things that are totally foreign to American principles and ideals.

Republicans, let's stay with our guns. It has proved our only salvation in the past, and it will do it in the future.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION MET AND CHOSE DELEGATES SAT.

The Chilton county Republican delegated convention met at the courthouse in Clanton last Saturday at 11 o'clock. J. N. Dennis, county chairman, called the meeting to order, and a chairman and secretary for the convention were elected. Judge J. O. Middleton was elected chairman and Clifford Manning, secretary.

A committee of three was appointed by the chairman to draw up a list of names as suggestions for ten delegates from the county to the district and state conventions. This committee consisted of W. H. Gillespie, J. N. Scott and Ellis Ellison.

While this committee was out making up the list, short speeches were made by Z. J. Jones, Paul C. Mims, O. L. Devaughn, W. J. Billingsley, J. L. Burnett, and others.

The report of the committee was turned in and adopted by the convention, as follows: J. O. Middleton, P. M. Pitts, J. N. Dennis, J. Z. Mims, J. N. Scott, Ellis Ellison, W. H. Gillespie, Edgar Littlejohn, J. Dewey Rockett, and Charles Cooper. Alternates: Grover Bice, Clifford Manning, W. J. Billingsley, J. C. Atchison, B. L. Cobb, O. L. Devaughn, Paul C. Mims, J. L. Burnett, H. A. Harris, and C. C. Conway.

W. H. Gillespie put before the house a motion that the delegates be instructed to vote as a unit, which motion, after some discussion, was adopted.

After short talks by C. A. Vandenburg, C. B. Huett, J. N. Scott, and Charles Cooper, the meeting adjourned.

HOME-COMING AT COOPER ON SUNDAY. JUNE SEVENTH

According to announcement of the Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor, the annual home-coming at Chestnut Creek-Cooper Baptist church will be held on Sunday, June 7. Members, former members and friends are all most cordially invited to make their plans to be present.

The morning program will consist of inspirational messages and congregational singing. The afternoon will be given over to singing. A definite program will be announced later.

Lunch will be served at the church, and those attending are invited to bring basket lunches.

ED EDWARDS, THE MONUMENT MAN

Last Sunday being mothers day, lots of people visited their family cemeteries. On such visits, here and yonder, on various burying yards were noticed work done by Clanton's veteran cementer and monument man, Ed Edwards. Mr. Edwards is proud of his work in the various cemeteries, and he is proud of the favorable comments of friends. But Ed wishes his friends to remember that he still wants to do more of these kinds of jobs when the occasion presents itself.

LEO THOMPSON BOUGHT NEW PLANE LAST WEEK

Leo Thompson, one of Clanton's enthusiastic airmen, has outgrown the fledgling class. and gone in for bigger better and faster flying. He has bought another plane—the other was out of his class.

On May 6, Leo purchased a Porterfield high wing 2-place cabin monoplane, with 70 horespower, 5-cylinder LeBlond motor. The cruising speed of this plane is 100 miles per hour, and top speed is 115 miles per hour. It takes off at 40.

This ship is equipped with a full set of instruments for 'blind" flying. It is painted yellow and trimmed in black. So, if you see something soaring over that looks like a bird, a cross between a canary and a blackbird, it's Leo Thompson (one of the Thompson boys) up in the air again.

CITY WILL BUY CHAIRS FOR THE AUDITORIUM

We are informed by Mayor C. Fenn Jones that the councilmen of the city have given him authority to go ahead with plans for seating the auditorium.

Accordingly, plans have been drawn whereby the city will buy 250 tubular steel folding chairs for the main floor, and an undertermined number for the stage. It is thought, too, that a rack will be bought in which to stack the chairs, in case the auditorium floor is cleared of seats for any cause.

The seats will cost about $2.40 each, delivered, according to the mayor. They will not be fastened to the floor, but will be rubbed tipped, so that no noise will result when they are moved about.

Plans call for installation of the seats some time in june.

ANTI-HAT TIPPERS SEEKING TO JOIN F. D. R. ALPHABET

Washington, May 12.—The APTOHE was endorsed Tuesday by Secretary Ickes and brought to the attention of President Roosevelt, along with the SPLWEBGTOHE.

The APTOHE is the Association for the Prevention of Taking off Hats in Elevators.

Asked at his press conference what his attitude toward the organization was, Mr. Ickes said:

"I'm in favor of it."

Newsmen asked Mr. Roosevelt if he had joined the APTOHE. He laughed and asked for an explanation. A woman reporter told him about the SPLWEBGTOHE.

"That," she said, "is the Society for the Protection of Ladies Whose eyes have been Blackened by Gentlemen Taking off Hats in Elevators."

Laughing, the president replied he would have to put all that under government regulation.

The following is official, for it is taken from "Uncle Sam's Diary," a magazine for federal employes:

"Work habits of field mice have been clocked by federal scientists: 6 a.m., reveille; breakfast-hunting until 7:30 a.m., rest period until 11 a.m.; lunch, 1 p.m.; half hour for nosing about until 2 p.m.; dinner, 4:30 p.m.; half hour for napping, and then to bed at 5 p.m."

It is hardly believable that Americans died at Concord Bridge and others starved at Valley Forge to make democracy safe for boondoggling a century and a half later!

Landon Preparing For Stiff Campaign

Will Be No "Pink Tea" Campaign If Kansas Governor Is Nominated

Topeka.—The nation had a broad hint from Gov. Landon today that the coming presidential campaign will be "no pink tea affair" if he receives the Republican nomination.

Mixing in criticism of the Roosevelt administration, the governor gave his own ideas on issues of the contest in a radio interview at the executive residence last night with H. V. Kaltenborn, political commentator.

What the nation needs most, Landon said, is a revival of confidence. He assailed the New Deal as betraying "our high national ideals" with "wasteful, slipshod, incompetent, happy-go-lucky administration," and said "progressive government deserves something better than casual experiments."

The "pink tea" remark came when Kaltenborn asked the governor whether he would make a "real fighting campaign" if he were nominated.

Landon replied: "Well, that all depends on how you judge a man. Some people judge a man by the amount of talking he does. Other people judge him by what he gets done . . . As to a fighting campaign—well, you can never tell how a horse will work until you hitch him up.

"The returns of the last two Kansas elections might answer that question. I don't think anyone ever considered our political campaigns in Kansas as pink tea affairs."

The interview was Landon's first extensive public discussion of national issues since his Kansas Day address January 29.

After accusing the present administration of "heedless retarding of recovery" Landon said:

"I believe that the real issue before the American people today is not whether you are better off now than you were in 1933; the real question and issue is this: Have we made as much progress in coming out of this depression as you have a reasonable right to expect?"

Asked how he thought confidence could be restored, the Kansas executive replied: "I believe that a presidential campaign can be made a great means of public education, one that will inform the public and give the people a chance to study and understand what the real issues are:

"You must realize that for three and one-half years, we have had only one side of the story. We've been up against the greatest political propaganda machine that the country has ever seen. And the worst of it is, it is being paid for out of the public treasury."

Kaltenborn guided the conversation into prohibition, social security and foreign affairs.

In the first declaration of the wet question since becoming widely discussed as a presidential possibility, Landon said he accepted the verdict, that the question should be returned to the various states for such decisions as their citizenry wished.

On foreign affairs Landon observed: "It might repay us all to read Washington's farewell address again . . . I wouldn't say for a moment that we should slavishly folow Washington or anyone else. But I do say that if we go forward in his spirit we shall meet our obligations to America, and the world."

The governor said he was "for" social security, believing "we have reached a stage where government must take a hand . . . the complicated legislation (the present administration) rushed through in characteristic fashion will, I fear, prove to be unworkable in many respects . . . "

In discussing relief, Landon deplored, "the way in which it has been made a matter of wretched party politics," and said "I, for one, am dedicated to the proposition that henceforth no American citizen shall ever again be put in a position where he has to sell his vote for bread."

THREE ON CITY DOCKET

Three cases were on the city docket last Monday morning in mayor's court. One of the cases was for public drunkenness; a fine of $5 and costs was assessed. The other two were for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated; these were continued until a later term of court, on motion of the defendants.

STREET QUITS AS G. O. P. CHIEF FOR ALABAMA

Retirement of O. D. Street, Republican national committeeman from Alabama for the past 20 years, and nomination of Thomas J. Kennamer to succeed him highlighted the Jefferson County and Ninth District conventions of the G. O. P. at the Tutwiler Hotel Saturday.

Resolutions expressing regret at Mr. Street's announcement that he is retiring were adopted.

It is believed that Mr. Kennamer, former Federal marshall and at present a clerk in the Federal Court clerk's office here, will be unopposed for state national committeeman.

To Be Named At Ohio

The state national committeeman will be chosen by delegates from the nine congressional districts of the state attending the Republican national convention at Cleveland, Ohio, on June 9.

WHEN TO SIDE-DRESS COTTON AND CORN

Cotton fertilized with such grades of fertilizers as 3-8-5, 3-10-3, 4-8-4, 4-10-4, should be side-dressed with either nitrate of soda or nitrate of lime at first cultivation after chopping to bring the amount of nitrogen up to the equivalent of six per cent or the amount of nitrogen contained in a 6-8-4.

If such grades as 3-8-5, 3-10-3, 4-8-4, 4-10-4 are not side-dressed a good part of the phosphoric acid and potash is wasted. In experiments conducted by the Alabama Experiment Station 6 per cent nitrogen made 238 pounds more seed cotton per acre than 3 per cent nitrogen. This means that side-dressing the grades of fertilizers mentioned above will give an additional yield of cotton at a very low cost.

Q. How much side-dressing should be applied where 3-8-5 or 3-10-3 was applied under cotton?

A. These grades of fertilizers contain only half the nitrogen needed by cotton. Therefore, if 400 pounds per acre of either of these grades is used apply at least 75 pounds per acre of either nitrate of soda or nitrate of lime at first cultivation after chopping. That is, for each hundred pounds of 3-8-5 or 3-10-3 applied about 20 pounds of nitrate is needed as a side-dressing.

Q. How much side-dressing is needed for cotton fertilized with 4-8-4 or 4-10-4?

A. If 400 pounds per acre of either 4-8-4 or 4-10-4 is applied before planting, apply at least 50 pounds of nitrate as side-dressing. That is, for each 100 pounds of these grades used upply 12 to 14 pounds side-dressing.

Q. Should cotton fertilized by 6-8-4 be side-dressed?

A. Cotton fertilized with 6-8-4 should not be side-dressed.

Q. When should side-dressing be applied?

A. At first cultivation after chopping (dirting). Late applications will do some good but the greatest return for the money spent for nitrates comes from applying it immediately after chopping the cotton.

Q. When should corn be side-dressed?

A. Apply nitrate to corn about 40 days after planting if corn is planted at normal corn planting date.

If corn is planted a month after the usual planting date the side-dressing should be applied not later than 30 to 35 days after the planting.

In 50 crops at 8 places in experiments conducted by the Alabama Experiment Station 75 pounds of nitrate increased the corn yield 6 to 7 bushels; 150 pounds of nitrate increased the yield 13 bushels; 225 pounds increased the yield 18 bushels.

Q. Should corn following a good growth of winter legumes be side-dressed?

A. Corn following a good growth of winter legumes needs no additional fertilization of any kind.

Lower the cost of producing your crops by fertilizing properly.—J. W. Fant, County Agent.

Mrs. Anna Prince Gardner and daughter, Kathrine, Miss Ruth Prince and Miss Elsie White of Alexander City spent Sunday here as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Prince.

Mrs. A. L. Duncan has returned to her home in Prattville after a recent visit to relatives here.

Official Tabulation Of Republican Vote

Official results of last week's primary, as shown by the official count, held Thursday, showed one nomination and two run-offs to be decided on June 9th.

O. L. Devaughn, candidate for Commissioner in the Fouth District, was nominated, receiving a majority of the votes cast in the four-man race for this position.

In the Third District Commissioner race, a run-off is necessary between J. C. Atchison and J. L. Burnett, Atchison receiving 571 votes and Burnett 408.

In the Treasurer race, a run-off is necessary between W. J. Billnigsley, with 611 votes, and Paul C. Mims, who received 591 votes, trailing by 20.

Eliminated in the Fourth District race were Duke with 105, Easterling with 103, and Vinson with 525. The total of these was 733, while Devaughn received 829.

The Third District race saw the elimination of Glasscock with 280, and Littlejohn with 279.

The Treasurer race saw elimination of Hubbard with 297, and Mrs. Shaw with 78.

VISITED IN COOSA COUNTY

On last Sunday a group of Chilton county people visited old Holly Springs church, in Coosa county, where the annual mothers day program was being held. Among the group were Mr. Birdie Liveoak and family, of near Liberty Hill, Vatchel Lindsey and others. The party went by truck, crossing the river at Mims Ferry. The return was made by Marble Valley and Mims Ferry. All reported a most enjoyable visit.

MISS BYRDIE TEEL IS WED IN BESSEMER TO MR. BRADLEY

The marriage of Mr. T. R. Bradley and Miss Byrdie Teel was solemnized with a simple but impressive ceremony Saturday evening, May 2, at the home of the groom in Bessemer.

The bride attended by Mrs. Tom Frank Teel as matron of honor, entered the living room through an archway outlined with sprays of pink roses and rose vines. Here she was met by the groom and his best man, A. D. Dalyrmple. The vows were pledged before an altar banked high with rose sprays and vines and lighted with tall white tapers. The Rev. Noble Edwards, pastor of the First Christian Church, of Bessemer, read the ring service.

Mrs. Bradley, who is of striking brunet type, was beautiful in a gown of blue net trimmed with narrow bands of velvet. Her accessories were in a delicate pink shade and she wore a round corsage of tiny pink roses.

The matron of honor was gowned in pink chiffon, the skirt of her frock being fashioned in cascade effect. Her accessories were of silver.

In the dining room where an ice course was served the table was spread with lace. A very picturesque effect was achieved here by the use of a profusion of pink rosebuds in ivory porcelain bowls. White tapers completed the table decoration.

For several years Mrs. Bradley has taught in the schools of Chilton County where she has been unusually successful in primary work. She has also held responsible positions with the Welfare Department of both Chilton and Bibb Counties.

Mr. Bradley is a member of the firm of Bradley Bros. in Bessemer and numbers his friends by the score.

The guests were limited to relatives and a few close friends of this popular couple. Among those present from out of town were: Tom Frank Teel, brother of the bride, and Mrs. Teel, Dr. C. O. Lawrence, and Mr. and Mrs. Claud Billingsley, all of Clanton, and Miss Annice Stapp, of Aliceville.

Every body is invited.

TOP-DRESS with POTASH

Apply 100 pounds Muriate of Potash at Chopping Time

RUST IS A SURE SIGN OF POTASH STARVATION. Cotton needs extra potash to prevent rust, reduce wilt, and increase yields. Without sufficient potash, cotton plants become weak and show lack of vigor. Leaves turn yellow and drop off prematurely. Bolls are small, poorly developed, and hard to pick. Yields are low, lint is of poor quality and lacks uniformity.

Southern Experiment Stations have found that where cotton rust appears, a liberal application of muriate of potash per acre should be applied as a top-dresser. This is in addition to the potash in the fertilizer mixtures used at planting.

The Mississippi and Arkansas Experiment Stations have found that the addition of potash will decrease wilt and greatly increase yields.

Potash should be applied to cotton as a top-dresser immediately after chopping. Where rust is bad, 100 pounds of muriate of potash per acre will pay large dividends.

More Potash means More Profit

UNIVERSITY NEWS

The complete program for the Eighth Annual Education Conference, to be held at the University of Alabama June 22-24, has just been announced by Dr. John M. McClure, Director of the University Summer School, who is in charge of plans.

Dr. L. Thomas Hopkins, curriculum specialist at the Lincoln School of Teachers' College, Columbia University, will lead the conference. Two lectures will be given daily, followed by round table conference and discussions.

The second Annual Institute of State and Local Affairs, June 22-26; the annual Institute and Training Conference of the Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers, June 22-26, and the third Annual Institute of the Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs will be held concurrently with the meetings of the education conference. Programs have been so arranged that features of common interest to the four groups will not conflict.

Governor Bibb Graves reviewed the R. O. T. C. brigade at the University of Alabama last Wednesday as a part of a special Governor's Day program.

Governor Graves was greeted upon his arrival at the University by the governor's salute of eleven guns, given from one of the '11 cannon used in training the cadets. He was then present with his escort of honor, the Pershing Rifles company.

Accompanied by President George H. Denny of the University, and the governor's staff, he took his post in the reviewing stand. After the parade the governor spoke to students of the University from the historic Mound on the north side of the campus.

A luncheon in honor of Governor Graves and his staff was given in the new dining room of Tutwiler Hall, women's dormitory.

Dean Dabney S. Lancaster, Dean of Men at the University of Alabama, was elected president of the National Associations of Deans of Men at a recent meeting held in Philadelphia.

"Taking the business life of the state as a whole, it is clear that we have left the depression phase of the business cycle far behind," said Dr. Lee Bidgood, Dean of the School of Commerce at the University of Alabama, in a talk given at the University of Alabama on Governor's Day. Dean Bidgood was one of the chief speakers at a luncheon given in honor of Governor Graves.

"The only doubt," Dean Bidgood continued, "is whether we should call the state in which we now find ourselves one of recovery or prosperity."

"Responsibility for the recovery of the state in its program of services," said Dean Bidgood in concluding his speech, "lies upon the men and women of the state who are the leaders of laws and action. I believe the time to be right for a coming together of our leadership, and agreement upon a program of state recovery."

The dedication of the new Bureau of Mine Building at the University of Alabama will be among the outstanding events of the 105th Commencement at the University. The dedication will take place on Commencement Day, May 26.

Other feature events of Commencement Day will be a reception at the President's Mansion at 3:00 p.m., in the afternoon, the academic procession at 4:45, and the awarding of degrees and prizes by Dr. Denny at 5:30 p.m.

The Commencement exercises will begin on Sunday afternoon at 5:30 p. m. with the Baccalaureate sermon to be delivered by Dr. W. G. Henry, of Anniston.

Events of Alumni Day, Monday, May 25, include luncheon meetings of Phi Beta Kappa and Betta Gamma Sigma, scholarship fraternities, and the annual Alumni-Senior banquet. The Hon. David Lilienthal, one of the three TVA directors, will be the principal speaker at the banquet.

More than 500 graduates are expected to receive their diplomas.

J. C. ATCHISON THANKS VOTERS

Permit me to thank the voters who voted for me in the Republican Primary on May 5th. Although I did not get a majority of all the votes cast, I received the leading vote for the place for which I am asking, and I am now asking that you carefully consider my candidacy and that you give me your vote and influence in the "run off" election which will be held in June.

If you will note the number of votes cast in the Third District, which is the District I serve, and which is composed of Beats 7, 8 and 15, you will see that I received a good majority of the votes cast in that District. It is the people in this District that I will serve and it is they that have proven by their ballot that I am their choice, and I am asking that you help elect the person they have shown they wanted.

During my recent campaign, I conducted a clean campaign, and I expect to continue into the second primary without any mud-slinging and with absolutely clean and fair play on my part, or on the part of those who represent me.

Assuring you that I shall greatly appreciate your vote and influence in the coming primary and gratefully thanking you for what you have done for me, I am, respectfully,—J. C. Atchison.

LAWMAKERS VISIT CAPITOL

Mnotgomery.—About 30 members of the Legislature invaded Goat Hill last week but their presence didn't mean a thing.

The sight of so many lawmakers in the Capitol corridors, all of whom gravitated toward Governor Bibb Graves' executive chambers, caused a flurry of speculation, but after they had run the gauntlet of an individual quiz by Capitol reporters, everyone agreed their visit offered no serious menace to the happiness and well being of Johnny Q. Public.

The visiting solons were loquacious enough, though their remarks dealt only with generalities. It was evident they had learned nothing from the governor.

The liquor question loomed ominously when Rep. E. C. Boswell, of Geneva County, and one of the best known lawyers of South Alabama, revealed that after July 1, the Federal Government will discontinue issuing licenses for the sale of alcoholic beverages in dry States.

The action of the Government, Boswell explained, carries out the pledge to cooperate with dry States in the enforcement of their prohibition statutes.

"I can see no reason why the Governor should not include a liquor referendum in his call, should an extra session be necessary," he added. "However, I believe the rank and file of drys would prefer that the Legislature accept this responsibility rather than present the bitterly controversial matter at the polls."

Rep. S. N. Blan, of Sumter, a staunch administration, said he had no idea when the much talked about special session would be called.

"If the Governor should summon the Legislature for a second special session I hope he will designate in his formal call the type and sources of new tax levies," Blan said.

Senator W. Carvel Woodall, ol Elmore, doesn't want the gavel to fall any time soon. "The Legislature is no place for a poor man," Woodall declared. "I've got to work like the devil to make up for the time I lost from my law practice."

Rep. A. C. Lee, of Monroe, was dubious about the probable outcome of another session this summer, but said his people "were willing to do something to keep the schools open regardless of the cost."

Senator Vernon L. St. John, of Lawrence, himself a school teacher, said he had been requested by several civic clubs in his district to explain the State's muddled financial condition. "I feel that the interest that they have manifest is a good augury for the schools and the other stricken agencies of State government," St. John added.

Senator Tom Frazer, of Bullock, bitter critic of the administration, refused to be smoked out on affairs of the State. "I'm on my way to Kentucky to put my horse in a finishing school," he jokingly remarked.

Reps. E. J. Owen, of Etowah, Bob Langdon, of Pickens, and Charley Cox of Chilton, were intensely interested in a solution of the school problem, but said they thought the relief situation in their counties would not become serious before winter. Owen said the Gulf State Steel Corporation, at Gadsden, is operating 24 hours a day, furnishing employment to hundreds of men that had been on relief two or three years. Langdon and Cox, who represents agricultural counties, explained that farm work is plentiful and the so-called "unemployables" of their counties can be adequately cared for without aid from the State.

Few of the visiting solons cared to be quoted on the subject of legalizing and taxing alcoholic beverages.

The Dominic Bill providing that legal advertisements may NOT be published in a newspaper unless printed in whole or in part in the county in which such legal notice is required to be posted, was upheld in a ruling by Attorney General Albert A. Carmichael.

"HELL DRIVERS" AT FAIR PARK IN B'HAM ON MAY 17th.

Birmingham, May 13.—Under the sponsorship of the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps a program of championship automobile races combined with a thrilling repetoire of stunts executed by 'Lucky' Teter and his original 'Hell Drivers' will be held at Fair Park in Birmingham, Sunday, May 17th.

Such nationally known racing lights as Buddy Callaway, Miami, Fla., holder of the Dixie speed crown; diminutive 'Howdy' Cox, sensational San Diego, Calif., speed star; Shano Fitzgerald, Irish contender; Oscar Coleman, leadfooted Dallas, Texas driver; Ray La Plante, Newark, N. J., king-pin of speed; Shirley Goff and Jesse Jones, representative Birmingham pilots; C. J. 'Crash' Waller, Georgia ace, and many others to swell the field to nearly a score are expected to dish new records and wheel-to-wheel action for sensation-seeking sports fans.

The auto race program carries the official sanctions of the International Motor Contest Association, governing body for recognized leading dirt track competitions throughout the country.

In addition to the big line-up of drivers who have already filed signed entries with speed officials, Corps Commander Joe Denaburg has successfully negotiated to bring the Masked Marvel of the speed tracks to Birmingham for the May 17 classic. The Enigma of the smoke paths will be unmasked here providing he (or she) fails to finish within the first 4 positions in the feature event. For the past 4 months, the hooded driver has finished far enough up front that his identity has remained a mystery. Speculation has run wide as to the driver's identity with a range from a well known English woman star to world's dirt track champion, Gus Schrader.

To augment the racing program, 'Lucky Teter' and his 'Hell Drivers,' thrill purveyors who flaunt their dares at the Grim Reaper, will again offer the super performances they have given Birmingham in the past; but in addition, Teter will add many new stunts that he has never uncorked before. Racing crashes through flaming board walls, somersaulting automobiles through space, head-on collisions, three men racing with death through blazing portals of solid board barriers are only a few of the hazardous stunts the Teter organization will have on tap Sunday, May 17.

The American Legion gala day of speed and thrills will get under way at 3 p.m. with qualification time trials for the automobile races at 2 p.m.

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

WHEN THE LIGHT PLAYS

The light has played upon some of the A. A. A. beneficiaries and the American people have been told of million dollar payments to corporations. The chances are that few persons outside of Florida knew that in that state was a great sugar corporation, but there is, for it received a total of $1,060,665 in three paymets. A Hawaiian sugar producer received $470,313 in one payment and will get a total of $1,022,037.87.

When the light plays, strange things come to open notice. If the same light were turned on all the abecedarian activities the public would know where much of its money is going and who is getting it. The light has been shut off by the spending politicians for the reason that they fear the result of exposure.

In the glare of the light which was turned on, it was seen that the Mississippi state penitentiary received $43,200 for its reduction in cotton acreage and the Arkansas penitentiary received $25,500 for the same compliance. Government paid Government. It is a strange performance.—Charleston, S. C., News and Courier.

The weather problem, like that of farm crops, is not so much over-production as poor distribution.—Williamsport Sun.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Most Americans are doubtless unaware of the danger which lurks for our newly instituted American Merchant Marine. This danger will become more acute after the close of the present fiscal year, unless something is done about it in the meantime by Congress. The American merchant marine has had a hectic and varied history. There was a time before the Civil War when the Yankee clipper ship visited every port on earth and the American flag floated proudly in every one of the seven seas. But times changed all of that. During the Civil War our marine was badly crippled by Confederate privateers which were built in English and French shipyards, for the purpose of harrying American commerce. This with the rise of the steamships spelled doom for the Yankee clippers which before that time had been a source of national pride and prosperity.

The American flag gradually disappeared from the ocean, so far as international trading was concerned. Sporadic efforts were made in Congress to revive our merchant marine, through subsidies. These efforts were generally and consistently voted down. Then came the World War. American foreign trade was badly disarranged by our lack of a merchant ships to act as an auxiliary to our fighting navy, resulted in the launching of a ship building campaign which cost Uncle Sam millions of extra dollars, because of his previous neglect of our defenses, and resulted in the expensive wooden ship fiasco.

Our sorry lack of merchant marine in the World War made the nation shipping-conscious again and after the war, sentiment for a new merchant marine grew. Congress helped nobly with the Merchant Marine Act passed back in 1928 and it seemed that we were on the high road to shipping success again. The depression was, of course, a trying time for our privately owned merchant lines. American water borne commerce declined a third in volume and 59 per cent in value, yet in spite of keen foreign competition, the American lines did not give up and the percentage of American goods carried in American bottoms actually increased. In addition to the Government aid furnished, it is to be remembered that private investment furnished $69,000,000 in cash for new ship construction and $15,000,000 for reconditioning older vessels. The record of our shipping industry during the depression has been one of which we by no means need feel ashamed.

Now, however, there are complications and congressional action is needed, the friends of the American merchant marine say, and they back up their words with figures. The sum of $26,000,000 appropriated annually for ocean mail pay has been held up. This appropriation, it is to be remembered, was designed in part to offset the lower ship construction and wage scales of foreign shipping lines.

The appropriations made formerly will expire on June 30, at the end of this fiscal year, and unless something has been accomplished by Congress in the meantime, our shipping lines will then be subject to the fiercest foreign competition they have ever undergone. And once the carrying trade is lost it will be very difficult to get it back again. True it is, of course, that proposals have been made for an outright subsidy but there is no assurance now that any real aditional assistance will be given that will be available beefore another year or two have rolled around.

Lachlan Macleay Executive Vice-President of the Mississippi Valley Association, recently hit the nail on the head when he wrote in the Boston Transcript:

"The immediate need of American shipping is freedom to devote its undivided attention to serving and developing foreign markets and to the construction of new tonnage comparable with the fleets of our leading maritime competitors. Congress hould provide for the continuance of our present merchants lines and then give prompt attention to Senate Bill 3,500, which has been favorably reported. This bill appears to offer a means of establishing the American merchant marine on a stable and permanent basis and to carry the reforms suggested by the President."

THE RELIEF LOAD

Despite the lavish expenditure of the public money during the three years of the New Deal, an outlay which has equaled the total of all federal expenditures from the time of President Washington down to the administration of William Howard Taft, the fact remains that in spite of publicity to the effect that we have turned the corner around which prosperity is located, the relief load of the country is as great as ever and the unemployment situation has not been solved.

It is now generally conceded that federal expenditures for relief in the next fiscal year will be as great if not greater than they have been this year. Although this is eloquent proof that the unemployement situation has not been solved, there is additional indication.

For example: a recent report of the Boston Municipal Research Bureau says that one out of every four persons in the New England metropolis is now on relief, either from federal or local funds. The records show that there are now 9 per cent more on relief in the city than in 1933, and 22 per cent more than in 1929.

In part the report of the Bureau says: "The startling fact is that a large federal program has had relatively little effect on local relief rolls. The load in recent months is the greatest since the start of the depression."

In spite of somewhat improved business conditions in certain lines, and increasingly large employment on a federal works program, the statement continues, the city's relief nad the figure has now risen to 26.9 per the meantime.

"Federal aid of $30,000,000 in the past three years," according to the report, "has had little effect on the city's cost. The latter has declined only $539,000, though $15,462,000 was expended locally last year."

According to percentage figures, in 1929 there were only 2.9 per cent of the people in Boston on relief; in 1933, the proportion was 33 per cent. Things wouldn't look so bad if the New Deal program put into effect at that time had aided the situation. But in 1935, 24.7 per cent of the population were on relief and the figure has now risen to 26.9 per cent and is apparently pointed upward.

Boston is one of the solidest and most conservative cities in the country, the metropolis of thrifty and industrious New England. It is only fair to asume, therefore, that a survey of other cities in the country would show a trend at least no more unfavorable than that of Boston. The only exception, perhaps, would be Washington, D. C., where the government has grown so rapidly and New Deal employes have increased so rapidly in number as to give the District of Columbia the appearance of war-time prosperity. In New York, for example, it is said, one out of three are getting some public help.

It is evident, therefore, that it will take something besides lavish government expenditure to solve the question of unemployment relief. Can it be possible that return to sanity in expenditure, a balanced federal budget, sound money and the prospect of lower taxes would help? Certainly the application of the opposite of these principles has not effected a cure.

OUR TARIFF SITUATION

In spite of the publicity which has poured forth as to how our export trade is "growing" because of the reciprocal trade pacts entered into, the fact still remains that the imports from these reciprocal countries has been increasing in greater volume than our exports to them. The case of Cuba is a fair example. Figures show that in our first year of lower tariff rates with Cuba our imports from that country increased five times as fast as our exports. At the same time, under the A. A. A. program our farmers were being paid out of the taxpayers' money to curtail the production of sugar beets, while trade arrangements with Cuba brought in a great deal more foreign sugar. In other words, the farmers were hired to produce less sugar so that Cuban interests, supposedly controlled in part by wealthy New York financiers, could sell more sugar in the United States.

There is considerable discomfort, too, among Northwestern farmers because of the reciprocal arrangement with Canada which promises to penalize our grain and dairying interests, who have already cut down production, so that we can get more farm produce from the Dominion. And it is not forgotten, either, that every nation possessing a most favored nation agreement benefits in like degrees when we lower the tariffs in the interest of any one country.

That America could benefit by any agreement on trade made with another nation seems decidedly doubtful when we take into consideration the number of debt agreements which have already been repudiated by our former associates in the World War.

The fact that the reciprocal treaties bid fair to do us more harm than good is now being generally recognized by those students of the foreign trade situation who are not already blinded by free trade theories.

For example, George N. Peek, once one of the Administration's pillars and an authority of agricultural matters and foreign trade, said recently in an address given in Philadelphia:

"Foreigners have not paid debts nor have they increased their purchases of American goods. Foreigners are putting us to work for them.

"The United States is no longer feeding and clothing itself. We have taken American farmers out of foreign markets and put foreign farmers into American markets.

"Under the present program agriculture has definitely lost ground in its fight for equality with industry. The loss of foreign markets has led to attempts as crop restriction at home while stimulating production abroad. It is prolonging the farm crisis and the relief rolls."

Maybe a little old-fashioned economic reasoning might be of some benefit in the present situation.

The teacher was telling her open-eyed class about the dolphin and its habits.

"And children," she said impressively, "just think, a single dolphin will have 2,000 baby dolphins."

"Goodness!" exclaimed the bright little girl at the bottom of the class, "and how many do the married one have?"—Montreal Star.

We sing this song to our wife and recommend it to all married men: "Oh the gladness when she's glad; oh the sadness of her sadness when she's sad; but the gladness of her gladness and the sadness of her sadness doesn't equal the madness of her madness when she's mad.—Altoona, Kan., Tribune.

Haile Selassie seems to have a great deal of world sympathy but the Italo-Ethiopian war has eloquently proven that sympathy and moral suasion won't take the place of armored tanks and gas bombs.

MAN IN THE MOON

OUT WITH IT

In June, 1935, this column carried an article which voiced condemnation of the absentee ballot law, as it stands on the statute books of Alabama. I despised it then, because of the great chance that it affords for political trickery. If possible I condemn this law even more strongly today, having been able to observe the myriad ways and means which it may be put to for such trickery.

Under this law, the crookedest politician wins. I don't believe the average citizen, who goes about his daily duties with honest purpose, and who has not taken especial notice of this law, realizes just how corrupt it is, nor to what unfair extremities it can be carried.

Let me illustrate. A and B are in a race. Both are about equal, financially. A goes about his race fairly, and gets 60 per cent of the popular vote of the county. B takes the other 40 per cent, and in addition, has turned in a thousand absentee votes, and thereby wins. Of course, everyone may know that the absentee vote is crooked, that it contains ballots of people long dead, or ballots not even on the poll list. The law states that the managers who count the votes in that box must count every one of them. It is not their place to question their legality, or if they do, they can only challenge them. At any rate, these votes count in the total.

The only manner in which one of those can be taken back from that box and declared illegal is by court action, wherein a contest has been filed. But right there is the "nigger in the wood pile". Candidate A is not financially able to file contest—he cannot make bond for the contest, for these contests come high. There is nothing that he can do but submit to the count. In the end he is defeated—illegally, of course, but defeated just the same, without a chance to help himself. If you don't believe this is the true state of affairs in regard to absentee ballots, ask your lawyer.

I long to see the day when such practice is impossible. Perhaps when that day comes it will be the millenium, but just the same, I'll welcome it, if and when it comes.

OUR ROADS

Chilton County is at the cross roads. We are seeing a change from one system of road building to another. In the past, our road system has earned for us the enviable name of possessing one of the very best systems to be found in the state. Now that we are about to make our departure to another system, let us consider.

Next Sunday afternoon, take your car out and take your family for a ride. Get off the pavement, and take any one of the many roads which have been our pride in the past. Ride over it.

I believe we can easily foresee even now, what we may more closely observe in the near future. Nobody seems to know exactly how to proceed. The new system has been in effect for something like a month, and nobody seems to know who is boss. Nobody seems to know who should give orders regarding road construction. Our commissioners are barred by law from that job—and if anyone has seen anyone else taking much interest in supervision of roads, I have not heard of it.

As a result, we find our once fine roads becoming merely a series of duck nests, or wash boards, or the like. Here a gully is washed across the road, there a water box needs repair, while in another place a bridge has become dangerous. The commissioners must stand idly by, not allowed to give orders for needed repairs, while the lawful head of our road system is far too busy to notice such small details.

I predict that this condition will grow from bad to worse, although, for the good of us all, I hope this prediction does not come true. I believe that ere long, our roads can soon be called literal "political roads"—falling to pieces, to suit the whims of petty politicians.

Ride over some of our roads some afteroon. See if you see the same things I see.

THE CONSISTENT SOUTH

Not long ago The Montgomery Advertiser bragged quite a bit about the South being the "most consistent section of the United States", and that it has always been such. Of late however, things have been happening that disprove this theory, altogether.

When the Confederate constitution was drawn up in 1861, it was not far different from the original Constitution of the United States in regard to laws concerning taxes, duties, imposts and excises, as well as subsidies. The following is an excerpt from the Confederate Constitution, and brings out the Confederate idea in such matters:

"The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises, FOR REVENUE NECESSARY to pay the debts, provide for the common defense, and CARRY ON THE GOVERNMENT OF THE CONFEDERATE STATES; BUT NO BOUNTIES SHALL BE GRANTED FROM THE TREASURY . . . . "

By this it may be seen that it was the conviction of the framers of the Confederate constitution that for the central government to disburse subsidies would ultimately mean the degeneration of the states, themselves. Now, let's see how consistent has been the South in this matter in the last few years The twelve states known as the "solid South" or the "consistent South", as The Advertiser would have us believe, have back-tracked on this "subsidy" idea to the tune of nearly two billion of dollars. Below is given a table, showing what the 12 states in this "solid" and "consistent South" have received from the Federal government under the New Deal:

W P A	$ 789,927,000
F E R A	501,711,000
C C C	149,229,000
A A A	395,284,000
C W A	153,950,000
Total	$ 1,990,101,000

Has the 'consistent South" departed from the faith of its "fathers" or have Southerners heard the voice of the master—the almighty dollar? Are the "consistent Southerners" of today willing to forego the principles of their fathers? Perhaps The Advertiser could answer.

RICH OLD UNCLE SAM

When you awake on the morning of June 30th, you may do so with just pride that you are an American. If you were never proud of that before, you should be on that morning. On that morning, your country will owe the unbelievable sum of thirty-four billion, five hundred million dollars. Imagine the sum, if you can—a million dollars 34,500 times over—the mind can hardly grasp its immensity

I do not mean that you should be proud of the debt, but of the fact that your country is founded upon a base so sound that it can owe this vast sum and still function. Never before in the history of the world has any nation from the beginning of time, even closely approached such a financial situation. History tells us of nations in the past which have grown and prospered until they had untold wealth, but never has the position been reversed until now.

The whole situation reminds me of instances which I have observed among families. I have seen the time when good solid old men have found themselves with a family of spendthrift children. Little by little they have bled the old man of his hard earned savings. Finally he found himself forced to mortgage his home to keep up the pace and provide for those wayward children. And when this was all gone, and there was nothing else upon which he might draw, he was forced to the almshouse, to spend his declining years in mental suffering brought on by those children.

Uncle Sam's wayward children have done the same for him. Little by little they have bled him dry, and into debt, until now the old boy is just about ready for the trip "over the hill". True, President Roosevelt said not long ago that the national credit was good for a debt of fifty, sixty or perhaps a hundred billion dollars. But who of us, with a sane mind, wants to saddle the generations to come with an obligation of this kind.

I think it unfair to generations yet unborn to make debts which we know we can never pay, expecting that they shall carry on and pay them for us. If we can not pay our debts now, how can we expect our children to carry on the affairs of government and pay for ours, too.?—Man in the Moon.

SPENDTHRIFT LEGISLATURE DANGEROUS

Was it written in the old copy books by mistake where it said: "Save a little for a rainy day."

Is there something new-fangled in the air that ought to lead us to erase the old maxims?

We just sort of wonder in a homely way, as we contemplate the suggestion that 33 1-3 per cent of undistributed corporate income be taken for Federal taxes, whether the idea drummed into us since childhood about saving doesn't work nowadays.

"Undistributed corporate income" sounds heavy, like something that ought to be carried off, but so far as our limited understanding goes, it means in plain language the money that American industries, our factories, mills, and mines have laid up for that proverbial "rainy day."

We have just come through one of these periods, and the "rainy day" money has stimulated employment when it was needed, paid dividends, provided employment.

It seems quite as sound common sense for corporations as for individuals to lay up something for rent, to say nothing of wages to workers and dividends to stockholders in case next year or the next happens to be unprofitable.

That is merely prudent management. There is nothing unsocial about it that needs combing down or penalizing.

Who is going to say, in our vast and divergent industrial set-up what is a "reasonable" amount to lay away against the coming of lean years?

Americans own American industries.

We do not aim to set ourselves up as financial experts, economists, or claim to be in tune with the newest philosophical theories of taxation, but we just kind of wonder, in a good old-fashioned way, whether the lesson, "Save something for a rainy day," doesn't apply any more.

And whether saving something out of what it spends isn't still a pretty good idea to let American business keep.

The last "rainy day" would have been lots worse if business hadn't saved up something for it.

There may be a "next depression." Maybe, after all, it might be plain common sense not to dig too far into the business purse right now.—Clarksburg, W. Va., Exponent.

PRIMING THE ELECTORATE

The indications are that Government spending in the months ahead will break all precedents for the last three years. Itemized lists show that the Administration is to have available for the W. P. A. and related agencies, for farm payments under the old and new programs, for bonus payments and other purposes, a grand total of more than five and one-half billion dollars.

This could be put on within the next year or within a period ending not later than June of 1937. But the expectations are that the great bulk of this public money will be released through the summer and early fall. The estimated expenditure within that limited period is approximately four billion dollars.

The strategy of this program is clear. It is plausibly linked up with the familiar idea of priming the pump, the purpose being to create a business flurry that will afford the impression of quickly expanding prosperity.

But the real purpose is winning the election in November. The spending is to be heavily concentrated to that end. The vast sums already being thrown into doubtful states, such as Pennsylvania, will be further enlarged. State and local political machines will be fortified and the morale of their workers will be strengthened for the essential task of lining up the voters. The money will go where it is certain to do the most "good."

This is not priming the pump of private industry to bring about sound and permanent recovery that will give idle workers real and permanent jobs, a process demonstrated to be futile. It is an attempt to prime the electorate through a stimulated political organization all about the country.

The real objective is not industrial recovery, but votes.—Kansas City Star.

The pre-election promise that the average candidate makes is about as alluring as the picture in the seed catalogues, and the disappointment to the customer is usually just about as great.

An Atchison man is bitter about the "horse and buggy days." It was during that era that he fell in love, proposed and was accepted.—Atchison Globe.

The average American is one who phones in a dozen votes for radio amateurs each week end then forgets to register for election day.—From Life.

A giant elm, 129 years old, has been sacrificed to the woodsman's ax up in New England. Serves it right. It is a hang-over from the Horse and Buggy Age.

As we get it, what France desires most is that Mr. J. Bull will drop what he's doing and hold her hand.—Macon, Ga., Telegram.

"SNOOPERS"

Off-the-record cheers of thanksgiving a[bout] the Capitol are still greeting Senator Bo[ne] remarks on the Senate floor about the "[in]cent and budding OGPU" being built up [in] the Federal Government.

Bone, of course, is a Democrat. Therefo[re] it took something rather potent to make h[im] accuse his own administration of building [up] a spy system which he said is beginning [to] resemble Soviet Russia's secret police—[the] OGPU. Exactly what prodded him into u[r]ging an investigation of 'utterly indefensible' activities of the federal "super-sleuths" body knows, for Bone has not told even private.

The fact is that many members of Congr[ess] have objected, privately for the most part, the creation of new investigative agencie[s]. After Bone's speech, one curious House Dem[o]cratic chief jotted down all the Federa[l] agencies he could remember which had "s[u]per-sleuths" looking into private affairs. H[is] list included:

Interior Department, Public Works Admi[n]istration, Narcotics Division, Bureau of I[n]ternal Revenue, Division of Investigation [of] the Justice Department, Farm Administ[ra]tion, Home Owners Loan Corporation, Reco[n]struction Finance Corporation, Bureau [of] Immigration, Transportation Coordinato[r], Federal Reserve Board, Federal Deposit I[n]surance Corporation, Postoffice, Tugwell Resettlement Administration, and the Co[m]munications Commissions.

LET'S HAVE RED MOSQUITOES

Detention of Gustave Schaefer in Oak Park, Ill., a suburb of Chicago, recently on charge of intoxication and damage to village property, furnished not only a mystery of how Schaefer's troubles came about but a new as to what will be to most people, a strange activity of the W. P. A. According to the Chicago Tribune, Schaefer was found in an automobile wrecked against a truck, after a fire hydrant had been knocked down by a wildly driven car. Schaefer, who seemed somewhat dazed, said that he was not the driver of the car, although he was found in it alone, but was only a passenger.

Schaefer, who was attired, among other things, in rubber boots, told the court that he was a W. P. A. employe, paid $55 a month to put dyes in swamps around Chicago's western suburbs to color the mosquitoes so New Deal experts could ascertain how far the pesky insects traveled from home on foraging expeditions.

The story sounds interesting, except that the Oak Park officials are said to be wondering why a man, even a W. P. A. worker, should be busy now dying mosquitoes weeks before it is mosquito time. We seem to remember that back in January there was quite a little newspaper comment about a W. P. A. squad in New York which was busy hunting various types of wildflowers, to send the specimens down to the experts at Washington for classification. There was about six inches of snow on the ground at the time, but this did not deter the enthusiastic federally-employed botanists, who were working on a piece schedule, anyhow. And why should tinting mosquitoes weeks before mosquito time be any more difficult than collecting wildflowers in January when there was half a foot of snow on the ground?

We have just one suggestion. If Schaefer continues his mosquito tinting work, he ought to use only red dye. Then we will have red mosquitoes who will leave the forward-lookers alone and bite only members of the Liberty League and the Republican party.

Wildflower plucking in January and mosquito coloring in early April are two of the most interesting examples of boondoggling that have yet come to light. But there ought to be a lot more interesting and delightful things to suggest.

Why doesn't Eddie Cantor offer a prize for the most illuminative suggestion for boondoggling? Here is a chance for him to get some real publicity.

It is proposed in the Senate to give liberty to Puerto Rica and many of the Puerto Ricans object, thereby messing up the situation. If we are determined to get rid of the island and can't do it any other way, maybe we can get Secretary Wallace to plow it under.

"Free trade" Senators and Congressmen propose to show by figures how much the American consumer has been "taxed" by the protective tariff. But, although they have an overwhelming majority they make no effort to repeal the tariff act.

In observation of Jefferson Day over the country, there were few references by the spellbinders as to what Jefferson said about the best governed people being the least governed.

In another year or two, if the American taxpayer gets what we think he is going to get. then there will certainly be a boom in the aspirin market.

The first Tory in America was Captain John Smith. He said that the fellow who wouldn't work couldn't eat.

PLEASANT HILL

Last Sunday was another well spent day with us folks around Pleasant Hill. Our Mother's Day program Sunday morning was well attended and seemed to be enjoyed by all present.

Our singing Sunday afternoon was good. There was a large crowd out to help make it a good singing. Those directing were P. M. Cleckler, Sam Collins, J. A. Blow, Miss Lillian Mims, Ira Grant, W. J. Northcutt, Tom Tucker, Brasher Northcutt, Virgil Smith. Pianists were Miss Jessie Cleckler, Mrs. Lonnie Northcutt, Mr. Sam Collins, Mr. Ira L. Grant. We would not forget to mention that the Oak Grove quartet gave us several numbers that were very much enjoyed by all present. We want to again thank the visiting singers and we invite each one of them back again.

We especially want to invite all the singers and those, too, that have music, to arrange to be with us on the first Sunday in June, as this will be our annual all day singing.

Mr. Ira L. Grant and son, Jimmie F. Grant, of Birmingham, were visitors in this community Sunday.

Mrs. Sara Varden of Wetumpka is spending this week with her daughter, Mrs. J. N. Martin.

Don't forget that next Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night are our regular preaching dates and we are hoping to have a large crowd out for each service, as Bro. Robinson always has a real, true and interesting message for us. We still have prayer meeting and B. T. U. every Sunday night. Visitors are always welcome.

FORD TRUCK IN GREAT DEMAND

A total of 1,424,760 Ford truck and commercial car units were licensed for operation in the United States as of January 1, 1936, a report to the Ford Motor Company disclosed.

The total of all trucks and commercial cars licensed to operate at the outset of the year was 3,535,661, a gain of 7.9 per cent over 1934. More than 40 per cent of the total were Ford units.

The total of Ford truck and commercial car units in service was more than 51 per cent greater than the units of any other manufacturer which were licensed to operate on that date and the only make to total more than a million units. This Ford fleet was increased by almost 90,000 units in 1935 as a result of the licensing of 172,544 new Ford V-8 units and the retirement of only 82.709 old Ford models during the year.

Nearly 1,000,000 of the Ford truck and commercial car units in operation were V-8 and other models manufactured since 1928, the report disclosed. A total of 468,156 units, however, were of the Model T and TT type, a remarkable tribute to the endurance of this famous model.

Even more striking is the low retirement rate on Ford trucks of more recent manufacture. Of the 190,653 new Ford trucks sold during 1933 and 1934, 172,286 or 91 per cent are still in service according to the report. The company has received reports from many users who have operated these late models from 100,000 to 200,000 miles and even more.

IN MEMORY

On March 31, as twilight was fading, God, in His great wisdom and tender mercy, sent His angel of death to earth and bore the loving spirit of Marshall Moore to His heavenly home. There was great rejoicing when his blessed spirit entered there-can he lived a life of service and was merchant and loving husband and father fighting par... family. He leaves to mourn his going his parents, three brothers, his wife and three children and a host of other friends and relatives.

I say to his wife and children, weep not for our loss is heaven's gain.—Written by one who knew and had great respect for him.—Mrs. R. R. Rawlinson, Billingsley, Ala.

O. L. DEVAUGHN THANKS VOTERS

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I wish to take this opportunity to try to express to you my sincere appreciation for the splendid support given me in the recent primary election which made me the Republican nominee for Commissioner for the fourth district of Chilton County.

I can not command words to fully express to you who supported me, how much I appreciate the confidence and assure you now that I will at all times try to conduct myself in such a way that you wil never have just cause to regret having done so.

To those who voted for either of my opponents I wish to say that I do not hold any ill will or feeling toward any of you, for I regard that as your sacred right and privilege to vote as you see fit. I have conducted my campaign on a high plane and have tried to be fair to my opponents. And if anyone has done or said anything that was unfair either of them it was done without my knowledge or consent. Since the people have spoken and a majority of them voted in my favor which gave me this nomination without a run off in June, I feel very grateful to you all. I earnestly appeal to each of you who did not support me in the recent primary as well as those who did, and those who did not go to the polls and vote for anyone to give me your vote and influence in the general election in November, assuring you that it will be highly appreciated.

I promise that if I am elected I will be a servant of all the people and exercise my best judgment on all matters pertaining to county affairs with duue regard at all times for the rights and wishes of the people.

As perhaps you know there will be a run-off primary on June 9th, between some of the candidates for various offices on the Republican ticket and I want to urge every voter to turn out on that day and vote for the person of your choice and after the nominations have all been made lets all get behind the entire ticket and do our part and victory will be ours in November. I am gratefully yours,—O. L. Devaughn.

CUBS CAP ONE

The New Cedron Cubs won over Cane Creek nine Saturday, 10 to 9 in a hard fought game.

Many errors were responsible for the large scoring. The Cubs scored five runs in the third frame. In the fourth the Creek boys scored on an error by catcher Jones, and then carried a run through the fifth and sixth for the other eight runs. One score in each inning until the seventh, with two, accounted for the Cub's runs. Smith, for the Cubs, was relieved by Brown in the sixth, but Jones ... pitched for the Creekers all through the seven frames.

Everyone come out and see us play at Billingsley next Saturday.—J. C. Jones.

LOCAL F. F. A. CHAPTER ENJOYED FINE OUTING

After the activities of the afernoon, we enjoyed a weiner roast over an open fire.

Our next meeting will be held on May 18th, at 7:30 o'clock p.m., in the vocational building. The newly elected officers will take charge at this time. All members are urged to attend.—Delphin Popwell, reporter.

PAUL C. MIMS OFFERS LETTER OF THANKS

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I want to take this means of offering a word of thanks to the voters of Chilton County who saw fit to support me in last week's primary, and to assure those who saw fit to vote for any of my opponents that I hold not one whit of hard feelings against any of you. I consider that all of you were only exercising your inalienable right to a free ballot, which I would deny no one. And as I enter the second campaign, before the primary to be held on June 9, there are a few things of which would like to speak to you voters.

Before I announced for the treasurer's post, last spring, one of the leaders, or would-be leaders, of the Republican party in our county, knowing my intention, asked me this question: "Which side are you going to line up with?" I explained that I did not expect to "line up"—that I expected to blaze a new course, siding with neither faction of our party, but striving at all times to keep in the middle of the road, trying to preserve party harmony. This person bluntly told me then: "You will not get far unless you do line up". And from that very time until today, my friends, I have fought a dual fight—against my opponents, and against the heads of the faction of which that person was, and is, a part.

I state to you now, as I have in the past, that I am not a "ringer". I don't believe in ring politics. I believe in an open and honest campaign, where people are selected to carry the banner of their party upon a basis of ability, honesty and sincerity, and not because they are a part of a certain ring. And whether my political life be long or short, I want it expressly understood that I am a member of no ring, clique or "ism", and I shall continue my fight forever to kill down such tactics. My neck fits no man's collar, nor shall I ever attempt to force my collar over any person's neck. That's my policy.

In the recent primary, I was unfortunate enough to be made the beneficiary of the now famous "crooked absentee ballot box", in which I received 122 votes. I state to you now that I knew nothing whatever of the contents of that box. I did not solicit a single one of those votes, nor did I ask anyone else to do it for me. Over a number of years I have condemned the absentee ballot law as it exists on the statute books of Alabama, because it gives a chance for fraud in any degree one might wish to carry it. I condemn that law today; I want votes, but I want them honestly. I challenge anyone to name one person whom I have asked to do any dishonest deed in my behalf, either in connection with the absentee ballot box or otherwise.

I have been informed of a whispering campaign that has been started against me since Tuesday's primary, in which I am held up as a party to a crooked scheme in connection with the absentee box above mentioned. I brand such statements for what they are—a set of lies—false in statement and malicious in intent. I want to add here that I do not believe that my opponent in the coming primary, Mr. W. J. Billingsley, is a party to this campaign of scandal—I have a very wholesome and high opinion of him as a gentleman of honor, and if he is the man I believe with all my heart that he is, he will not allow such a malicious campaign to be waged with his sanction.

I have waged a clean fight so far, and shall continue to do so, even though I fail to realize my aspiration, but I want the public to know that I shall consider my campaign in the future as one of vindication of my fair intent, and as one in which I shall be fighting a ring, as well as trying to be nominated by my party for the position for which I ask, and I ask every person in Chilton County who believes in a clean fight and a fair one, to join with me in my fight against ring politics, and the autocratic domination of our party by any person or set of persons.

I have been advised by several people that it would be wise for me to withdraw from the race at this point. Some of these are my best friends, whose sincerity I do not doubt for a moment and to whom I offer thanks for true interest in my behalf, while there are others for which I could not say as much. In fact, it is my firm belief that the absentee ballot box scandal was a deep laid plot to discredit me in the eyes of the people of this county. It has all the earmarks of such. I am told that the absentee ballot box report will weaken me, but I can not and I will not believe that any unprejudiced and fair minded person will believe that I was connected with it, in view of the fight I have waged against such tactics in the past.

Further than that, 469 people (disregarding the absentee box) in Chilton county left their work last Tuesday to cast their votes for me. No doubt many of them did so at a sacrifice of valuable time, and never shall one of those supporters be able to face me and say: "We helped you, and you disregarded that help, and ran away from the fight when it became hot."

Once again I wish to pledge my wholehearted allegiance to the Republican party of our county—a pledge that shall not be broken. And in the same breath I want to inform any who would wage a battle of misrepresentation against me that they will find me forever on the firing line—bloody, perhaps, but unbowed—beaten, but still defiant—meeting trickery with an open fight—meeting falsity with unquestionable truth and fact—and meeting hypocrisy with a sincerity which I hope shall never completely die within our Republican ranks.

Yours for the good of the Republican party of Chilton County,—Paul C. Mims.

Rubinoff Holds World Record for Broadcasting

Rubinoff and his violin—and Chevrolet—are a combination that few, if any, radio listeners in the United States have not received in their homes via the air. The famous violinist and his Stradivarius, stars of the Chevrolet Musical Moments programs, have the distinction of going on the air from more broadcasting stations than any other program in the history of radio. Three hundred and seventy-eight stations broadcast Rubinoff three times a week, a total of 1134 fifteen-minute programs. That figures out at 283 hours, and if one week's programs were broadcast one after the other, day and night, it would require 11 days. The illustration shows Rubinoff, carrying his precious violin, posing with his car after a special appearance at Detroit.

STATE RURAL WOMEN TO ATTEND WORLD MEETING

Auburn, Ala.—A large number of Alabama rural women are completing plans to attend the Third Triennial Conference of the Associated Country Women of the World in Washington, D. C., May 31 to June 6, reports Mrs. E. C. Bledsoe, president of the Alabama Council of Home Demonstration Clubs.

SIDE DRESS COTTON WITH POTASH EARLY FOR THE BEST RESULTS

The results to be obtained from side dressing cotton with potash or other fertilizer materials is determined to a large extent by the time of application, tests at a number of experiment stations in the southern show.

Experiments conducted over a period of years in Alabama indicate that side dressing applications should be made to cotton about 35 days from the time of planting in order to get the greatest returns. Many farmers follow the practice of side dressing immediately after chopping with satisfactory results.

Side dressing corn 40 days after planting has given best results with this crop, experiments show. The common practice of making the side application when corn plants are "knee high" is not recommended because height is not an accurate indication of the time the crop needs fertilizing.

Advance sales of potash indicate that thousands of farmers throughout Alabama and the South will supplement the fertilizer applied at planting with a side dressing of potash or a combination of potash and nitrogen. This will be necessary, farmers say, because many of the grades of fertilizers are too low in the essential plant foods to feed cotton plants properly and enable them to resist disease.

The Alabama Experiment Station recommends that cotton be fertilized with 600 pounds per acre of a fertilizer analyzing 6-8-4. Since the average application throughout the state is approximately half this amount, it is expected that the deficiency will be made up with a side dresser. Agricultural authorities recommend 50 to 100 pounds per acre of muriate of potash to furnish sufficient plant food and to correct the rust conditions which are prevalent in many soils.

TIME EXTENDED FOR DIVERTING PEANUTS

Auburn, Ala.—An open offer by the Secretary of Agriculture to pay any peanut grower for diverting peanuts into oil at a rate of $21 a ton for Virginia-type, $11 a ton for Spanish-type and $3 a ton for Runner-type peanuts has been extended from April 30, 1936, to May 20, 1936.

This offer is a part of a peanut diversion plan designated to remove surplus peanuts from the normal channels of trade and divert them into the manufacture of peanut oil.

W. J. BILLINGSLEY THANKS VOTERS FOR VOTES CAST

Editor Union-Banner:

I wish to express through the columns of this paper my appreciation to the many loyal voters who rallied to my support in last Tuesday's election. Words cannot express my appreciation. I am sure there were some of my friends who voted for my opponents. That was your privilege to vote as you thought best. I want to assure you I will not cherish any ill will toward any one for having voted for your choice in this primary. The thing we want above all is loyalty and harmony in our party, that is my purpose in this campaign.

Now, as I am in the run-off primary which will be held June the 9th, may I ask those who voted for the candidates who were not successful in this primary to give me your vote and loyal support in this run-off. Should I be the nominee I want to assure you all that I will ever try to live up to my promises to which I have made so you will never have cause to regret casting your vote for me.

May I again, ask for your vote and support in this run-off. And in whatever way the voters say in this primary will be my choice. You can count on me one hundred per cent for the ticket in November. Yours for a united Republican front.—W. J. Billingsley.

Mr. and Mrs. Reedie Taylor and children of LaFayette, Alabama spent the week end here with friends and relatives.

PETE B. JARMAN THANKS VOTERS

I hasten to thank every single person in Chilton for my magnificent vote in your great county. Naturally happy indeed over our decisive victory, which was a complete rout outside of Tuscaloosa, I particularly appreciate the outstanding contribution toward it by my friends in Chilton. This overwhelming endorsement, the largest with which a candidate for Congress was ever favored in our district, simply strengthens my determination to prove worthy of the honor you have so generously conferred upon me by becoming a Congressman of whom you will be proud. I bespeak the wholehearted cooperation of the entire citizenship of Chilton toward that end.

Now indulging in a long overdue rest, I anticipate with pleasure the hope of seeing each of you and thanking you personally before very long.

I am sure you will share my pride in the knowledge that the friendship of 84.34 per cent of you contributed toward placing me in this important post of service. I thank you again most sincerely from the bottom of a very appreciative heart, and look forward with pleasurable anticipation to our long and cooperative service for the finest people and the best district in the United States.—Pete B. JESUS INSPIRES HONESTY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:1-10; 45-48.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt not steal —Exodus 20:15.
PRIMARY TOPIC — A Visit From Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Why Jesus Visited Zacchaeus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Be Honest.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Taking Religion Into My Business.

"Jesus entered and was passing through Jericho" (v. 1), one of the most noted cities of Bible history. It had been the stronghold of the Canaanites, standing squarely across the Jordan, taken by the marching pitcher-bearers of Joshua (Josh. 6), the city where Rahab experienced salvation through her faith (Heb. 11:11-31). It was fitting that Jesus should pass through the Jericho of his own day, for a new victory was to be experienced through faith—the conversion of Zacchaeus.

1. Zacchaeus Seeking Jesus (vv. 2-4).

This man, a tax-collector for the Roman power, had heard that Jesus was kind to publicans; for had he not had mercy on Matthew? Curiosity seized him; he must see what manner of man Jesus was. Who can know how many have been led to find Christ through the exercise of curiosity. The citizens of a city are drawn to a church or a tabernacle through the growing interest of a revival campaign. Curiosity widens, becoming the initial motive in many who later have faith in Christ to the saving of their souls.

1. His difficulties (vv. 2, 3). His infamous business was a handicap, at least in the eyes of the populace. The very fact that a Jew should hold office under the hated Roman power would make him extremely unpopular. His riches condemned him. The fact that he had acquired much wealth in this calling pointed to extortion in the collection of taxes. He was unpopular; he was pushed aside.

The shortness of his stature (v. 3) was a handicap, but not so great a one as his spiritual state. He doubtless had been pushed about much of his life and had built up an attitude of mind that now manifested itself.

2. His persistence (v. 4) stood him in good stead. If too short to see, he was not too timid to climb. He had been obliged to climb all his life. Always obstacles placed before him he had brushed aside, or had climbed over them, if a desired goal lay beyond. Now, the goal was a sight of Jesus, and he climbed. Though the rich man of town, he would not let pride keep him from the undignified act of getting up among the branches of yonder tree, for Jesus was to pass by.

II. Jesus Finding Zacchaeus (vv. 5, 6).

While Zacchaeus was trying to see Jesus, Jesus was looking for him, as always he is looking for the seeking soul. With no word that would embarrass or humiliate him, Jesus bade him come down from the tree, and declared his intention to go with him to his home. How wonderful is grace, that regardless of one's past life Jesus will receive the seeker as a friend and enter into fellowship with him. Zacchaeus did not hesitate, but made haste to come down, and with joy opened his door to the new-found Friend.

III. Zacchaeus' Conversion (vv. 7-10).

His conversion was sudden and thorough. He was converted before he reached the ground.

1. What the crowd said (v. 7) was characteristic; they murmured and said that Jesus had gone to be guest of a man who is a sinner. They could not think of his sin in the past tense, but said is instead of was. Jesus forgives and forgets. He "came to seek and save that which was lost," and he "remembers our sins against us no more forever."

2. The proof of conversion (v. 8) was immediate and satisfying. His new life was begun with resolution and restitution. He dedicated half his goods to the poor. If he before had been a grafter, he was now a generous giver. He was ready to untangle the skein of tax irregularities. While God forgets the past, he nevertheless expects the forgiven sinner to make restitution where possible.

IV. Honesty in God's House (vv. 45-48).

If honesty must be exacted from publicans and sinners, much more should it be required of those who have to do with the worship of God. It is easy to condemn those who made capital out of the requirements of temple worship in Jesus' day; it is not so easy to condemn those who use the Church of Christ as a stepping stone to personal profit and political preferment. "Judgment must begin at the house of God" (I Pet. 4:17).

A Firm Faith

A firm faith is the best divinity, a good life the best philosophy; a clear conscience the best law; honesty, the best policy; and temperance the best physic—living for both worlds is the wisest and best life.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

U. S. OFFERS AID IN PASTURE, TREE, OR TERRACE WORK

The planting of permanent pasture, the planting of forest trees, and terracing, if carried out to meet specified requirements, are included in the list of approved practices which will qualify cooperating producers in Alabama for soil-building payments under the Agricultural Conservation Program, according to Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the State Extension Service.

The total for soil-building payments for a farm may not exceed the soil-building allowance. This allowance may be calculated by multiplying the number of acres used exclusively for conserving crops this year by $1.00.

Where a permanent pasture is established by planting perennial grasses or a mixture of grasses and legumes on crop land between January 1 and October 31 this year, the payment may be $2.00 per acre.

Where forest trees, including post-producing species, are planted on crop or pasture land between September 1, 1935, and October 31 this year, the farmer may be paid $5.00 per acre.

Where terraces are constructed, according to methods recommended by the State Agricultural conservation committee and approved by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, between January 1 and October 31 this year, the payments may be 40 cents per 100 feet of completed terrace, except that no payment is to exceed $2.00 per acre.

County agents throughout the State are in position to furnish information on the other approved practices on which farmers may receive payments.

COTTON OFTEN NEEDS NITRATE SIDE-DRESS

Auburn, Ala.—Cotton fertilized with such fertilizers as 3-10-3, 3-8-5, 4-8-4, and others with less than 6 per cent nitrogen should be side-dressed at the first cultivation after chopping.

"The sure way to avoid wasting part of the phosphoric acid and potash is to add sufficient side-dressing to fertilizers carying 3 per cent nitrogen to bring up to the equivalent of 6 per cent nitrogen," advises Dean M. J. Funchess, director of the state experiment station.

"Some specific examples will be given to make this clear. Suppose a farmer has applied 400 pounds of 3-8-5 or 3-10-3, he has supplied only half the nitrogen he needs. To balance his fertilizer he needs to apply at least 75 pounds of nitrate of soda or nitrate of lime as a side-dressing. This 75 pounds of nitrate should cost something like $1.25 and should return three or four times its cost in terms of seed cotton.

"If 400 pounds per acre of 4-10-4 or 4-8-4 be applied, then farmerwould need to apply at least 50 pounds of nitrate as a side-dressing.

"It should be stressed that whatever nitrate side-dressing is applied should be put out at the first cultivation after chopping. Many years ago the experiment station determined that the best time to apply side-dressing was immediately after chopping.

"Let it clearly be understood that those farmers who have used a 6-8-4 under cotton this year should not side-dress such cotton. A 6-8-4 applied before planting is all of the fertilizer that should be used for cotton and does away with the need of side-dressings of any kind."

CARD OF THANKS

On the 18th day of April our home, together with most all it contained, was destroyed by fire. Also our meat, lard, syrup, peas, flour and general food supply. We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for all deeds and words of kindness.

OVER-NIGHT CABINS BUILT AT THE ALABAMA STATE PARKS

Atlanta, May 13.—Construction of 45 over-night cabins has been completed in eight of Alabama's 13 new state parks and officials are perfecting plans for furnishing them, according to progress reports compiled by the National Park Service at its regional offices here.

Twelve cabins to accommodate overnight or week-end visitors have been built at Gulf State Park, south of Foley, and ten have been set up at De Soto, near Fort Payne. Furniture already is being made for six of the structures at the northeast Alabama tract.

Colonel Page S. Bunker, Alabama State Forester who also is Director of State Parks, has disclosed plans for furnishing, by early summer, at least one cabin at all parks where construction is complete.

How long will you continue to lose this extra value?

The extra Nitrogen in every ton of ARCADIAN, THE AMERICAN NITRATE OF SODA is just like extra cash. Bulletin No. 326 of the Department of Agriculture and Immigration of the State of Virginia reports the cash value of this extra Nitrogen over the guaranteed 16% as high as 88¢ per ton.

There can be no question about this. It is official. No wonder thrifty farmers insist on "ARCADIAN". Of course they want that extra value.

HENS NOW LAY EGGS TO ORDER

Research Reveals Through Control Feeding Poultry Raiser Can Get Egg Quality Wanted.

The housewife who has a backyard flock can have her eggs to order, according to C. S. Johnson, head of the Poultry Department of the Purina Mills. He points out that the backyard hen can be made to lay eggs with the uniform light lemon-yellow yolks which stand up high and round, in the center of thick, clear whites. The eggs will have that delicate, rich flavor, that go so far beyond mere freshness. They will be made richer in vitamins, too.

"Kitchen testing has brought out a marked difference in the quality of eggs," says Johnson. "Any housewife knows that eggs having a superior body of white give an added rise, fluffiness and smoothness to the body of a cake. She knows, too, that quality of eggs shows up in many other ways of cooking. Take poached eggs, for instance. Those with thin whites separate from the yolks and about all that is left are poached yolks. When the eggs have thick whites, clinging to the yolk, there is a globular, meaty portion of poached white around the yolk—a pleasing, appetizing appearance.

Quality Determined Before Laying

In discussing the matter of getting hens to lay eggs to order, Johnson says it's a matter of controlling the feeding of hens. He adds, "The real quality of an egg is determined before it is laid. If the hen doesn't get in her feed just what is needed to build a quality egg, you simply cannot expect the production of a quality egg. Frankly, if you want your hens to lay eggs to order, you have to give them the things in their feed to make eggs accordingly.

"After years of research at the Purina Experimental Farm, testing this and that ingredient, a combination has been developed that gives hens what they need to lay eggs to order. The yolks are light lemon-yellow and stand up high and round in the center of thick, clear whites. Not only are they rich in vitamins but they have a delicate, rich flavor when served.

"This special feed to get hens laying eggs to order, called Layena, is an all-in-one feed. Nothing else is needed. Just this complete feed and water. Contrary to what might be expected, it does not cost any more to feed hens on this special feed. As a matter of fact, considering the quality of the eggs and the increase in the number of eggs produced by the feed, it really costs less."

VITAMIN DISCOVERY TO HELP CHICK LIFE

Entire Carload of Carrots Needed to Make One and a Half Barrels of New Vital Ingredient.

Again science throws out a "lifeline" to baby chicks. It comes through the discovery of Puratene, a new ingredient that's extremely rich in vitamin A, the "disease resistance" vitamin.

"So rich in vitamin A is this ingredient, Pur-a-tene, that an entire carload of carrots is required to make one and one-half barrels," says C. S. Johnson, head of the Poultry Department of the Purina Mills. He adds, "One pound of Pur-a-tene contains as much vitamin A activity as 750 pounds of yellow corn meal, which up to this year has been considered one of the richest sources of vitamin A.

Vital to Chick Life and Growth

In speaking about the vital need of vitamin A for the life and growth of chicks, Johnson says, "An absolute lack of vitamin A will result in chick death. Partial lack of vitamin A causes growth to be retarded, eye trouble to develop, and makes the chick easily susceptible to disease and infection. Poultry raisers should make sure that an abundance of vitamin A is in their chick starter:

(1) To insure maximum growth and development.
(2) To build a strong, healthy digestive tract so that the chick can make complete use of the feed it eats.
(3) To build resistance to disease germs and infection."

Poultry raisers who see to it that their chick startena this spring is rich in vitamin A are going to see a difference in the livability, growth and development, according to Johnson. He points out that the surest and safest way of giving chicks an abundance of vitamin A is to make sure that Pur-a-tene, the new concentrated vitamin A discovery, is one of the ingredients which their chicks' starter contains.

AN EXPRESSION OF THANKS FROM MR. A. P. VINSON

Editor Union-Banner:

I would just like to express my sincere thanks to my friends who voted for me and helped me in my campaign for County Commissioner for the Fourth District. While we did not get the nomination, I feel like that we made a good clean fight and did the best we could. I have heard some criticism regarding a good many absentee ballots that were cast for me and some of the other candidates. I want to say that I requested about ten people to cast an absentee ballot for me and the balance of all that were cast for me were without my knowledge or agency in any manner whatever and I knew nothing of them until when they were counted on election day.

I want to again thank you for your help and assistance and want each of you to know that I will always remember you. Yours very truly,—A. P. Vinson.

Proper Procedure For Cashing Bonus Papers Explained

General Hines Gives Full Rules Governing Manner Of Getting Bonus Cash

Some idea of what Alabama World War Veterans must do when they cash their Bonus Bonds after they are received June 15, is contained in a service letter issued by Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs.

The back of the bond contains instructions and provisions for method of redemption.

Veterans are urged to redeem these bonds, only if they need the cash therefrom for useful purposes, but they can redeem one or all at the same time if they so desire.

Since the bonds are not negotiable or transferrable, in making application for redemption, the owner must sign the application on the back and he must be certified by a postmaster, a judge or clerk of a United States court, an executive officer of an incorporated bank or trust company, as having been identified as the person who is the owner of the bond.

May Require Witnesses

The certifying officer may require the signature of two witnesses who are personally acquainted with and who personally identify the applicant as the owner of the certificate.

About 250 post offices, geographically distributed throughout the country according to veteran population, will be designated as fiscal (redemption) agents for the treasury department.

If a veteran resides in a city where the local post office has been so designated, he will, of course, present his adjusted service bond for redemption at such office.

If a veteran resides in any other city, he should, after having arranged for the certification of his application, take his bond to the local post office and request that it transfer same to the post office for such district designated as a redemption agent, and in return should request a receipt from the local post office acting as transfer agent.

The post office department has given assurance that this redemption proces will be expedited as much as possible, and within from three to six days the applicant should have received back a treasury check for such surrendered bond, and if he resides in a city where the local post office has been designated as a redemption check on the same day that he surrenders his bond to the postmaster.

Mr. Boles has had broad experience in school and educational work, and is a very talented speaker. Prof. Warr feels fortunate in procuring the services of Mr. Boles for this address.

ATTENDING MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Dr. V. J. Gragg is in Kansas City, Mo., attending the American Medical Association. A card from him, written Friday, May 15, says all is o.k.

PUBLIC IS URGED TO ATTEND SENIOR GRADUATING EXERCISES

High school commencement is an important time in the lives of graduates, an occasion they want to remember always with a feeling of pleasure and accomplishment.

Especially do we believe this is true with Chilton County High School graduates, and more fully the class of 1936. The class of 1936 has many things to be proud of. First, they have left as a gift to their Alma Mater a very practical and useful remembrance in the form of a drinking fountain already installed and serving a splendid purpose. Second, they are proud of being able to graduate from school even though the chances looked discouraging a few months ago. The school is honored to have these young men and young ladies receive their diplomas and go out into the world to justify their existence among people. The public is cordially invited to attend all the programs.

The class roll is as follows:

Willie Ila Mae Bean, Inez Estelle Bishop, Glen Albert Bradberry, Frank Britton Brown, Harriet Frances Esco, Virginia Lurline Eubanks, Lois Virginia Foshee, Celia Gerald, Jack D. Gillespie, Ruth Gowan, Douglas Hays, Williard Hicks, John Manning Higgins, Pauline Barnett Hogan, J. D. Jones, Horace Kendrick, Martha Cooper Kennedy, Quenten Kelly, Sara Cornelia Lawrence, Lonnie Howard Martin, Mildred Louise Mims, George Wilson Moore, Helen Patricia Newell, Emmett Derrell Parrish, Martha Dene Popwell, Eloise Rasberry, Morgan Reynolds, John D. Thomas, Willie Mae Vinson, Gertiwyl Vinson, Samuel [illegible] Wood.

[illegible] presence will lend courage and [illegible]ration to these students.

CHILTON FARMERS SAVE THOUSANDS IN SODA PURCHASES

In 1928 the farmers were forced to pay over $50.00 per ton retailed here in Clanton to the foreign monoply for soda. In 1936, after seven years of competition with the American product, the Chilton county farmer is paying $33 per ton, a saving of about $20.00 on each ton. During 1935, approximately 1,500 tons of soda were sold in this county. The reduced price, forced by the competition of the American nitrate with the foreign monoply saved the farmers of this county alone $30,000.00!

One of the largest industrial plants established in Dixie in recent years, is the nitrate plant at Hopewell, Va. The Barrett Company distributes the product, Arcadian Nitrate of Soda, throughout the country, but by far the bulk of the soda is used on Southern farms. The nitrate is taken from the air and "fixed" in soda ash, which is obtained from Louisiana. All Souhern ingredients are used in it's manufacture, the plant is operated by Southern labor, and 90 per cent of the nation's commercial nitrogen is produced at Hopewell.

Southern people are patronizing southern industry more and more each year, increasing the payrolls, and demand for farm products. The South's rapid growth, progress and development is influenced to a great extent, by the extent of our encouragement to industries of the South.

Southern mills and their employees are the farmer's best customr. Every effort should be made by each farmer to purchase products manufactured here in the South.

REVISIONS IN FISHING LAWS

Some new state laws, regarding the taking of fish from the streams of the State hae recently been passed and enacted into law. Effective May 26th, it shall be unlawful to take fish from streams by means of seins or nets of any size, or by using firearms. Fish traps can be used only when the fingers are 2½ inches apart, and even then, such traps must be inspected and a permit issued by the Conservation Board. The penalty for such violations is provided for in Section 63 of the Act approved on August 12, 1935.

The above laws have been enacted and proclaimed by I. T. Quinn, a copy of which has been furnished the game wardens of the State.

Hoover Says He Is Not Candidate

Former President Issues Statement Placing His Interest Only In Platform

Chicago, May 18.—Former President Hoover in a prepared statement issued here today regarding the Republican presidential campaign said: "It should be evident by this time that I am not a candidate."

"That should end such discussion," the statement declared, after relating Mr. Hoover's interest was in the Republican platform and "to get these critical issues before the country."

The former chief executive's views were issued in type written form as a question-and-answer interview and made public by Paul Sexson, his secreatry, from his suite in a Chicago (Drake) Hotel.

"Asked about his personal position,' the statement continued, Mr. Hoover said:

"It should be evident by this time that I am not a candidate.

"I have stated many times that I have no inerests but to get these critical issues before the country. I have rigidly prevented my friends from setting up any organization, and from presenting my name in any primary or to any state convenion, and not a single delegate from California or any other State is pledged to me.

"That should end such discussion."

The formber president's statement added that his week end discussions in the East with Senators, congressmen, and others, related "wholly to the Republican platform." His statement offered a specific suggestion that former Gov. Frank O. Lowden, of Illinos, "should be asked to write the agricultural plank."

The statement, some 250 words long, closed with a paragraph devoted to the forthcoming Republican national convention.

"It," the statement said, "will be composed of a most unusual and able personnel," and "its seriousness is evident by the fact that the large majority of the delegates are . . . . without other instrucions than to find the right thing to do for the country in the greatest crisis we have met in two generations."

PITHY POLITICAL PARAGRAPHS

[AN EDITORIAL]

In January, 1933, the number of employed persons in the United States was 35,240,000; in April 1936, the job holders in the country had increased to 40,000,000. During this same period of time the number of persons on the nation's relief rolls likewise had increased from 17,000,000 to 20,000,000. The more persons we put back to work, the more people there are demanding relief from our Uncle Sam, it seems. The reason is attributed to the gradual exhaustion of private resources. The question is, where will it all end?

President Roosevelt's record as president and the 1932 platform on which he was elected are clearly contradictory. The question arises, what will be the Democratic platform of 1936? Will it be along the lines of the president's record while in office these three and a half years, or will it resemble more the sound principles of the platform on which he was elected in 1932 and which the whole Democratic administration has almost completely ignored in its carrying-ons? The 1932 platform proved an excellent vote-getter, but will the people believe them if they promise it again, in the face of such flagrant violation of promise in the past? If the platform is mapped out along the lines of centralized government, bureaucracy, autocracy, dictatorship, and odious attitude toward the Constitution, and the suppression of individual liberty, as has constituted the present Democratic administration, will that appeal to the electorate as did the pretty-sounding and adroitly arranged platform of 1932?

Quoting from a speech of Dr. Herbert Searcy, of Birmingham-Southern college, made at Bessemer before a luncheon club recently: "It would be to the advantage of the South if there were a strong minority party organization, which would sometimes swing states into the Republican column. Thus, doubtful states would be more favored by the Federal government." This statement of Dr. Searcy corresponds to the doctrine which The Union-Banner has preached for the past decade or two or three. It is worthy of the careful consideration of those good citizens of Alabama who believe in honest government and efficient service from our elected public officials.

Out of every six persons in the United States today, one is on relief from the government. Of the employable people of the nation, one out of every five is unable to find work. According to the International Labor office, there are nearly as many unemployed in the United States as there are in all the rest of the world put together. The total population of Canada is about equal to our list of those who are without employmen. Industry has done its share by expanding its number of employees 36 per cent during the past three years. Agriculture has increased its employees only one and one-half percent. In the field is where most people just now should look for work; and we should remember that we are suffering not from overproduction but from under-consumption caused by lack of a fair distribution of income.

The United States owes 32 billion dollars, nearly half of which has been borrowed by the present Democratic administration. The State of Alabama owes 42 thousand dollars, all of which was borrowed and spent by Democratic officials. Every person in Alabama pays 10 cents for taxes every time he or she spends one dollar. A great percentage of the tax money goes for interest on borrowed money, for which we get nothing in the way of improvement. Our people need to get conscious of the "unseen guest" that is ever at our side when we buy anything. And even in the face of so much taxes, our officials and law-makers are exhausting every conceivable means of raising more taxes and increasing the state and federal "jackpots" so that more can be squandered by the greedy politicians.

The Resettlement Administration employs 12,089 Federal officials to give relief to 5,012 persons or families. These officials are paid $1,750,000 a month to administer $300,000 to those on relief. Therefore, for each family to get $60 the administration spends $350 to get the former amount to each family. Therefore, may we ask, who is actually getting the relief money, the poor people in need or the white collar Federal officials who keep the books and handle the taxpayers' money?

All public indebtedness in the United States is said to be about fifty billion dollars, bearing about two billion dollars interest annually. This is a burden on the taxpayers, most of which is born indirectly. Every time you pay one dollar in direct taxes, you can multiply that by three and you have the amount you are paying in indirect taxes. Too much indirect taxes result in an apathetic public; may we become tax conscious and feel the full cost of our government. When we become thus concerned, we will demand relief from our officials.

NEW GULF SERVICE STATION IS NOW OPEN FOR BUSINESS

After being completely rebuilt, the Lawrence Service Station, dispensers of Good Gulf gasoline and oils, is now open for business, and they are equipped in a big way. The location is the same as before—at the intersection of Selma highway and Birmingham highway. Mr. C. M. Lawrence is the operator of the new station. Both Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Sims, the distributor, are proud of the new station, and they invite their friends to come to see them.

High Courts Rule Against Two Big New Deal Statutes

Resettlement Law and Guffey Coal Act Are Declared Unconstitutional

Washington, May 18.—The 1935 relief act was held unconstitutional today by the District of Columbia court of Appeals.

In a sweeping opinion three of the five judges said the $4,800,000,000 law was void because of improper delegation of powers to the president, invasion of state's rights, and a lack of definite authorizations.

The court said the law "attempts to reach and control matters over which the constitution has given congress no powers."

In a test case which resulted from plans for a model community at Franklin, in Somerset county, New Jersey, the appellate court found there was no constitutional power "conferred upon the federal government to regulate 'housing' or to 'resettle' population."

Rexford G. Tugwell, in charge of the resettlement administration, deferred comment pending study of the opinion. It was written by Associate Justice Van Orsdel and concurred in by Chief Justice Martin and Associate Justice Robb.

ANOTHER 6-3 DIVISION CITES DECISION ON NRA

Hughes Says Act Might Be Sustained On Interstate Commerce Aspects

Washington—The New Deal lost today in the Supreme Court in its contention that the Guffey soft coal act was constitutional.

In a trenchant decision, the court said the conclusion was unavoidable "that the price fixing provisions of the (bituminous) code are so related to and dependent upon the labor provisions as to conditions, considerations or compensations, as to make it clearly probable that the former being held bad, the latter would not have passed.

"The fall of the former (before the court), therefore, carries down with it the latter.

"The price fixing provisions of the code are thus disposed of without coming to the question of their constitutionality; but neither this disposition of the matter, nor anything we have said, is to be taken as indicating that the court is of opinion that these provisions, if separatly enacted, could be sustained."

The six to three decision was delivered by Justice Sutherland before a crowded audience which included Senator Guffey (D., Pa.), co-author of the law with representative Snyder (D., Pa.).

Justices Cardozo, Brandeis and Stone dissented.

A separate opinion was delivered by Chief Justice Hughes, who contended the act might be sustained "in relation to the provisions for marketing it could hardly pay taxes."

FARMERS UNION POLICY IN LINE WITH TEACHINGS OF SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The following paragraph taken from the Sunday school lesson of May 17, presents the views of the Farmers Educational and Co-operative Union of America. "The subject was well timed, for perhaps humanity has never faced a more serious financial situation than at present, and the taproot of the trouble is covetousness and dishonesty. By no conception of right can five per cent of the people have ninety-five per cent of the wealth, for society has a cooperative enterprise. Nor is there anything Christian in 22,000 millionaires being made by the World War. Certainly, there is something seriously wrong with 10,000,000 people out of work, many suffering for the necessities of life, and the government plowing up crops and killing hogs and cattle. Even with the beginning of a return to prosperity big business is fattening on the increased prices, as when one grain concern in a small city made more than a fourth of a million dollars on stored-up grain when the farmers who sold itc ould hardly pay taxes."

VISITORS FROM VALDOSTA

Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Grooms, of Valdosta, Ga., were in Clanton last week end, visiting friends and relatives They were traveling in their pick-up truck with a house-trailer attached; they camped at Ellis tourist camp while here. They returned to Valdosta via Birmingham and Atlanta.

He operates (in connection with body repair) the only completely equipped radiator repair shop in this vicinity where radiators can be thoroughly cleaned and air tested for leaks.

SOYBEANS SHOULD BE PLANTED SOON

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers planning to grow soybeans for seed production should make every effort possible to get them planted by the first of June, advised J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, who states that farmers can save several thousand dollars annually by growing their own soybean planting seed.

Otootans, laredos, and mammoth yellows are the most important for farmers to grow. They should be fertilized with either basic slag or superphosphate at planting time, he says.

ARMY WORMS APPEAR IN NORTH ALABAMA

Auburn, Ala.—Fall army worms have already made their appearance in Lauderdale County and are playing havoc with young corn cotton and Irish potatoes, writes W. L. Richardson, assistant county agent, to Prof. J. M. Robinson, entomologist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Upon receiving specimen of the worms, Prof. Robinson stated that they can be controlled with a poison bran mash prepared by mixing wheat bran, Paris green, or calcium arsenate, water, molasses and enough orange or lemon juice to flavor the mixture. Farmers interested in preparing the poison should see their county agent on how to prepare and apply it.

When the worms begin migrating they can be stopped by plowing a furrow around the field and destroying them with a pole or drag when they fall into the furrow and are unable to crawl out.

PLANS TO ENTERTAIN 400 4-H CLUB GIRLS

Auburn, Ala.—Plans have been completed to entertain and instruct over 400 girls—four to six from every county in the State—at the annual girls' short course here, May 26-29, announces Elizabeth DeLony, State girls' club leader, who states that the girls will be accompanied to Auburn by the home demonstration agents.

Some of the high-lights of the short course are the semi-final health contest, the annual style revue, the judging contests in clothing, foods, home improvements, and food preservation. All kinds of out-and-indoors games have been arranged for the youngsters.

Educational features include discussions on dairying, house planning, newspaper writing, poultry production, forestry, music appreciation, and home recreation.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION LAW IS DISCUSSED

Again it is my pleasure and privilege to discuss with you something concerning unemployment compensation. Alabame's great governor, the Honorable Bibb Graves, saw fit to have introduced at the 1935 general legislative session Social Security laws. The Unemployment Compensation Law, which is one of them, is for the betterment of humanity. It tends to stabilize employment; it encourages the working man, as he has something to look forward to and something to fall back on in time of adversity, for he is building up a financial credit for himself and his family when he may be in dire need and in time of distress, as a result of being unemployed.

If Alabama did not have an Unemployment Compensation Law the employer would still have to contribute one per cenetum of his payroll direct to the Federal Government for the year 1936 and a greater per cenetum in subsequent years; thus, the workers of Alabama would lose all of the benefits that come to them through such an Unemployment Compensation Law, by the fact that the employer could not get credit on his income tax for his contributions made to the State, whereas under the Alabama Unemployment Compensation Law the employer can, by making the contribution direct to the State, take credit against his Federal Excise tax up to 90 per cent.

We all know that the "dole" as such, is distasteful to the average self-respecting citizen, and we also know something of the aftermath of the so-called "dole system".

The average rate of benefits for the worker when he or she is unemployed is 4 to 1, that is, they may receive one week of benefit payments for each four weeks of employment. The average ratio for benefits that the worker receives in money for his contribution is about 10 to 1, thus, if he has a salary of $20 per week his contribution would be twenty cents. His weekly benefits, when unemployed, are on the basis of 50 per centum of his earnings, but not to exceed $15 per week. The $20 per week worker would receive benefits of $10 per week, or better than 10 times his contribution. Does this not sound good, and does this not sound beneficial to the working man? These are actual figures I have been quoting.

Also, as a result of the Unemployment Compensation Act, the State has an Employment Service Bureau, which will be continuously at the service of the working people in this state, to help them obtain work should they become unemployed, as well as assisting them toward securing unemployment benefits. One of the features of the Employment Service is to help unemployed people secure work on the basis of the prevailing wage paid for the type of work which they are qualified to perform.

There are now thirteen states that have adopted Unemployment Compensation Laws, and it is my opinion that as fast as the legislators meet through out the other States of the Union, they will likewise adopt such laws.

The Alabama Unemployment Compensation Commission has now in the process of preparation Rules and Regulations concerning this law, and as soon as they are completed they will be published and distributed for the information and guidance of those interested.

Every cent contributed to the Unemployment Compensation Fund goes toward benefit payments, and not a dollar for administrative cost, as the entire operating cost is borne by the Federal Government.

Our greatest problem at the present time is to educate the public on this vital and important issue. It is therefore my earnest suggestion that those who desire further information regarding this Act either call or write to the office of the Unemployment Compensation Commission at 623 Adams Avenue, Montgomery, Alabama, where a courteous staff of employees will cheerfully furnish information asked for.—J. L. Kaufman, chairman, Unemployment Compensation Commission.

CORN FOR ALABAMA MARKETS

There is a market for about five and one-half million bushels of Alabama grown corn. Because of mixture of white with yellow, buyers are finding it very difficult to use Alabama grown corn. Here is what two leading business men of Birmingham say:

"With reference to the Corn Program for Alabama, and to farmers in this state who are raising corn for market it is absolutely necessary for them to either raise strictly white or strictly yellow corn to secure the maximum price for their product. Nearly all over this state, but particularly in Southern Alabama, the farmers are raising an ivory colored corn, that is neither white nor yellow. It probably would officially grade mixed corn, and it is almost an utter impossibility to find a suitable market for this particular type of corn, and when a market was found the price was from 8c to 10c per bushel less than had this corn been strictly white or strictly yellow."

"The improved seed corn program which is being launched by the Extension Service throughout the state should prove one of the most valuable programs.

"Birmingham alone, consumes about two million bushels of white corn annually and one million bushels of yellow corn. The mills here have gone on record as favoring local grown corn and will give preference to it in making their purchases, provided it will grade all white or yellow.

"It is very difficult to sell mixed corn and when you can obtain the market for it, the price is much lower than that of white or yellow, therefore, I hope that every farmer in Alabama that attempts to grow corn will endeavor to plant pure variety whether he intends to market any of it or not. Let's push this campaign vigorously and drive the mixed corn out of the state entirely."

Farmers planning to sell corn should grow only a pure white variety or a pure yellow, or plant varieties of different colors at least three weeks apart.—J. W. Fant, county agent.

FLOODS — LARGE AND SMALL

Recently, in the far west, in a certain section of Utah, a flood, following a heavy rain, came down the mountain side destroying homes, school houses, highways, railroads and lands. Investigations revealed that this flood came because a rather large portion of land up on the mountain side had been cut over and grazed until there was nothing to prevent the accumulation of a large volume of water and it's speeding down into the valley. It carried with it rocks 10 feet in diameter and soil which buried many acres of land and much other property

Of course, in Alabama we do not have floods like that, and only occasionally do we have one that attracts very much attention, but there are millions of small floods and a tremendous movement of water and soil, over the entire State following rains, especially in winter

The fact that the individual acreages involved are small, keep the "floods" from being noticed and headlined in the paper, but the soil moved by erosion and the damage done to lands by the soil washing off and being deposited in stream beds and fields below will be many times greater following one big general rain in the state than by this one big flood in Utah.

Examination of the soil on roadsides and clay banks over the state following recent freezes will show that the soil has been loosened up an inch or two on ground having no vegetative cover and the first rain following these freezes will carry away a large portion of this loose soil. On the steeper slopes it will be seen that a big part of this slides down into the bottom of the ditch as soon as it thaws out, forming a big volume of soil to be carried away to the lowlands and stream beds as soon as it rains. This condition will not be found on soil having a cover of trees and other vegetation.

The soil conservation program calls for the establishment of trees and other plants on these eroding areas. Millions of plants are being set this year to control this soil loss It is the duty of every citizen to assist this program by protecting these eroding areas to encourage the recovering of these millions of acres

If we will keep down woods fires, mother nature will go a long way toward covering these acres at no cost except a little protection We must fight this destroyer of plants that are furnished by nature to cover eroding area. Let's convert them into reforesting acres.

CARROLL REUNION

On Sunday, May 15th, the family of Mrs. N. G. Carroll gathered at her home for the third annual reunion. It being a beautiful day, everyone present seemed to be ready to enjoy the occasion.

The morning was spent in talking and laughing among the families.

At noon a bountiful dinner was spread out on tables under the beautiful shade tree, that really showed the appreciation of the day.

Those enjoying this dinner were: Mrs. N. G. Carroll. Mr. and Mrs. Elzie Carroll and three daughters of Jemison, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Carroll and three children, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carroll and four children, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Wyatt and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Carroll and two children, all of Clanton. Mr. and Mrs. Newell Ruff and daughter of Clanton, Mr. Allen Ruff of Eldridge, Ala., Mrs. Wiley Morris and two sons of Sylacauga, Mrs. Dollie Jacks, mother of Mrs. Carroll, and Mr. Ollis Gray.

Those coming in the afternoon were: Mrs. W. C. Moore, Mrs. Henry Lewis, Mrs. W. F. Gilliland and Mr. and Mrs. Will Gray and two doughters.

About 1:30 o'clock, the crowd gathered under the shade tree and was entertained by Mr. Allen Ruff, nephew of Mrs. Carroll, who delivered us a wonderful message of God which was enjoyed by everyone. We are proud of this young minister and wish him well in carrying out God's word to the people.

There were two daughters, Mrs. G. L. Messer, of Elmore, and Mrs. Leila Mims, of Waverly, Ala, were absent from this reunion. We are hoping to have one some day when there will be no one absent. We hape to have the opportunity to have several more reunions together.—A daughter, Mrs. Lee Wyatt.

TIME TO FIGHT TYPHOID

With the beginning of warm weather it is again time to think of typhoid fever, a disease responsible for 15 cases of serious illness with three deaths in Chilton county last year. Although these numbers seem rather small, they are much too large when we consider that they result from a disease about which we know so much. We know that it is caused by a germ called the typhoid bacillus; that it is spread through the body wastes from a case or carrier of the disease; and that the disease can be prevented through sanitation and vaccination.

During 1935 members of the health unit vaccinated approximately 6,000 persons in Chilton county against typhoid fever, and this number represents about one-fourth of the population of the county. This should result in a marked reduction in the number of cases this year. As a matter of fact, there have been no cases to the present time this year, while at this date last year, four cases had been reported, and two of these four died. What will happen in the near future we do not know, but we do know that if those who have not been vaccinated will do so promptly, typhoid fever will be a very uncommon disease in Chilton county this year.

But vaccination is not the whole story. The ultimate control of typhoid fever will have to be through a combination of vaccination and sanitation. For while vaccination will give a large amount of protection and will, in most cases, prevent the disease even if exposure does occur, we must prevent this exposure to case or carrier before the disease will be eradicated. And when we remember that the disease spreads by means of body wastes, the importance of proper sanitation to prevent pollution of food and water supply becmes evident. Here, again, through the sanitation officer, the health unit is prepared to give service. Your individual problem can be discussed and advice and supervision of any construction of any septic tank or sanitary privy is available. The sanitatiton officer also has a crew of W. P. A. workers under his supervision and they are available to anyone who wishes to construct approved types of privies or septic tanks. Material must be supplied. Adequate sanitation not only protects against typhoid fever but against dysentery and hookworm disease as well.

Unnecessary sickness and death are still far too common. Let's eliminate typhoid fever as a cause of sickness and death in Chilton county.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Evans and son, of Kansas City, Mo., Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Evans, of Winston Salem, N.C., and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Evans, of Corinth, Mississippi, will arrive this week for a visit to their mother, Mrs. J. E. Evans.

Top Dress with POTASH

Apply 100 Pounds Muriate of Potash at Chopping Time

RUST IS A SURE SIGN OF POTASH STARVATION. Cotton needs extra potash to prevent rust, reduce wilt, and increase yields. Without sufficient potash, cotton plants become weak and show lack of vigor. Leaves turn yellow and drop off prematurely. Bolls are small, poorly developed, and hard to pick. Yields are low, lint is of poor quality and lacks uniformity.

Southern Experiment Stations have found that where cotton rust appears, a liberal application of muriate of potash per acre should be applied as a top-dresser. This is in addition to the potash in the fertilizer mixtures used at planting.

The Mississippi and Arkansas Experiment Stations have found that the addition of potash will decrease wilt and greatly increase yields.

Potash should be applied as a top-dresser immediately after chopping. Where rust is bad, 100 pounds of muriate of potash per acre will pay large dividends

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., May 19.—Two Clanton students are candidates for degrees at the 105th Commencement of the University of Alabama. The exercises have been set for May 24-26.

Ruth M. Shepherd has applied for a Bachelor of Arts degree. She is a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamme sorority. She belongs to Chi Delta Phi, Pi Phi Chi, Omega, Women's Athletic association, Honor roll, Corola staff, '33-'35.

Daniel W. Waite, Jr., expects a Bachelors degree of Science in Electrical Engineering. His will be the only diploma in Electrical Engineering issued this year.

The total number of degrees to be given is expected to be larger than ever before. More than 500 students will receive diplomas, said Mary Robertson, registrar. David Lilienthal, TVA director, and Dr. W. G. Henry, pastor of the Anniston First Methodist church, will speak.

"Alabama needs more well prepared teachers," said Dr. James J. Doster, pioneer in state education and Dean of the College of Education at the University of Alabama, here recently.

The teaching profession is not crowded with teachers who are qualified to teach, Dr. Doster went on. It is crowded with those who are not qualified, and who are dragging down the standards of education.

They are also crowding the better prepared teachers into the background because they will work for any salary they can get, Dr. Doster explained.

"The prospects for jobs for teachers are very good for the coming year," the dean said. "We placed every student qualified for a position during the past year and expect to continue to do so."

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Montgomery.—Alabama's 1936 highway construction program totaling more thin $10,000,000 and giving employment to approximately 10,200 men, is well under way, reports Reese Harvey, office engineer of the State Highway Department. This program is financed by gasoline tax, automobile tax and Federal funds.

In addition to this highway construction program sponsored by the State Highway Department, road improvement projects are under way in each of the sixty-seven counties, financed chiefly by gasoline tax allocated to the various counties from the funds collected by the State Tax Commission and amounting to more than $6,500 per month to each county.

Exactly 744 miles of roads are now under construction, while an additional 250 miles of bituminous paving will be completed and opened to traffic through the 3-way program within the next 60 days.

It is estimated that approximately $700,000 from Federal grants is yet to be contracted by the highway Department on highway and grade separation projects.

Lesson for May 24

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

LESSON TEXT — Luke 20:45-47; 21:1-36.

GOLDEN TEXT——In your patience possess ye your souls.—Luke 21:19.

PRIMARY TOPIC — A Gift That Pleased Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What Makes a Gift Great?

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making the Most of Today.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Living for Spiritual Ends.

While this lesson is indicated as the quarterly Temperance lesson, and the various subjects suggested vary in their objective, a more logical theme would seem to be "Jesus Teaches in the Temple." No individual, city, or nation can truly build for the future that disregards what the Bible says about the future.

I. Jesus Warns Against the Scribes (vv. 45-47).

He had just dealt with the disbelief of the Sadducees. The scribes claimed faith, for they were the teachers of the law. They were punctiliously exacting as to its literal observance. They had little understanding of the need of flexibility in applying its principles to human needs. They discovered that Jesus was teaching things contrary to their interpretations. Jesus taught that the law was made for man, and not man for the law. The scribes were publicity seekers, making parade of their wisdom. Sunday school teachers should earnestly pray that they may serve as true messengers of Christ, not as scribes, with only a head-knowledge of biblical matters.

II. Jesus Makes Estimate of Gifts (Luke 21:1-4).

1. Amount counts for little (v. 1). While the rich cast their gifts into the treasury, and observers may have noted that the clash and clatter of their coin indicated large giving, it is not likely that these gifts meant personal sacrifice or self-denial.

2. Inner conditions determine the value of a gift (vv. 2, 3). In the sight of man the poor widow's deed was not worthy of notice. In the sight of God it merited the immortality of the Bible record. The two-mite gift of the widow revealed her love for God, else how could she spare her all? It revealed her faith in God for tomorrow, for how else would she be fed? It revealed her humility, for she did not withhold her gift because it was so little. Verse 4 is indeed revealing as to Christ's interpretation of the deeper meaning of gifts, for that and the present age.

III. Jesus Prophesies His Return (vv. 5-33).

1. The temple to be destroyed (vv. 5, 6). The temple was the pride and boast of the proud Jew. Such boasting called forth the Lord's declaration that "there shall not be left one stone upon another," a fact that had its fulfillment A. D. 70, when Titus destroyed Jerusalem.

2. The disciples' inquiry (v. 7). There can be no surprise that the disciples should ask for more information about future events. A corresponding verse in Matthew (24:3) should be considered.

3. An order of events was presented to them (vv. 8-24). Perhaps one would not so much say an order, as that he pointed out details on the great canvas of the future.

a. False Christs would appear (v. 8), some claiming to be the Messiah in his first appearing, and some in his reappearing. These make their appeal to such as are not rooted and grounded in the faith. "Go ye not after them."

b. Inevitable wars and commotions (vv. 9, 10) will embroil the nations. "Commotions" signifies tumults, in the absence of war, wrangling within national life, or between nations. The restful follower of Christ is to "be not terrified."

c. Violent persecutions were foretold (vv. 12-19). The believer of today should absorb the meaning and teaching of this marvelous passage of Scripture. "Settle it in your hearts" that Christ will be to his own even as to the tempest-tossed disciples on Galilee, when he said "Peace, be still." And in this connection he spoke the words of the golden text, "In your patience possess ye your souls."

IV. Appropriate Warnings (vv. 34-36).

The grosser sins may not ensnare the believer, but how subtle are the cares of this life. But upon the drunken, the obscene, the frivolous, and upon the follower of Christ alike shall trials and perplexities come. Watch ye therefore, always; pray, always. Only so shall the child of God be ready ("worthy") to escape, and to stand before the Son of God. Benediction is pronounced upon "those who love his appearing."

Christian Worship

All Christian worship is a witness of the resurrection of him who liveth for ever and ever. Because he lives, "now abideth faith, hope, charity."

The Greatest Gift

You propose to give up everything for God. Be sure, then, to include yourself among the things to be given up.

Talent and Character

Talent forms itself in solitude; character in the press of life.—Goethe.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Farley and son of Birmingham, spent Sunday here with relatives

PUBLIC INVITED TO ACCOMPANY THE PRESS

The Alabama Press Association has extended an invitation to the public generally to accompany them on their trip to Havana, Cuba. The response to the invitation has been very gratifying and teachers and lawyers and merchants and farmers are taking advantage of the splendid trip at the exteremely low price which the editors have obtained—$73.70. This sum covers all of the necessary expenses from the time the train leaves Montgomery on the morning of June 14th until the party reaches that city on the following Saturday afternoon. This includes all meals, hotel bill, all transportation and two extensive sightseeing trips in Havana. It also includes the many courtesies that will be extended the party while in Havana.

Reservations are coming in now, and it is a case of first come, first served so far as the desirable cabins aboard ship are concerned, as Convention Secretary Hall is starting in the center of the boat on the promenade deck and working toward the stem and stern of the boat. Seasoned travelers know that the center of the boat is where the least motion is and they want to get in on these choice places.

If anyone in this section is considering a trip this summer, no cheaper nor more interesting trip can be found than this, and the editor of this paper or President F. W. Stanley at Greenville or Convention Secretary, E. C. Hall at Alexander City will be glad to give them all necessary information and take their reservation. Anyone who wants to is invited to go.

If members of the party desire to stay longer in Cuba they may do so, as the tickets will be good on later boats at no increase in price, and this will also be true of those who may want to stop over in Florida and catch a later train. Arrangements have been made whereby it will be possible, also, to come home by way of Miami and the Florida east coast. This last will involve an additional outlay of approximately $15.00, however.

The party will leave Montgomery on Sunday morning, June 14th, at seven o'clock on a special train and will reach Tampa that afternoon and go directly aboard the ship. Havana will be reached at three o'clock Monday afternoon.

The officers of the Association will have offices at The Whitley Hotel in Montgomery, Saturday, for any last minute details, and those of the party reaching the city Saturday will gather here.

J. L. BURNETT THANKS VOTERS

I would like to take this opportunity of thanking all those who voted for me and all who gave their support and influence in the last Republican primary election. As you know, Mr. J. C. Atchison and myself received the highest number of votes and under the law, we will have to run this off in a second primary, which will be held June 9, 1936. To those who did not vote for me and who voted for Mr. Littlejohn and Mr. Glasscock, in this primary, I would like to appeal to you and state that I have had eight years experinece as commissioner and with my experience I can go in office and make you a good commissioner from the beginning, as I understand road work and am also familiar with all the other work of the county which comes under the Commissoners Court, and I am in a position to cooperate with the court and the officials in order that you might have the best service with the least expense to the taxpayers.

To those who may not know me personally, I would like to state that in Beats 8 and 15, my home and adjoining Beats, I got 72 votes and Mr. Atchison got 39 votes, and I would like to mentoin this to show what the people in my own precinct thinks of me. Let me urge each of my friends and supporters to go to the polls on June 9 and cast your vote for me and urge your friends to do so also, as I believe I will be elected if my friends will take the time to vote, and whatever the outcome, your verdict will be mine next November. Yours very truly,—J. L. Burnett

Berg and his good wife and babies bade all good bye, as tears filled every eye.

There will be services at this place each Sunday and Sunday night; Sunday school at 9:45. We hope to have Rev. John Scalf fill the pulpit next Sunday and Sunday night. It will be announced later just when our regular preaching days will be.—Mrs. Minnie P. Mims.

LOCAL BOY MAKES GOOD

Elvy E. (Bud) Callaway, republican nominee for governor of Florida, is an Alabama product, born and reared on a farm near Weogufka, the son of the late Rev. Ben W. and Joannah Holley Callaway, according to the Sylacauga Advocate.

Florida is a political debatable state, says the Advocate, the republicans having carried the state in 1928. The Sylacauga paper advances the opinion that the influx of many people from the north and the tariff issue on winter fruits and vegetables give the republicans strength in the neighboring commonwealth.

Callaway's mother and three brothers still live near Weogufka. He attended the public school there and the State Teacher's college at Jacksonville, later teaching school for several terms.—Montgomery Journal.

LIQUOR AND TAXES

To the Editor The News:

The voice of the people is sweet to hear, even if we have to listen to some Iowa "hog-caller" trying to make Major Bowes' program in a husky baritone. But the voice of the people doesn't cut any figure; it is action that turns the wheels of industry and as long as this old world wags there will be taxes and booze and those two issues will be foremost—always have been and always will be.

Alabama is the dryest "wet" state in the enire 48, and today gets less from the liquor industry than any other state, but youv'e got the booze over here in large quantities, and bootleggers are still doing business in Alabama. If Alabama doesn't want lieuor in Alabama, then Alabama should be big enough to put the heat on Alabama bootleggers strong enough to stop it! The voice of the people will never stop it. That six letter word, "action" will put it on the carpet for a "Barry count."

If Alabama were collecting two juicy million a year on booze, and if the same two million was not grabbed off by the grafters and applied to the spots much needed in Alabama, the saloons would open and let those booze hounds drown themselves, and the sooner they "kick off" the better, anyway, then the highways would be just as safe and safer and the babies in Alabama would get the milk, and the booze hound would be in hell and everybody happy. What say?—John L. Baird, Guin, Ala., Birmingham News.

ANTI-SALES TAX CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR MAKES STATE

Montgomery, Ala., May 18, 1936—"I certainly appreciate all the fine things people from all over the state have said about me in connection with the use of my name as a prospective candidate for gavernor, however, the matter of the election of the next governor is a long way off and many things confront the people of Alabama before they will get an opportunity to express themselves on the matter of who will be the next chief executive of our state," Jeff P. Beeland, of Greenville, campaign manager of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama, said in a statement here this week.

"Just at the present time my one and anly job from a political standpoint is to do all in my humble power to fight any attempt to place additional taxes upon the already overburdened load of the Alabama taxpayers," headed.

Many things will happen upon the Alabama political arena during the next two yeass—things that probably will be a big influence in the vote of the people for their next governor.

"With that in the offing I suggest that we do not divert our minds from the fact that the politicians are now scheming to place more taxes upon us and that we might as well face the facts that another special session of the legislature will be called for that purpose."

Junior Class of C. C. H. S. Entertains The Graduating Class

One of the mose enjoyable events that happens in a high school student's life is the annual Junior and Senior banquet when the Juniors entertain the Seniors.

On Friday, May 13, 1936, at the Wilson Hotel, the Juniors of Chilton Counyt High School entertained the Seniors in royal style. The program carried out was original and much initiation was displayed by the Juniors.

The dining room of the hotel was beautifully decorated in orchid and pink, the colors of the honored Senior class. The graduation idea was prevailing, even in the place cards. The programs were in the form of diplomas tied with pink and orchid ribbon. Each table was decorated with roses and various favors. All enjoyed the hot parade of the Seniors favorite songs played by the Verbena archestra. "Goody, Goody," won first place. Six waitresses entertained with tap dances between numbers of the orchestra.

Mary Armstrong, president of the Junior class, opened the program with a toast to the Senior class. Response was made by John D. Thomas, president of the Senior class. A toast to the faculty was given by Margie Nell Jones and the response was given by Mr. Bratton. Edith Parrish told something of the future of the Seniors and many other attractions were given, too numerous to describe. The waitresses were presented with a gift from the classes. ALABAMA G. O. P. CONVENED WEDNESDAY

Birmingham, May 19.—On the eve of their convention here, Alabama Republicans were faced tonight by a decision whether to send delegates to the Cleveland national convention instructed or uninstructed.

Usually the State's G. O. P. delegates go uninstructed.

The assembled party leaders will name four delegates at large, determine whether to enter a State ticket against the Democratic nominees in the November election. and will choose a national committeeman to succeed O. D. Street, stepping aside after serving in the office for twenty years.

A State chairman, secretary, and exacutive committee also were to be selected.

The State organization left to district organizations the choice of district delegates to acompany the four delegates at large to Cleveland.

A complete delegation of representatives from Chilton county was in attendance at the State and District conventions, both of which met at the Tutwiler Hotel, Birmingham, Wednerday.

CUBS TROUNCE BILLINGSLEY

The New Cedron Cubs crushed the Billingsley nine Saturday 13 to 3. Billingsley fough hard but could not hand the good fielding, batting and pitching of the Cubs.

Hurler Brown struck out 7 and allowed only 4 hits to Bilingsley, while the Cubs hit 10 off Beaslecomb and he failed to strike out any.

Devaughn scored for the Cubs first in the first frame, when Griffin dropped his long fly in right, and Burnett and Smith singled. Scores came in in each succeeding inning for the Cubs except the second and fifth. A wild throw in the fifth by catcher Lawrence gave Billingsley their first tally. They scored again in the seventh when King walked and J. Turner singled and several errors were made in the outer gardens.

Manager Parnell Rattliff hit 3 for 5 including a triple and scored 3 of the Cubs runs. He made a shoe string catch in short for the last out of the game.

DREAM MAY BE A NIGHTMARE

Those are fine idetals that president Roosevelt expressed in his Baltimore speech. They were dreams and visions we all cherish. The question is whether the methods adopted by the New Deal, the lavish spending, the higher cost of living bound to follow from high taxes and the other innovations, are calculated to make the dreams come true.

"Hold fast to your dream, the President admonished youth in conclusion. "America needs it."

But isn't the dream of paying the bills that youth must contemplate likely to prove a nightmare?—Kansas City Times.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

We have heard a great deal of late, ever since 1933 in fact, about planned economy. In order to get out of the depression and back to economic normalcy, we have been told time and again, we must have a national plan, that we cannot depend on nature and natural laws to bring about our material salvation. Something new must be devised a new chart to guide us out of the wilderness. Or if it was not entirely new, it must be based on some of the programs of the past. That is the contention.

One of the most important plans to date was that which had to do with theresuscitation of agriculture. The result of the thought on the subject given by the official planners was to devise the program of the A. A. A. This plan sought to bring about prosperity for the farmers by limiting production. We were to grow rich by producing less, on the old theory that the scarcer the commodity, the higher the price would be.

Along with this A. A. A. plan there was another devised by the proponents of the prosperity-through-greater-foreign markets idea. this can be done. The latest legislation of our protective barriers through agreements with other nations so that the alien markets of our farmers might be enlarged, and they might ship their surplus crops to consumers abroad, who would pay for these exports by sending more of their goods into the American market.

It seemed to some critics that the A. A. A. curtailment plan, and the plan of Secretary Hull for wider foreign markets for farmers did not dovetail. They pointed out that if our farmers cut down their production they would not have the goods to supply wider foreign markets. But the A. A. A. planning and the reciprocal trade planning went ahead side by side. It is true that the Supreme Court put the finishing touches to the A. A. A. but Secretary Wallace and his friends have not given up the theory that the way to get rich is to produce less at higher prices—if this ca nbe done. The latest legislation of Congress looks toward the curtailment idea. And the reciprocal trade planning is going ahead stronger than ever—even though some of its critics declare that it is unconstitutional too.

The two plans, however, have not worked out just as was anticipated. The American farmers have not grown rich—neither have they increased their exports. Some of the results of the two plans have been surprising. The record for the past three years shows that, instead of exporting more, or living off of our own bounty, while in 1933 we imported only 106,288 bushels of corn, a year later our imports had grown to 2,959,246 bushels while last year the imports had swollen to 42,242,296 bushels. Other figures on our agricultural imports follow:

Wheat—1933, 31,282 bushels; 1934, 7,736,532 bushels; 1935, 27,438,870 bushels; oats—1933, 132,337 bushels; 1934, 5,580,407 bushels; 1935, 10,106,903 bushles; live hogs—1933, 6,470 pounds; 1934, 7,716 pounds; 1935, 3,414,317 pounds; fresh pork—1933, 5,38,730 pounds; 1934, 182,480 pounds; 1935, 3,922,609 pounds; butter—1933, 1,021,806 pounds; 1934, 1,253,392 pounds, 1935, 22,674,000 pounds.

While the A. A. A. planners sought to curtail crops to bring prosperity, they brought us instead huge imports of agricultural produced from abroad, produce which ought to be rasied by our own farmers. The tariff traders instead of giving us wider farm markets have only encouraged the importation of alien goods, both manufactured and agricultural produce. True it is that the A. A. A. planners blame the drought for part of the scarcity, but the fact is that they neglected to take the weather into consideration in making their calculations. What are we anyhow—a protective tariff or a free trade nation, one which believes in scarcity or in an export abundance? These questions ought to be settled now before any more plans are adopted.

WE MUST LOOK TO LOYALTY OF PEOPLE

It is in the loyalty of the American people to the traditions and ideals of their country that we must long for solution of our present troubles rather than to formulae and economic programs, according to Dr. Walter E. Bauer, associate professor of History in Valpraiso University, writing in the current issue of the National Republic. In part Dr. Bauer says:

"Loyalty may be defined as devotion, as a glad and willing surrender to a cause or a complex of causes in which an individual or a group of individuals believes. But loyalty, if it is to be an agency for good, individually and socially, must have for its object some cause worthy of our loyalty, some cause which is itself the object of a deliberate, rational and ethical choice. Furthermore, our individula loyalties must not unnecessarily or want only limit or destroy the loyalties of others. In the words of the late Josiah Royce, our loyalty must rise to a level on which it becomes loyalty to loyalty. Now it should not be difficult to see that the heritage of the American people, with all the rights and all the obligations it conveys or implies, is an object worthy of the highest loyalty of every American as of every person worthy of the name of man, because this loyalty has for its object the promotion not merely of our own individual interests, but also those of society and humanity at large.

"It is in the loyalty of American people, then, that we must look for the real crux of our present and recent troubles. Our national and local problems are not entirely economic and political in character; they are also moral and ethical problems, and they cannot be solved by economic and political measures alone. If we really have a passion for liberty and humanity, if we can find or create within ourselves a willingness to set aside interests which are purely personal, political or sectional, and work for the common good, our difficulties will soon vanish, because it is still true, regardless of what the economic determinists believe to the contrary, that righteousness exalts a nation and that sin is a reproach to any people. If, instead of talking unctously and vociferously about the welfare of the people, our various economic groups now at war with one another, our capitalists, industrialists, business men, laborers and farmers, if these competing and conflicting groups had looked beyond profits and thought in terms of the nation, we should not now, in all probability, find ourselves in such a critical condition. But perhaps this is too much to expect of human nature and, perhaps for this reason the cause of liberty and humanity, after flourishing for a little while, is destined to share the fate of so many other lost causes of history. Of one thing, however, we may be quite sure, as sure as we are of death and the law of gravity, and that is the ancient truth laid down in the Book of Books: "No man liveth unto himself," a truth which applies to economics no less than it does to other aspects of life. Unless we as a nation surrender ourselves once more, and that soon, to the cause of liberty and humanity, for which this nation was founded, unless we cease running after false gods and return to our first and highest loyalties, we are destined to go the way of other nations which fell from their high estate, the victims of their own greed and shortsightedness."

HITTING THE LITTLE FELLOW

Under the proposed tax on the undistributed earnings of corporations, as passed by the House of Representatives, it would seem that small business might as well prepare to get it in the neck again, if this tax bill finally be comes a law. In the days of the N.R.A., one of the principle criticisms of the act was that it penalized and handicapped the small business man in favor of the big corporation. because the latter could easier survive regimentation by preparing itself for all contingencies. Most people will remember the attacks made on the N. R. A. by Senator Borah and the telling effect which his charges had on public opinion.

But the proposed tax bill, now in process of formation, seems to be even more drastic in its discrimination in favor of big business as against the little corporation. The bill proposes to tax undistributed earnings into the hands of stockholders. Under its tender beneficience the corporation wil be no longer able to lay up a reserve for a rainy day because the tax-collectors will take the money away from him.

The big corporations, however, have already provided for reserves and these will not be touched by the tax bill. The little fellows, however, who have been barely able to keep their heads above water, either have no reserves or have exhausted what they did have. It will therefore be imposible for small company to to lay up a reserve comparable to these which most of the big corporations now have. Without anything in the stocking for a rainy day, therefore, the little business concern will be at the mercy of the first real economic recession which comes along and will face receivership if nothing worse. With a reserve already built up, however, the big corporation may be able to survive for a time at least. And his lot may be rendered easier by the demise of his smaller and weaker competitor.

This is not the whole story, however. Many critics of the proposed tax bill, Democrats as well as Republicans, have pointed out that the bill would be unfair to the small business concern in that such concern would have no means of expanding. It is the ambition of every small business of course, to grow, to increase its profitable output, and the number of workers in the concern. Expansion, however, must be made primarily through reserves which are in addition to the profits paid out to stockholders. Now if the building of such reserves is made impossible by the new tax bill, the small business concern will be "frozen" so far as its present status is concerned and there will be little chance for growth, even if the business is able to surivive the vicissitudes of the economic national development. Here is another advantage which the law will give to big business at the expense of the small concern.

So it may come about, that the small business concerned which narrowly escaped hamstringing through the N. R. A., may still get in the neck from the proposed tax law. We are living in strange times. The old copybook maxim about thrift seems to have gone by the boards.

It is said that the Brain Trusters are going to abbreviate the name of the Treasury Department into CAC. This means "come across."

In his address last night President Roosevelt gave his formula for meeting an emergency: "Do something. If it works, do some more. If not, do something else." That formula may be adopted as a working plan not only by heads of government but by people who are faded with the responsibility of selecting heads of government.—Lawrence Kans., Journal-World.

MAN IN THE MOON

IS THIS A RACE?

Our Bible says something about "replenishing the peoples of the earth", and from all reports, there is a tendency throughout the world to do that very thing.

Several months ago news was flashed to all the world that the Dionne "quins" had been born. Not so long after, it was revealed that in Texas there was a set of "quads", already in their teens. Then came news of several sets of triplets from numerous places in the world. But the last report, and by far the most startling, comes from Nicarauga. where it is reported that a mother has given birth to seven children over a period of two days. Pretty soon, I suppose we'll have reports where children are being raised in litters, like pigs.

In Italy, Premier Mussolini has offered a yearly bounty to the parents who can show the biggest families. Who said "birth control?"

FEATHERS IN THE WIND

The story goes that once upon a time a gossiper heard a rumor, and when she retold it, enlarged upon it a bit; the person she told went and told another, and by and by the rumor was no longer such, but had become a scandalous fact, if all reports could have been true.

Not long after, she was converted, and wanting to right the wrong she had done by spreading the rumor, asked her pastor what she could do toward righting it. Said he:

"Rip open a feather bed, during a big wind and let the feathers fly where they may". She went away, did as he directed, and soon returned, reporting that she had obeyed him, and asked what she must do next". His direction was:

"Now go and gather every one of those feathers together again and stuff them into the bed again".

"But", said she, "that is impossible".

"True", replied the minister, "but no more impossible than it is for you to fully right the wrong you have done by scattering wild words where they may go and do harm".

I think there is a lesson in this for anyone who might start a rumor, not knowing whether it is true or not. I have heard rumors—recently —of this and that in our county political pot. Some may have been true, maybe not. I think it would be a good idea for anyone to check up on a rumor before he spreads it, to see if there is truth in it. A misrepresentation may hurt enormously, while the truth never hurt any innocent person. Think over that.

MORE PROMISES

Nowadays, the Roosevelt outfit is getting the old promise machine out and oiling it up again. In fact, it hasn't been allowed to rest long at a time all during this administration. All a fellow had to do to get a promise was to let it be known just what his wants were—the promise was promptly forthcoming.

Voters are now being promised anything and everything. The only thing that confines the promises to voters is the fact that votes are the desired article. If members of the animal and fowl families could vote, the promises might be more numerous.

Cattle would be promised bigger, greener and better pastures, with a rider that provided that no more fences would be built. Mules and horses would be promised lighter loads, with fine hay for feed three times a day, and an extra bale to sleep on at night. Even snakes could look forward to smoother ground over which to crawl—that would be seen to. Fish could expect cooler and clearer pools to swim in, with a nice juicy worm every two inches, and with the assurance that not one of them would have a hook in it. Birds of all kinds might have the promise that their nests would be feathered for them, just to their liking, all made to order. Skunks could expect more and better perfume.

Whatever the need, it would be promised—have no doubt of that. Let's look back to 1932. Roosevelt promised a balanced national budget. He promised a saving of at least 25 per cent in the cost of government. He promised to cut down the number of offices and bureaus. He promised to take the government out of business and put business into government. He promised us sound money. He assured us that he would drag recovery around that well known corner.

In 1936 we fail to find one year in which the national budget has been balanced. The cost of government has increased many times over—only the brain trusters know just how much, for it is a secret "skeleton in the closet." Bureaus and departments have been created until all Washington is one gigantic institution of offices, and almost its entire population are office workers for the government, therein. He put the government in direct control of every business in the land, from bootblack to railroads, and instead of using business men to look after affairs of government, has hired nit-wit college professors to work the nation's complex problem according to the rules of theory rather than proved practice. The sound money he promised us has turned out to be a 59.6 cent dollar. And old man recovery is still shyly peeping around the much-talked-of corner, with only his cap bill and eyelashes showing.

That's what Rooseveltian promises are worth, and you don't need to look any further for proof of it than to take a glimpse at your own personal affairs. But never fear—there will be a new set of promises off the New Deal press before long. And don't be surprised what may be promised. You may look for a promise of anything. But you can put a ring around the date on your calendar when one of those promises is fulfilled. That hasn't happened yet.—Man in the Mon.

TAXPAYERS' NIGHTMARE

An echo from the old Non-Partisan days of South Dakota recently appeared in the press.

The state sold its coal mine at Haynes, No. Dakota, which was one of the few remaining relics of the greatest and most disastrous state-ownership programs ever instigated by an Amreican commonwealth.

Since 1919, the state had put nearly $195,000 into the mine in legislative appropriations. The property, including equipment and and some coal, was sold for $5,500 cash.

The superintendent of the mine said that the property's outstanding debts would absorb the $5,500 and leave a deficit of about $3,000. No part of the legislative appropriations for the mine were ever repaid.

No comment on this is necessary. It's just one more example of the fact that the dream of state socialism usually becomes a taxpayers' nightmare.

The Reds in the French elections made surprising gains. This is an indication that France may go either communist or fascist within the next two or three years.

THEY DON'T REPEAL IT

There is no question that the efforts of Senator Vandenberg, and other anti-New Deal statesmen, to force publicity on the amounts given under the A. A. A. to big-scale operators of farms and plantations, have caused a decided stir in political circles. In order to create a diversion, when this expenditure of the taxpayers' money crimes into the limelight again, some of the New Deal statesmen have pulled what they regard as a "fast one" by providing that publicity shall be given to what they call the amount of money "placed in the pockets of manufacturers and other American producers by our protective tariff. The political strategy of this is, of course, self-evident. It envisages building another prairie fire to stop the first one.

It is doubtful, however, whether this effort at drawing a red herring across the trail, will be as effective as anticipated by some of its authors.

The principal reason is that the defenders and proponents of protection have their answer hand-made for them. This answer will doubtless be, in substance: "well if you think the present protective tariff is so iniquitous, and has 'robbed' the poor consumer of such gigantic sums, why don't you repeal it?"

This is a question which will be a little difficult to answer. The Democratic platform of 1932 denounced our present tariff law, as something evil and unjust. Since the New Deal Administration came into power it has had an overwhelming majority in both branches of Congress. Yet no effort has been made to repeal the present tariff act. The question as to why this has not been done, if the tariff is not injurious, is one which will be difficult to answer unless the tariff denunciators tell the truth.

And the truth is that America is so sold on the protective-tariff theory that openly to change the policy of the country at this time would be a political blunder of great magnitude.

So it is easy to see why the denunciation of the tariff at this time will not be so effective a counter irritant to the A. A. A. expenditure.

Those who hold up their hands in holy terrior at the iniquities of the tariff will be a great deal like the fellewo who keeps a vicious dog and then goes around the neighborhood denouncing it and trying to show how much damage has been caused by the recalcitrant canine. Outcries by the dog-keeper would not sound convincing. The same may possibly be true of the statesmen who denounce the protective tariff yet keep it in the front yard, in good working condition, when they can easily get rid of it if they so desire.

DISTINGUISHED REPUBLICANS

Many Republican leaders in many sections of the country have let their eyes wander from the ball. What they should be concentrating upon is the selection of the candidate who can win. Instead they are showing a tendency to divide into pro-Landon and anti-Landon factions, the one convinced that the choice must fall to Landon, the other that the candidate must be any one except Landon.

Both factions are in error. The pro-Landon group is failing to recognize the fact that there are four candidates—Landon, Vandenberg, Borah, and Dickinson—each of whom is well qualified for the presidency. One has served as a governor, the other three as United States Senators, and all of them have distinguished records. Advocacy of Governor Landon's cause should not blind men to the fact that the other candidates are also possessed of high character and attainments.

The anti-Landon men fall into the same kind of error. They have become convinced that Mr. Landon is unsuitable, though the basis for this conclusion is pretty flimsy. It is true that Mr. Landon was ill advised on the California situation. He should have joined with the other candidates in support of an uninstructed delegation, but his having failed to do so does not disqualify him from consideration, for otherwise his record appears to be sound and his popularity is undoubtedly great.

We repeat: All four of the candidates who are now out in front are qualfiied for the office. The attention of Republican leaders should be concentrated upon the selection of the strongest of the four. Preoccupation with convention maneuvers is leading many to forget that after the convention comes an election and it is the election which the Republicans must win if the country is to be spared another four years of misgovernment. Extreme factionalism now will go far to destroy the party's chances in November.—Chicago Tribune.

THE BOAT TO RECOVERY

A short time ago the Brookings Institution published a study which has received an extraordianry amount of attention from industralists, economists and others—because that institution enjoys an international reputation of being non-commercial, non-political and unprejudiced. It searches for the truth—and nothing but the truth.

The purpose of the study in question was to point a way to general recovery. A vast array of statistics was analyzed, assorted, briefed. And the gist of its conclusion is that recovery can be brought about not by higher prices, as some seem to believe, but by lower prices with their corollary of increased purchasing power.

The authors of the report point out that new techniques have made it possible to cut the cost of production and distributing most of the things the people use, and that the savings accruing from this higher industrial efficiency should be passed on to the people—that is, the consumer. These findings confirm the beliefs of a legion of economists and practical business men.

It takes no economic genius to understand that when prices are forced up artificially—by law, regulation or restrictions—consumer purchasing power goes down, at the expense of production, employment and industrial activity; and that when prices are held to a reasonable level, the people can buy more—and so make our factories and merchandise outlets hum.

The country doesn't want laws and taxes designed to boost the cost of commoditles, thereby creating an artificial inflation of the cost of living. It wants to buy more commodities, and use more—and thus create a demand for both luxuries and necessities that result in real recovery and steady employment.

All right, we'll remember this in the future. W. L. Moorehead of the Hopkins (Mo.) Journal says that the next time you fuss with a fool, remember he is doing the same thing. This has no bearing on political arguments, does it? Altoona, Kans.. Tribune.

The Soviet government is going into the manufacture of automobile sedans. Needless to say that these autos will not be driven by the Red proletariat.

LEARN TO SAY "NO"

Did you ever think what gullible suckers we voters are?

We know the stork doesn't bring babies. We know the magician doesn't really get money out of the air. We know water doesn't run up hill. But we never seem to learn that political magic is no different from stage magic, except the price of admission is more.

A good politician can make us think he picks money out of the air just like a good magician. But while the politician holds our attention by promising to give us something for nothing but our vote, his hand is in our pocket taking out our money (taxes) to pay for his "gift."

Unless we learn to say "no" to the tempting "gifts" offered us, the political magicians will promise us a free trip to the moon with a golden chariot to ride in when we get there—but by the time we arrived, we would have long white whiskers and the pawn broker would have the chariot (and probably the return trip ticket) for the tax lien the political magicians gave him against us.

AFFLICTED INDUSTRY

Mr. Roosevelt's admonition to industry to be good and put more people to work reminds us of a story.

A gentleman observed a small boy looking out of a window. The child looked unhappy and the passerby said to him, "Young fellow, put a smile on that face of yours."

"I'm doing the best I can," replied the boy 'but the dog has bitten me, the cat is scratching me, my brother is pinching, my sister making faces at me and my mother is going to give me castor oil. I don't feel much like smiling."

Industry has been trying to face its troubles with a smile, in spite of the handicaps imposed by the New Deal. Not altogether an easy thing to do, with an assortment of congressional Fidos yapping and snapping at its heels, inquisitional Black cats clawing at its flesh. Government commissions pinching at every opportunity, Tugwellians scaring it with horrible faces and the President threatening to purge it of surplus. In spite of all of which, industry has put many hundreds of thousands of men to work since the foreordinate outlawing of the N.R.A., or National Regimenting Attempt of unsavory memory.

In this respect, industry has done a much better job than Government has done with all of its easy billions. For the new jobs made by industry are jobs that create more wealth, whereas most of the jobs that have been created by Government are jobs that eat up and diminish existing wealth. Cutting paper dolls and raking leaves in parks may be relief measures and vote-getters, but they do not augment the national income.—Iron Age.

SOCIALISM GETS KNOCKOUT

Milwaukee has been famed as a "socialist city," due to the fact that its mayor, a socialist, has been reelected to office for a long succession of terms. However, the socialists of the United States recently discovered that there is a definite limit to how much socialistic doctrine the voters of Milwaukee are ready to swallow.

Milwaukee's mayor was recently up for reelection again. On the same ballot was a proposal for the city to purchase its privately-owned electric system. The proposal was naturally backed strongly by the mayor, and was a burning issue in the campaign.

Results of the election were highly interesting. The mayor was reelected, for his seventh term, by a relatively narrow margin. But the proposal to put the city into the electric business was decisively defeated.

To anyone familiar with conditions in Milwaukee there is nothing remarkable in this. The mayor was reelected, not because he is a socialist, but because he has proven himself to be an able, honest and distinguished municipal executive. The chances are that he could win office on the ticket of any other political party. Under his leadership, Milwaukee has become one of the best and most economically administered cities in the country, and that is what the voters want.

The proposal to buy the private electric system was turned down because Milwaukee citizens, like those of other communities, couldn't see the point in burdening themselves with a tremendous debt when they were already receiving good, cheap power service. Socialism, in other words, wasn't the issue. Reason and logic, not high-sounding and impractical theories, dictated the people's vote.

Signor Mussolini says that he is going to bring the blessings of civilization to Ethiopia. And this just when so many of us are trying to raise the fare to sail away to make a new home in some South Sea island or along the upper reaches of the Congo.—Boston Transcript.

The Atlanta Journal says someone is trying to determine what is the oldest joke in the world. We don't know, but "Elect me and I'll reduce taxes" dates back a long time.—Blairsville, Penna., Dispatch.

One of our city friends went back home the other day to see the old swimmin' hole of which he had such fond memories. He was much disappointed to find that the government had taken it over as a power site.

New Giant Zeppelin Is A Flying Palace

Details of Her Luxurious Equipment Revealed for First Time

By Latimer Shaw

LUXURIES such as sky-travelers have never enjoyed before are contained in the new 804 foot Zeppelin, the Hindenburg, world's largest airliner, whose May 6th departure from her home nest at Frankfurt-am-Main for the great naval dirigible hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., stirred the interest of the world.

On board, as commodore of all the Zeppelins was the veteran Dr. Hugo Eckener, the most renowned and experienced pilot of lighter-than-air liners. In actual command of the Hindenburg was Capt. Ernst A. Lehmann, a pupil of Dr. Eckener since 1915. The Zeppelin carried a crew of more than 50 picked men. Her voyage marked the beginning of the first regular trans-Atlantic passenger and freight service by air.

Nothing approaching the comfort of the Hindenburg has ever been envisioned for aerial travel. In her 25 luxurious staterooms she carried 50 passengers, a capacity of her illustrious sister ship, the Graf Zeppelin. Imagine hot and cold running water on an airship! This is supplied from a folding washstand in each cabin. Every passenger sleeps in a soft individual bed. The ship is liberally equipped with baths and there is a commodious dining hall where guests dine and watch the surface ships pass underneath. A long enclosed promenade deck gives a perfect view of the sea and sky panorama. And a complete electric kitchen in charge of a distinguished chef ensures flavorsome hot meals.

A great novelty on the Hindenburg is a fireproof smoking room with doors opened only from outside or by the steward's push button inside to prevent passengers from carrying lighted cigars and cigarettes to other parts of the ship. A comfortable library with modern books is another feature. In addition to ten tons of mail and packages, the new airliner carries two tons of drinking water, two tons of service water, six tons of water ballast and sixty tons of fuel and five tons of Veedol lubricating oil. Her lifting capacity in the air comes from 7,063,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas in 16 separate cells. The ship weighs 430,950 pounds and carries a total pay load of 41,990 pounds.

The eyes of the engineering world are on the Hindenburg's engines and their lubrication because she is the first lighter-than-air ship to be equipped with Diesel oil burning engines, of which she has four of 1100 hp each. It is a distinction for the American petroleum industry that, after more than a year of exhaustive tests, Veedol motor oil made from 100% Pennsylvania crude oil won the right to lubricate the new Zeppelin's motors, after serving the Graf Zeppelin in like capacity for six years and the automotive equipment of both Byrd Antarctic expeditions.

All public and passenger rooms on the Hindenburg are heated through use of the engine cooling water. Other amazing details of the aerial giant include the first light-weight duralumin piano, a 5,500,000 candlepower searchlight and a full equipment of inflatable rubber life boats. All in all, she is the last word in travel above the earth.

We realize that our dear husband and father can't come back to us, but may each of us live a life to meet him in a land where there is no more death and sad partings. We feel that all was done that loving hands could do, but God saw fit to call him. We feel that our loss is heaven's gain.

Mr. Birdette was 84 years old at the time of his death. May God bless each of you, who lent a helping hand, is our most earnest prayer.—The Family.

E. H. LITTLEJOHN THANKS VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

I wish to express my appreciation to those voters who supported me in the past election despite the fact that I was reported disqualified throughout the county. I sincerely regret that this false statement was circulated but there is no use crying over spilled milk.

I am very glad of the fact that during this campaign, I was enabled to renew many old acquaintances, and make many new ones. I am also glad that my campaign was conducted in a clean, open manner, and that I have no regrets concrning it, save one—there are many others whom I should have liked to meet, but was unable to do so.

Hoping for the success of the Republican party, I am fraternally yours.—E. H. Littlejohn.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Recently the Bob Jones College had as Chapel speakers for a week Mr. and Mrs. Saloff-Astakhoff. These people are native Russians. They are lovely Christians. They were miraculously delivered from death at the hands of the Soviet leaders in Russia. They feel that it is their Christian duty to warn America against Communism. When the Communistic movement first began in Russia the evangelical Christians thought they would enjoy religious liberty. Instead of religious liberty, Christians were murdered by the thousands and religious liberty was destroyed. Mr. and Mrs. Astakhoff showed pictures of the Russian persecution. Starving children were shown eating the bodies of their own parents. Parents were shown eating the bodies of their own children. The writer who has visited Russia and who knows something from personal experience of the conditions existing under the Soviet regime wishes to warn our leaders of the danger that threatens our own land. The great danger in America is not from laboring men. The danger lurks in our colleges and universities where trained psychologists are working to break down respect for American institutions and in the most subtle and suggestive way these teachers suggest that Communism is psosibly the solution for world problems.

The only thing that stands between America and communism is the Word of God. Communism cannot control this government until respect for authorative religion dies. All ministers in pulpits and all school teachers in school rooms who are raising question marks in the minds of the youth about the authority of the Bible are paving the way for Communism. The Ten Commandments recognize individual property right. "Thou shalt not steal." This means that a man has a right to own property and no man has a right to take it away from him. "Thou shalt not covet they neighbor's ox or his ass—". This means that a man has a right to own property and no other man has a right to steal it and no right to covet it. The appeal of the Bible has always been to the individual. The appeal of communism and most of our modernistic movements is to the masses. We talk about converting the people "en masse". We speak about applying the ethical teachings of Jesus to human society. Jesus said, If any man will come after me". He did not say, "If any nation will come after me," or 'If any group will come". He said, "Except a man be born again". All of these mass movements that are antagonistic to individual rights and to individual development are not from God. Human nature is just the same as it has always been. In the old days we kept the lid on the garbage can because we knew what human nature was. The modern movements that defy human nature takes the lid off of the garbage can of human depravity. "Express yourself". "Live your own life". These are modern slogans. If humna nature unrestrained and unregenerated expresses iiself it means the destruction of civilization and the overthrow of established government throughout the world. Great danger threatens the entire world. We must either get back to God and to the appeal to the individual heart or we shall have a bloody communistic revolution in America and possibly in the whole world.

LETTER FROM DR. BOB JONES

Cleveland, Tenn.
May 7, 1936.

Dear Friends:

My work as an evangelist has taken me into every state in the Union and into twenty or thirty foreign countries. I know what is going on. I have seen hundreds of young people who went away from home to college and who came back to their parents with wrecked faith and shattered morals. I therefore, made up my mind to build a college that would stand without apology for hte old time relgion and for the absolute authority of the Bible, which would enforce the proper discipline and chaperonage, and which would at the same time have as high educational standards as any other college in the Unitde States.

The motto of the Bob Jones College, located at Cleveland, Tennessee, is, "No college shall excel us in the thoroughness of our scholastic training; and, God helping us, we endeavor to excel all other colleges in the thoroughness of our Christian training". If you wish literature, write to hte Bob Jones, College, Cleveland, Tennessee.

Yours sincerely,
BOB JONES.

Last week at the District Conference the Clanton church had one of the best reports in the district. Only one other church could report that all benevolences had been paid in full for the year. Most of the churches make this payment at the close of the year. Only four or five churches had been placed on the honor roll of the Alabama Christian Advocate in reaching the goal of new subscribers. This church was in that number. The record up to date is one that every member has a right to feel proud of. The first half of the annual conference year is closing and the record for the second half will not be disappointing with every member doing his best.

HOME COMING AT COOPERS

The Alabama towns have been invited to send representatives in the form of Queens to Birmingham to participate in The Elyton-Birmingham Pageant to be presented at Legion Field, on the evening of June 5, under the auspices of the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce, Elyton Civic Club and the Park and Recreation Board.

This historical pageant entitled "From Mud-Covered Oxcart to Gilded Airplane," was written by Oliver Patton Zeigler of Birmingham, and will depict the history of Birmingham from the founding of Elyton in 1812 to the present date. Plans and arrangements for this spectacular event are going forward rapidly.

A large number of interesting historical and beautiful settings, under the personal supervision of Kenneth W. Adams, technical director, will be shown, and the scenic and lighting effects planned will be most unusual. The drama depicting the grim realities and the boundless joys which marked the lives of this district's pioneers and builders is said to be gripping throughout.

State GOP Meeting Held In Birmingham

C. C. Conway Selected As Delegate; J. Dewey Rockett Alternate in District

Leaving Alabama's Republican national convention delegates with a free hand, Republicans of Alabama in convention Wednesday adopted a new state platform, selected state-at-large delegates to the national convention and elected T. J. Kennamer as national committeeman and Mrs. Roy Wates as national committeewoman. Both are of Birmingham.

This action was taken at th eafternoon session Wednesday after a series of speakers, headed by O. D. Street, Birmingham, retiring national committeeman and keynoter at the convention, had lashed out viciously at the Democratic administration at Washngton.

Chilton's Delegate To Cleveland

Chilton County's ten delegates to the District Convention went to Birmingham equally divided between two of their members as a possible delegate to the National Convention—W. H. Gillespie and J. Dewey Rockett. A compromise was reached whereby the delegation voted unanimously for C. C. Conway of Jemison as delegate and J. Dewey Rockett as alternate.

Selected as members of the District Committee from Chilton county were W. H. Gillespie, J. Dewey Rockett and H. A. Harris.

State-at-Large delegates, elected by acclamation, included Mr. Street, Dr. J. C. Swann, of Wedowee, J. T. Johnson, of Oneonta, and Mr. Kennamer, and F. W. Slocomb, of Geneva; W. L. Longshore, of Birmingham; W. E. Snead, Boaz, and J. A. Stafford, Mobile, alternates.

Kennamer Succeeds Street

Mr. Kennamer, the new national committeeman, is a former U. S. district marshal for North Alabama, and succeeds Mr. Street, who voluntarily retired from further active leadership of the Republican organization in Alabama, after holding the office of national committeeman for 20 years. Mr. Street, during past Republican administrations served as patronage referee in Alabama.

Mrs. Wates succeeds Mrs. Birdie Kennamer, wife of U. S. Judge Charles B. Kennamer, of Montgomery.

The state executive committee was authorized by the convention to select nominees for various state offices in the November election. The state committee, it was announced, will meet later, at the call of the chairman, Dr. Swann, to complete the nominations.

The new platform was presented byPope M. Long, Cordova, chairman of the committee on resolutions, and was adopted without a dissenting vote.

The platform, among other things, "renewed fealty to the principles of the Republican party," advocated continuance of "constitutional government," urged separate functioning of "the three coordinate branches of the national government," largest possible freedom of the individual, 'rugged individualism and rugged honesty," additional regulation of public utilities and opposed business monopolies and the establishment in America of "a bigger or mendicant class."

Floridian Is Mentioned

In addition, the convention adopted another resolution proposed by the resolutions committee urging Alabama's delegation to the national convention "to consider" J. R. Replogle, of Florida, for the vice presidential nomination.

Besides Mr. Street, speakers heard Wednesday, who directed their fire

ALABAMA POWER CO. WILL PAY DIVIDENDS JULY 1st

These dividends will aggregate approximately $585,000 and will be paid to approximately 15,000 stockholders of whom over 10,500 reside in Alabama, every one of the 67 counties of the state being represented in the list.

U. S. DRIVE PLANNED AGAINST BOOTLEGGER

Washington, May 22.—A new campagin against bootleggers and liquor tax-evaders was planned today by treasury officials.

A nation-wide drive by 4,500 officers of the internal revenue bureau was expected to be in full swing before the end of next month.

Treasury spokesmen said the addition of 500 men to the existing staff would permit not only a tightening up against law violators, but would also provide a better check on manufacturers and dealers.

ANNUAL SINGING HELD AT PROVIDENCE LAST SUNDAY

Another year has passed, and another good singing was held at Providence, in Beat 16, last Sunday, the fourth Sunday in May. The occasion was the thirty-seventh annual session of the May singing, which was organized at old Salem on the River in May, 1900. The singing has been held at Providence every year since Salem was disbanded in 1921.

Services were called to order at 10 o'clock by the chairman, R. Robinson, and prayer was offered by Rev. W. W. Robinson. The chairman appointed as committee for the day Messrs. R. M. Robinson, Dewey Hughes and J. M. Williams.

Directors before noon were: J. W. Cleckler, J. M. Williams, Dewey Hughes, C. H. Robinson, Mr. Kilpatrick of Prattville, G. C. Powell, M. L. Mims, all two songs each; those singing one song each were: Mrs. Irene Mims, Marie Robinson, Lonza Bates, Evelyn Robinson, Alice Mae Robinson, Delene Bates, and Margerene Cleckler. An intermission was given one hour for dinner.

Afternoon directors were: R. M. Robinson, T. E. Wyatt, Jim Parrish, Lee J. Grant, J. R. Robinson, Pete Wilson, Orvid Hughes, O. L. Devaughn, A. H. Glasscock, Emmett Wilson, Jesse Jones, John Daniel of Boaz, Chester Wyatt, E. L. Glasscock, E. L. Powell, M. Lockhart. Two quartets were sung by the Prattville Quartet, and two were arranged by Jesse C. Jones. The closing song was sung by J. Z. Mims, and the benediction was invoked by Rev. E. A. Norris.

Thus came to a close one of the most successful sessions of the annual May singing. Former residents of the community met again in reunion, old acquaintances were renewed, and new acquaintances were made. All in all, the day was well spent, there being but little if any misconduct either in the house or on the premises. All of which has the thanks and appreciation from the members of Providence church. All are looking forward to the 38th session to be held the fourth Sunday in May, 1937.—R. Robinson, Chairman; J. W. Cleckler, secretary.

Meeting Of Veterans Here Monday Night

The Chilton County Post No. 6 of the American Legion will have its regular monthly meeting at the court house on June 1, 1936, at 7:30 p.m. At this meeting there will b capabie speakers to discuss the cashing of bonds issued in lieu of the Adjusted Service Certificate, generally known as the soldiers' bonus, and proper instructions will be given as to the method of having these bonds cashed.

We are to have an out of town speaker on this occasion and trust that every member of the local post will be present, and any other ex-service man, regardless of whether or not he is a member of the post.—Percy M. Pitts, Post Commander; Vaughn C. McKee, Post Adjutant.

PICNIC AT MINERAL SPRINGS

On last Thursday a picnic was held by the Chilton County officers and some of their friends at Mineral Springs. The entire program and menu were in charge of Messrs. Manuel Littlefield and M. D. Foshee, with Judge J. Lee Smith serving as toastmaster.

After a social hour was spent, with the guests mingling under the trees on the grassy hillside, a most delicious barbecued chicken dinner was served to 80 guests.

A vote of thanks for a delightful time was given by the guests to Mr. Littlefield and Mr. Foshee. It was also voted to repeat this picnic at an early date.

TWO CASES ON CITY DOCKET

Two cases were on the city docket last Monday morning. These, with their disposition, were as follows:

One for abusive, indecent and obscene language. Dismissed.

One for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated. Continued to a later term of court.

KIWANIANS HAVE TREAT FOR TONIGHT

Members Will Hear A Talk Of The Future About Telephone System

Members of the Clanton Kiwanis Club who fail to attend the meeting tonight at seven-thirty will regret it as there is a real treat in store for the club, when two well known men will be guests of the club and give some information worth listening to.

Dr. V. J. Gragg has charge of the program and has secured as speakers C. J. Yates, division commercial engineer of the Southern Bell Telephone Co., and T. E. Harris, district superintendent of the Company.

Mr. Yates will bring a word picture to the club tonight that can only be equalled by some of H. G. Wells stories, and yet the possibilities of the picture Mr. Yates will give are probably now in the making.

All members should certainly cancel any o her engagement they might have tonight and make their attendance at the club to hear this talk which has made such a hit over Alabama with civic clubs.

SOME INTERESTING HIDDEN FACTS REVEALED ABOUT DEMOCRATS' PLOW-UP COTTON PROGRAM

[AN EDITORIAL]

Through some recent revelations made by The Washington Herald there have come to light certain facts about the plow-up plans of the Democrats which were carried out in the late Agricultural Adjustment Act, before it was relegated to the trash pile by the great Supreme Court of the United States. These facts, which were carefully guarded and suppressed by that Democratic bureau and Roosevelt machine—the Department of Agriculture were ascertained during September, 1935, by Mr. Wallace's department, but was withheld from the Senate until a resolution was introduced in that body on January 16, 1936, by Senator Gore of Oklahoma, demanding a copy of Mr. Wallace's report. This report was then returned to Mr. Wallace's bureau and "sunk."

This report, compiled by government experts, but concealed even from the members of Congress who demanded that they see it, showed numerous disastrous effects coming to the South from the ill-advised program—a policy receiving the full endorsement of President Roosevelt. A few of the bad effects follow:

1—Because of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration one million fewer persons were employed in the cotton fields and markets of the South in 1934 than in even the worst depression years.

2—Because of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration "the hiring of wage labor was curtailed, and labor conditions in the South further complicated."

Take Markets Away

3—The "plow-under" policy of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration enabled foreign competitors to take world markets away from this country. The Agricultural Adjustment Administration failed to reduce world cotton supplies. While America was reducing its cotton acreage 22 per cent for the 1934-35 season, "supplies of foreign cotton during the same period increased 30 per cent."

4—Reduction of acreage through the "plow-under" policy released workers who were drafted into industry at lower wages—producing goods to sell at lower prices—and destroying the New Deal's own ends.

5—"Under conditions of restricted cotton production, resulting in a decreased use of labor and in higher cotton prices, the fact that wage labor does not share directly in the higher priced product results in relatively lower labor costs than when share-cropper and share-tenant are used".

Reports Destroyed

The hidden report of the cotton situation under the Agricultural Adjustment Administration was drawn up by the Bureau of Agriculture Economics of the Department of Agriculture in September, 1935.

The Herald learned that all available copies of the original report were "called in" and many were destroyed. Not even the men who drew up the original report possessed a copy.

Unable to obtain a copy of the cotton report, Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, on January 16 introduced a resolution demanding that he be given a copy of the report. On January 30 the resolution was passed. Senator Gore was allowed to read the report, and then it was returned to Wallace's office.

Out of page six of the original report, these paragraphs were erased:

Problems Caused

"A permanent drastic restriction in domestic cotton acreage would cause serious problems of finding alternative opportunities for the labor and production resources normally used in cotton production. Rough approximations indicate that the 27 million acres of cotton harvested in the United States in 1934 utilized the services of almost one million fewer man equivalent than were used during the five - year period of 1928-1932, when an average of 40,550,000 acres in cotton were harvested annually.

"The labor situation in the South was further complicated by the return to farms of people because of unemployment in industrial and other non-farm occupations. It is estimated that there were approximately 1,560,000 more people on farms in the South Atlantic and South Central states in January, 1935, than in January, 1929.

"A considerable proportion of surplus labor on cotton farms was utilized to good advantage in the production of farm food and feed, but the amount of time so spent was probably small as compared with the labor that would have been used on the acreage usually planted to cotton. The hiring of wage labor, particularly temporarily seasonal labor used in hoeing and picking, was curtailed".

HARMONIOUS G. O. P. NOMINATION FOR GOV. LANDON FORECAST

Washington, May 25.—Inspired with the steadily increasing belief that the standard-bearer they will place in nomination will be destined to take his place in history in the long line of Presidents of the United States, the chosen representatives of the Republican Party are almost completely ready for the opening of the great nominating convention, to be held at Cleveland just two weeks hence.

The convention will be called to order Tuesday, June 9th. So fair are the prospects for a harmonious gathering in the flag-decked hall where Calvin Coolidge was nominated 12 years ago, that it is possible that by midnight of Thursday, June 11, a platform of party principles, appealing to the patriotism of the American people shall have been adopted, and a candidate for President nominated.

Of the 1,001 delegates who will comprise the convention, all but 53, representing two states, Indiana and Texas, already have been chosen.

Unfettered Group

Yet so free of all domination by cliques and groups of state leaders will be the Cleveland convention of 1936 that it probably will take its place in history as the least fettered of all such meetings for the selection of a Presidential candidate.

No candidate will have a majority of delegates instructed for him. In all probability no candidate will have a majority of votes cast for him on the first ballot.

But Alf M. Landon, Governor of Kansas, will have such a commanding lead in the convention as to make his nomination, from the beginning all but a certainty. The indications are that this nomination will be made on the third ballot ,although there is a possibility that it may come on the second.

Governor Landon's outstandng position before the convention will rest only partly upon delegates pledged to him, instructed for him, or known to be favorable to his nomination. It will rest more largely upon one of the most remarkable of physicological factors in the whole history of American politics, an outpouring of sentiment for him by the main men and women of the country everywhere virtually without direction, and drawing its inspiration directly from the hearts of the people.

"No Dark Horse"

No indication can be perceived anywhere on the political horizon of a deadlocked convention and of a "dark horse" candidate. There will be no "smoke-filled room" in any Cleveland Hotel, with the nomination made by a group of leaders ou side the convention hall.

Evan Parrish Moved Into Larger Quarter

Increased volume of business neccessitating more building space, Mr. Evan Parrish the first of this week moved his place of business into the building where the post office used to be. Mr. Parrish will use his old building for a warehouse.

Mr. Parrish operates a three-fold business namely—Chilton County Exchange, Southern Seed & Plant Co., and a cream station for Southern Dairies. Assisting Mr. Parrish in the business are: Messrs. S. A. Jones, Marvin Lowery, Osmond Grant. Mr. Furman Gore is the bookkeeper. On Saturdays Mr. Parrish has a flock of fellows helping out.

Five years ago Mr. Parrish began this business on a very small scale. Since that time he has outgrown three locations, and is still going. Where he will stop only time can tell.

The business which this enterprising young man runs is of untold value to the farmers of Chilton county. Besides keeping for them the seeds they need to plant at various seasons, Mr. Parrish furnishes a kind of bureau of information about gardening and farming, control of insects, and the like. And the marketing outlet is another fine phase of the business. Each year thousands of dollars are paid out to the citizens of the county for the things they raise on their farms—principally cream. Poultry cars are often stopped off here, which permits marketing of chickens and other fowls, which permits turning into cash lots of surplus produce on the farms of the vicinity.

The people of Chilton County appreciate the kind of business Mr. Parrish is furnishing for them; and they express such appreciation by giving him a good business. Turn to another space in this paper and read the removal announcement of this progressive firm.

Advocate Repeal Of Dry Law-Absentees

Montgomery Grand Jury Says Course Is Only Hope For Alabama

Montgomery, Ala., May 23.—Repeal of the prohibition laws of Alabama was recommended Friday, May 22, by the Montgomery Couny Grand Jury in its report to Judge Eugene W. Carter. The only solution to the liquor question, said the report, is the repeal of the law. If the Legislature would wipe the liquor laws off the statute books and make whiskey bear its just burden of taxation, there would be no reason to have a sales tax, or any other extra tax on useful and necessary commodities, the Grand Jury maintained.

Outright repeal of the absensee ballot law was also advocated by the Grand Jury. It recommended to Gov. Graves that he include the question of repeal of this law in his call in the event another special session of the Legislature is held. The Grand Jury urged and demanded that the Legislature take some steps looking to the repeal of this law at the first opportunity.

Concerning the repeal of the absentee ballot law, the report said:

"The Grand Jury wishes to recommend in this report to our honorable Governor that he place in his program, should the Legislature again be convened, the repeal of the absentee ballot law. The Grand Jury believes it is the greatest menace that confronts the people of this State, and particularly of Montgomery county. The few voters who would be disfranchised by being out of the State on election day would be of small weight in comparison with the many fraudulent votes that are secured by means of the absentee ballot.. The Grand Jury is urgent in calling this matter to the attention of our present members of the Legislature."

DRY LAW ENFROCEMENT ORDER IS REVISED BY GOV. GRAVES; U. S. LIQUOR DRIVE IS OPENED

A high administration source said Friday that Gov. Bibb Graves was 'revising" a letter to Alabama sheriffs calling for stricter enforcement of prohibition and gambling laws and promising state assistance if needed.

There still was conjecture among gubrenatorial advisors as to whether the letter would be mailed or abandoned, as was reported in some circles following the decision to revise a letter drafted Thursday.

Governor Graves would not comment on the letter or its contents, and there was no information forthcoming on whether the revised draft would eliminate parts or add to the original.

That the governor was drafting a "law enforcement" letter became common talk around the capitol late Thursday as Washington dispatches reported the Bureau of Internal Revenue would add scores of agents for a campaign within legally "dry" states.

Alabama's stringent prohibition laws prohibit alcoholic beverages of more than one-half of one per cent of alcoholic content. This, in effect, outlaws all except near-beer.

Senate Urged Action

The Senate passed a resolution during the 1936 extra session demanding that the governor call upon attorney General A. A. Carmichoal to bring impeachment proceedings against all sheriffs permitting "open and flagrant violation of prohibition laws." The resolution officially never was acknowledged by the governor or attorney general.

Passage of the resolution, sponsored by Senators J. Miller Bonner and Isham J. Dorsey, prohibition and repealist leaders, respectively, followed testimony before committees by several sheriffs that prohibition laws were being violated in their counties, but they are helpless because of apathy on the part of both grand and trial juries.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Human nature unrestrained always goes down grade. It never stays on a level and without a divine push it never goes uphill. Any sin any man ever committed every man unregenerated and unrestrained under certain circumstances could commit. A man without God never knows where he wil wind up. "Why did I do that?" I have heard hundreds of people in trouble inquire. I have seen them behind prison bars with life dripping from the tips of their fingers wring their hands as they cried, "Why did I do it?" It is easy to explain why if you know the Word of God. "Man was born in sin and conceived in iniquity". All history disproves evolution. The trend of human nature is downward.

The Apostle Paul was a man of strong convictions. The Lord does not use any other kind of man. Before Paul was converted he rejoiced in the death of Christians. After he met Jesus Christ on the Damascus road he became willing to die for his Lord. One time a man sarcastically remarked, "Oh, you think you will make me a Christian, do you?" Paul said something like this, "I wish you were as I am except I would not put these chains on you". Before Paul met Jesus he put chains on men who did not agree with him and helped put them to death. After he met Jesus he had the same conviction, determintion, and driving power, but he had a love he had never known before. "If thine enemy hunger, feed him". That is said to Christians. It is useless to write such words to unsaved men. Do good to those that despitefully use you, has no meaning to a man who does not know the Lord. While we were enemies to God, Jesus Christ died for us. It takes the Christ spirit in the human heart to make men be willing to die for their enemies or to be good to those that despitefully use them.

This is being dictated after returning from North and South Carolina where the writer has been on a lecture tour. It is spring time in the mountains. The forests are in bloom. The rocks of the mountain sides are covered with exquisitely colored flowers. All nature is alive. In spite of the result of sin on creation, it is still a beautiful world. We must remember if there was no springtime the beauty of nature would not last. What springtime is to nature, revivals are to the church. One had just as well argue that spring is not necessary as to argue that we do not need revivals. That reminds us. There is a political revival on in this nation now. Before long the shouting will be on. Governors, senators, Judges, bankers, educators and men from all walks of life will gather in political conventions. They will shout for hours. They will march around the auditorium with banners and streamers. They will act like maniacs. Yet these wise modern leaders say they do not believe in any excitement in religion. They tell you they do not believe in "hell-scared" Christians and they do not want any emotionalism in the church. Well, politicians are scared. They are afraid they are going to lose jobs and lose political prestige. Men everywhere should be afraid of sin and the consequence of evil doing. It is better to be "hell-scared" in time than to be "hell"-scorched" in eternity.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

TIME EXTENDED FOR FILING WORKSHEETS

Auburn, Ala.—The State Conservation Committee has extended to May 30th the time for Alabama farmers to fill out work sheets under the new $470,000,000 national farm program.

"There absolutely will be no extension of this time beyond that date," said members of the committee when extending the time to give all growers an opportunity to fill out work sheets.

All growers are being urged to file work sheets as this in no way obligates them to cooperate or to apply for grants this fall. On the other hand, unless they do fill out work sheets before May 30th there is no way they may obtain a grant this fall even if they do carry out all other provisions of the program.

DERRIS CONTROLS CHEWING INSECTS

Auburn, Ala.—Most garden insects, including bean and potato beetles, and cabbage worms can be controlled by using a mixture of one pound derris and seven pounds of sulphur, advises Prof. J. M. Robinson, head of the Zoology-entemology department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

This mixture can be used without injury to the plants and without danger of poisoning the persons eating the vegetables, he says.

In addition to controlling the chewing insects, the mixture also repels the sucking insects and controls the red spider.

EMERGENCY CROP LOANS WILL CLOSE ON MAY 31

Auburn, Ala.—May 31 has been set as the final date for Alabama farmers to make applications for emergency crop loans this year, advises the Farm Credit Administration. Farmers interested in such loans may obtain detailed information from their county agents.

Loans from emergency crop loan funds are being made only to farmers who cannot obtain credit from other sources.

RURAL WOMEN PREPARING FOR BIG CANNING SEASON

Auburn, Ala.—As another canning season approaches, Alabama farm women are making plans for the most intensive canning programs ever carried out in the state. Their goal is to insure a properly-balanced diet throughout the year for every farm family.

Under the leadership of county home demonstration agents and in cooperation with other agencies, farm women of the state last year canned and preserved a total of 5,953,793 quarts of fruits, vegetables, and meats, and cured 1,235,184 pounds of meat valued at $2,114,303.42.

Home demonstration agents of the State are at present stressing the importance of a canning budget which includes the exact amounts and varieties of food to be canned, dried brined, or stored to meet the nutritional needs of the family.

FARMERS ADVISED NOT MOW KUDZU TOO YOUNG

Auburn, Ala.—Kudzu should be well established before beginning to mow, advises J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist.

It should be allowed to grow at least two full seasons before mowing is started and if the soil is very poor, if may be necessary to wait three seasons before beginning mowing.

Experiments by the Alabama Experiment Station indicate that it is best to cut kudzu only twice each year —probably in June and October.

YOUNG MAN AWARDED $5.00 SAT.

Mr. Howard Munday, of Clanton Lunch Room, was awarded five dollars last Saturday at 10 o'clock by the co-operating merchants of Clanton. The $25 award was not claimed, so will be carried over to next Saturday morning and added to the regular award for that day.

"SWAT THE ROOSTERS" ADVISES POULTRYMEN

Auburn, Ala.—When the hatching season is over, the poultry flock is changed from a breeding flock to a laying flock, and only resh, infertile eggs are advised by the trade, says John E. Ivey, extension poultryman in advising farmers to "pen or swat the roosters."

MILK INCREASES WHEN COWS ARE FED GRAIN

Auburn, Ala.—Even when on good pastures, cows should produce two gallons of milk daily should be fed grain, advises F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist, who states that one pound of grain to each 3½ pounds of milk will help kkeep up more profitable production.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., May 27.—More than 500 degrees were delivered to graduates at the University of Alabama at the 105th annual commencement exercises this week. The presentation of the diplomas concluded a three-day program of activities.

Dr. W. G. Henry, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Anniston, inaugurated the exercises with the delivery of the Baccalaureate address in Denny Stadium on Sunday. Monday's activities included the semi-annual meeting of the Board of Trustees, the annual luncheons of two honorary fraternities, Phi Beta Kappa and Beta Gamma Sigma, and the Alumni-Senior Banquet, at which the Hon. David E. Lilienthal, director of the Tennessee Valley Authority, delivered an address.

Tuesday's events began with the annual Senior Women's Luncheon, in honor of the mothers of the graduating senior women. The dedication of the new United States Bureau of Mines Building on the north side of the University campus, and President Denny's reception for alumni graduates, and friends of the University, occurred in the afternoon. The delivery of the diplomas took place after an academic procession of seniors and faculty to Denny Stadium.

Ninety-three seniors who have completed the advanced course in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps were awarded second-lieutenants commissions in the Officers' Reserve Corps at the graduating exercises Tuesday. The commissions were presented by Major E. H. Underwood, professor of military science to tactics.

Reservations for the summer school are 17 per cent higher than at this time last year, according to Dr. John McLure, director. Approximately 2,300 students were enrolled last year.

Five new members were initiated into Phi Beta Kappa, honorary fraternity in the liberal arts, at the annual luncheon Tuesday. They are Judge Thomas W. Coleman, Anniston, class of '85, Assistant Professorr Elixabeth Coleman, class of '12, alumni members; James Niforopulos, Johnstown, N. Y.; Jack Reingold, Bridgeton, Conn.; and James Williams, Birmingham, student members.

HISTORICAL PAGEANT TO BE PRESENTED AT B'HAM JUNE 5

The Alabama towns have been invited to send representatives in the form of Queens to Birmingham to participate in The Elyton-Birmingham Pageant to be presented at Legion Field, on the evening of June 5, under the auspices of the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce, Elyton Civic Club and the Park and Recreation Board.

This historical pageant entitled "From Mud-Covered Oxcart to Gilded Airplane," was written by Oliver Patton Zeigler of Birmingham, and will depict the history of Birmingham from the founding of Elyton in 1812 to the present date. Plans and arrangements for this spectacular event are going forward rapidly.

A large number of interesting historical and beautiful settings, under the personal supervision of Kenneth W. Adams, technical director, will be shown, and the scenic and lighting effects planned will be most unusual. The drama depicting the grim realities and the boundless joys which marked the lives of this district's pioneers and builders is said to be gripping throughout.

LOCAL MEN TO VISIT CUBA

Three Chilton county men will visit Cuba in the near future, according to information given us by M. A. "Buck" Gore. These are Mr. Gore; Billy Smith, publisher of The Chilton County News; and Raymond Duffey, rural letter carrier at Mt. Creek. They will go with the group of Alabama newspapermen on the trip sponsored by the Alabama Press Association.

In an interview with Mr. Gore, he said:

"I notice on the descriptive circular regarding the trip, that the fun will start on the boat, going down. Something is mentioned about a dance orchestra on the boat, followed by a treasure hunt the first night out. Now I can't dance, but you can bet your boots I'll be in on that treasure hunt. I wonder what one would hunt and find on a boat, any way. Something else is said about enjoying the night life of Cuba. I have heard the young sprouts say lots about night life, and for once I intend to find out what they mean by that. I've stayed pretty close to home all my life, so for this short period I intend to let go and try to have a good time. In fact, that's what I'm going for—a vacation and a good time."

Billy Smith is expected to be busy with the other news men, but we imagine he will manage to find time to have a good time, too. And as for Mr. Duffey, he will have a good time no matter what happens. He's that kind—he takes life as it comes, and gets more pure joy out of living than any person we know.

ALEX "RED" HAYES AT HOME

Alex Hayes, better known as "Red", is at home again, following the close of the school year at University of Alabama. Of course "Red" studies baseball most of the time, and is working out with a group of local boys for the coming season. He has not yet settled on just what club he will play with this season. "Red" is a brother of Jack Hayes, of the Chicago White Sox, and of Dick Hayes, local Chevrolet dealer.

ICE CREAM SUPPER

There will be an ice cream supper at the home of Mr. P. R. Robinson of Union Grove community on next Saturday night, May 30th. The proceeds will go on the piano fund for Mt. Pleasant church.

There will be plenty of ice cream and other good things. Everybody is invited to come.

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons

DO you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination, backache, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, leg pains, swellings and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unstrung and don't know what is wrong?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. You can get the genuine, time-tested Doan's at any drug store.

Bankruptcy Act Is Ruled Out By Court

Municipal Finance Law Is Thrown Out By 5 to 4 Action

Washington, May 25.—In a sharply divided 5 to 4 decison that killed another law enacted under the New Deal, the Supreme Court Monday declared unconstitutional the 1934 municipal bankruptcy act.

On the ground that it violated states' rights, the majority swept the statute, intended to help cities, counties, and other subdivisions reduce their indebtedness through federal bankruptcy courts, the same fate met by NRA, AAA and the Guffey coal control act.

A dissenting opinion, written by Justice Cardozo, and subscribed to by Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Brandeis and Stone, sharply chalenged the conclusion of the majority and spoke of the care "with which the governmental powers of the state and its subdivisions are maintained inviolate" under the legislation.

Justice McReynolds, joined by Justices Van Devanter, Sutherland, Butler and Roberts, wrote the majority opinion, reaching the conclusion that:

"If obligations of states or their political subdivisions may be subjected to the interference here attempted, they are no longer free to manage their own affairs."

The court also ordered its decison aganst the Guffey coal control act into immediate effect, instead of waiting the customary 25 days.

It acted on a petition filed by council of the Tway Coal Company.

The government was given until Wednesday to answer a similar commotion by the Carter Coal Company, of Virginia and West Virginia, which also asked that costs of the litigation be assessed against the government.

ALABAMA MILLS TRIMS PLANTERSVILLE 3 TO 2

The Alabama Mills took Plantersville in tow last Saturday afternoon three to two, after a hard fought battle. For six frames the Mills team led Plantersville one to nothing. Plantersvile tied the count in their haif of the sixth, and forged ahead in the seventh when Mckay doubled, went to third on an infeld out, and scored on a wild pitch.

In the Mills half of the seventh, Ashcraft shot a liner to right which Cunningham let get away from him and went for a triple. Culver singled, went to second on a psased ball, stole third, and was safe at the plate on a close play on Armstrong's grounder, winning the game.

The Mills team touched Hayes for 10 hits, while Burnett and Williams held the plantersville team to four scattered bingles. The Millers bobbled three times, and Plantersville once. W. Armstrong led the Millers at bat with a perfect day, three for three, and C. McKay led Plantersville with a double, the other three hits being singles.

Thorsby Institute News

A large crowd attended both the Baccalaureate and graduating exercises. Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of the Thorsby Baptist church, preached the Baccalaureate sermon. The choir sang "The Heavens Resound," under the direction of Miss Foss. The Senior class sang their class hymn and Miss Foss accompanied by Thelma White, a music pupil of Miss Foss, sang "O Divine Redeemer."

Rev. J. M. Graham, D. D., pastor of Presbyterian church, Prattville, Ala., delivered the address to the graduating class on Monday morning. The topic of his address was "A Call to Youth" and was very inspiring. Before Dr. Graham's message two seniors making the highest scholastic record read their essays at the Commencement Exercise. Mary Louise Reinhardt read her essay, which was entitled "How Nursery Schools Train Children", and Sarah Green read "The Constructive James Madison". There were also two special musical numbers. The Glee Club sang "Calm as the Night' and a girl's sextette sang "To a Wild Rose".

Following Dr. Graham's address the diplomas were presented to twenty-one seniors. The following gifts have been contributed to the school by the senior class:

An Alabama flag, ten dollars for reference books for library, scholarship to a working student for thirteen dollars. (This was given to Ira Martin). Also forty-nine dollars was given to the Institute, to be used as seems best. Miss Marion Butler, of Rockville, Conn., made possible an undergraduate scholarship of thirteen dollars. This went to Francis Conway. She also won one dollar and twenty-five cents for high rank in general mathematics. J. R. Lowery, a junior, won the same amount for excellent work in Geometry. Margaret Ward won two dollars and fifty cents for standing the highest in history. The history and mathematics prizes were given by Mr. Sam Pate of Thorsby.

The Piedmont College Scholarship went to Mary Louise Reinhardt and Sarah Green, because of their high standing. Lewis Wilson is an alternate for this scholarship. The money for perfect attendance awards was given by Mr. Harper, Mr. Willis, Mr. Ed Howard and Mr. Foss of Thorsby, also by Mr. Taylor of the Clanton Cash Store.

A good crowd stayed for the picnic dinner which followed the graduation exercises. Ice cream and cold drinks were sold by the Junior class—the money made from these sales will go toward their class fund for next year. Following the dinner a club baseball game was played on the Institute grounds. The Philomathics won.

At the annual alumni meeting on Monday, the following officers were elected: Mrs. Hubert Reinhardt, president; Miss Kathryn Fass, vice president; Mr. Milton Higgins, treasurer; Phares Raybon, secretary.

On Friday night, May 21, the senior class presented a play entitled "The Albany Depot" by William Dean Howells. The class day exercises were very attractively presented, with Mysterioso, (Mary Louise Reinhardt) prophesying about different ones as she called them to hear her foretell their future. The class history was read by Lois Rister, the class prophecy was given by Gladys Martin, the class will was given by Mary Louise Reinhardt, and the poem by Sarah Green.

On Saturday afternoon one of the best recitals ever given at Thorsby Institute, was given by Miss Foss's pupils. It was a varied program of vocal and instrumental music, and the pupils showed marked improvement and did very well. The last number was a two piano one by Miss Foss and Mae Pearl Sorrell.

Saturday night the Alumni entertained the Seniors at a very pleasant party at the dining hall. The program was patterned after Major Bowes' radio hour. Ragnor Ekblad took the part of Major Bowes, and called in various ones to sing, give a reading, etc. After the program delicious ice cream and cake was served. The class colorc of orchid and green predominated in the decorations and the refreshments.

THE LAST SUPPER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:7-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—This do in remembrance of me.—Luke 22:19.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Supper Jesus Gave His Friends.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Lord's Supper.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What the Lord's Supper Means to Me.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What the Lord's Supper Meant to Jesus.

The last meal that Jesus ate with his disciples was the Passover, the memorial of the national deliverance which pointed to the supreme deliverance to be effected by Christ on the cross of Calvary. In connection with this Passover, the feast of the new covenant was instituted. This feast also has a double import. It looks backward to the great deliverance wrought through Christ's atoning death, and forward to the even greater deliverance which He shall accomplish at his second coming (I Cor. 11:26).

I. The Last Passover (vv. 7-18).

1. The Passover prepared (vv. 7-13).

a. As the time had arrived for the killing of the Passover, Jesus directed Peter and John to make ready for it (v. 8).

b. The disciples inquired (v. 9) where they should prepare the Passover. Doubtless, they were eager to be of service to their Master and Lord.

c. Jesus gave strange directions (vv. 10-12), that they should go into the city, where they would find a man bearing a pitcher of water. The custom was for women to carry the water. This unusual occurrence would make it the easier for them to recognize the man of whom they would ask, "Where is the guest chamber where I shall eat the Passover with my disciples?"

d. The disciples gave unquestioning obedience (v. 13), not permitting the unusual instructions to raise the question of sanity or reasonableness. Jesus, because he was omniscient, knew just how the matter would turn out, and the disciples found it even so.

2. The Passover eaten (vv. 14-18).

a. The historic group around that table (v. 14) was composed of Jesus and the Twelve, the apostles.

b. Jesus' words to the disciples (vv. 15-18).

(1) "I have desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer" (v. 15). He desired to show them the meaning of the passion through which he was to go. He also craved their human sympathy as he passed through this terrible ordeal.

(2) "I will not any more eat thereof until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God" (v. 16). His death was the antitypical fulfillment of the Passover meal. He declared that this would be the last time that they could share together this sacred ordinance before the completion of his mediatorial work.

(3) "Take this cup and divide it among ourselves" (vv. 17, 18). By the token of the cup the disciples were partaking of the shed blood. This cup should be distinguished from the cup of the feast of the new covenant.

II. The Feast of the New Covenant (vv. 19, 20).

This feast took place at the close of the pascal supper.

1. The bread a symbol of Christ's body (v. 19). As bread nourishes and strengthens our bodies, so Christ is food to our spiritual nature. Unless the body receives nourishment, it decays. Unless our souls feed upon Christ, we shall perish. Christ's giving the physical bread to his disciples signified the giving of himself to them.

2. The cup a symbol of Christ's blood (v. 20). He said, "This cup is the new testament in my blood which was shed for you," indicating that each one must personally accept the atonement made by the shedding of his blood.

III. The Treachery of Judas (vv. 21-23).

1. The time of its manifestation (v. 21). It was while they were eating the last Passover that Jesus made announcement of the betrayal. Perhaps Jesus was in this manner offering Judas an opportunity at this last moment to repent.

2. The betrayal was by the determinate counsel of God (v. 22, cf. Acts 2:23). Nothing takes place by chance. Even the sinful acts of wicked men come within the permissive providence of God. This does not, however, lessen the guilt of sinners, for Jesus said, "Woe unto the man by whom he is betrayed."

3. The sorrowful question (v. 23). That the disciples were not suspicious of one another is evident from the personal nature of the question they asked, "Lord, is it I?" (Matt. 26:22). Well may each believer ask if he is in any way betraying his Savior and Lord.

True Happiness

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., May 27.—Cut the gasoline tax and allow the motorist to have more money with which to keep breaks in proper condition is the remedy proposed by M. C. Hines, of Birmingham, for reducing the number of automobile accidents.

Invoke hard labor sentences upon drunken drivers, is the remedy proposed by Walter K. McAdory, of the Highway Patrol.

One Capitol corrider comments was to the effect that a cut in the cost of gasoline might lead to increased drunkenness, and greater road hazards on the theory that lowered cost of motor fuel would permit increased purchases of alcohol beverages.

RESEARCH FULFILLS COW'S MILK NEEDS

Experimental Farm Lets Dairy Herd Determine What's Needed for Production.

Quite frequently the housewife is heard to say, "This milk is mostly water." Strange to say, the cow that gave the milk will agree with her. As a matter of fact, water is the principal ingredient in milk. As W. R Arends, well-known dairy authority points out, "The cow needs about 5 times as much water every day as she produces milk. That means a 4 gallon cow should drink about 20 gallons of water daily. Of course, in the winter a cow's water requirements may be a trifle less."

Other important materials in milk are the milk sugars, butterfat, minerals and proteins. According to Arends, the place where dairymen can give their cows the most help in making milk is in a true balance of proteins.

"Some dairymen," says Arends, "feel that protein is protein and that by simply mixing a lot of some protein carrier with grain, the cow gets all she needs in milk making. This is far from the truth, for the proteins in milk are complicated. It takes a combination of different protein feeds to supply all of the elements needed for best milk making.

"Linseed oil meal, cottonseed meal gluten feed, soybean meal and alfalfa meal are all excellent sources of protein, but anyone of them alone doesn't give a cow all the proteins needed to milk at her best. It takes a carefully blended combination of such feeds to give the cow what she needs in milk making proteins. Certain high protein concentrates, such as cottonseed meal, are very forcing, and when fed to excess, may cause unlimited cow troubles."

Arends says that a good part of the research work at the Purina Research Farm has been given over to finding out just how much of one and how little of another ingredient is needed to do the best job of making milk at the lowest cost to the dairyman. "Taking nothing for granted and letting the cows themselves determine what's best for milk at the lowest cost, the Purina Research Farm has been able to develop dairy concentrates that are far more profitable for dairymen than those of a few years back. Today a cow can get exactly what she need without any waste of feed and the dairyman can make more money giving her that kind of feed."

CITY WILL DIG LARGE WELL

Mayor C. Fenn Jones announces that plans are under way by the city to dig another large well at the water works plant in the north edge of the city. The new well will be eight feet in diameter, and will be the fourth well in the city's water system. The three old wells are about four feet in diameter and around fifty feet deep; the new one will be that deep or deeper, Mayor Jones says.

The city officials are casting around to find someone who is equipped to dig a well of the above dimensions. The mayor or councilmen would like to get in touch with parties so equipped.

The color scheme of blue and gold was carried out throughout the home, which was made lovely with yellow snapdragons and blue cornflowers tied with blue and gold ribbons. Yellow candles burned in the dining room where salad, ices and other tempting viands were served by Misses Mary Heard, Myra and Priscilla Johnson and Mrs. Otto Jones. In the living room a doll dressed in white cap and gown receiving her diploma attracted much admiration.

Standing with the hostess and Mrs. Horton Walker in the receiving line were Miss Gerald, gowned in a lovely blue Moire taffeta. Miss Jones in a blue gown of mussoline de soire. Mrs. Gowan was in yellow chiffon. About 35 guests were present. They registered in beautiful graduation memory books, favors for the honorees. Miss Elizabeth Hogan presided here.

Crystal gazing and fortune telling formed part of the amusement. Favors of tiny graduates and diplomas containing mock wishes were awarded the seniors by the Rev. Father Foley and the Rev. PUBLIC INVITED TO ACCOMPANY THE PRESS

The Alabama Press Association has extended an invitation to the public generally to accompany them on their trip to Havana, Cuba. The response to the invitation has been very gratifying and teachers and lawyers and merchants and farmers are taking advantage of the splendid trip at the exteremely low price which the editors have obtained—$73.70. This sum covers all of the necessary expenses from the time the train leaves Montgomery on the morning of June 14th until the party reaches that city on the following Saturday afternoon. This includes all meals, hotel bill, all transportation and two extensive sightseeing trips in Havana. It also includes the many courtesies that will be extended the party while in Havana.

Reservations are coming in now, and it is a case of first come, first served so far as the desirable cabins aboard ship are concerned, as Convention Secretary Hall is starting in the center of the boat on the promenade deck and working toward the stem and stern of the boat. Seasoned travelers know that the center of the boat is where the least motion is and they want to get in on these choice places.

If anyone in this section is considering a trip this summer, no cheaper nor more interesting trip can be found than this, and the editor of this paper or President F. W. Stanley at Greenville or Convention Secretary, E. C. Hall at Alexander City will be glad to give them all necessary information and take their reservation. Anyone who wants to is invited to go.

If members of the party desire to stay longer in Cuba they may do so, as the tickets will be good on later boats at no increase in price, and this will also be true of those who may want to stop over in Florida and catch a later train. Arrangements have been made whereby it will be possible, also, to come home by way of Miami and the Florida east coast. This last will involve an additional outlay of approximately $15.00, however.

The party will leave Montgomery on Sunday morning, June 14th, at seven o'clock on a special train and will reach Tampa that afternoon and go directly aboard the ship. Havana will be reached at three o'clock Monday afternoon.

The officers of the Association will have offices at The Whitley Hotel in Montgomery, Saturday, for any last minute details, and those of the party reaching the city Saturday will gather here.

BARBECUE AT BILLINGSLEY

REV. E. H. LITTLEJOHN TO PREACH AT LIBERTY HILL

The Union-Banner has been asked to announce that Rev. E. H. Littlejohn, of Shoults, will preach at Liberty Hill church next Sunday at 11:00 o'clock. Everybody is invited to hear Rev. Littlejohn.

TIME TO FIGHT TYPHOID

With the beginning of warm weather it is again time to think of typhoid fever, a disease responsible for 15 cases of serious illness with three deaths in Chilton county last year. Although these numbers seem rather small, they are much too large when we consider that they result from a disease about which we know so much. We know that it is caused by a germ called the typhoid bacillus; that it is spread through the body wastes from a case or carrier of the disease; and that the disease can be prevented through sanitation and vaccination.

During 1935 members of the health unit vaccinated approximately 6,000 persons in Chilton county against typhoid fever, and this number represents about one-fourth of the population of the county. This should result in a marked reduction in the number of cases this year. As a matter of fact, there have been no cases to the present time this year, while at this date last year, four cases had been reported, and two of these four died. What will happen in the near future we do not know, but we do know that if those who have not been vaccinated will do so promptly, typhoid fever will be a very uncommon disease in Chilton county this year.

But vaccination is not the whole story. The ultimate control of typhoid fever will have to be through a combination of vaccination and sanitation. For while vaccination will give a large amount of protection and will, in most cases, prevent the disease even if exposure does occur, we must prevent this exposure to case or carrier before the disease will be eradicated. And when we remember that the disease spreads by means of body wastes, the importance of proper sanitation to prevent pollution of food and water supply becmes evident. Here, again, through the sanitation officer, the health unit is prepared to give service. Your individual problem can be discussed and advice and supervision of any construction of any septic tank or sanitary privy is available. The sanitatiton officer also has a crew of W. P. A. workers under his supervision and they are available to anyone who wishes to construct approved types of privies or septic tanks. Material must be supplied. Adequate sanitation not only protects against typhoid fever but against dysentery and hookworm disease as well.

Unnecessary sickness and death are still far too common. Let's eliminate typhoid fever as a cause of sickness and death in Chilton county.

Prize of $50.00 to be Given Away Saturday Morning, May 20, at 10 o'clock, near Hayes Chevrolet Company.
